

ISU lesbian/gay/bisexual group to observe Coming Out Day

ADT 10-9-91

The Lesbian/Gay/Bisexual Alliance (LGBA), at Iowa State University, will be celebrating the fourth annual National Coming Out Day (NCOD) on Friday, Oct. 11.

NCOD is the one day of the year that gay, lesbian, bisexual persons and their supporters are asked to take a chance and come out as being gay or gay positive. This date was selected by the gay, lesbian and bisexual community to commemorate the 1977 march on Washington for gay and lesbian rights.

A rally will be held from noon to 1 p.m. on central campus, south of the Campanile, to give members of the gay, lesbian and bisexual community and their supporters an opportunity to share their views and feelings on coming out.
