BILLUPS' IMPROVED DOUBLE-HOPPER SHELLER

This cut illustrates our improved Double Sheller, with attachment for separating the trash from the corn and discharging the cobs at the outer end of the Separator.

This Sheller is made also without the Separator, and is sold nine times out of ten without said attachment. It possesses improvements that cannot be used on any other Double or Single Hopper Sheller. It shells perfectly clean, is comparatively light to the operator, and the capacity is so satisfactory that many farmers who formerly used horse-power are substituting this Sheller instead. It is rigged to be driven by horse-power if desired, but this will seldom be resorted to. There are many imitations of this Sheller, as there have been imitations of all good machines—beware of them.

Price, without Separator, $17.00. Price, with Separator, $19.00.

BILLUPS' STAR SEPARATING SHELLER

The cut to the left of this nearly enough represents our Star Single Hopper Sheller. We brand it the Star to designate it from shellers similar in appearance which do not give satisfaction. It will shell 200 bushels of corn per day.

Price - - - - - $8.00

CORNFIELD PEA HULLER

This machine is intended to separate peas and beans from the pods after the pods have been removed from the vines. The Farquhar No. 1 hulls all varieties of the above-named vegetables, and thoroughly cleans the grains without breaking them. It can be operated by hand (two men) or by light gas engine (2 to 4 H. P.). By hand the machine usually turns out from 10 to 15 bushels an hour. Capacity when driven by power ranges from 20 to 30 bushels an hour.

Its

Accomplishments.

The mouth of the Huller is on top. The pods first pass onto a cylinder whose surface is studded with steel spikes. When the cylinder revolves these spikes carry the pods down through three rows of concaves. It is the passage of the pods through these concaves that performs the hulling. Seed drops from the concaves to a perforated steel bottom, where it is cleaned by a 13-inch fan. The cleaned seed is discharged from a spout at the bottom of the frame on the right-hand side. The empty pods are carried from the concaves by an endless canvas webbing with wooden rake cross-pieces and thrown from the huller in the rear.

General

Price $30.00
