PORO COLLEGE NEW HOME.

The Largest, Most Modern Building Ever Erected by a Colored Person.Below We Give a Complete Daily Report of the Eight Days Opening.

St. Louis, Mo.—The whole race join in congratulating Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Malone on the new home of the Poro College, the greatest, largest and most complete commercial building in the country owned by the race. It was erected at a cost of $250,000 and will go down in history as one of the great achievements of the American Negro.

A whole week was used in the opening and dedicatory exercises, during which some of the most noted men and women of the race from all parts of the country took part. Each night was an interesting program. Among some of the prominent men who were present were Rev. W. Sampson Brooks, D. D., Baltimore, Mr. John H. Murphy, editor Afro-American, Baltimore, Md.; George L. Knox, editor of the Freeman, Indianapolis, Ind.; Lester A. Walton, managing editor New York Age, New York City; Ormand A. Forte, editor Cleveland Advocate, Cleveland, Ohio; George B. Garner, Jr., tenor soloist, Chicago, Ill.; J. Findlay Wilson, editor Washington Eagle, Washington, D. C.; Robert S. Abbott, editor Chicago Defender; Nelson C. Crews, editor of the Kansas City Sun, Kansas City, Mo.; J. Anthony Josey, I. Willis Cole, Louisville Leader, Louisville, Ky.; W. E. King, editor Dallas Express, Dallas, Tex.; Harry C. Smith, editor Cleveland Gazette, Cleveland, Ohio; J. Anthony Josey, editor Wisconsin Blade, Madison, Wis.; John L. Thompson, editor Bystander, Des Moines, Iowa; Roscoe C. Simmons, Louisville, Ky.; Cary B. Lewis, managing editor of the Chicago Defender; Mrs. B. S. Abbott, Chicago; Mrs. C. B. Lewis, Chicago; Charles Stewart, U. S. A.; Roland Hayes, Boston, Mass.; J. L. Caston, St. Louis Clarion; Mrs. C. A. Williams, Atlanta, Ga.; William H. Steward, editor American Baptist, Louisville, Ky.; George Harris, editor New York News; E. A. Byrd, of Springfield, and many others.

The audience was spread Sunday morning, November 24th, with praise service conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Malone. Mr. Malone made the opening prayer, and the scripture lesson was read by Mrs. A. E. Malone. The lesson read was in keeping with the occasion. It was fitting that the first meeting in the building should be praise service. Only the employees were present with a few personal friends of the head of the institution. The employees had prayer and short talks, quotations from the scripture.

Monday at 11 o'clock the building was inspected by the members of the local Negro Business League. Then followed the opening of the building to the public at 6 o'clock p. m. Many were the visitors who were shown through the building by the ushers.

The first public meeting was held Monday night in the auditorium which was attended by fully five hundred people. They were present from all parts of the country. Roland Hayes, of Boston, the noted tenor. Prof. Frank L. Williams, principal of the Summer High School, presided.

Prof. Williams said that in the achievement of Mr. and Mrs. Malone was revealed the wonderfulness of man, who was made in the image of God. He felt that the whole race should feel proud of them.

Congressman Newton was introduced and spoke in terms of praise of the work of the building. He was proud to see the great institution. "Great things have been done by our boys overseas," he said, "and soon they will be coming home, come home as American citizens. We are all American citizens. In the future an American citizen will be tested by his worth and achievements and not by his physical size, not by his color. We are American citizens, all of us striving for some purpose, living under the same flag."

"What wonderful example to us in this splendid achievement. Behold this little orphan girl, who has worked her way to the top. Behold her wonderful achievement. She took advantage of the opportunity, and did not sit down. Through her zeal, push, training and Christian life she stands with her husband today a living example of what opportunity will do, if properly used by a trained mind."

Dr. W. Sampson Brooks, of Baltimore, who was the principal speaker, told of the union of the two great minds, and of his first visit to their place and how he was impressed with the fact that they opened their business with prayer. "A people who pray and trust God will succeed," he said, "and therefore we are all proud of Mr. and Mrs. Malone."

"There are three kind of people in the world, producers, distributors and consumers. The Negro must be among the producers. He must put brain in his products. Brain power rules the world, and if the Negro would be among the rulers, he must put brains into his work. Brain power will make the world bow at your feet. The world never asks who invented anything that is useful, but it puts it into use. Invention was never known to draw the color line and what can be done by the individual, we have it here in this little woman, Mrs. Annie Turnbo-Malone. Behold her."

Mrs. Malone was given an ovation when presented to the large audience. She made a short talk in which she said that if she were booked for an address her subject would be "Giving." It was a great thing to give, and she impressed the value of little gift, and told how she had been encouraged, inspired by the gift of a kind word during her early life, and she was ever ready to respond to any cause which needed her, and if she only had the means she would give to every appeal made to her.

In the audience Monday night were some of the leading men and women of St. Louis. The best people of both races vied with each other to show their appreciation, their esteem, their respect for the woman, for the man who were not grumblers, but doers.

Tuesday. The second day of the opening was full. This wonderful building was thrown open to the public at 10 o'clock, and long before the hour there were many people on the streets waiting. No attempt to make money. The best available talent, men and women of national fame, and some international appeared on the program each evening of the week, and all who came were admitted free. The invitation went to all alike, "Come and see and hear."

The first song at the opening of the new building was composed by a member of the race, Hermez Zimmerman, of Hadley, Ill., "America First and Forever," and was sung by the Poro Choral Club, of 125 voices, the employees of the institution.

Rev. E. M. Cole, principal of one of the public schools of St. Louis, presided. Each program was arranged by Prof. Jones, secretary of the St. Louis Y. M. C. A. "The Old Flag Never Touched the Ground Boys," was the opening chorus, and the prayer was made by Dr. Cole.

George B. Garner of Chicago, tenor soloist, and director of the Polyphonic Choral Union, with his voice won large audience. He was encored time and time again. He made a hit.

Prof. Cole could recall when the section where now stands the magnificent structure was called Mudville, when it was considered "way out," but now it was a beautiful section of St. Louis, and great things would yet be accomplished right in the section where stands Poro College. "Poro will bring the people out here," he said.

"The Early Life of Aaron and Annie Malone" was discussed by Mrs. H. W. Jameson, of Peoria, Ill., who had known both from youth. She told of the school days of Aaron, his finishing the grammar school, high school, normal and then accepting a small school in southern Illinois, then principal of a large school in Quincy. On account of ill health, left the school room, became a book agent and later married the model woman of the Negro race.

The life of Mrs. Malone as told by Mrs. Jameson was an inspiration to the girls of the race. She described her humble home, her school days with her short hair, but now she portrayed the elements of a great woman. She stuck to her school duties, feeding her mind, and today she is a benefactor to the whole race.

Charles Stewart, of Chicago, was the next speaker. "He who fails to find himself, who he is, what he is and his place in God's universe, is a failure throughout his life," he said, "and we have before us these two characters, Mr. and Mrs. Malone, because they took the time in the school room to locate themselves. Man must find himself through his mind. Physical size, or strength, is not manhood, but man is mind. God breathed into his nostrils, mind, soul, will. He rules the world because he is the mind of the world."

Editor George L. Knox, of the Indianapolis Freeman, spoke. He said some good wholesome things to the people. The closing address was made by Editor John H. Murphy, of the Afro-American, Baltimore, Md. He delivered a practical business address. Lester A. Walton, of the New York Age, was introduced as a product of St. Louis. He had spent his early life in "Mudville," but today stood out as an inspiration to the youth of the race.

Wednesday.

The crowd had largely increased from out of town, and all day the ushers were kept busy showing the visitors through the plant. In the afternoon the Poro agents of St. Louis gave a reception and banquet to the visiting agents. They assembled in the auditorium where a program was rendered. Mrs. Victoria Turner presided, and Mrs. Bland made the opening prayer. One of the features was a solo by Mrs. Vella Bundy, wife of Dr. Bundy.

Mrs. A. E. Malone extended welcome to the large crowd of agents. She was glad that they came, and wanted that they should enjoy their stay. Addresses of welcome to the large crowd were delivered by Mrs. Brooks, Mrs. Kelly and Mrs. Hawkins. Mrs. Cora Williams of Atlanta, Ga., Mrs. Willie Scott of Cleveland, Ohio, Mrs. Betts of Chicago, Mrs. E. L. Vaughn of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Clark of New York responded to the addresses.

At the banquet responses to toasts were made by agents from Kentucky,

It was impossible to get standing room in the evening. It was the time when Roscoe Conkling Simmons was the principal speaker. Many were anxious to hear him, hence long before the hour the auditorium was crowded. The opening prayer was made by Rev. George E. Stevens.

"They Had a Vision," was the keynote of the address delivered by Prof. Brown in introducing the program. Then followed a solo by America's favorite soprano, Anita Patti Brown of Chicago. She was at her best and while the sweet sound filled the large auditorium the people sat breathless, so to speak.

The following from the people in Louisville, Ky., was read by Editor I. Willis Cole:

"In behalf of the citizens of Louisville, representing the professional, educational, commercial and industrial life of the city, we extend hearty congratulations upon the opening of your new magnificent commercial and educational institution. We have watched with great interest the remarkable up Poro because they could serve. Carey B. Lewis, managing editor of the Chicago Defender, spoke.

Editor George L. Knox also made a telling speech on "Thanksgiving; Its Origin and What It Meant to the American People." It was a practical address. Then John L. Thompson was introduced and made a fine speech.

Newspaper Men Meet. The newspaper men attending the opening had a meeting in the afternoon, which was followed by a smoker and a visit to the various newspapers of the city under the escort of the local newspapers.

In the meeting Editor Harry C. Smith of Cleveland, Ohio, presided, with Editor John L. Thompson of Des Moines as secretary. Editor Abbott of the Chicago Defender delivered an address on "Newspaper Making." The meeting was also addressed by Prof. A. E. Malone, who said that he was indeed glad to have the members of the press present. It was not his desire to have them use a story that he might have prepared for them, but he wanted them to come and see, and if they found anything worthy of telling their readers to do it from their standpoint and not from his. He had a desire to this magnificent structure, I am willing to surrender to Mr. and Mrs. Malone. This is a great building and we rejoice with you because of it. St. Louis leads the world."

Mr. Crews grew eloquent as he pictured the achievements of the race, the work of the boys overseas, those who had given their lives to make the world safe for democracy. His picture of the heroes fighting on foreign fields for world wide democracy was dramatic. He paid his respect to those who would keep the race back, and declared that the building in which he stood said to the enemy and friend alike that the Negro will not down. "We have helped with the blood of some of our best young men, and now we want democracy to be made safe for the world."

"The blood of your mothers and fathers will cry out against you if you do not help that young man who dared to defend our people, I refer to that hero, Dr. Bundy." This was greeted with an outburst of applause and cheering.

My trouble was a heavy dull feeling after eating."—David Freeman, Kemper, Nova Scotia. These tablets strengthen the stomach and improve the digestion. They also regulate the liver and bowels. They are far superior to pills but cost no more.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Malone, Founder and Owner of Poro College.

growth of Poro College. Now we take great pleasure in felicitating upon your crowning achievement.

Dr. S. A. Ware, of Springfield, rendered a solo. He was given an encore. Roscoe C. Simmons, the speaker, was given an ovation when introduced. He delivered an address. For being late he said it was due to the fact that he had to stop to look at the building and he was proud that he did, because he was a Negro from top to bottom. He said that the building represented brains and money combined, both in possession of the Malones. "To build up a great race, a great institution, you must have the combination of brains and money. This is a great accomplishment for the race."

Thanksgiving.

There were many interesting features connected with the day at Poro. It opened with Thanksgiving services in the auditorium presided over by Mrs. Malone—in fact this is the service that she had charge of and in which she seemingly entered with her whole soul and heart. She had many things for which she was thankful, among them being an opportunity to serve. She liked to serve and to her it was a source of pleasure all the time. She read the scripture lesson in keeping with the occasion.

Each employee and Poro agent had something to say, and it was to hear the story told by the women who were the agents of Poro. Several who had been teaching school resigned to take serve his people, and stood ready to do anything in his power to that end. "I invited you because I wanted you to be here. This invitation is not selfish."

Special Thanksgiving dinner was served to all the visitors. The largest crowd filled the auditorium and corridors Thursday evening. It was necessary to have an overflow meeting in the dining room. Prof. David Gordon, principal of one of the St. Louis schools, presided. Rev. M. Searey made the opening prayer, and was followed by a selection by the Summer High School Choral Club. Mrs. Florence Cole-Talbert of Detroit entertained the audience. Her voice has in it a fortune. She is the winner of the diamond medal from the Chicago Musical College, and the audience voted her another diamond medal. She sang "Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark," and the air, "Jux Je Suis, Titania," from Mignon. It was the crowning point of the evening.

The speaker of the evening was Hon. Nelson Crews, of Kansas City, Mo. It was a great speech and long since the country has acknowledged Mr. Crews as one of the greatest orators of his race. He maintained his reputation. He paid a high tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Malone for their contribution to the race.

"I was told to bring with me a white flag when I left home," said Mr. Crews. "White flag means surrender and I did not feel that I needed it, because Kansas City leads them all, but since I have been here and have seen

PORO COLLEGE OPENING.

For one to have visited the new Poro College building in St. Louis, Mo., during the opening last week, must feel a new impulse in business life for the Negro, a possibility of commercial growth and success among these of our race who will try and work to attain success. This great building with its manufacturing industry but demonstrates to the visiting world the real capacity of Negro brain and Negro money properly assembled and properly operated. This building is a credit to any city in the United States and a great honor to the Negro race. Prof. and Mrs. A. E. Malone have already won a world wide reputation in the commercial world. Indeed I was astonished at the magnitude of the building and the true manly and womanly character of the founder and owner, the true unassuming deportment. The true Christian people whose heart beat in sympathy for the downtrodden and struggling humanity. We would urge our readers to read the full report in this week's Bystander. Then I can say that the half has not been told.
My feeble tongue nor my pen can never tell you of this wonderful enterprise. I hope ere long to have this great institution portrayed to you in moving pictures in our city.

Few Escape.

There are few indeed who escape hav-months, and they are fortunate who have but one and get through with it quickly and without any serious consequences. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and observe the directions with each bottle, and you are likely to be one of the fortunate ones. The worth and merit of this remedy has been fully proven. There are many families who have always used it for years when troubled with a cough or cold, and with the very best results.

CAPITALIZE NEGRO.

In compliance with a request of Atty. S. Joe Brown, founder and first president of the Des Moines Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Des Moines Daily News has agreed to join with the other Des Moines dailies in capitalizing the word Negro hereafter whenever used as the name of the race with which we are identified. The Register and Tribune were the first Des Moines dailies to adopt this rule and were followed some time since by the Capital. The action on the part of the News is one of the results of the war as the request was made in a letter commending their editorial of Nov. 20th entitled "Americans Now and Always," in which the editor made a plea for a discontinuance of the use of the word "nigger" out of appreciation for the splendid work done by Negro soldiers during the war.

W. C. T. U. IN WAR WORK.
Soldiers and Sailors Department of the Eliza E. Petterson W. C. T. U. at Fort Des Moines hospital during the past eight months has been very satisfactory, although we have not done all we might have if the members of the Union had all been just a little more interested, but every one has had so many other duties and as we accomplish nothing when we try to do everything. It might have been worse, so please remember we still have $2.00 per member to raise and help me in the next entertainment please. Following is a report of the things we have done and letters from the commanding officer thanking us for same. Programs on Sunday afternoons during the summer, two rocking chairs to the new Y. M. C. A., a utility cupboard to the W. C. T. U. rest room, one bushel pears, four dozen bananas, one large basket apples, four letters a week to the letter shower editor, three hundred books and magazines during the flu quarantine, three and one-half dozen coat hangers and one walking stick, twelve property bags to the Red Cross. Now we can do any number of things if we get together. Let's try anyway. Thanking everyone for all the assistance they can give and don't forget to mail a letter to the letter shower editor every week. It is a little we all can do. Thank you. Mary E. Miles, Supt. S. S. Dept., chairman hospital committee. The committee are Mrs. W. M. Woods, Miss Adah Hyde and Mrs. H. R. Graves. United States General Hospital No. 26 Fort Des Moines, Iowa November 20th, 1918.

LEMONS WHITEN THE COMPLEXION

Any woman can make up this bleaching lotion for a few cents

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quart of the most remarkable lemon skin bleach at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold cream. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach a darkened skin.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quart pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands.

Capt. Robert A. Byrd of Springfield was the next speaker. He, like others, had many good things to say about the work of Mr. and Mrs. Malone and declared that the race could not say too much for them.

Dr. J. T. Caston, representing the Negro Business League of St. Louis, spoke. The members of the League were present in a body.

Editor Abbott of the Chicago Defender made an address. He was proud of the work of the Malones, and said that the only way for the American Negro to climb was by doing things and not by sitting around complaining.

Editor W. E. King of the Dallas Express read the following resolution:

"Whereas, the representatives of the newspapers here assembled recognize the splendid success of the Poro College Company, Mr. A. E. Malone, president, Mrs. A. E. Malone, secretary-treasurer, as exemplified in the beautiful building here erected, and

"Whereas, through their far-sightedness and intelligent value of the power of the press, they have extended to us a warm welcome to be present at this auspicious opening, of which invitation we have availed the opportunity to attend; therefore be it

"Resolved, that we extend a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Malone for the courtesies extended to us while here and wish for them the greatest measure of success in their splendid undertaking."

Signed: John H. Murphy, chairman; W. E. King, secretary; Harry C. Smith, J. Anthony Josey, John L. Thompson.

Overlook Meeting.

Two hundred people attended the overlook meeting in the dining room. Hon. Nelson C. Crows after finishing his speech in the auditorium addressed the overlook. Hon. Harry C. Smith, editor of the Cleveland Gazette, and who served three terms in the Ohio legislature, was the principal speaker. He said:

"The presence of so many editors of race newspapers is a distinct compliment to Prof. and Mrs. Malone in honor of the greatest race business enterprise to date." He referred to the fifty-six colored teachers in the mixed schools of the city of Cleveland as possibly the most encouraging thing of a racial nature for that city and state and referred to the inaction of Ohio's civil rights law, anti-lynching law and the barring of the infamous photo play, "The Birth of a Nation," from the state three years ago, and two months ago as the most distinctive racial successes of recent years in the state of Ohio.

Representing the Poro employees, Mrs. Mittie Johnson presented Mrs. Malone with a basket of flowers, using the following verse:

"From every section you have come,
Joyful things to us bring;
We receive you with glad hearts
And praise for you sing.

The employees of Poro College
Wish to mingle their voices today
Along with all these numbers great.
All hail! all hail this happy day.

No greater gift from mortal hand
To us has ever been given,
Than this gigantic structure,
With its marble, wood and brass Given.

This opening week will ever mark
An epoch in our lives,
Long live the great Malones
To greater things and higher plans
Than ever he has found,
And may his love for them increase
As he mounts the ladder round by round.

And may the generations yet unborn
Be ever taught to know
The great and lasting good they've done.

"And now in behalf of the faithful, well-trained, highly appreciative 125 employees of Poro College, please allow me, one of this number, the great honor of presenting you this beautiful bouquet in appreciation of our great esteem for you."

"This is a complete surprise to me," said Mrs. Malone. "We live together like one big family. I try to make every one around me feel like we are all one family. From time to time they have done little things for me, but never before were I so completely surprised. We did not have the slightest idea that they were thinking of us in this way. I assure you that I thank you all."

Friday.

There was a session of the press Friday morning. There were many things discussed by the men who hold the destiny of the race in their hands. Those men are the makers of sentiment and the defenders of the race. Hon. Harry Smith of Cleveland, Ohio, was elected president, and John L. Thompson of Des Moines, Iowa, secretary.

Resolutions were passed pledging the moral support to Dr. Bundy, the man of the hour, the man whose life was being sought or whose freedom was in jeopardy. It was impossible not alone to get in the auditorium in the evening, but the building had to be closed at 8 o'clock, for every available space was crowded.

Fully 3,000 people entered the building during the evening. The citizens of St. Louis, East St. Louis—in fact all of the surrounding towns came to see the largest enterprise of the race. All races were represented.

Hon. Harry C. Smith of the Cleveland Gazette presided. He made an address on race unity. He said that the race had reached the place where it should feel its oneness. "This building is a building for the whole race and when we talk about what we have accomplished point to it. We should all feel a deep interest in that young man, Dr. Bundy, and we should all get behind him for he is ours."

Mrs. Anita Patti Brown was the soloist for the evening and the principal speaker was Bishop L. J. Coppin of the African Methodist Episcopal church. Bishop was accompanied by Dr. W. H. Peck, pastor of St. James. It was declared that Bishop spoke as never before, and his address drove home many practical points to the whole race. He commended Mr. and Mrs. Malone for the monument they had erected and spoke in terms of praise of Mrs. Malone, because she was an inventor, having given to the world something which helped women to improve themselves. He spoke of some of his race who had declared that they were satisfied at being as God had made them, especially with their hair. It was in the plan of Almighty that man should improve. He has continued to improve the earth and the building was a practical demonstration of it.

Some of the Prominent Visitors at the Poro Opening.

1, A. E. Malone; 2, Mrs. A. E. Malone; 3, Rev. W. Sampson Brooks; 4, Mrs. G. W. Holt; 5, Hermes Zimmer man; 6, Anita Patti Brown; 7, George R. Garner, Jr.; 8, Dr. Mary F. Warring; 9, Lester A. Walton; 10, Mrs. Florence Cole-Talbert; 11, Dr. S. A. Ware; 12, Mrs. L. F. Jamerson; 13, Prof. F. L. Williams; 14, G. W. Edwards.

pal speaker was Bishop L. J. Coppin of the African Methodist Episcopal church. Bishop was accompanied by Dr. W. H. Peck, pastor of St. James. It was declared that Bishop spoke as never before, and his address drove home many practical points to the whole race. He commended Mr. and Mrs. Malone for the monument they had erected and spoke in terms of praise of Mrs. Malone, because she was an inventor, having given to the world something which helped women to improve themselves. He spoke of some of his race who had declared that they were satisfied at being as God had made them, especially with their hair. It was in the plan of Almighty that man should improve. He has continued to improve the earth and the building was a practical demonstration of it.

Short speeches were made by J. Anthony Josey, of Madison, Wis.; Ormand Forte, of Cleveland, Ohio; J. Findlay Wilson, of Washington, D. C.; and John L. Thompson, of Des Moines, Iowa, who said:

"Mr. Toastmaster, Honored Guests, Distinguished Visitors, Ladies and Fellow Citizens of St. Louis, Mo.: Gathered as we are upon the banks of the Father of Waters, in the metropolis of one of the greatest commonwealths in the sisterhood of states, Missouri is located in the heart of the valley of the Middle West, the most productive and richest garden spot of the world. If I did not live in Iowa, I believe that I would move to Missouri. Of course I am an Iowan, proud of my nativity, proud of the Hawkeye state, Iowa, whose motto is enshrined upon her state seal, 'Our Liberties We Prize and Our Rights We Will Maintain.'"

This grand old state with smallest per cent of illiteracy of any state in the union, less than 1 per cent of her citizens are unable to read and write. Iowa, the first state in the union to wipe from the statute books the black laws, Iowa, who has furnished more men in the present war than any other state. Iowa was the first state in the United States to go over the top in the Fourth Liberty Loan. So tonight I can truthfully say of all that is good Iowa affords the best. Yet, my hearers, I come not here to eulogize Iowa or to tell you of her beautiful prairies and productive soil, but I come to bear greetings from three millions of the best people in Iowa to you, Mr. and Mrs. Pope Turnbo-Malone. I come to tell you, Mr. and Mrs. Malone, and to these distinguished visitors that we are proud of your success, because about 20 years ago you took Booker T. Washington's word and let your bucket down where you are and success was her's. Out of nothing you made this great enterprise by your brain, labor and honesty.

Mrs. Malone was presented with a basket bouquet by the Orphan's Home. To this Prof. Malone responded. He said they were but God's stewards and his success was but God putting within his reach means to help the orphans and the old people, and the first money realized in the auditorium should be for the orphans. This is what he had on his book, and it was what should be done. He told how he and his wife were both orphans at the age of two years, hence knew full well how to extend to orphan children sympathy and their success was but means placed in their hands to do more for the unfortunate. He wanted to be able to do for the old people and the children alone in the world, he wept like a child, and there were many in the audience who joined with him.

There were many strong addresses delivered in the dining room. Captain Byrd presided.

Saturday. The building was again crowded and an overlook meeting was necessary. Dr. Mary Fitzbutler Waring of Chicago, chairman of Col. Denison Auxiliary Red Cross work at Olivet Baptist church, and captain of the cadet team which meets and serves soldiers passing through the city, was the speaker. She said in part:

"What plan can be advanced, what method can be pursued to draw together the factions of our people? What has been is, what will be must be the work of concentrated opinion towards furthering the great thought that our president has voiced making the world safe for democracy and to do this we must make America safe for all American citizens."

Prof. James L. Usher presided at the meeting Saturday evening and the soloist was John W. Evans.

George H. Harris, editor of the New York News, delivered the address. He said that he came to see the great building and like the Queen of Sheba he already was to say that the half had not been told.

Nick Chiles, editor of the Topeka Plaindealer, spoke. A moving picture exhibition was put on for a short time showing the progress of Poro and some interesting things racial.

Sunday marked the closing of the exercises and it was considered a great day. At a time when all the churches were not in service several thousand people were turned away from the building.

Nick Chiles, editor of Topeka Plaindealer, spoke Sunday. A bible was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Malone by Miss Bessie Coleman in behalf of the Young Ladies Reading Club of St. Louis. Many letters and telegrams of congratulation were received.

The Poro College Club furnished the music. John B. Vashon, Dr. O. C. Maxwell, made the opening prayer. Rev. Wm. H. Peck, D. D., introduced the speaker, Dr. R. E. Jones, editor of the Southwestern Christian Advocate.

The Rev. H. H. Harris presented Mrs. Malone with a large bouquet of flowers.

Description of the Building.
The Poro College building, southwest corner of St. Ferdinand and Pendleton avenue, was designed and erected under the supervision of Albert E. Groves, architect, and occupies an area 142x137. It contains three stories, mezzanine, besides a basement and roof garden, and is designed in an adaptation of the colonial style of architecture. The material used on the exterior is a dark red vitreous brick with white terra cotta trimming, cornice and string courses.

It has a reinforced concrete skeleton frame with brick enclosing walls and is thoroughly fireproof. It contains a manufacturing department for Poro products, together with the general office of the company; a department containing 31 booths for shampooing, massaging, manicuring and chiropody; four separate stores and an auditorium which will seat five hundred persons. The building also contains thirty-five offices equipped for doctors and dentists, and also class, dining room, kitchen and 95 dormitory rooms for Poro College which give instructions in the treatment of the scalp and hair, manicuring, etc. A large bath department equipped with tubs, shower, electric and vapor baths; also contains a large steam laundry, emergency hospital room, reception and committee rooms. The building is steam heated throughout and is equipped with modern plumbing; contains a model ice and refrigerating plant, which furnishes all the ice water fountains, the soda fountain, and refrigerates the vaults which contain the goods in the process of manufacture; also refrigerates the ice boxes in connection with the pantry and kitchen. It has local and long distance telephone connections from the rooms, every one of which is an outside room.

The building is equipped with pneumatic carriers, electric passenger and freight elevators.

The building cost upward of $250,000 to build and equip and is one of the largest and most complete establishments of its-kind in the country. It is owned by the Poro College Company, of which Aaron E. Malone is president, Annie M. Pope Turnbo-Malone secretary-treasurer. The institution formerly occupied a large residence at 3100 Pine street and has had a rapid growth, due largely to the business ability of Mrs. A. M. Pope Turnbo-Malone.

Thanksgiving was a great day for Pilgrim's Rest. After the usual Thanksgiving devotion, a large crowd assembled in the basement of the church to enjoy the repast provided by the sisters of the Praying Band, assisted by the younger ladies of the church. The unfortunate were not forgotten. It is the custom of Dr. T. H. Phillips to send a basket on Thanksgiving day to the old and sick regardless of church relationship. The apron bazaar given by the Mission Circle proved to be unique and profitable.

At night a choir of thirty voices rendered several classical and jubilee selections. The pastor then introduced Mrs. Ross, representing the Christian Board of Missions. So beautifully did she tell the story of the cross and with such pathos describe the heathen of darkest Africa, many shed tears. Sister Ross is so overflowing with love for every creature that she seems more angelic than human. Her only son, Rev. Emory Rosa, a young man, is now in the interior of Africa.
