Calls For Cooperation And Good Will of Citizens

The Des Moines Human Rights Commission, at its regularly scheduled meeting on April 8, 1975, approved and sent to the Des Moines School Board a statement on integrating Des Moines Schools.

The statement is as follows:

The Des Moines Human Rights Commission calls on the school officials and citizens of Des Moines to develop a reasonable, workable plan which will achieve the racial integration of the Des Moines Public Schools. This is an important step in the realization of a totally integrated society, along with parallel action in the areas of housing, employment and public accommodations. Schools and textbooks alone cannot teach people to get along. This can only come through the positive interaction of all the people of our city.

The Human Rights Commission feels that integrated education provides an equal educational opportunity which is not possible in a racially isolated school. Integrated education permits students, teachers, and all others involved in the educational process to develop an understanding of each other and of other cultures, values and attitudes. This understanding fosters improved interpersonal relationship, a basic element in the achievement of a more equitable society.

An integrated educational program, to be successful, requires the cooperation and goodwill of the people. It must be coupled with planning, preparation and leadership from the schools and the community. We believe the citizens of Des Moines possess the qualities necessary to create and implement an integration plan for their schools which will be a model for the entire country. The Human Rights Commission asks everyone in our city to take these steps to eliminate the barriers of prejudice and misunderstanding and to work for an integrated society.

The Human Rights Commission can assist by:

- 1) Providing a forum so that people can seek solutions in a free and open manner.
- 2) Presenting relevant educational programs to the public.
- 3) Providing materials and information to interested parties.
- 4) Encouraging the development of a school integration plan consistent with the philosophy embodied in this statement.

5) Continuing to attack discrimination and prejudice in all segments of society. This is the first time the commission has made known to the public its position on integration in the public schools and served to strengthen the position of those who have been working to evolve a program for the public schools in Des Moines.

Martin Waldinger is chairperson and Allen J. Correll is director.

National News Briefs

Boston: A U.S. District Court jury convicted Joseph E. Griffin Jr., of South Boston, in connection with the beating of Yvon Jean Louis, a Haitian immigrant who was pulled from his car by a white crowd in South Boston last fall.

San Francisco: Superior Court Judge Joseph Karesh has warned attorneys in the "Zebra" street killings case that the trial will be a long one and he hopes they can learn to get along.

The trial, began March 3, and has already experienced court-room drama. No jury has been seated from the more than 90 prospective jurors who have been interrogated.

Raleigh: Defense attorneys for Joan Little, charged with first degree murder in the ice pick slaying Aug. 27 of Beaufort County jailer Clarence Alligood, have asked for a 90 day delay in her trial.

Miss Little has been hospitalized and her doctors say she is emotionally and physically incapable of standing trial as scheduled for April 14 in Washington N.C. The 20 year old Miss Little contends that the jailer was trying to rape her and that she acted in self defense.

New York: The 100 Black Men, Inc., composed of New York City's leading businessmen, civic leaders and government officers, last week blasted Mayor Abraham D. Beame for not naming more than one black as a judge, although there are 17 vacancies on the bench. The group was especially incensed since the mayor has had on his desk at least five names, passed by the bar association and he has been in office 16 months.

VIEWS and REVIEWS

by James B. Morris

The War Is Over, We Hope

Contrary to many views concerning our participation in Southeast Asia, it actually began when the Chinese Nationals were driven from the mainland by the Communist forces; it was further emphasized when America undertook to improve the lot of South Vietnam after France had left. While President Roosevelt condemned France for milking the country during its colonial occupation, he was actually interested in stopping spread of Communism in Southeast Asia.

Early we sent observers, then technicians and then instructors in the use of American arms which were being sent there in great quantities.

The buildup under President Johnson reached a total of more than 500,000 men armed with all the know how we had gained by fighting in bushes and rice paddies during the World War II and to a great extent during the campaign in Korea.

President Nixon vowed to stop the war as our country had become terribly divided; rioting, spawned on school campuses and on the streets. It became evident that there was little chance for military victory.

Our military forces told the public that the South Vietnamese, with the aid of our military and economic assistance, could stop the further advance of North Vietnam to the south. But apparently it turned out that we had not learned how to fight and that the South Vietnamese were not willing to fight. Much of the disappointment came about because of the instability of the government and the practice of military and civilian leaders of enriching themselves at the expense of their own people out of what this country had sent to fight the war.

Well, here we are, kicked out of Southeast Asia carrying a load of refugees on our backs. This is the first war where America has returned like a whipped dog with its tail tucked. The United States waited to the last minute for the total evacuation hoping that by some hook or crook we could stem the tide.

Now that it has come to this, I hope our country has learned a lesson, that even with out great riches and almost unlimited resources we alone cannot run the affairs on nations outside of our own.

It is unfortunate to bring refugees to the country at this time in view of the high unemployment rate and the clamor of many people that they are not sufficiently clothed and fed. Apparently this refugee situation has caught us without any plan to deal with it but the country must not panic but each individual should do his best to help the country get on its feet again.

Good Sportsmanship

When the late Harvey Ingham was editor of the Des Moines Register and Tribune, he often wrote editorials and comments concerning the aspirations of the Negro community and what America should do to implement the principles of American justice.

He often described these aspirations as follows: An opportunity to compete with a fair start, an open field and a fair decision at the finish.

This principle was very well demonstrated at the Drake Relays Saturday when Ivory Crockett, who holds the 100 yd dash record of 0.9, was disqualified from running in the race Saturday because he violated the rules. Competitors are disqualified if they make two wrong starts and this is what happened to Crockett. The public was disappointed and called for his participation in spite of the infraction of the rules. However, Crockett took the position that he had violated the rules of the game and his position as a champion gave him no more privilege than any other participant. This he so stated over the loud speaker.

Crockett is to be congratulated and his action is an example for young athletes to follow during any games in which they participate.

Mahalia Jackson's Auto Biography

WACO, Texas — "Just Mahalia, Baby," a biography of the internationally celebrated gospel singer Mahalia Jackson, has just been published by Word Books. The author is Lorraine Goreau, a close friend of the late singer, who creates a portrait that Publishers Weekly describes as "both inspirational and inspiring."

The story of Mahalia Jackson's youth is little known, as are the facts of life as it was lived by the poor and the black of New Orleans in the early years of this century. This is where Mahalia's story begins. It continues through years of tragic setbacks, crippled legs and disappointments in love, but is sustained by the artist's faith and total commitment — the very qualities that elevated her and the gospel song to the concert stages of the world in the decades following World War II.

"Just Mahalia, Baby,"

containing 24 pages of photographs, is available from booksellers at $12.95.

Word, Inc., the publisher, is a division of ABC Leisure Group 1 of American Broadcasting Companies, Inc.

Governor Ray has proclaimed May as High Blood Pressure Month in Iowa, sponsored by Heart Association and Life Underwriters.

Down with high blood pressure

The Iowa Association of Life Underwriters and the Iowa Heart Association, are joining forces during May in an attempt to identify Iowans who might be suffering from high blood pressure. The two groups will be holding mass screening programs throughout the State, working with many local groups.

High blood pressure is known as the "silent killer." Why? Because you can't tell when you have it. It can only be identified by having your blood pressure checked. This condition, if left unchecked, can lead to heart attack, stroke, or kidney failure.

During the month of May, you can have your blood pressure checked free of charge at one of the many screening sites that will be available during this period. Governor Robert D. Ray, recognizing the magnitude of the problem of high blood pressure in Iowa, has officially proclaimed May as High Blood Pressure Month in the Hawkeye State, and urges every citizen to take advantage of this life-saving community program. The State Department of Health is cooperating in this program by providing a complete computer data bank on the results of the statewide screening.

Throughout the State, local public service chairpersons of Life Underwriters and Heart Associations are busy finalizing plans for the screening programs. To find out more about this program in your area, ask your local Life Underwriter or Heart Association about times and locations. One out of every six adults has some form of high blood pressure — and half of them don't know it! This is your opportunity to do yourself and your heart a big favor!

Senate Report

This week, the Senate focused its attention on the biggest single appropriation in the budget, the school aid plan. This proposal places almost 378 million dollars a year into a fund to aid public elementary and secondary schools. I supported the bill and spent many hours in committee on its provisions.

The Senate amended the House passed bill by reducing the requested amount by 1.1 million dollars. This was achieved with an amendment to the declining enrollment section of the bill. In the House approved bill, a school district could loose 2% of their students, yet continue to receive school aid as though the students still attended the school. Under this formula, schools would receive funds for over 11,300 students that did not exist. The Senate amended this provision to give credit for fewer non-existent students. In 1975-1976, approximately 9,500 non-existent students will be allowed and in 1976-1977, 6,700 will be allowed. This will be a savings to the state of 1.1 million dollars and 3.5 million dollars respectively.

The Senate version provides an increase in the allowable growth from the 8% increase recommended by Governor Ray to over 10% as approved by both Houses. An amendment was offered by the Republican floor leader to reduce this increase to the Governor's recommended 8%. The amendment failed by a vote of 38 to 10. I voted against the amendment. Members of the Senate attempted to delete a section of the bill which guaranteed at least $200 per pupil in those school districts with high property tax potential. I supported this deletion. The measure first succeeded then later was reconsidered and failed. The bill still has the $200 minimum. According to the Comptroller's Office, the Senate version saves 5.3 million dollars in property taxes over the House passed version.

Since the House and Senate versions of this bill differ, the proposal must now return to the House for consideration of the Senate's amendment.

In other action, the Senate Labor Committee passed an improved unemployment compensation bill. This proposal is a product of the months which caused lengthy recessionary periods of unemployment.

The bill increases the maximum benefits from $81.00 per week to $98.00. It also extends the payment period from 26 weeks to 39. In addition, an employee who voluntarily quits their job is not qualified for benefits, but a new provision was added which does away with the one week waiting period before receiving benefits. The proposal is a bipartisan product which has received the approval of both organized labor and the state manufacturer's association. The bill is on the Senate Calendar and is expected to be debated within the next 10 days.

Governor Ray recently used his veto power to item veto a section of the appropriations bill for the Geological Survey, the Natural Resources Council and the Iowa Coal Research Project. The section the Governor vetoed put a limit on the number of full-time employees these departments could hire. In his veto message, Governor Ray stated that staffing was an executive prerogative, not a function of the General Assembly.

Legislators who disagree with the Governor's position remarked that the State payroll has increased under the Governor by 181 new employees per month. In 1968, the payroll included 46,755 employees. By fiscal 1973, that figure had increased to 57,704. (This includes part-time and full-time employees.)

The Senate approved, by a vote of 39 to 8, Senate File 136, which increases the number of judgeships in judicial election districts. The bill adds one new judge to Spencer, Council Bluffs, Des Moines, Ottumwa and the Burlington-Ft. Madison area. I opposed this bill since I question the need for this many additional judges.

Understanding Life Insurance

As was stated in the last article, if a person dies without a will the deceased estate could go to people that he did not intend for it to go. The surviving spouse could be limited to the amount of the estate that he or she is entitled to, even though both had worked to accumulate it. There are many misconceptions about what a will can or can't do. If you have any specific questions you should ask your lawyer. Generally here are a few things that a will can do: 1) You can make the proceeds (money, property, etc.) of your estate go to who you intended it to go 2) you can appoint an executor of your estate. 3) You can appoint the guardian for your surviving minor children. 4) You can specify charities and individuals you wish to leave something to. 5) You can specify the beneficiaries of your choice and state what share of your estate they will get. Many times a minor child will need money for education or handicaps. In a will you can state how much money you want set aside for these purposes.

Many people feel that a wife does not need a will to complete her estate planning. This is a widely accepted misconception, because without a will the same problems her husband's estate faced, hers will face the same. Many times they are even more complicated than her husband's because of the set up of the legal system. When a husband gets his will prepared he should take his wife along and get hers started and so that they can compliment or help the other.

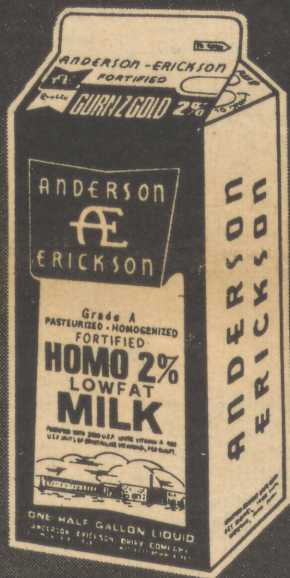

There are some basic requirements that must be followed to make a will valid; party must be of legal age (18 in the state of Iowa) 2) most states require that the individual be of sound mind (the ability to make decisions) 3) the will must be signed in ink immediately following the body of the will so that no additions can be added. The name signed should be the one used throughout the will. Your name or initial should go on each page. 4) the will should be signed in front of the required witnesses (state laws dictate). If a beneficiary signs as a witness he stands a good chance of losing his share of the estate.

Even though there are no laws against an individual preparing his own will, most of them are ripped apart in court and are essentially invalid. Most people do not have the legal knowledge to write a legal document that is concise and meet stated legal requirements. All vagueness or unclear directions will be interpreted by the court. There is a good chance that your wishes will not be fulfilled. I suggest that you get the advice of your lawyer to prepare your will. The cost of a will is from 25-50 dollars. Don't let the cost deter you because, if a man wants his family to get what he built for their future, he should invest this minimal amount for a while that will guarantee his wishes.

Church Women United

DES MOINES — Church Women United in Des Moines will celebrate May Fellowship Day on May 2 at the following Churches: Afternoon Section at 1:00 P.M. at the Westminster Presbyterian Church, Beaver and Franklin Avenues; and the Evening Section at 5:30 P.M. at St. John's Lutheran Church, 6th and Keo.

Since the first May Fellowship Day in 1933 it has been traditional for church women across the country to use the first Friday of May to emphasize the creative and healing relations that are possible among people in every community.

This year's theme, "Open to Live Fully," is an invitation to experience wholeness as persons, living life to the full, through personal growth and sharing in the lives of others. For Christian women this also means becoming open to those who have been damaged by society or cast out because of past acts, and to those who have been deprived because of economic circumstances.

Church Women United is committed in the seventies to open opportunities for women in transition. In an agenda that includes a full life for all, they will endeavor to broaden the consciousness of women, affirming their full personhood; to strive to rectify the injustices which saddle many women with educational, economic, and physical handicaps; to assist women in transition situations — housing and jobs for families moving from poverty to control of adequate incomes; re-entry of those handicapped by prison records.

On May Fellowship Day, Protestant, Orthodox and Roman Catholic women in 2,000

Church Must be more than preaching

By W. R. Ellis

CLEVELAND, Ohio (NNPA) — The church must be more than preaching and rhetoric; it must be where the people are hurting, said Bishop Hubert N. Robinson, president of the Council of Bishops of the African Methodist Episcopal Church (AME).

The Bishop, who presides over the 11th Episcopal District of his church, was here last week at the Sheraton-Cleveland hotel addressing the annual fellowship banquet of the 3rd District.

He reviewed the past 20 years of the civil rights movement, going back to Montgomery, Ala., and the arrest of Mrs. Rosa Parks on a bus because she refused to give her seat to a white man.

This, the Bishop said, led to the bus boycott and the formation of such organizations as the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, the Congress of Racial Equality, and others followed by the cry of "Black Power."

During the early days, he pointed out, the civil rights movement placed its hope in integrated institutions. But now this seems like an empty dream. "White racism is still too entrenched, and black self-determination is still too far removed," he declared.

The hope now is in the Black Church, the Bishop said, because all the newer civil rights groups, except Rev. Jesse Jackson's PUSH and Rev. Leon Sullivan's OIC, seem to have run their course.

The church can help, the Bishop continued. "The insights and obligations of our Judeo-Christian Faith will enable concerned followers to move beyond polarization to reconciliation and into involvement which is vocal and visible."

local units of Church Women United will celebrate a litany of dedication to be "Open to Live Fully."

In Des Moines the focus for both services will be a panel composed of Miss Kathy Wagner, Iowa Department Social Services, Polk County Office; Mrs. Lily Hill, Director of Volunteer Services Program of Juvenile Court; and Miss Sherry Kiefer, Alcoholic Center, Broadlawn Hospital. Emphasis will be placed on specific steps that need to be taken on needed reforms, pending and desired legislation, direct services to offenders, community programs, and alternative systems.

As part of the May Fellowship Day celebrations, local units of Church Women United, through the channel of Ecumenical Action, will seek practical yet flexible ways to carry through workshops on women and prisons, women and poverty, or other areas of pressing need relevant to the local community.

"The church must move beyond its captivating institutionalism into the mainstream of life. The church must be more than discourse and rhetoric; it must be where the people are hurting," he said.

Turning to Richard Allen, the founder of the AME Church, Bishop Robinson pointed out that Allen first founded the Free African Society to aid the poor and outcast in Philadelphia.

Referring to today's conditions, he said the people realize that things could be better. Their helplessness provokes raw emotions and directionless violence, he added, calling for more involvement and a deeper commitment by members of the church.

Ruth McQuerry Retires

After 32 years of service in DMGH's housekeeping department, Ruth McQuerry retired on March 6.

In all these 32 years, Mrs. McQuerry has seen DM General grow from a "little old building" to the four-story, 145-bed building it now is. The small, quiet woman, who was 68 years old on March 21, remembers when the housekeeping department consisted of only four girls.

"I'd never worked in a hospital before," said Mrs. McQuerry, "but I learned enough to become supervisor of the housekeeping department for 25 years, from 1949-74."

During these years as a housekeeper, Mrs. McQuerry came to know just about every employee in the hospital.

One employee who came to know Mrs. McQuerry quite well was Elise Saunders, OR technician.

"Ruth is a very nice person—I mean this from the bottom of my heart," said Mrs. Saunders. "In the 32 years I have known her, she has tried to be of help to everyone in the hospital."

Mrs. McQuerry was honored by fellow employees at a two-hour open house in the student library on March 6. Mrs. McQuerry was presented with several gifts, including a silver serving tray. Housekeeping workers Opal Starling and Lillian Kurschinski and executive housekeeper Betty Turner spoke of Mrs. McQuerry's faithful years of service.

RHS Senior Prom Scheduled

"Moving On" is the theme for the 1975 Roosevelt Senior prom, which has been scheduled to be held May 9, from 8:30 until 11:30 p.m. at the Riviera Ballroom.

The band "Dahecotah", from Fort Dodge will be returning again this year to provide the music for the evening. A whole new sound show has been planned by the band. The five members have made quite a few improvements from last year.

Mr. Jerald Curnutt, vice-principal remarked, "The seniors have done a real good job in planning for the prom. They have put a lot of time in."

Silver and white are the colors for this years prom. Some decorations to be displayed include a big silver ball which will circulate around the room. Also a new silver cadillac will be available outside for students who wish to have pictures taken in it.

The centerpieces to be used are stars with moondust on them with a candle in the center. The senior class officers want to make this prom spectacular. They are also trying to start some specific traditions, for example the senior mugs and senior superstars.

Those seniors who have paid their social dues of five dollars, may get into the prom for three dollars. All others who have not paid are being charged five dollars.

Mrs. Betty Hyde, this years prom sponsor remarked, "It has been fun working with the seniors, helping them plan the prom. I have been impressed by their industry and creativity. I hope May 9 will be a night that all seniors will remember for a long time."

Williams Jr., Living a better

"If Des Moines Area Community College hadn't opened the Urban Center ... well, I don't know what would have happened. It's changed a whole lot of people's lives," mused the former high school dropout, Fred Williams, Jr. who this summer will receive his B.A. degree from Drake University.

Fred knows, because he is one of those people whose life has changed drastically. And no one knows the Urban Center better than Fred. On the other hand, everyone at the Urban Center knows Fred.

He's a counseling aide there; sensitive to people, popular with the staff. You can't have a "down" moment with Fred around, his involvement with people is deep and personal and that goes for the students too. He cares. Ask his director or anyone else who works with him. That's what they will say.

What's more, Fred is no kid. He dropped out of East High in 1958 and for 10 years sort of "knocked around". "I had no goals for the future - it was bleak ... I'd have been a total waste ... I wouldn't have been happy," he reflected.

What changed all this? Today this man has his adult high school diploma, two Associate in Arts degrees from Des Moines Area Community College, will have his Bachelor's degree soon and plans to go into graduate study. Political science is his field and his goal is to become active in government, possibly in an elective office, but someplace where he can have an active role in effecting changes.

Born and reared in Des Moines, married and the father of a 10-year-old son, Barry, and a daughter, Stephanie, age eight, Fred Williams Jr. knows where he wants to go and with his motivation will likely get there.

But back to 1969, a few years before the Urban Center was established. Fred started training that year in Goodwill Industries as a supervisor. In 1970 he went with the Occupational Upgrading Program (OUP) and from an outreach worker there was promoted to an outreach coordinator. "Then I started thinking - I was out there preaching 'education', but what was I doing for myself?"

Fred Williams Jr., right, has been around the Urban Center of Des Moines Area Community College since it opened, first at 920 Washington and now at 5th and College. He has earned two associate degrees there and is now employed as a counseling aide. Always cheerful, his attitude rubs off on staff members and students at the center. But he's serious about his future and spends time discussing it with the center's director, Zack Hameltt, left, and Morris Johnson, student services officer.

That was the beginning. He earned his high school diploma through the Model Cities Adult Education Center operated by the community college. Another thing happened about that time that was destined to change the life of Fred Williams Jr. - a move that had been in the making after considerable study by educators on the post-secondary level.

In 1970, the Higher Education Facilities Commission of Iowa sponsored a study to look at the post-secondary educational and facility needs of the urban disadvantaged in Des Moines. The primary target population were those residents living in the "Model Cities" neighborhood - the same area in which Fred was active as an outreach coordinator.

Students like Fred Williams Jr. can tell you why - there are many at the center like him - students who likely would not have gone to college if the Urban Center had never been. Fred says the staff has a lot to do with the success of the center. "They understand and don't press for traditional education as we had known it. They bring us along. They care about us and challenge us to reach as far as we can - they are the greatest!"

In the meantime, Fred Williams Jr. is making his world a better world. As he looks into his future he thinks of his children. He admits he is a permissive parent - he let's them do their own thing, but only to a point. Will they be high school dropouts some day? A volatile response from Fred, "No way! Education is the only way. Look at me, without it I could be washing cars for a living."

Edmund Dancers

Dancers from the Edmunds Elementary school in Des Moines performed at the Des Moines Area Community College last week. Directed by their music instructors, Ramona Hall and Tony Wilson. Their appearance was before a "Children's Music" class for adults taught by Mardy York.

The three-credit course, according to Ms. York, is really an introduction to music. Her students learn to read music, the keyboard, the guitar and simple rhythm instruments. They also undertake special projects, such as visiting music classes in schools in the area.

But a student from Des Moines, Linda Clark, as her project, invited the Edmunds dance group out to the college.

They are fifth and sixth graders who not only dance but provide their own music — all drums — played by their classmates.

Dancing to the rhythm in a "black light" setting, the young performers literally "brought down the house", and in response to a request, the lights were turned on and the show was repeated.

Ms. York says her students are amazed at what the "kids" are learning in music classes today.

But then, they were watching not an ordinary group, but "The Moonlight Dancers", dancing to the "L. B. Express" — a happy young troupe that responds to requests from all over the city.

The Moonlight Dancers and the L. B. Express (Loose Booty Express) were started as a diversified learning activity which is a choice time activity once a week for an hour where the staff in the building offers mini courses which the students choose. The groups were originally separate activities and eventually merged.

The groups first performance was for the American Childhood Education Assoc. in February. After the outstanding and creative performance Mrs. Lee Ferguson, director of Gateway Dancers asked the groups to come to practice with her dancers. In addition they have received numerous invitations to appear at other schools.

The Moonlight Dancers, L. B. Express, and the Ambassadors of Song, a choir, also under the direction of Mrs. Romana Hall, have performed at several elementary schools, neighboring churches, Wilkie House and Area XI. The drummers also have done some background work for the Risie-Woodbury Dancers, a professional group which was in residence at Edmunds.

The groups are presently

"BUYING A HOUSE"

Three "talk-it-over" sessions on buying a house for residents of the northeast Des Moines area are scheduled to be held at the May Goodrell Junior High School, E. 29th and Ovid, Des Moines, beginning May 8 as announced by Ober J. Anderson, Polk County Extension Director.

The topic for the first meeting is "How Much House Can You Afford?" Additional "talk-it-over" sessions will include "What Kind of House Do You Want?" on May 15, and "What Legal Ritual Do You Go Through?" to be discussed on May 22.

Donald Gee, Extension Management Specialist, Ellen Thomas, Area Extension Consumer Management Specialist, and Bertha Mae Kelly, Extension Home Economist, will assume major responsibility for the educational aspects of the program.

"If you are hoping that you may own a home in the future, you are cordially invited to participate in the series," Anderson states. He further requests that reservations be called in to the Polk County Extension Service office, phone 284-4158, by May 1.

Sioux City

The re-scheduled public hearing on the 1974 survey conducted in the Black Community by 5 Sioux City Black Women has been set for May 5th at the Sanford Community Center at 7:30 P.M. Anyone wishing to be heard regarding the results of the survey should attend the meeting. The members of City Government will be in attendance to hear suggestions and/or recommendations.

There is growing concern about statements being made regarding the Hamilton Urban Renewal project nearing completion. There are several areas on the westside that are still in need of renewal. There has been no "overall" plan shown to concerned community people regarding the Hamilton Urban Renewal project and many are afraid that the area will be deemed complete when there are still areas left where houses and business were torn down and nothing constructed to replace them.

There is a search on in the Sioux City area for interested individuals to serve on Boards and Commissions. The Sioux City Black Caucus is asking for the names of anyone interested. They feel that there needs to be more representation on these policy making and advisory boards and commissions. There are some members of the minority community on boards or commissions but if the lists were studied, you would see the same name on several lists. The Caucus would like to see MORE minority people involved. Names can be submitted to Ron James, Chairman of the Sioux City Black Caucus. Minority organizations are asked to poll their groups for a list to be submitted.

The Westside Concerned Citizens group would like to become active again to improve conditions as well as improve the communications with City Hall. Anyone interested in the project and becoming a member can contact Ernestine Boykin - 274-1455 after 7:00 P.M. and/or Mrs. Betty Mehner - 3019 Center Street - 258-4220.

A breakfast program for disadvantaged children needs your help any week day morning, 7:15 to 9 a.m. You would have a choice of locations in which to help serve the meal and visit with the youngsters.

By Allen Ashby

Well, if you are a Drake Relays fan, or if you are not, you must know all about who won what over the week end, so anything I might try to tell you would be just repeating. So, where do I start?

With how there were so many blacks in the college and university short relays that it looked like a riot in the ghetto. Or do I tell you about the success that Coach Clyde Duncan had with his Grambling team after being disqualified in the 880 yard relay Friday. By the way, Clyde is the same modest polite guy that he was when he was at North High. Hasn't changed a bit, and that is really something, and speaks well for his parents who must have taught him well. Then, I might tell you about the fact that there were some black girls in the races, too, and they for the most part didn't do too badly. Some girls ran for Washington High of Cedar Rapids, and had tough sledding, but that was the first appearance of any of them in the high school section. One would be short not to mention the usual schools, Prairie View and Texas Southern who usually gather a slug of medals and watches each year. They got their usual loot, but had to take second to a fine Eastern New Mexico, anchored by Mike Boit, a Kenyan who had two other Kenyans running with him. Then there was a fellow from Illinois, Elihuzen who won both jumps, the long and triple. I wanted to talk to those fellows, but I didn't want to ask them the usual questions about how they felt, or what they planned for next year. I wanted to ask them their impressions of America in general, and what they did for social life, and how they spent their time when they weren't running. They maybe sensed this, because they got their defenses up, and suddenly had pressing engagements. So you politely excuse them, and wish them luck. The guys from LSU were just eh opposite. They live in a place that has all levels of any sort of amusement and social life they might want, so they had no problems.

SOME SURPRISES

One of the surprises of the meet was in the shuttle hurdle relay. The Air Force Academy came in first in quite a duel, and they had a fellow running who didn't run in the regular hurdle race, at least not in the finals. As usual, the hurdle race and the hundred were just about all black finishes. In one of the preliminaries of the century a white boy came up second, and the guy next to me in the press box said, "What the hell is he doing in there?" The biggest surprise to me was the womens sprint medley relay. For years the Iowa Track Club, the Texas Track Club, and last year, the Mayor Daley Club of Chicago dominated this event, but Saturday there were four little girls from Grambling who ran away from the field, in fact, they ran as if somebody was chasing them. Well, somebody was chasing them. Jackson State, and four black girls from of all places, Minnesota.

MORE

In spite of what has been said and written about the Ivory Crockett disqualification, I have to add my bit. It was explained to us in the press box that the starter could have reversed himself if he had wanted to, since it was a special race, but in his place, I don't think I would have reversed myself either. But we thought for a while there wasn't going to be any race. The other runners began to put on their warmup clothes, and the crowd applauded. Later we learned that they had done this to keep from cooling off too much during the delay. They, after Golliday jumped the second start. We thought they would all jump, thus cancelling the race. But we wondered why they all didn't jump at once. Then came Crockett with his plea to let the race go on without him. The Runners wanted to run against Crockett, and not each other, and the crowd wanted to see just that, so they were ugly. But the man cooled them with his statement, and I believe he was sincere, no matter how disappointed he was. The NCAA instituted this one false start this year, and most track men seem to think it is a good rule. I can recall when runners were allowed two false starts, and before that, three. This held up a race for quite a while sometimes. But, Corckett couldn't have gained more respect and good will from the crowd if he had broken the world's record. Everybody was on his side. One fellow said, "I don't care for the fellow, but by God, he is a man."

Loose ends.

I wanted to see Ricardo Duncan win the high school hundred and I think he tried too hard because of his brother, and finished second. He made a couple of game efforts to bring his relay teams in, but just couldn't cut it. But I would have to guess that he will be heard from in another year. That fellow, Mike Korick from Washington of Cedar Rapids just runs away from the field in the quarter mile. In the mile relay he was quite a distance out of it, but came in far enough ahead to almost walk in if he had wanted to. The Des Moines schools had

TERRANCE BUTTS

Bricklayer's apprenticeship

Terrance, who graduated from Roosevelt High School in June, 1974, was selected as an alternate by the Bricklayers J.A.C. earlier this year and when one of the trainees dropped out he was placed in their program. He has been attending the Area XI tough sledding, none of them winning any races, and not too many of them finishing in the money. Now, this seems to bear out my argument of a while back about big schools competing against large schools. Oh yes, I never did get my press credentials for the meet, and had to rely on the fact that everybody out there knew me, and by golly, they did. Wonder what happened to them? Don't need them now.

Bricklayers class since September, 1974 and should be well qualified when he goes to work as an apprentice. Terrance is just one of the many young men who are finding out that there is an opportunity for them in the local construction industry.
