DISOBEDIENCE TO LAW
A SERIOUS PROBLEM

Some states have laws against strikes by public employees. This is directed particularly at firemen, policemen, school teachers, service employees, including garbage handlers and the mail service.

When these laws were passed, it was believed that when a person takes the oath to uphold the law or agrees to the terms of the contract, the legislators had faith that laws would be obeyed.

Times have changed. Many of these people don't feel bound by their contracts or the law and violate them with impunity. The governor of Florida was late in recognizing his obligation to uphold the law. Surely, he should have learned from lessons taught by the experiences of Governor Faubus of Arkansas and Wallace of Alabama. Both men assumed that they were above the law but were forced to bow to authority by the use of extreme measures.

Court injunctions against strikes are ignored daily only to have the illegal acts washed out as a part of the settlement of the strike.

Wm. M. Kunstler won fame with his disgraceful conduct during his defense of the seven defendants tried in Chicago for conspiracy to disrupt the 1968 National Democratic Convention. He spoke at Simpson College Tuesday night. Maybe he is a good lawyer but his claim to fame lies in his disgraceful exhibition of discourtesy, lack of decorum and insults in the courtroom during the course of the trial.

Just what helpful message a man of his character can give students is hard to understand. Men such as he know nothing good about the American system but say everything America has done should be torn down without substituting any system that would work better.

Men of his character are goading people, young and old, to disobey the law and constituted authority and puts irresponsible ideas in the minds of people to follow his course -- to get what he wants, regardless of the cost or consequences or the rights of others.

STANDARDS MUST BE MAINTAINED

Vice President Agnew Has A Knack of Throwing Bombshells When He Comes To Des Moines.

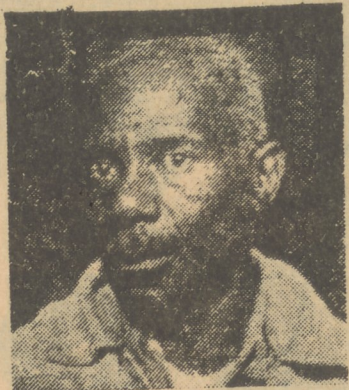

Monday night was no exception to the rule, when he pounced on some schools of higher learning for adopting quotas for admission of minority and disadvantaged students.

He also challenged many of these schools for lowering standards by admitting students who don't have the basic education to pursue college training. This criticism is being met in Iowa and already some states are doing something about it.

Recently, a high school student, with an excellent athletic record, was desirous of attending one of the Iowa schools of higher learning but his grades were so low that he could not be admitted. A coach advised that he attend a junior college for two years, at the expiration of which he could either continue his higher education or find that he was unable to keep up the subjects. In other words, the coach was not willing to invest a lot of time and money training an athlete during his freshman and sophomore years when he would be kicked out and not available for junior and senior seasons.

Iowa has a number of junior colleges which try out a youngster during his freshman and sophomore years, serving as a training ground for proceeding to junior and senior college training. They are less expensive and generally located in communities where the

With Allen Ashby

For a while we wondered just when the Iowa University spring football program was going to get off the ground. Sunday we were surprised to read that the Hawks had actually started practice session. Then we also read with interest that four blacks who were not allowed on the team last year had asked to come back and the coach agreed.

That may be the facts of the case, but we find it just a bit hard to swallow. The fellows were turned down by the squad vote last fall, and that was supposed to be final. Now these same guys come begging to be let back on the team.

Maybe they thought things over and decided to try it once more. Then the coach really needed them. This is the year he just about has to come up with a winner, Evashevski or no Evashevski. So he can be justified in grabbing at anything that turns up in the way of help.

With the exception of quarterback, there is the potential for a pretty fair ball club, and they have to win more than five games. For that is really what the big fuss at Iowa is really all about. Winning football teams draw crowds, and crowds put money into the university treasury. Football is big business. If you don't believe it, how many of your friends are running a business that takes in from a quarter to a half million dollars a week? So we have to have a coach who can get the players and then mold them into a winning team. If one coach doesn't seem to be able to do it, maybe someone else might. We still think the best coach in the Big Ten is holding the position of athletic director students live.

Schools are expensive today. On the other hand, a way must be found to give every youngster a chance to go to college if he meets the test. Ample machinery must be found to help those who are deficient in their basic education to come up to standard. On the other hand, standards must be maintained and when youngsters are found to be unable or unwilling to move up to standards, they should not be allowed to lower the standards of others.

This criticism is aimed at the status of minority students. On the other hand, there are many successful Negroes who, in spite of their early poverty and lack of social and political standards, have entered big colleges and made their way and they did so because they had the desire and the determination to obtain their objectives. Standards were not lowered for them and they should not be lowered now. The practice, while altruistic, does not help the student in the long run.

at Iowa. There isn't one thing wrong at Iowa that a couple of winning seasons won't cure.

A few of the sidewalk experts are saying that Basketball Coach Miller has left because of the fuss. We aren't too sure about that. We do think it would be hard for Miller or anyone else to duplicate the Hawkeye record of last year, although Maury John repeated at Drake. But we think John of the Hawkeye battles are gone, and not much help seems to be coming from the freshman squad.

It's enough to make a man look for greener pastures. But on the whole, the athletic program at Iowa has done pretty well. The wrestling team finished up in the Big Ten and NCAA competition. They had a first class gymnastics team. When you add that to the cage success, and even with the five hundred percentage of the football team, one would have to say the Hawks did all right.

While Iowa U is having its troubles, Iowa State is getting set for what the Cyclones hope will be a better year than last. Coach Majors has left no stone unturned in his efforts to mold a winner. He has a half dozen fellows trying out at quarterback. If Obert Tisdale comes through this time, it will be because he is the best out there, and he will have to be. The guy could field an all black backfield as he did at times last year, but if they can't win, why to heck with it. We saw a couple of exciting games at Ames last year, even if the hometown was on the short end, and look forward to seeing one or two this year. And then Drake is getting around to returning to Missouri Valley football. Yep, the next two or three grid seasons may be mighty interesting.

Tennis
Here at home, we are watching the progress of Harold Morrow, playing on the North High tennis team. Harold had a good variety of shots last year and used his head well. But as we saw it his main weakness was a tendency to hit some of his shots off the wrong foot. This made the ball do funny things and at times seem to have a mind of its own. But we suppose Harold's high school coach has spotted this and worked on it. If he conquers this, the guy will have a really good year at the nets. It seems there have been more black tennis players at North High than any other Des Moines school. There have been others at different schools but never as many as have been at North, both boys and girls.

FRANCES E. HAWTHORNE GUEST COLUMNIST

Frances E. Hawthorne Guest Columnist

I am the luckiest woman in the world when it comes to daughters-in-laws!!!!

What greater compliment can be given to any woman, especially when it comes from the mother of her husband. But this is the sentiment of Mrs. Alcyne Miller, 1105 14th street, widow of the late Samuel C. Miller.

For years we have followed the progress of this family because to us they exemplified worthwhile living as they struggled to achieve their goals. All are graduates from Des Moines Tech and when they left school were well equipped to move on — to jobs or further education.

First, there is her daughter, Mrs. Charmayne Burrell, married last fall to Warren Burrell of 803 Boyd Street. She worked for 11 years with the State civil service and climbed as high as she could go without a master's degree. Then she joined International Harvester where she is currently doing very well as a secretary. She has a five year old son.

Then there is S. Walden Miller, oldest son, who is married to the former Frances Green of Ottumwa, Ia. They have two children, Krista, 6 years and Vincent Walden, 6 months. Walden is employed and attending the University of Colorado, at Boulder, working on his master's degree in psychology. The University was after him even when he was earning his B.S. degree at Drake university. His wife is employed as a court stenographer in the city-county building.

Next comes Irving Miller who is an attorney with the National Legal Aid and Defenders Association, a federal job, working out of Chicago, Ill. He was married last September to his sweetheart whom he met while they both were students at University of Iowa. His wife is a nursing instructor at the Veteran Hospital there.

Last, but by no means least, comes Daniel Norman, who is married and lives with his wife and three children in San Francisco, Calif. He has made the Golden Gate City his home since 1966 when he left the Navy and finished an electrical drafting course there two years ago.

Mrs. Miller says proudly, "They all have done these things out of love for their father to show him they could be the man he would have wanted each to be."

One young lucky lady, Pamela Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Taylor, and student at Grand View college, had a most wonderful thing to happen to her. She entered a modeling contest and got a free trip to New York City. Read all about her experiences in next week's story.

Dates to remember —
Don't forget Saturday, April 19 at 7:30 p.m. at Roosevelt High school. That's when you get a chance to see a professional group of black performers, called "Voices, Inc." from New York City. Tickets are $3.00 for adults and $.50 for students. You will regret it all your life if you miss this one Also, Sunday, April 26 at 3:30 p.m. at Moulton school for the unveiling of the portrait of Miss Margaret Cannon, veteran school teacher for old Crocker school and then at Moulton. There are many in Des Moines who knew and remember her. This event is open to the public.....Remember for those of you living in the Model Cities area, the election for five new members to the Model City Citizens Board will be held Saturday, May 2.....

Keep in mind that the 76 anniversary edition of the Bystander will be coming out the second Thursday in June. We are planning lots of features, exciting stories, pictures and ads. Graduating college and high school seniors, who plan to have their pictures and writeups published in this issue, are asked to keep in mind that the deadline is May 22. Pictures are $2.00 each. We are also looking for members of the 1945 high school graduating class for a special feature, "What has happened to them." Where ever you are, send a letter bringing us up to date, accompanied by a picture if you have one. We also welcome letters from longtime subscribers or former employees. Help us, make this the best anniversary edition ever.

Your professional beautician knows the answer...

Is peroxide needed to color unwanted gray hair?

Hair care and beauty experts know that the first traces of gray hair—and even slight fading of natural color after chemical relaxing—can dull a woman's appearance and make her look older than she feels. While most women hate these premature aging effects, many are hesitant about using permanent peroxide haircoloring which may change the natural hair color while coloring gray.

Professionally-trained hairdressers know the importance of their customers' preferences when unwanted gray becomes a problem. These experts also know that Clairol created semi-permanent Loving Care® hair color lotion without peroxide... to color only the gray without changing the natural shade. They also find Loving Care blends back color faded by chemical processing. Because of its mildness, Loving Care maintains healthy looking hair and lasts through a month of shampoos. Whatever a woman's reason for wanting Loving Care for her hair, she is always wise to consult a professional beautician. Hairdressers are equipped with a family of fine Clairol products and the training to promise each patron the loveliest and most personalized haircoloring effects every time she visits her salon. If you dislike gray, and want no peroxide, why not ask your beautician to glamorize it with Loving Care?

Economic Development Black Development Key

Special to the Iowa Bystander

Throughout the struggle of black Americans to improve their lot, some have advised that more should be done by the black man himself "to lift himself by his bootstraps." To this, some civil rights leaders and sociologists have reported that the Negro must first get some boots.

Within recent years, however, an entirely new approach to this problem has emerged. Today, in addition to campaigns for full employment, the black man is also insisting that he become a part of the economic development as well.

Institutions
Pivotal in this development are the black financial institutions. These include banks, insurance companies and savings and loan associations. Such institutions, not only provide much needed capital to high risk ghetto businesses, their executive officers and personnel also serve as a communicating link and interpreter to the larger community.

St. Louis Bank
Among such institutions is St. Louis' Gateway National Bank with assets close to $10 million after passing its fifth birthday. I. Owen Funderburg, executive vice-president of Gateway, says one of the great hopes of the black man today is the degree to which he can develop himself economically. Funderburg serves on the board of directors of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce where his voice on behalf of minorities is strong and clear.

Beer Company
A number of major companies in the country have shown an awareness of this issue and have moved affirmatively to assist. Among such companies has been Anheuser-Busch, Inc., of St. Louis, brewers of Budweiser beer, which to date has voluntarily deposited in excess of $625,000 in black owned or managed banks or financial institutions in over 25 cities. John L. Hayward, treasurer of Anheuser-Busch, Inc. said the action on the part of the company was in line with its overall policy of equal opportunity in all levels of the corporate structure.

22 Banks
There are now 22 black banks in the country with assets of over $207 million. A decade ago there were only ten. Today, they are welded together as members of the National Bankers Association under the competent executive directorship of Dr. Edward Irons of Washington, D.C. These institutions have already made significant impacts on their respective communities, although admittedly they face many problems.

Member
Dr. Andrew Brimmer, the black member of the Federal Reserve Board, has pointed out that these institutions have been held back by a shortage of trained management personnel.

cause of campus inefficiency and unrest."

He said that "bargain-basement diplomas" issued to undeserving students will lower the reputations of the universities and colleges involved.

Agnew predicted that future Americans will view University of Michigan diplomas with a "fish eye" because of that school's "surrender" to "striking black militants." Agnew said Michigan agreed to a "10 per cent black enrollment by 1973."

Prep School
The controversial vice-president commented: "I feel as much as anyone that there should be expanded educational opportunities for deprived, but able, young people in our society. The difference is that I favor better preparing them — with additional governmental assistance — in some form of prep school rather than tossing them into a four-year college or university curriculum that they are not equipped to handle."

Not Accept
He said he does "not accept the proposition that every American boy and girl should go to a four-year college," and he added: "To require a student of genuine ability to sit for hours in a classroom with those neither able nor prepared, and to permit him to be stalled at the level of the slowest, is a cruel waste of his God-given talents."

Director Cites Need for Volunteers at Centers

"There is a real need for volunteers, not only in this center but in all of the settlement houses around the city."

These are the words of Richard (Dick) Bates, program director of Julia B. Mayer Center, one of three settlement houses located around Des Moines, and financed by funds from the Greater United Way.

Bates, pointed out that the center has been refurbished, painted and cleaned up, and now offers a comprehensive program for residents in the area ranging from pre-schoolers to senior citizens.

The center is open 9 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays; 9 to 6 p.m. Fridays; 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Saturdays and from 2 to 4 Sundays plus special activities.

For special projects at the center see Marri Johnson's column, Lines, in Mar. 5 issue of this paper.) Extra copies are available at the Bystander office.

Drake Grad

Bates, a 1964 graduate of Drake University is a native of Ft. Wayne, Ind., and got his taste of program directing while seeking a college degree in education. For three years he worked at Roadside Settlement house, where he did just about everything connected with recreation physical education program. Before he left however, he had worked up to acting director term that has been used for 20 years. In many documents relative to age, sex, race color and national origin. It meant little to have race reference taken off applications and the integration of the military. "Real action has come about as a result of Presidential executive orders and the EEO idea."

Community
To be successful the arms of the EEO programs must of necessity reach from federal leadership to the community, the inner city... and the business community as well. In this realm two speakers from the community spoke to the federal group.

Keynote Speaker
In a keynote address: "Federal Managers as a Motivating Force," Silas Ewing, President of Spencer-Ewing Associates, a personnel consultant firm for placement of blacks in high places of responsibility in the corporate structure, said: "We are living in a fast world pre-occupied as managers of our own families... we have no time to become involved in the improving of race relations." "We do not involve ourselves", he said, "and that

RICHARD BATES

He returned to his home town to run a 12-week project for a settlement house, called Neighbors, Inc., for migrant workers and partly funded by Office of Economic Opportunity. Then he directed another program for the Kiwanis branch of YMCA jointly with OEO.

Sports
In high school he played football, basketball, and track and was All-America and All-City in football that it earned him a scholarship to Drake where he played for the Bulldogs. Later he was on the semi-pro team of the Des Moines Warriors. In Fort Wayne he was also on the Police Community Relations committee.

In Des Moines he is chairman of the Federation of Model Neighborhoods Organization in conjunction with Model Cities program.

is the whole problem." "We must become involved." There is inherent in white society a "group sensitivity... a follow the leader sort of thing."

In the area of employment, he emphasized, "You must speak out for what is right." He told the agency heads to get out of token hiring and we will accomplish something... "There is an invisible sensitivity in blacks that managers should avoid in their interviews. Among his list of "sensitivities" is "Don't say you folks" .. it burns Negroes up."

Disadvantaged Youths
In the afternoon session Perry Hooks, Director of Urban Affairs, Chamber of Commerce urged federal managers to open their doors to disadvantaged youth. In his duties as urban affairs director one of his tasks is the urging of businessmen in the community to hire and train disadvantaged youth... using the upward mobility concept on-going training.

He said, businessmen in the community and the federal managers "should take a new look at their job descriptions, find and create jobs for disadvantaged people the result would be a marked change in the community that they could see."

Ellis, in his summary remarks to the successful im-

by eleanora tate

He puts "a cut in your strut and some pride in your stride." Weekend listeners, of course, recognize that colorful statement as belonging to Chuck Holloway, the "Brother Soul" of local radio land, 1150 on your dial.

Holloway's two-hour show, heard Saturday and Sunday nights on radio station KWKY, says he really doesn't know how his gift of groovy gab managed to continue.

"It's just something that I have, I guess," he says. "Sometimes I do sit down and work out a monolog. Other times I might pick something up from a record, or tune in to some of the street talk."

Good news for Brother Soul followers: Holloway says that plans are in the offering as to a possibility that the show may be expanded, either hour-wise or day-wise, although which expansion considered has not been decided. Everything's in the hopeful stages.

And Holloway says there's a movement underfoot to begin a Brother Soul Fan Club, which sounds like a good idea, with perhaps sweatshirts and the whole business. You might keep and eye out for fan club announcements.

Brother Soul, who tells you to "clap your hands six consecutive times and shout out power," has been in radio for nearly two years. He began on radio station KDIN (formerly KDPS) where he had a soul music show.

In case you're under the delusion that soul music is just another teen sound (as an old dude with one hand on his bandanna head and his shufflin' foot in the grave once told me as he listened to Muttom mouth and the Slavers,) you've been deluded.

Brother Soul's show has them tapping not only teen feet but the old one's too. Check it out. KWKY. Brother Soul.

EEO Seminar Speakers Give Advice

Federal Job Seminar Here

By Peter Hawthorne
That the federal government is alive with concern for equal employment opportunities for disadvantaged Americans became evident here Thursday as the Federal Executive Council of Greater Des Moines, the Equal Employment Opportunity Committee, chaired by Postmaster John McNeerney, presented an Equal Employment Opportunity Community Seminar at the Federal Building.

Over fifty Federal managers and Agency heads, manager representatives, from 13 agencies were present. The tone of the one-day meet inferred that new vistas of opportunity await the disadvantaged in the federal service.

Already Leads

The federal government, already a leader in the employment of the nation's disadvantaged (16 per cent of total work force is black compared to only 10 per cent for private industry) is, today, utilizing new concepts sparked by fires of renewed impetus to place more blacks in the total work force while also offering them more jobs of responsibility.

Presently, in the city, the Post Office, Veteran's Administration and the Internal Revenue Service lead all federal agencies in the employment of blacks.

The Purpose
McNeerney said the purpose of the seminar was to "extend Upward Mobility of qualified blacks in the Federal service." He declared: Federal managers and directors have this opportunity.

The upward mobility concept is the upgrading of lower level employees to higher levels of responsibility through on-going training and the maximum utilization of skills and training program (MUST).

Credibility

Frank Robinson, Regional Co-ordinator of EEO (Iowa, Missouri and Arkansas) told the federal managers that they must establish credibility for the entire EEO Program. He emphasized that EEO is not a paper program. Managers and supervisors, he said, "must become sensitive to the problems of minorities. They must be fair and must become familiar with the Civil Rights movement. They must bridge the gap that exist between employment and management. Federal managers must be able to establish dialogue with all types of individuals and become familiar with the vernacular of the day."

"Be careful", he said "because unintentional discrimination is still discrimination as far as the employee is concerned. 'Treat them all alike.'"

More Than Hiring

EEO is much more than hiring", Robert Walton of the Inter-Agency Board of Civil Service Examiners declared. "It is being given an equal chance in opportunity for training. As yet we have no black astronauts, engineers and architects in the federal service."

Roy Ellis, Area Representative of the Civil Service Commission said, "EEO is right." A new dimension for real action has come about through Executive Orders mandated by

Charges "Unqualified" Students Permitted to Set University Policy

While three Apollo space-men hurtled through outer-space, battling for their lives, Vice President Agnew returned to Des Moines Monday and for a few hours diverted the minds of some Iowans, from the spacemen plight.

In his words, Vice President Agnew returned to the "battlefields" where he spoke to some 3,000 Republican partisans at a $50-a-plate dinner at Veterans Auditorium. The suspense of waiting for his expected blast, almost paralleled the unexpected cliff-hanger of the Apollo three.

Agnew said that "unprepared" and "unqualified" youths are being permitted to enter the nation's colleges under racial quotas and "open admissions" policies.

Agnew said permitting unqualified persons to enroll is no favor to them and unfairly denies entrance to other better-prepared students.

President Nixon Nominates Blackman for Supreme Court

Washington, D.C. — President Nixon Tuesday nominated Appeals Court Judge Harry Andrew Blackman of Rochester, Minn., to the United States Supreme Court.

In announcing the nomination, White House Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said the President "has great respect for Judge Blackman's legal ability and his judicial skill and his judicial temperament."

He (Nixon) considers Judge Blackman "a strict constructionist," Ziegler said.

Early indications are that Blackman, 61, will get considerable bi-partisan backing from his home state of Minnesota where he already has been praised by former Vice President Hubert Humphrey.

Blackman's nomination
