NOTRE DAME'S SYSTEM vs. MICHIGAN'S

FOOTBALL patterned after styles used by two of the greatest football teams in the United States will be seen in the game today. From Missouri Frank Carideo is bringing a team using the Notre Dame system, while the Cyclones will employ the Michigan system, a system similar to that which won the Big Ten championship for the Wolverines last year.

Carideo, who became head tiger coach last year, is only 25 years old. In 1929 and 1930 he was All-American quarterback of Knute Rockne's famous Notre Dame Ramblers, being a fine field general, and excellent punter and blocker, and a strong defensive player.

Both Coach George F. Veenker and Joe "Truck" Truskowski are from Michigan, while Hugo Otopalik, line coach, is an alumnus of another great football school, the University of Nebraska.

TIGERS HOLD EDGE IN ALL-TIME RECORD

WHAT are the odds on today's game? Some favor the Tigers to win. Others prefer the Cyclones, but in few instances are any odds being given. If the history of gridiron competition between the two teams is any indication the odds are exactly 12 to 11 in favor of Missouri with three chances that the game will end in a tie, for of 26 Tiger-Cyclone battles Missouri has won 12, Iowa State 11, and three have ended in deadlocks.

It was in the middle nineties, in 1895 to be exact, that Missouri first met Iowa State in football, and though the score of that game has been lost, the records show that the Iowa Cyclones held the margin of victory at the close of the battle. It was that same year that the eleven from the Iowa Agricultural College, as the school was then called, earned the name Cyclones by trouncing Northwestern in Chicago.

Following a second game in 1896, which Iowa State won 12 to 0, a 12-year truce was declared and two teams did not meet again until 1908. Since then the battle has been an annual affair with the lone exception of 1918, when the World War forced cancellation of the scrap, and the spirited competition in every game has stamped the rivalry as one of the keenest as well as one of the oldest in the Midwest.

A review of the records show that the Cyclones "brought home the bacon" in the early years of the rivalry, but that between 1919 and 1930 the Tigers hold a decided advantage. In the latter period Missouri won 11 of 12 annual games, and after a 2 to 0 victory in 1923 the Cyclones failed to win another contest until 1931, when they proceeded to even up the all-time records by drubbing the Tigers 20 to 0.

That was Coach George Veenker's first year at Iowa State, the year that the long-abused Cyclones climbed out of the football doldrums to blank the Tigers, nip Kansas State and Oklahoma by one-point margins and earn second place in the Big Six conference.

Football fans will not forget the 1931 game. It was the Homecoming game as today. After an uneventful first quarter in which the Missourians outplayed Iowa State, the Cyclones uncorked an offensive barrage that the bewildered Tigers could not match. They blocked with vengeance, executed trick formations that dumbfounded the Tigers, and fought their way to a three-touchdown victory.

Last year the two elevens battled to a scoreless tie on a soggy field at Columbia. Although the Tigers held a slight advantage in statistics at the close of the contest neither team could score on the slippery turf.

Missouri will use the Notre Dame system today as coached by Frank Carideo, former All-American quarterback under Knute Rockne on the Irish eleven. The Cyclones are using the Michigan system as taught by Coach Veenker, former basketball coach at Michigan.

IOWA NEXT!

In the thoughts of Iowa football fans from now until next Saturday there will be no Big Ten, Big Six or Missouri Valley conference. That Northwestern battles Minnesota, that Ohio State mixes with Indiana or that Nebraska is favored to trounce Missouri will interest them only casually.

Next Saturday there is virtually only one game on the schedule for gridiron enthusiasts of the state—the Iowa State-Iowa classic at Iowa City, marking the renewal of a historic rivalry dormant for the past 13 years.

No rivalry in the Midwest was more keen or generated more interest than did that between Iowa's two major institutions from 1894, when the first game was played, until 1920 when athletic relations were severed. The Cyclones copped the first game played and lost the last of the series by the close score of 14 to 10. Although the Hawkeyes held the margin of victory in 15 of the 22 games played, a comparison of scores indicates a keener rivalry.

Each meeting of the two elevens in the past was looked forward to as the grand finale of the football season for both teams. This year it seems that all the pent-up enthusiasm of the last 13 years has come to life.

Ticket offices at both schools have been flooded for seats and a sellout of the Iowa Stadium with a seating capacity of 40,000 seems not too much to expect. In spite of the interest displayed in this gridiron feature the price of the tickets has been held to $1.50 for reserved seats in either the Iowa State or Iowa section. Tickets for the Iowa State section should be obtained at the Iowa State gymnasium.

Iowa State is making plans for a special train to transport students to the game, and is working on an organized cheering section in the Cyclone block of seats.

The Hawkeyes making a powerful bid for a high place in the Big Ten conference, have been showing up better than the Cyclones this year, but in this game past performances mean nothing.

Everything points to a gala day at Iowa City next Saturday.

HAVE YOU MET?

IKE HAYES. Line Coach Hugo Otopalik calls him the pepperbox of the Cyclone team, because of his indomitable spirit and chatter. Hayes, a reserve quarterback, is one of the lightest men on the squad, weighing only 155 pounds. He hails from Newcomerstown, Ohio.

JOHN GRAVENO. Another light ball carrier who is rapidly convincing Coach Veenker that he should not be left out of the lineup. Graveno is noted for his fearlessness. He drives into big and little opponents with equal velocity—all he's got. His home is Cleveland, Ohio.

WILLIAM ALLENDER. Promising sophomore ball carrier with weight, speed and scrap. He weighs 175 pounds and stands almost 6 feet tall. He punts powerfully, passes with accuracy and is an elusive ball totter. In the Nebraska game he averaged 48 yards on a dozen punts. He formerly starred on his home town high school team at Atlantic.

FRANK DRIGGINS. A hard-working halfback from Dunlap. Besides playing football he is working his entire way through school.

ROBERT ELKINS. Has weight and fair speed. He tips the scales at no less than 185 and will be in the starting lineup as fullback today. Elkins comes from Gary, Ind., where Coach Veenker used to turn out state champion high school teams.

HAROLD MILLER. Another fleet halfback, probably the midget of the squad as he weighs a scant 150 pounds. His speed and scrap have earned him a reserve position on the team. His home is Harris.

GEORGE ANDERSON. A 210-pound reserve center from Avon, Conn. Veterans Lichter and Beyer have kept him out of the games this year, but he shows promise for next season.

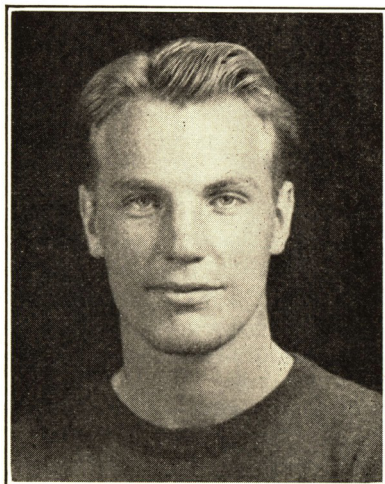

WILBER KROEGER. There are three red-headed guards on the Cyclone team. Kroeger is one of them, and is fighting hard for a steady job. He comes from Davenport.

LAWRENCE PINT. A 190-pound tackle from Pierce, Neb., with a lot of punch.

JOHN CATRON. Cowboy from Camp Crook, S. D. Catron is one of the most promising sophomores on the squad. Weighs 190 pounds, is 6 feet 2 inches tall and all iron. He plays tackle.

FRANK HOOD. Although a senior at Iowa State he never played football here before. He has overcome his lack of experience by hard work and is a regular first team end. He weighs about 185 pounds and is 6 feet 2 inches tall. He comes from Creston.

JOE ROACH. One of the hardest working players on the squad. Roach is from Patterson, weighs 185 pounds and is 6 feet 3 inches tall.

DICK GREFE

"CYCLONES CRUSH MISSOURI"

Iowa State Surprised Football World by a 20-0 Victory Over the Tigers in 1931 Homecoming Battle

THOUSANDS of Iowa State alumni in the stadium today will need only a suggestion to recall the last homecoming game played with Missouri in 1931. The superb performance of the Cyclones in that thrilling show is stamped indelibly in their minds and the slightest mention of the 20 to 0 Cyclone victory brings memories they cannot forget—Dick Grefe's many long runs, viscous blocking by the Cyclones, the age-old Statue of Liberty play, the great defensive work of Gordon Nagel, and that 45-yard dash by diminutive Kern Elerick for the final touchdown.

Then to awake the next morning to read of the surprising victory topped by banner headlines in newspapers of the Midwest—"Cyclones Crush Missouri," and stories predicting a rosy season for Iowa State.

Here are a few excerpts from one of those stories written by Sec Taylor of the Des Moines Register:

"Cyclone followers Saturday night were singing praises of their entire team and of Gordon Nagel and Richard Grefe particularly. . . . Nagel was here, there, everywhere the man with the ball was and was a standout on defense. Grefe was the Cyclone's main offensive threat, but of course he had excellent help from Ed Schafroth and Roger Bowen. . . .

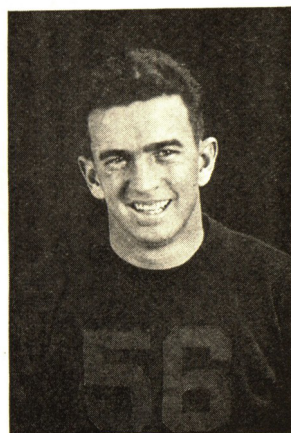

"The third touchdown came near the close of the final period when Kern Elerick, who had substituted for Grefe, squeezed through a hole over Missouri's right guard, cut out to his left, evaded a defensive halfback and completed a long run of 54 yards over the goal line without being further molested by hostile tacklers."

" . . . the stage was set for a scoring play. All the Iowa State forwards line up on the left side of their center, with three backs behind them and the fourth directly back of the snapper-back. This man was Bowen, who launched Michigan's famous Statue of Liberty play, by holding the ball up as if to pass, so that Grefe, running back of him, could grab it and circle around the weak side. . . . Grefe had to evade only one tackler as he sped to the goal line, the Cyclone blocking was so effective."

The Missourians were completely bewildered that day and compilation of statistics revealed that the Cyclones had gained 279 yards from rushing to the Tigers' 148, and earned 14 downs from scrimmage to Missouri's 8.

Last year the two teams battled to a scoreless tie on a muddy field at Columbia, with the Tigers holding the edge on statistics.

Scoring plays SCORE with SEAL-O-SAN

THE SCORING PLAY shown below, with its fast-breaking attack, requires a 100% non-slippery gym floor for its success.

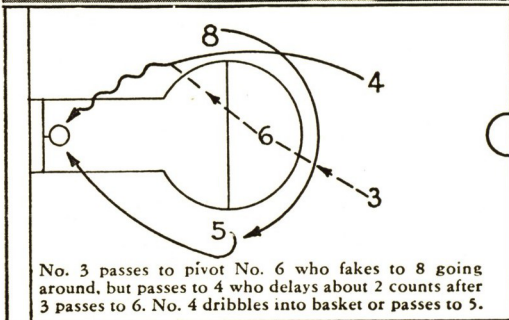

Your basketball team will play better, cleaner games and hang up a new scoring record, if your gymnasium floors this year are treated with Seal-O-San. It gives your athletes 100% sure-footing, prevents fluke plays and makes speedy floor work possible.

More than 2500 schools and universities are enthusiastic users of Seal-O-San. It is a perfect floor finish, easily applied by your own men, and easily maintained. It is far less costly than almost any other method of treating floors, yet results in a finer looking gymnasium and a playing surface that is absolutely non-slippery.

Write today for further information about Seal-O-San. Coaches are invited to send for our free Seal-O-San Scouting Manual—a very valuable coaching book. Now is the time to act—before the basketball season arrives.

STATEMENT

Some time ago the Federal Congress passed an act providing for a tax on admissions to athletic events, the tax being ten per cent (10%).

Attorney General Edward L. O'Connor has ruled that this tax does not apply to athletic contests and exhibitions of Iowa State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts. However, a test suit has been instituted by the government in West Virginia and pending the outcome of this suit, ten per cent (10%) will be paid to the government. If the court sustains Attorney General Edward L. O'Connor's position, then this ten per cent (10%) will be returned to the purchaser.

CYCLONE FRESHMEN PROMISING

IF ONE were to hang around the freshman football dressing room he would often hear the expression, "If a fellow lives through the freshman year he's a football player." Though not true to the letter this expression to a certain extent reflects the hard work required of the freshmen gridders. They must be out for practice every day, they are often "fodder" for the varsity, and they have no outside games to look forward to.

Their job is to familiarize themselves with varsity formations and style of playing used by the varsity, and improve themselves in the fundamentals of the game. But they have something to look forward to, and that, combined with their inhibited love for the game and competition keep them working hard. They look forward to winning a numeral and most of all to "making" the Cyclone varsity next year.

Freshman Coach Louis Menze expresses considerable satisfaction with his 1933 freshmen. Among the 48 members who survived the squad cut 2 weeks ago are 13 men who have won all-state honors.
