AFRO-AMERICAN CULLINGS

The negroes of New York, of whom there are now some 100,000 in the four boroughs, have more public entertainments, more elaborate and expensive, than those of any other city in the country. This is true because they make more money and have less and have more opportunities than the negroes of other cities.

White, black and colored of New York are alike in the disposition to dress better, feed better and enjoy life more than any other people in the country. People who spend most of their money on food and drink and have more opportunities than the negroes of other cities.

But those organizations of ours that give entertainments should sit down hard on the disposition to scandalous conduct which has made its appearance at public receptions. These organizations have, in the main, a reputation for high and ennobling purposes to maintain, and they cannot afford to allow it to be lowered by conduct of their patrons scandalous in character. A new generation have come upon the scene in New York, many of whom have a notion that loud, boisterous and vulgar conversation, indelicately suggestive dress, dances in which the proprietors are whistled down the winds, and drinking to excess are the things most approved to be done, and do them—the wives and daughters and sons should be protected from the extremes in these things that corrupt the mind and encourage extravagant spending in dress, drinking and eating.

It is to be regretted that the lessees and owners of dance halls and gardens retain the right to sell all the liquor and cigars and eatables they can, and do it, to make up the difference in the small rental demanded for the use of such halls and gardens. The lessees make the money on the bar and restaurant privileges, and the organization scarcely covers expenses by the admission prices demanded. It is a fair deduction that 90 per cent. of the vast sum spent every week by negroes in public entertainments goes into the pockets of the white owners and owners of the halls and restaurants who retain the bar and restaurant privileges, and who often make a scandalous condition in the effort to sell as much liquor as possible, and do it. There is no apparent escape from this condition in New York except that our organizations pool their money and credit and purchase one great garden and one great hall of their own.

Public entertainments that corrupt the morals of old and young alike, that put a premium upon intemperance, which lead to display of obscene talk and vulgar actions—such public entertainments are dangerous. Our older men and women should see this, if the younger do not, and do what they can to keep the moral standards high. We believe they desire to do so and will welcome any assistance we can give them in helping them to do so.

The progress of the race is measured alike by things the race is trying to do and by the things that it has ceased to do. Among the things that have fallen into discredit among us we may mention these: Begging money from the whites with which to bury a negro. That used to be a rather common custom in small towns and villages. We know now that whenever the whites have to be appealed to for funds with which to bury a negro it is in the case of a negro who is not worth burying. Another custom now happily on the decline is that of soliciting aid from the whites to enable us to celebrate the 19th of June. Thoughtful negroes everywhere are beginning to feel that in a matter of this sort the negro should pay the piper or do without the music. But what about another habit closely akin to these two and which in some quarters is as strong now among us? We mean the habit of begging and harassing the white man for funds with which to build fine churches. Haven't we reached the point where the negro should be content to worship in only such buildings as he is able to erect himself as such as his limited means will justify? We know the negro does violence to his self-respect—to say nothing about what he does to God—by soliciting for funds to build churches which in no sense is an indication of the sort of homes the race is content to occupy. In the matter of building costly churches we have long ago exceeded the speed limit and in the method of getting the funds together for that purpose we have often outraged common sense and ordinary decency and self-respect. A church should in a measure be an index of the taste, comfort and well being to be found in the homes of the majority of its worshippers.

Much of the complaint launched against the younger generation of negroes grows out of a lack of home training. The problem of making proper mothers for the proper rearing of the young is present among all races in varying degrees. The aggravation of the problem among negroes arises more from ignorance of the proper things to be done than from any special disease of the material instinct. It is possible to get more manners and more self-repression from children only by a series of painstaking devotion to training and development. This ideal will not be reached until we start back sufficiently far to train the mother for the task. The great trouble now is that there is effort put forth to train them for every other thing but this one. Social sentiment needs to reshape itself so as to meet this vital problem for the negro and the country.—Durham Reformer.

A dutiful soul needs no emphasis from a long countenance.

shippers; if it is varied from this it should do so by reason of being below the general average of such things. In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the church with us is a grotesque exaggeration. The deserving leader in these matters is the man who is trying to get the race to come down to the earth. Generally we've been acting on the theory: First, get fine churches and everything else will be added. We've got to turn that rule around. Common sense, business sense, and the sense of self-respect all dictate this reversal.—Dallas Express.

Those who have kept tab on Houston's local affairs, especially as they apply to and affect the negro citizen, know for a certainty that a brighter and better day is dawning. The negro is coming into his own. In this particular, they as a class are doing much for themselves, but as a matter of fact the changes that are being effected daily and which are bound to inure to the negro's betterment are being rapidly facilitated by the daily press of the city, prominent among which is the Houston Post, which says:

"We come now to the question of housing the negro people of Houston, and what we say of Houston is true of all the larger cities of the south. The great majority of negroes live in rented houses owned by white people. As a rule, these habitations are miserable, filthy, insanitary shacks, located upon boggy streets. People who inhabit such places are subjected to such conditions of living that disease, physical and moral, is inevitable.

The consideration of self-preservation alone would suggest the crying necessity for better conditions. If such filthy quarters result in malignant diseases, the health of the white people of the community is always imperiled. Negroes are employed in almost every well-to-do white home in the southern cities, and their capacity to transmit disease is limited only by the conditions among which they live. If they are afforded decent surroundings, they will have an incentive to cleanliness and self-respect that is otherwise impossible. This incentive must be afforded by their white landlords.

"A Houston building firm recently announced that it would erect some model cottages to be sold upon easy terms to negroes. This is an example worthy emulation. The home-owning negro is a good citizen. Home-ownership makes a good citizen of the average man, white or black. But one thing is certain: The public health of all southern cities will be greatly improved and the mortality rate materially reduced if far-reaching movements be inaugurated to house the tenant negroes in clean and sanitary houses. They are going to be with us always, and it is but common sense to encourage them in every possible way to become a helpful, intelligent, moral and respectable influence in the communities in which they live. This they can do only if they have the constant sympathy and aid of their white fellow citizens.

Governors and other leaders from several southern states recently conferred in Baltimore on labor and industrial conditions in that section. The reawakened south, industrially and agriculturally expanding at a rate unknown since the Civil war, needs labor. There is insistent demand that European immigrants be steered to the south to supply this demand.

The negro is almost ignored in this demand for immigration. He is set down as hopeless, trifling, futile, impossible. But is it safe to rush to that conclusion?

Though the white population of the south is increasing more rapidly than the black, and though every decennial census makes it more clear that there is no possible danger of the black, as once was feared, coming to predominate—despite all this, the fact remains that there are some 11,000,000 of colored people in the country, and that they cannot be got rid of. There, stands the hard fact.

It may be that the negro is not so desirable a worker in factory or field as the immigrant; but if the immigrant takes his place, the negro will be left on the hands of society, demanding the means of livelihood, a menace to the community in greater and greater degree just in proportion as the hopelessness of his condition is made more apparent.

If the south's 11,000,000 negroes could be traded off for 11,000,000 of whites, that would be a solution. But they cannot be. The negroes are there. They must be provided for; made as useful as possible; made to support themselves.

To make the most, the best, of its negro workers is the first big duty of the south. It is the most difficult problem before the nation.

It cannot be solved by the effort to drive the negro out; he will not be driven out. He must be looked after, educated in the right way, given a chance to be self-respecting, encouraged to improve his condition.—Columbia Magazine.

ON NEGRO LEWIS LAWYERS KICK

Wickersham Is Making Fight to Save His Assistant.

LEWIS WAS ELECTED MEMBER OF BAR ASSOCIATION AND WICKERSHAM IS WORKING TO PREVENT EXCLUSION OF THE NEGRO—CASE HAS BEEN REFERRED.

Washington, D. C.—Attorney General Wickersham is seeking to prevent the American Bar association from ousting W. H. Lewis, his negro assistant, from membership. Lewis was elected about a year ago, but the executive committee of the association, when it met here January 4, passed a resolution rescinding the election.

The bar association membership has been in turmoil ever since the election of Lewis, but the facts have just come to light through the fight the attorney general has undertaken on behalf of his assistant. Lewis was elected at a meeting of the executive committee between the annual meetings of 1910 and 1911, the election having been a perfunctory matter, as Lewis was endorsed by a majority of the local council of Massachusetts.

It is said his application did not state that he was an assistant attorney general. His color was not the subject of inquiry.

The membership committee was preparing to issue its year book for 1911-12 when a member of the committee sought information as to the identity of "W. H. Lewis of Boston," a new member. When it developed that Lewis was the negro assistant attorney general a storm of protest was heard, and the year book was held up. The case was referred to the executive committee which adopted a resolution at its January meeting rescinding the vote by which Lewis had been elected.

At the time of the meeting here it was rumored that some such action was to be taken, but members of the committee denied it. Assistant Attorney General Lewis was questioned at the time, but he disclaimed having knowledge of an attempt to oust him.

It is understood here the case has been referred to the general counsel of the association, which will meet in Milwaukee next August. This council is made up of one member from each state. Lewis placed his case in the hands of Mr. Wickersham, and he has written to all of the 4,700 members protesting that Lewis was legally elected, and that the executive committee was without warrant in rescinding the election.

It is claimed that a negro was never before elected as a member of the bar association. Members seeking to bar Lewis from membership claim the association is social in character, and some have gone so far as to declare they will resign if negroes are admitted.

100 PER CENT. ILLITERATE

AFRICAN MISSIONARY TELLS OF CONDITIONS IN DARK CONTINENT UNDER PORTUGUESE RULE—PORTUGUESE ALSO DENSELY IGNORANT.

New York.—Miss Martha Drummer, missionary to Quessua, Melange, Angola, Africa, addressed a St. Mark's audience dressed in the costume of the progressive natives a few evenings ago. Miss Drummer read and sang in the native language. She then gave at length her experiences with the curious customs, ignorance and superstition of the people. Her work is with and for the natives of Africa, supervised by Bishop Hartzel of the M. E. church. Her field of labor is on the Portuguese possessions. Notwithstanding the fact that the Portuguese nation is more than seventy per cent. illiterate, it holds complete control over the natives, who are one hundred per cent. illiterate.

The Portuguese hold Angola as a dumping ground for their criminal class. All the thieves, murderers and other objectionable citizens are exiled to Angola, where they are given free range with the native Africans as their prey. Thus, added to their burdens the missionary and the natives have this extra load of sin to bear.

Miss Drummer told her story with earnestness and zeal. In some instances her stories were amusing; at other times they were heart-rending. She told of when she was leaving this country, six years ago, how an old colored woman, having heard that Africa was a dark country, brought her five little pieces of candle to light her way. This incident she wrote back to a lady who sent her one hundred dollars to help in the work.

ARRAIGNED AS CHICKEN THIEF NEGRO PLEADS UNWRITTEN LAW

Alton, Ill.—Gus Tucker, a negro, name, who talks with a Spanish accent, pleaded the unwritten law when called for trial before Circuit Judge Crow. He told the court he stole chickens from the negro who stole his wife and that he did not think he had done wrong. Judge Crow and the state's attorney charged the charge to petty larceny and Tucker was sentenced to jail.

RACES MAY BE SEPARATED IN SLEEPING CARS BY LAW

Atlanta, Ga.—It seems that the legislature has taken action prohibiting white and colored passengers from riding together in the same cars, but permitting white and colored passengers to sleep together in the same cars. This has always struck me as anomalous.

So wrote Judge James K. Hines, special attorney for the Georgia railroad commission, in an opinion recently rendered that body upon a complaint by John D. Walker, the well-known banker of Sparta.

It is not unlikely that Mr. Walker's complaint and the commission's investigation of it may lead to some more legislation or attempted legislation this summer upon the "Jim Crow" line.

When Mr. Walker got on a train in Atlanta a few nights ago, bound for New York, he found difficulty in getting a berth. All he could get was an upper, while there were three negroes who got on the train in Atlanta who were supplied with lower berths. Also there were some other white passengers who were unable to get lower berths.

Mr. Walker was indignant, as were the other white passengers who failed to get berths. He did not wait to write; he telegraphed the railroad commission about it. He wanted to know if some action could not be taken to "stop such social equality privileges and objectionable practices."

Members of the railroad commission puzzled over the matter and began to hunt up the law. They knew it was unlawful in Georgia for the railroads to transport white and negro passengers in the same day coaches. But how about sleeping cars? Surely, if the two races were not allowed to sit together in a railroad coach, it could not be lawful for them to sleep in the same car. Finally, the matter was turned over to Judge Hines.

Did the commission have any authority in the matter? Could it deal with Mr. Walker's case? Judge Hines was asked to find out. He did.

"In my opinion," wrote Judge Hines to the commission in reply, "the commission has no power and authority to remedy this situation. Mr. Walker will have to appeal to the legislature and congress.

The legislature of Georgia has passed a law requiring the railroads doing business in this state to furnish equal accommodations, in separate cars or compartments of cars, for white and colored passengers; but this law expressly provides that it shall not apply to sleeping cars."

Here Judge Hines makes the above quoted comment upon a law which permits under cover of darkness, as it were, what is prohibited by daylight, and continued:

"By another statute sleeping car companies and railroad companies operating sleeping cars in this state have the right to assign all passengers to seats and berths, and can separate the white and colored races in making said assignments, and the conductor and other employees on the train, to which said sleeping cars may be attached, shall not permit white and colored passengers to occupy the same compartment. This statute further provides that nothing therein contained shall be construed to compel sleeping car companies to carry colored persons in sleeping or parlor cars. Conductors have police power to enforce the provisions of this act. (Civil code, sections 2724, 2725.)

"As the statutes of this state expressly declare that the races cannot be segregated in sleeping cars, but they can only be assigned to separate berths or compartments, I do not think that the commission has the power and authority to make a rule or regulation separating the races in sleeping cars.

"It is competent for the legislature of this state to pass a law requiring the separation of the two races in public conveyances in interstate journeys; and such a law is not unconstitutional.

"The legislature would hardly have authority to pass a statute regulating this subject in reference to interstate journeys.

"The segregation of white and colored passengers on interstate journeys is a reasonable regulation of interstate traffic, and carriers can make and enforce such regulations under the act to regulate commerce.

"The railroads of the south, if they see fit, could put into effect and force this regulation without legislation; and the commission might call their attention to the complaint filed by Mr. Walker."

Judge Hines' opinion will prove an interesting one; it contains information not generally known. The impression has been gained probably from the law requiring separate day coaches for whites and negroes, that the same, or a similar, law governed sleeping cars.

The legislature, if it should deal with it at all, could only make a regulation governing journeys wholly within the state. And since it is not likely that congress will pass an act separating the races in sleeping cars carrying interstate travel, it is a question, as Judge Hines says, that is up to the railroad companies.

RIGHT SIDE UP WITH CARE.

Henry was very proud of the new kittens and went for them to show them to the visitors. His mother heard them coming along the hall, and, alarmed at the noise of the procession, called out: "Don't hurt the kittens, Henry!"

HENSEN TELLS OF TRIP TO THE POLE

Guest of Society for Historical Research in Yonkers.

ATE BOILED DOG OFTEN

MAN WHO ACCOMPANIED PEARY TO THE NORTH POLE RELATES MANY INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT THE ARCTIC REGION—CLIMATIC AND ASTRONOMICAL INCIDENTS OF THE VOYAGE.

Yonkers, N. Y.—At a recent meeting of the Negro Society for Historical Research, with headquarters in this city, Mr. Matthew A. Hensen, who accompanied Commander Peary to the north pole, was the principal speaker. The exercises were held at Sunny Slope cottage, which is the residence of Mr. John E. Bruce, president of the organization. A special feature of the musical program was the part taken by little Miss Cecile Butler and her brother Willie, who gave several piano and violin selections with rare ability.

Mr. Hensen told of his travels and experiences in the arctic regions in a straightforward, painstaking manner, drawing here and there many striking illustrations of the difficulties and hardships encountered en route to the icy regions. He is a pleasing speaker and possesses a fund of humor. He said he felt highly honored when he was asked to speak before the Historical society, which is doing a good work in preserving for future reference the achievements of the negro race.

He had been a globe trotter for many years. Before he entered the service of Commander Peary he made the trip to China and the Orient on a sailing vessel and was out of the country for three years. On his return from this trip he went to South America, where it was so hot they had to feed the hens cracked ice to prevent them from laying hard-boiled eggs. Next he entered the service of Peary and for 20 years had followed the commander's fortunes on all his trips to the north pole and shared with him the hardships which his triumphant discovery entailed.

In 1906 Hugh Lee and himself were the only men in Peary's party to volunteer to stay with him for another year, and they, with Peary, made the famous record trip across the polar ice in 33 days. In the final quest for the pole they made an average of 26 miles a day, and on reaching the pole Peary took five sets of observations to make sure he had actually got there.

He told in a humorous way how the party subsisted during this and other trips polarward. They had boiled dog for breakfast, stewed dog for dinner and cold boiled dog for supper. Sometimes they shot a musk ox and enjoyed a square meal. The Eskimos, he said, are polygamists, having as many wives as they can support. They have no religion that can be defined. They believe if a man is good he will go up into the sky after death and if he goes down into the bowels of the earth.

They are a short lived people. The men rarely live to be 40 years of age. The females marry at from 12 to 14 years and at 18 or 19 look to be 30 or 40. They have a proverb which he quoted in Eskimo and translated: "The peacock may be a beautiful bird, but it takes a stork to deliver the goods."

He said the moon shone so brightly in the arctic regions that it is possible to hunt the musk ox by its refulgent light or to read or do any work ordinarily performed in the daytime. The sun at its brightest can be looked at without danger to the eyes. Its heat is not felt. For 110 days the sun never sets in the arctic regions, and for the same number of days it never rises.

Mr. Hensen was asked a number of questions by members of the society, which he answered quickly, showing that he was familiar with the geography and topography of the polar region, where he had spent, off and on, the best part of 20 years. A reception in Mr. Hensen's honor was given at the close of the program.

FIGHT FOR NEGRO BY WICKERSHAM

ATTORNEY GENERAL SAYS HE'LL QUIT BAR ASSOCIATION IF IT OUSTS LEWIS.

Washington, D. C.—Attorney General Wickersham said that he would resign from the American Bar association if that organization sustained the action of its executive committee in ousting William H. Lewis, a negro, and an assistant attorney general, from membership.

The attorney general declared that he was not fighting for the admission of a negro to the organization, but was waging a fight against the idea that the American Bar association could do a thing which he believes to be illegal.

NUTRIENTS OF FOOD.

Protein, starch, fat, sugar and fiber are the nutrients that make up foods. Protein is the only one from which muscle and tissue can be made—the others serve to produce heat, energy and fat. Starch and sugar are equal in food value. The fiber in the plant cut green has the same food value as starch; when the plant is mature, the fiber becomes largely indigestible as in straw. Fat serves the same purpose in the animal body as starch.

ENTIRE COUNTRY REJOICES OVER DESERVED PROMOTION OF EMMETT J. SCOTT ELECTED SECRETARY OF TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE.

Washington, D. C.—There is general rejoicing throughout the country over the action of the board of trustees of Tuskegee Institute in electing that faithful and experienced worker, Mr. Emmett J. Scott, as secretary of the school, in the upbuilding of which he has had so large a part. The place was created especially for him, and is a fitting recognition of his eminent and helpful services to the institution covering a period of 15 years.

The honor came wholly unlooked for as far as Mr. Scott is concerned, and was, therefore, a complete surprise to him. Although he accepts the rare compliment paid him by the heads of the school, it is understood that in assuming the new dignity he will not consent to any suggestion that the relations he has long sustained as Dr. Washington's secretary shall be terminated. Consequently, it has been arranged that Mr. Scott shall continue to serve the principal in the same capacity as of yore, in addition to his duties as secretary to the school.

Mr. Scott is a native of Houston, Texas, and is a leader in the field of journalism, as well as in the arena of education. He won his spurs on the Houston Daily Post, and with C. N. Love founded the Texas Freeman, the higher voice of the great southwest. He is now editor of the Tuskegee Student, a paper of wide circulation and vast influence in educational circles, and has just launched the Business League Herald, as the spokesman of the National Negro Business League, of which he is corresponding secretary.

Mr. Scott has declined several flattering offers to go into the federal service, but was induced by President Taft to accept a place on the United States commission to adjust the difficulties of the Liberian republic, and had the distinction of being the first colored man appointed by Mr. Taft after his inauguration in 1909. On this commission, in company with military and civil officers of high rank, Mr. Scott acquitted himself with marked credit, and is conceded to have been the foremost member of that unique body.

It is felt by Mr. Scott's host of friends that in his enlarged sphere of activity, Mr. Scott will prove to be an even more potent factor than ever in the forward movements and extension work of the famous Tuskegee Institute. He is in receipt of a heavy mail, bearing congratulations.

BEAUTIES AMONG DESPISED RACES

CAHETS OF FRANCE AND RODIYAS OF CEYLON RENOWNED FOR GOOD LOOKS.

Paris.—For the first time in many, many years a German book, Hans Heinz Ewers' "India," set all France talking. The great traveler makes the extraordinary statement that the most beautiful women in France and Ceylon come of a race formerly regarded as political and social pariahs. The English have abolished the pariah taint in Ceylon, and the first French revolution removed it from the Cahets or Gotes in France, who, though Christians, were obliged to enter church by a special door, had their own holy water fonts, etc., up to the downfall of French royalty.

The Cahets live now in the landscapes of Gasconne, Guyenne, Bearn, Brittany and Maine. Their origin is unknown, but the name indicates that they may be descendants of the Gots, Cahet being a contraction of canis gotticus—Goth-dog. For more than a thousand years the rest of France treated them as outcasts, and they are still so regarded socially in many of the rural districts. They are easily recognized by the missing ear-lobe, a characteristic likewise found in many Parisians. Maybe in olden times many stray Cahets, wishing to escape prosecution at home, emigrated to the great town.

It is a fact, though, that nearly all the great women beauties of France were and are Cahets, which, says the author, strangely coincides with the fact that the Rodiyas of Ceylon, until the arrival of the English regarded as outcasts, both politically and socially, produce the most beautiful women, not only in Ceylon, but in all India.

"In this connection," says the author, "I observed that in the land of castes, the darker the skin, the lower the social order.

"This holds good in all India, yet the Rodiyas are much lighter in color than the majority of the contemporaries, and not only the women, the men, too, are far better looking than their contemporaries. Their features are of a noble cut and their legs are much better developed.

"Their better physical condition is due to the fact that up to the English protectorate the superior castes of India gave their unfaithful women and their unchaste daughters to the Rodiyas as the most horrible of punishments. In this way the despised race received a goodly admixture of the best blood of India, many queens, sultanas and princesses being condemned to marry Rodiyas."

NOTES ON MILKING.

No loud talking or noise should be allowed in the cow's stable around milking time. It will excite the cow and cause her to hold up her milk. The cow should be milked in the same place and in the same way every time. The cow is a creature of habit. Do not feed succulent foods previous to parturition, as it stimulates milk secretion abnormally. If the udder is in a congested condition, massage it with butter or lard, and allow the calf to suck frequently.

PORO

TRADE MARK REGISTERED.

When we first began our wonderful work of growing all kinds, all qualities, all lengths, and all conditions of hair, even to the growing of hair on bald places of the head, many persons scorned the idea that such a thing was possible; but we have grown the hair for hundreds; rapidly achieving success. The proof of the value of our work is that we are being imitated and largely by persons whose own hair we have actually grown and the further fact that they have very frequently mentioned us when trying to sell their goods (saying that theirs is the same or "just as good") or referred to PORO. We advise you to use only PORO Hair Grower, (the oldest and best of its kind.) See that the name PORO is on every box, not genuine without it. Prepared only by Mrs. A. M. POPE.
