Burns Fatal to Mrs. Eula Clark Thurs

Body Found Lying On Bed; Victim
Fled from Flames

A Des Moines woman who suffered burns over most of her body here on Feb. 23, died here last Thursday at Broadlawn Polk County hospital where she had been on the critical list. The victim was Mrs. Eula Clark, 64, of 1160 18th street who lived in an upstairs apartment at that address.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Lora Warden who occupied the first floor apartment of the same address. Mrs. Warden said she summoned firemen when smoke filtered down into her apartment. She said she went upstairs and knocked on the Clark Apartment door but no one answered.

Lying on Bed
Firemen said they were called to the two-story apartment house where Mrs. Clark lived at 9:14 a.m. and found her lying on a bed in her apartment. She apparently had gone to the bedroom while attempting to put out her burning clothing, fire officials said.

Room Guttered
The fire of undetermined origin nearly gutted the living room of the Clark apartment and caused an estimated damage of $4,500 firemen said.

Services were held for Mrs. Clark at 1:30 p.m. Monday, Mar. 2 at Estes and Son Funeral Home. Burial was at Atoka, Okla.

Born in Nacogdoches, Tex., Mrs. Clark had lived in Des Moines for 21 years. She was a retired nurse and a member of St. Paul A.M.E. church.

Survivors
Surviving are her husband, Roosevelt, seven sisters, Mrs. Evelyn Pleasant, Mrs. Georgia Irvin, Mrs. Gertrude Sanders, and Mrs. Osia Richard, all of Dallas, Tex., Mrs. Lilla Cleveland and Mrs. Luella Hill, both of Detroit, and Mrs. Beatrice Young, Atoka, and three brothers, Clifford Pleasant, Des Moines, Vander Pleasant and Anderson Pleasant, both of Atoka.

Jack Welch Iowa State Mat Champ

By Staff Writer
In case you didn't know what day it was, Monday was "Jack Welch Day."

At North High, the 18-year-old senior was given the red carpet treatment in honor of his taking the state wrestling title in the Class AAA 155-pound division. He won the title Saturday night at Veterans Auditorium with a 2-1 victory over Clark Veltz from Jefferson of Cedar Rapids, Ia.

For Welch the victory was very sweet indeed since it was the same opponent who had defeated him last year. He lost about 20 pounds in order to be able to compete in that same division as last year. With the win Welch went through the entire season undefeated with a commendable 30-0 record.

This record will also go along way in landing him one of the best scholarships in the sports for college competition and education.

Monday morning members of the Pep Squad and students gathered in the school lobby to give him an official welcome. His picture and words hailing him No. 1 Mat champ in Iowa was displayed also.

At the lunch hour he and his coach were seated at a linen covered table in the middle of the cafeteria with the thickest steaks while the student body interrupted their own "regular" lunch with stares of admiration for the honoree.

Welch is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Welch of 1258 10th street.

State Convention
In addition an education report was made by Maude White and a publicity report from Marjorie E. W. Smith, both of Des Moines.

Charles Crook, vice president of the organization, reported that the 1970 state convention will be held at Hotel Savary, Oct. 30-31 with Roy Wilkins, executive director of the national organization, as guest speaker.

It was also reported that Alvin Hays, Jr., director of the Iowa Civil Rights Commission, spoke on Feb.

Says Need Help Also To Fight Confirmation Of Judge H. Carswell

NEW YORK — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has called upon its state and local units to send representatives to Washington, Mar. 9-10, for two days of intensive lobbying with their senators to get them to vote for continuance of the Voting Rights Act of 1965 and against confirmation of Judge G. Harrold Carswell for the United States Supreme Court.

Urgent
In an urgent call to the field units of the Association, John A. Morsell, assistant executive director, said: "The NAACP is fighting to get a simple extension of the Voting Rights Act of 1965 under which nearly a million black voters were added in the South. The House, Dec. 11, 1969, in a surprise move, approved the Nixon Administration's weak substitute bill. It is very important that the Nixon anti-voting bill be defeated. Extension of the 1965 Voting Rights Act will better protect the voting rights of our people in the South."

Needed
"Further, your presence is needed in Washington to help in the campaign against the confirmation of Judge Carswell to the U. S. Supreme Court."

The lobbying conference is being sponsored by the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights of which Roy Wilkins is chairman and Clarence Mitchell, chairman of the legislative committee.

Grave Issues
"We think that the subpoena raised grave issues affecting all of us and we would like to make our position clear in the Black community. Earl Caldwell was subpoenaed as an individual. The New York Times was not subpoenaed. Let us be clear about that no matter what you may read elsewhere."

Ankum Will Open Food Drive-in Chain Near Home in Davenport

Davenport, Ia. — After an uphill battle of several years, Robert Ankum, 25, will open the Henry's drive-in food chain restaurant here early this month. He will have an integrated staff of 15 employees.

Ankum tried for several years to get bank loans to open a coin laundry and a car wash franchise, but was turned down. A year ago he contacted the Henry's drive-in food chain about a discontinued franchise near his home in Davenport's inner city. Again capital was a problem.

Tide Turned
Then a few months ago, the tide turned for Ankum. Henry's was starting a program to encourage black ownership of their franchises in inner-city areas. Ankum went to Chicago for a month of intensified training. "I learned how to do everything from cleaning the drain to keeping the books, Ankum said."

$5,000 Saved
The building needed refurbishing. Ankum had $5,000 saved. Under the new program Henry's lent him the additional $3,500 he needed. A Small Business Loan took care of several thousand dollars he needed for initial inventory to open the drive-in. The food chain will also spend an estimated

Housing Committee Requests $500,000

The Housing committee of the Des Moines Model City Citizens Board asked the board to consider transferring $500,000 from various programs to a fund for building new housing and rehabilitating usable existing housing.

Housing Committee Chairman David Pickett and vice-chairman Mel Boyd told the board they feel housing is of such urgency in the model neighborhood that funds should be transferred.

Des Moines Model City planners had relied heavily on an intensive housing construction and rehabilitation program and had hoped to obtain urban renewal funds in addition to the $2,065,000 Model City grant.

The original plan had been to obtain the housing funds from an urban renewal category called Neighborhood Development Program (NDP), but funds for that program were reduced by Congress and it now appears doubtful that Des Moines will qualify for money from that source.

Agrees
Pickett said he believes additional money can be obtained from private financial institutions in Des Moines if the $500,000 in Model City funds is made available for housing.

William Snyder, Model City director who agreed such a transfer might be possible, told the board that an agreement with organized labor for construction in the model neighborhood north of downtown Des Moines is pending.

$25,000 to remodel the chain located at 1010 Harrison street.

Long-Term Deal
Ankum will pay it back in a long-term deal that will make him the complete owner of "Henry's Beef and Burger" in 20 years.

Ankum is a former high school track performer who spent two years at Texas Southern University and a year at Iowa State University before abandoning plans to become an architect. In 1965 he began working as an architectural draftsman here — saving his money. His wife, Sarah, a teletype operator, contributed to the family savings, too.

LET'S MEET

By: Maude Esther White

CATHERINE WILLIAMS
BEAUTY AND BRAINS

When the old organizational structure of the Department of Social Welfare underwent a Face Lifting, several Bureaus were formed among which is the Bureau of Family and Children's Services. Second from the top in the hierarchy of positions within this bureau is none other than Catherine Williams who was appointed Associate Director last November. In our opinion a wise and appropriate choice. For here is a relatively young woman who has fought her way to the top (not by violence) but by sheer determination and perseverance!

Master's Degree

Today, Mrs. Williams holds a master's degree in social work. She is also a member of the Zonta International Y (an organization of women executives in the business and professional fields); chairman of The University of Iowa Alumnae Association of Child Care Services; and a number of other civic, church and religious groups.

But, all of the above did not come easy - nor was she admitted into such professional circles overnight.

Depression Years:

There were the "gut years" for it took all and often more than a person had to exist. There were not ADC or special programs designed to aid the indigents.

In 1932 (during the heart of the depression) Catherine was graduated from North High school. Young, petite and vivacious she had always loved and appreciated the theatre. Her father, although quite poor (A porter and shoeshine man) introduced his children to opera and the fine arts. He also evoked an awareness of and helped them develop an appreciation of objectivity and the importance of constantly striving to improve themselves.

CAREER LATTICE:

It was in 1948 that Catherine decided to enter a field dealing with services; teaching and welfare seemed the most feasible at that time. Her first job at Polk County Welfare was stenographic but she immediately enrolled in night school—and course by course, nights and summer she steadily pursued her B.A. degree which was awarded in 1961—sociology major and psychology minor. Simultaneously, within the department she moved from steno to Junior ADC worker to Senior Welfare worker. She became district supervisor after she had completed only two years of college.

PROFESSIONAL STATUS: In 1966 Mrs. Williams obtained her master's degree from the University of Iowa school of Social work. Subsequently, she spent several months in Washington, D. C. (H.E.W.) for staff development training and research project development.

She joined the state department of Social Services during this period and was soon made chief of the division of community services.

Her recent appointment to associate director supports our general thesis that equality is directly related to excellence and Catherine is known as being par excellence among her constituents.

In her work, family and in the public, Catherine sees herself and is seen by others as a builder and maintainer of the true values of our society; she believes the field of social work has played a significant role in this orientation.

Note: In a future issue the Bystander will feature an article by Mrs. Williams on the field of social work.

Paprika Newest
Cookware Color

If your kitchen decor calls for a "dash of paprika," you're now in luck. The West Bend Company, leading cookware manufacturer, has introduced paprika-colored pots and pans.

If colors can be tangy, then the new shade paprika is as much a taste as it is a look. Paprika adds a new slice of the spectrum by representing the brown-orange family.

The color is available only in the Country Inn line of porcelainized cookware and appliances.

FOR CHILDREN ONLY

NEW YORK (ED)—Meals and children are two things that don't necessarily go together. Often, it's a matter of psychology. Forcing a child to eat does nothing but instill stubbornness when it comes to mealtime. Breaking down a child's resistance often takes more time and patience than any parent is willing to give. Making a meal look attractive can do wonders, however, for persuading any girl or boy to adopt an open-mouth policy. Not even an adult wants to eat a drab, colorless meal. All white meals, like creamed chicken, rice and cauliflower just don't have what it takes to tempt a young appetite. But, if you garnish the rice with a sprinkling of parsley, and cut some red or green pepper over the chicken - immediately, the dinner looks more attractive. Sometimes, a child just doesn't like a particular food - be it broccoli or zucchini. In that case, respect his wishes. After all, you have likes and

TAXPAYERS
ASK IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q - When is a year-end dividend on stock taxable, the year it is declared or the year it is received?

A - A dividend, like other income, is generally taxable the year it is received. In the case of year-end dividends, the stockholder usually doesn't receive his check until the following year. This would make the dividend taxable the year following the one in which it was declared.

Q - Does inherited property have to be reported on my income tax return?

A - No, this does not have to be reported. However, if the property is sold later for more than its fair market value when the decedent died, then the gain on the sale has to be reported.

Q - I have an expense account and make several business trips a year for my company. How do I handle this for tax purposes?

A - As a general rule, include reimbursements and allowances for travel, etc., expenses in your income. However, you do not have to report this on your tax return if you account to your company for your expenses.

If your reimbursements exceed your expenses, then the excess must be reported as income on your return. If your allowable expenses exceed your reimbursements as income, but also deduct the expenses.

The musical climax grew out of the presentation which was made by Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong. On stage at the time was the Duke's full orchestra Ray Charles at the organ, B. B. King with his guitar, all of whom accompanied Satchmo as he sang "Hello Dolly." A rare, star-studded jam session followed.

This week the Bystander presents Yolaine Archer, freshman at St. Joseph's Academy. Last week she received a first class award from Girl Scout Troop No. 375 of Grace United Methodist church. The other award recipient was Victoria Cutler. Both were moved up to the senior group.

Yolaine is corresponding secretary of the teen group of the Des Moines Chapter of Jack and Jill of America, and loves bowling, taking weekly lessons with the teen group for two years at Capitol lanes. She also enjoys swimming, horseback riding and studies piano and flute. For the past three years she has attended the Drake university

A NAME TO REMEMBER

Have you ever wondered why we call ourselves McQueen's, the Family Pharmacy? Of course, it would be rather silly to call ourselves Jones, the Family Pharmacy, or even McQueen's, the Bachelor Pharmacy; but there is more to it than that.

We stayed up several nights trying to think of a name that would hold the attention of the public, names like Cut Rate Prescription Shoppe, Pinest Pharmacy, Sixth Avenue Drug and Sundry Store, and others. Finally, after running out of ideas, we settled on McQueen's.

Now, for a generic name, we eliminated Apothecary as too pretentious, Drug as having no professional connotation, and Prescription Shop as too limited. So, we became McQueen's Pharmacy. We did not see until later that, because of all the special services we offered, people would benefit most by having all their family's prescriptions filled by us.

Our name may not be the most spectacular, but we are proud of it. We want you to think of quality when you think of McQueen's Pharmacy, 6th & Forest (288-3323). Because we are striving to make a name for ourselves, you can be sure we shall do our best to take care of your needs. Aren't you glad we told you?

On Tuesday evening, March 24, the most extraordinary movie "theatre party" ever to take place will be attended in more than 300 cities simultaneously by one million persons.

The single showing of the film they will see is expected to raise $5,000,000 to help support organizations dedicated to carrying on the work and teachings of the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

More significantly, perhaps, this motion picture will document the civil rights movement in the U.S. during its most important and revolutionary period. As such, it will serve a great educational function in schools and universities for many years to come.

150 Minutes
Entitled "King: A Filmed Record...Montgomery to Memphis", the full-length two and one-half hour motion picture traced the work of Dr. King from 1955 until his death in 1968 and includes special performances by such stars as Harry Belafonte, Paul Newman,

DR. MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR.

An even longer version of the film, running over four hours, will also be available for educational purposes following the March 24 event.

Rules Vernon Hill Innocent In Altercation

Vernon Hill, 32, of 1536 13th street, has been found innocent in Municipal Court on a charge of interfering with the duties of a police officer in connection with an altercation near Thirteenth street and Forest avenue Jan. 31.

Hill was accused of interfering with Patrolman David Thomas as Thomas and four other officers attempted to arrest Richard C. Johnson, 37, of 1245 11th street, on an intoxication charge.

The incident occurred at the entrance to an alley next to Griger's Food Fair, 1307 Forest avenue.

No Evidence

Judge Luther T. Glanton said there was no evidence in Thomas' testimony that indicated Hill interfered with police duties.

Thomas, the only witness called by the city at Hill's trial without a jury, testified that he was pushing a crowd of people back when he and Hill became involved in a fight.

To some people, college is just another bill they can't pay.

Let's face it, if you're Black, one of the toughest things to get your hands on is a college education. Why? It costs money. Money for tuition. Money for books. Money for clothes. Money for food and, most of all, money that the average Black household doesn't have. R. J. Reynolds knows this. That's why they've made Black colleges like Winston-Salem State University the recipients of R. J. Reynolds' scholarship funds. That's also why R. J. Reynolds has supported the United Negro College Fund during the last decade with grants of a quarter of a million dollars.

But R. J. Reynolds won't stop there. That's because they believe better education offers the best hope for eradicating poverty and bringing Black people into the mainstream of American life.

It's R. J. Reynolds' way of keeping the cost of education down and the worth of a people up.

And if you want to know who R. J. Reynolds is just check the small print on My-T-Fine Desserts, Chun King Oriental Foods, Vermont Maid Syrups, College Inn Chicken and Tomato Products, Davis Baking Powder, Winston, Salem, Camel and Doral cigarettes and many, many other fine products. We're doing a lot for the community, because the community has done a lot for us.

Vertical Accent

When solid lumber is used for a bookcase, the boards forming shelves and side supports need no edge banding for appearance. But it's often desirable to emphasize the vertical line of up-rights by facing them with a 1x2 nailed flat across the edge.

Why not try a "something new" on your family these winter cold days by serving an Indian-style casserole. A mixture of corn and beans (called sauguetach), the Indian-style casserole is a colorful and savory recipe, and one we think your family will find most tasty.

Here is the recipe as developed in the Kitchens of Fairmont Foods:

INDIAN-STYLE CASSEROLE
2 cut-up chickens (broilers or fryers)
2 cups water
1 tablespoon minced onion
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen whole-kernel corn
1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen baby lima beans
1/4 cup butter
1/3 cup flour
1 cup light cream
1/4 teaspoon poultry seasoning
1 can (3-4 oz.) sliced mushrooms
1 cup crushed Fairmont Indian Corn Chips
Simmer the chicken in water, onion, salt and pepper for about 40 minutes or until tender. Remove from the pan and cool slightly. Skin the chicken and cut into bite-sized pieces. Cook the corn and lima beans in chicken broth for ten minutes, then take out the vegetables and reserve the liquid. Melt butter, then blend in flour, stirring until smooth. Add reserved liquid, cream and poultry seasoning. Cook, stirring constantly, until the mixture has bubbled for about a minute. Add chicken, cooked vegetables and mushrooms. Spoon into a shallow 8-cup baking dish and top with crushed Fairmont Indian Corn Chips. Bake in a moderate oven (350°) for about 30 minutes or until bubbly. Garnish with pimiento and parsley just before serving. (Makes 8-10 servings.)

Keep After That Rust

Regular, systematic maintenance of an automobile's cooling system is so routine and mechanical, many motorists forget about it completely.

A case in point is regular changing of anti-freeze. No matter how good or "permanent" an anti-freeze is, for best results, it should be changed every year.

Many motorists are under the mistaken impression that anti-freeze can be used effectively year after year, thus relieving them of the chore of flushing the cooling system and adding clean, fresh anti-freeze.

If an anti-freeze is used for more than one season it deteriorates, reducing its effectiveness as a rust and corrosion inhibitor, though it will continue to perform adequately to prevent freezing. Anti-freeze deteriorates more rapidly with hard driving and also if the cooling system is not completely airtight.

Two gallons of anti-freeze cost less than $3 at B.F. Goodrich auto service centers, thus, it's a good insurance policy against radiator deterioration.

Your best bet is to drain and flush the system every year, in the fall, if you use anti-freeze year-round, or in the spring, if you change to water for the warmer months. If you can't change the anti-freeze every year, add a can of rust inhibitor to it. If you change to water in the spring, don't forget to add rust inhibitor.

Rust inhibitors greatly retard oxidation of metals, reducing development of

A 'Business' That Travels

When Cleo Norman moved with her family from her Iowa home to St. Louis, she brought an "intangible asset" along with her real possessions that spelled instant success and adjustment in the strange new city. The asset was what she called "my business."

Her "business"—and she is part of a large organization that feels equally possessive about it—was as an independent dealer for Stanley Home Products, Inc. of Westfield, Mass. The skills and techniques she had developed back home accompanied her to Missouri, providing an immediate basis for a new and prosperous life, as well as contacts for building new friendships. She could rely, moreover, on a veritable American institution that rewards precisely those qualities of determination and ambition which Mrs. Norman possesses.

In just fifteen years, and despite the need to relocate, Mrs. Norman climbed from independent dealer to Unit Sales Leader to Branch Manager, an achievement record that provided material benefits and a deep sense of satisfaction. In her modern St. Louis apartment, she can now count several major blessings: a son successfully through school and happily married, a daughter whose poise and beauty is leading to a career in modeling, countless modern comforts (a new car is coming) and a dozen exciting vacation trips around the country.

Impatient to move along—she likes to put on five or six "quickie" parties a day—she seeks constantly to recruit others into the Stanley organization. As Branch Manager, she is determined to stimulate the personal drives and enthusiasm of her unit sales leaders and spur them towards new records in selling.

Mrs. Norman is a born teacher who regards much of her work as self-expression. She enjoys the traveling that Stanley has made possible and looks forward to more of it, particularly to Hawaii and the Caribbean. And she constantly enjoys the prospect of many new friends at home parties.

But mostly, she feels that Stanley has made possible a sense of personal dignity and accomplishment, of having built her own business with the help of many wonderful people. "I think of it now," she says, "as my career."

DECORATING MADE EASY

By Richard Butler, Director, Sears Home Fashions Council

A friend stopped by the other day to show me the wallpaper she had selected for her 11-year-old daughter's room. When she asked whether I liked it, I replied, "How does your daughter like it?"

"Oh, she hasn't seen it. She's too young to care," she said. "Then the paper is probably wrong," I said, "because she certainly is old enough to care."

My point is that a young girl's bedroom may well be one of the most important rooms in the house. It's much more than a place to sleep, study, or play. It is very much a classroom in taste, and she will remember its influence throughout her life.

That is why I feel strongly that the room should be decorated with the girl's advice and consent. I don't insist that she should be given free rein. But I do insist that she be asked her opinions about color, about furnishings, about style.

When you start to plan your daughter's new room with her, show her first that it is part-and-parcel of the entire home. Explain that somehow, whether by color or style, it must blend with the whole.

Nothing is more distracting than a bedroom decor unrelated to the others. If your basic color scheme is blue and white, for example, let the blue continue into her room. Then make it different by mixing it with her favorite colors.

A young girl's colors should always be fresh, not dark or muted. Sophisticated prints have no place here, but the new flat florals and abstract patterns certainly do.

Furniture should not be too juvenile because she will live in this room until her maturity. Some of the best choices are the feminine, white-painted French styles and the contemporary modular units.

Plan storage for her studies and her hobbies. If possible, have an extra bed (a bunk or trundle arrangement in a small room) for the times when a girl friend spends the night.

Your professional beautician knows the answer...

Is peroxide needed to color unwanted gray hair?

Hair care and beauty experts know that the first traces of gray hair—and even slight fading of natural color after chemical relaxing—can dull a woman's appearance and make her look older than she feels. While most women hate these premature aging effects, many are hesitant about using permanent peroxide haircoloring which may change the natural hair color while coloring gray.

Professionally-trained hairdressers know the importance of their customers' preferences when unwanted gray becomes a problem. These experts also know that Clairol created semi-permanent Loving Care® hair color lotion without peroxide... to color only the gray without changing the natural shade. They also find Loving Care blends back color faded by chemical processing. Because of its mildness, Loving Care maintains healthy looking hair and lasts through a month of shampoos.

Whatever a woman's reason for wanting Loving Care for her hair, she is always wise to consult a professional beautician. Hairdressers are equipped with a family of fine Clairol products and the training to promise each patron the loveliest and most personalized haircoloring effects every time she visits her salon. If you dislike gray, and want no peroxide, why not ask your beautician to glamorize it with Loving Care?

JUMPING WITH JOY

Olympic diving champion Sue Gossick urges Americans to exercise their right to exercise. Gold medal winner of the springboard dive event in the Mexico City Olympic Games, Miss Gossick, now 22, had been singled out at the age of 9 by the Olympic Development Commission as a future champion.

"I believe strongly that physical activity results in good toning of leg, stomach and other muscles," remarks the woman who, when 20, was honored by the Los Angeles Times through its annual achievement award.

Winner of 21 gold medals, she is a veteran of the Tokyo Olympics of 1964 and has been a finalist in 22 out of 24 national springboard championships.

In pursuit of her belief in participation in physical activities, the champion recently endorsed a new game in which players jump over a spinning rod as best they can. Intended for players from age 7 to adult, "Limbo Legs" by Milton Bradley features a spinner and "limbo" rod which can be set high or low and at fast or slow speeds. If participants miss or touch the rod they're eliminated. Last one in the "limbo" circle wins.

Sue feels that Americans—either in their homes or out of doors—should jump at the chance to take part in this invigorating exercise.

"Uncle Tomism" Charge Unfair When Negroes Grew to Financial Independence in U.S.

(Sixth in a Series) By Mrs. Louise Glass

As an example of the confusion and lack of understanding: a woman who used to live in Des Moines (well-known and highly respected) once said: "We didn't know we would have to work after we were set free. We thought we would sit on the porch and rock the way the white folks did." She was old enough to remember the Emancipation, living in Tennessee at the time.

TOO MANY COOKS

SPOIL THE BROTH
Today, America is faced with serious issues; they trickle down to local communities for which there is legal machinery to deal with them, the only question being that the machinery be properly used.

The question of how to deal with the poor, the best method of using what there is to work with and intelligent use by those who know what they are doing is a problem. Unfortunately, there are too many people and organizations collecting money for the poor, soliciting to further causes and confusing the public about what is being done with these funds. Coupled with the accepted charities and ordinary church going, the public is put at a quandary as to which of these "new requests" have real merit.

With this is the question of using the best method to solve our problems. Too many people, in order to head something, form a new group to work for the same things that have required solution all along. They do this to appear out in front of a movement when in fact they dissipate the strength that comes from unity of action.

With no sense or appreciation, the separatists, without knowledge of its consequences, do much to drive a wedge between the races; the egotist to divide groups within the race.

In spite of the difficulties of the times great progress has been made in raising the level of Negroes generally. Let not Negroes themselves make it more difficult to sustain these gains and bids for others by selfishness and greed within their own ranks.

SHOW LITTLE SENSE OF APPRECIATION

It is painful to listen to some critics of America; those who refuse to salute the flag, oppose defending the country against foreign nations, those who have no respect for the courts and law and order in name of "the right to protest."

Equally painful are those who are naming white liberals as phony and not real friends of the Negro.

A Negro columnist, William Raspberry, writing in the Des Moines Tribune, criticized the late Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, President Lincoln and a lot of lesser individuals as phony even though they gave time, talent and money to help improve the lot of Negroes in America.

Having lived in Des Moines for more than 50 years, we recall some of our early liberals in Iowa, what they did to help bring about the comparatively good relationship we have in Des Moines.

Remember Dr. Charles Medbury, pastor of University Christian Church who never passed by a chance to champion the cause of justice for Negroes.

Harvey Ingham, editor of the Register and Tribune, whose editorials set the tone for racial equality in Iowa. Casper Schenk and Tom Guthrie, able lawyers, who used their talent in civil rights lawsuits with the other NAACP lawyers in the early civil rights battles.

Charles S. Bradshaw, a lawyer and Polk County political leader, who placed the first Negro professional man in a position.

Rev. Walter Briggs of Grace Methodist Church who headed the committee which made the final contact with the school board that secured regular Negro school teachers in Des Moines.

John Rankin, former legislator from Lee County and later Attorney General, who gave a Negro woman the first decent job in the legislature.

Herbert Mulock, Robert Bannister and Sol Sheuerman, who headed a committee during a hectic campaign which defeated the efforts of the Ku Klux Klan to secure control of the Des Moines School Board. (This was the liveliest school board campaign ever witnessed in Des Moines.)

George Wilson who gave the Negro woman the first regular state office position since Lena Wilson resigned in 1930.

Mrs. Annie E. Hepburn who appointed the first Negro deputy county recorder; Col. Ernest Bennett who appointed the first Negro deputy county treasurer or W. E. Robb who appointed the first Negro deputy sheriff.

Dr. Stoddard Lane, a pastor of Plymouth Congregational Church and former head of the Interracial Commission, who was always in civil rights efforts.

Rabbi Eugene Mannheimer, outstanding Jewish leader and a member of the first Human Rights Commission.

Edith Johnson, who as the first woman postmaster, opened the way for bringing more Negroes into the post office than ever before.

Dr. Clifford Losh, Sr. who, while chairman of the Polk County Medical Society, led the forces that assured equal treatment for Negro doctors and patients in the hospitals.

These are just a few of the many liberals all of whom, with the exception of Miss Johnson, are now deceased, who dared to stand up and be counted when it was unpopular to champion the cause of the Negro. There were others. These people counted when we had no Negro teachers, no Negro office workers, when the only unsegregated dining facility was the union station, when theaters Jim Crowed all Negroes who would stand for it and hospitals which either did not take them or made it difficult to get a bed unless there was a separate room available, or hotels that excluded them altogether.

Some may question that all these people were liberals but they did what a liberal had to do to get the job done.

All these changes show that we have made great progress and that the white liberals, along with those Negroes who had the courage to stand up and fight, were the driving forces that brought them about.

Breaks Drake Indoor Track Mark

Gerald Tinker, freshman sprinter from Memphis State, broke the only conference mark here Saturday.

SPORTS

With Allen Ashby

It had to be the biggest weekend in Iowa sports history. In fact, we can think of only one when two state teams won major conference titles. That would be Ohio State and Cincinnati. Then they went on and played for the national title. Maybe Drake and Iowa U. can do the same. Of course Drake isn't quite out of the woods at this writing. But by the time this comes out, the Bulldogs will be either undisputed champs, or be getting ready for another play-off. Last Saturday our collection of sidewalk and pool hall experts were about to write off Drake. After the Cincy game, it was thought the Dogs had had it. Nobody wanted to believe that one man could make that much difference. It looks as if they were wrong, to say the least.

All of us experts gave the Hawkeyes a chance at Purdue. We thought that they had a streak going, and when a team gets one of them on they feel that they are going to win, they don't know just how, but they never give up because they are going to win. And that was just what pulled those guys through last Saturday. Strategy had a part in it. But it was really that we can't lose spirit that was the deciding factor. Now let's see if they really can meet in the NCAA finals. Not impossible.

Local High

Then there are our local high schools in their state meet prelims. On the basis of the season's play, Hoover should come through. But don't under estimate North, Lincoln, or even East. This is the time when one bad game puts you out, and Hoover could have one at the wrong time.

Wrestling

We watched the state wrestling meet finals over the weekend. Thought this Jack Welch of North is a really good boy. Strong and quick. And we were almost certain the Underwood boys would come through. But, in a state meet or in a close match, one mistake costs you. Maybe next time you might get the guy, but this was the time. We also thought we would not like to be in the shoes of John Smith of Ankeny. Never did like to follow in big brother's footsteps. Big Brother in this case being Jason Smith of Iowa State. We were thinking that if that were me, I would have taken up boxing or anything else. Our older brother was quite a ball carrier in his day. We could have probably carried the apple well enough for most Teams, but we didn't want to be compared with him. Se we became a linebacker and a blocker.

Now you see what we mean. This little fellow, Mitchell Taylor of East Waterloo wrestled as if he was mad at everybody. Rough! you said it. As we sat there we were thinking back over a whole lot of years. When we were kids, there wasn't any high school wrestling in Des Moines. But there was a bunch of fellows at West High and we had a bunch at East.

We met in the finals of the city amateur meet. Both groups wanted to win for their side of town. We Lee Townshippers cleaned 'em. Won just about all of the titles but one. But then the rules for profes-

POLLUTION PROTESTERS

Air pollution causes serious damage to living lungs. It even corrodes the tombstones of the dead.

But across the country, "breathers" lobbies, groups of aroused citizens, are pressing hard to fend off pollution. Public agitation is having its effect.

Last fall in Pennsylvania, for example, 500 aroused citizens showed up at hearings to demand better protection against air pollu-sional wrestling and amateur bouts were exactly the same. In fact, a bunch of us guys used to wrestle as amateurs one week and as professionals the next. We never built up record because we used so many different names. Your's truly was always identified because at that time we were the only black mat men in the state. So no matter how many different names we used, it always came back to that "colored fellow from Des Moines."

The we were really flattered by the number of black boys who became good wrestlers in the fifties and sixties. There were a few of them who came to us and wanted us to show them something. Well, we knew the rules had been changed so that anything we taught the kids would probably get them disqualified. We always told them so, but a lot of them believed that we didn't really want to match our ancient skill with them. We had to accept that because we felt we would do them more harm than good by wrestling with them.

But we were really proud to see wrestling come into its own among black boys. We recall when we went from school to school trying to get the coaches to let blacks try out for the teams. They always said the white boys wouldn't work with them. But then these same white boys would work with me, so the argument didn't hold water. But the time came when a couple of boys just happened to want to wrestle, and happened to be there, and they made it. I think the first three black mat men were Paul Morrison, Harold Wolders and Jay Neal. They all came along at different times and have been followed by a host of good boys that nobody need be ashamed of.

tion. The Pennsylvania Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association was right there where the action was, pushing for better air pollution control standards.

Hearings Result

As a result of the hearings and other pressures from concerned groups, the state's air pollution commission recommended that Pennsylvania's pollution limits be made one of the most stringent in the nation.

Public hearings and citizen protest play a crucial role in the fight for air pollution standards. Under the Federal Air Quality Act of 1967, states individually decide the air pollution standards they want. But they are required to hold public hearings while setting the standards and while drafting plans for implementing the standards, too.

Transcripts

Transcripts of the public hearings must go to the U. S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare along with the proposed standards. Public reaction plays a big role in HEW's decision to approve or reject the standards.

Find out what you can do about air quality standards in your area. Check with your local respiratory disease association. It's a matter of life and breath.

Frank Robinson Signs ---$125,000

MIAMI, FLA. — Frank Robinson, 14-year veteran of major league baseball, signed his 1970-contract Wednesday with the Baltimore Orioles.

Robinson, who will be 35 years old in August, started working out on time for the first time in three years.

The outfielder arrived at training camp Tuesday and signed Wednesday morning for a raise which brought his annual salary to an estimated $125,000.

Robinson, hampered in 1968 by poor vision, batted .308 last year, drove in 100 runs and clouted 32 homers. Robinson has managed the Santurce team in Puerto Rico the last two winters.

His signing leaves only three veterans without contracts for 1970, Boog Powell, Dave Johnson and Dave McNally.
