TWO COMMENTS WORTHY OF LONGER TEXT:
On 6 May, James Huntington and I observed for approx. 45 minutes (from 1330-1415) a Le Conte's Sparrow in my back yard. The bird was feeding in the short grass and only accidentally, it seemed, found cover of any sort. We were within 15 feet of the bird for a long period of time. The behavior was certainly unlike that expected of a Le Conte's Sparrow. No photos.
On 20 May, James Huntington, John Cordell, and I were driving north past the Gun Club Pond. We noticed approx. 10-12 Cliff Swallows perched on wire on west side of road. One bird with same conformation, posture, etc., was completely white, except for black wings and dark brown face mask--almost shrike-like. We observed the bird for approx. 10 minutes, and concluded that it was indeed an albino Cliff Swallow.
