The University is a separate world of contrasts, scholastic or non-scholastic;
competitive or non-competitive;
real or ideal. It is a pseudo-adult world where one's ideas and idiosyncrasies are perhaps more tolerated, accepted or ignored than in the real adult realm. Ours is a world of 15,000 faces, 15,000 viewpoints,
a handful of concrete ideas,
and a myriad of contrasts.

FEATURES

Serendipity Singers and a Thursday on Friday Fantasy

Features. The usual University-type action. Homecoming with Simon and Garfunkle. Campus Chest and Blast. Sigma Chi Derby Days and the pledges. Little International and the Milk Maid. Veishea and Camelot. Stan Getz and the Pozo-Seco Singers. Greek Week and Al Hirt. There was a new feature this year, though, an unscheduled University event. It was called Gentle Thursday, the big kids' Alice in Wonderland fantasy.

It all adds up to a break in the routine of the student.

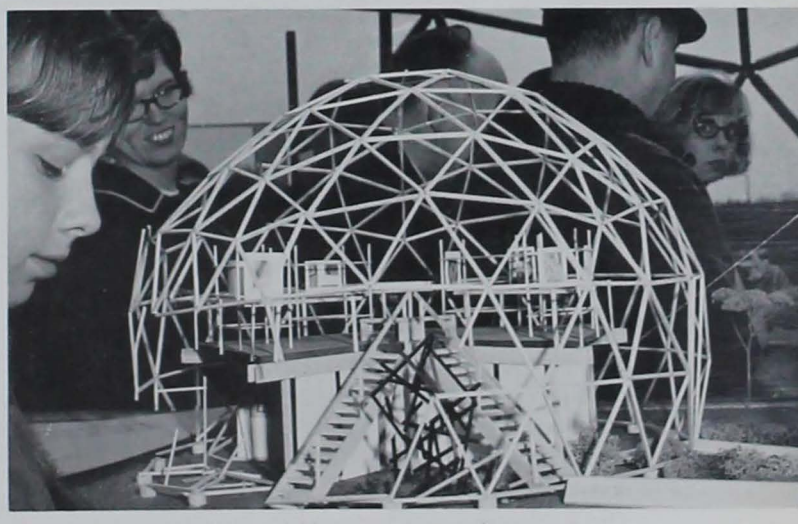
Happiness Is the Action Which Breaks the Routine

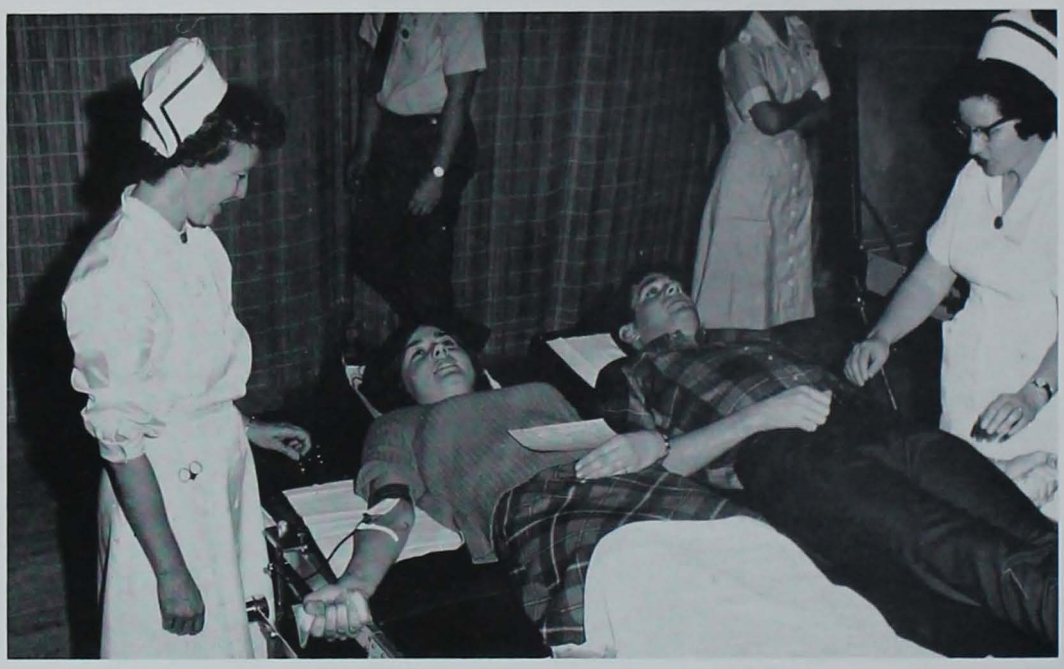
Spring quarter brings with it a sigh of relief. The long winter has passed, and most of us have survived. It's time for a metamorphosis. Books become scarce, girls look like girls again, woodsies are revived, the activities seem to overlap each other looking for enough time, and grades drop. No one cares. Try to capture what was lost or missed in the past season. The excitement is high, but disappears quickly and, like a manic-depression, it all ends with another final week.

And then there are those who can't afford matches.



Veishea is as big a thing to children as it is to students.

Greek Spirits Overcome Hitches in Greek Week Functions



Tradition is so deeply imbedded on this campus that few have the guts to depart from it. Greek Week is a tradition, and whether they'd want to or not, the Greeks kept it going.

This year Al Hirt and James Meredith headed the list of better-knowns on campus. Meredith, of course, spoke on the Negro-White relationships and the role of each. Hirt proved to everyone that there really is "honey in the horn."

Naturally, a good thing cannot come off without a few hitches and Greek Week is no exception. Olympics participants got a few more bumps and bruises than usual for their efforts, and blood donations dropped off by 127 pints. The "bad" Don Smith, inclement weather and five years of donations came in for the brunt of the blame. Theta Chis and ADPis, however, braved the elements and sent out 68 and 33 per cent of their houses to donate.

IOWA STATE UNIVERSITY
VEISHEA

Torch Tradition Perpetuated, Canoes Stay Intact

John Wayne started the genuine, imitation Olympic-type torch on its way this Veishea, Don Smith, track captain, not the other one, lit the permanent three-day torch on campus in opening the ceremony finale. Tradition perpetuated.

So did the canoe races, despite the threats of Lake LaVerne's murky depths. It's not surprising, though; typhoid shots haven't been outmoded as of yet.

There were few upsets, no paddles were broken, and the races met with more success than the ill-fated tug of war between the Knights of St. Patrick and Alpha Zeta. In other words, there were actually declared champs.

Construction Schedules Disappear; So Does Tyranny

The Tekes couldn't continue their tyranny, and the Sig Eps and Thetas proved the theory true.

Long abandoned construction schedules disappeared in the morass of papier maché. The Veishea parade was a chance to display the product of a year's planning and a night's work. Throngs of fearless Iowans enveloped this once "respectable" school to find the only open rebellion coming from the reviewing stand where the judges threw off the yoke of Teke tyranny and awarded the sweepstakes to the upstart Sig Eps and Thetas with their float "Man vs. Machine."

Getz Gets Little Acclaim, Pozo-Seco Saves Concert

Stan Getz, concert headliner, didn't make much of a hit this year, but, then, the headliner didn't make much of a hit last year, either, so the tradition remained. The redeeming factor for the concert was the Pozo-Seco Singers, a group little known but highly acclaimed by the audience as quite good. Strange that something new should be so readily accepted on this campus.

There's a lot of tradition surrounding Veishea, but this year there were departures.

One of the departures, which didn't turn out to be a departure after all, was an invitation to the KRNT theater in Des Moines. "Camelot" didn't make it to the theater, however, because of costs and the supposition that ticket sales on campus might be adversely affected. After all, why come to Veishea when you can stay in the "big city" and see the same thing. . . ?

Cindy Kemp Heinemeyer, Tom Calhoun and Norm Royce, along with cast and crew spent the better part of four months working, rehearsing and preparing for a weekend of mythical musical performances. Camelot is a musical, in case someone doesn't know, depicting the mythical world of King Arthur and his Knights of the Round Table . . . especially mythical for the balcony-sitters who probably only saw blops of color.

Summer School Is an Advantage With Disadvantages

There are advantages to summer school; advantages which are defined by the individual. For some, the advantages run to getting out of the alma mater a quarter or two early. For others it means making up for time lost for unknown reasons. And, for still others, it means an escape.

Whatever the reasons, summer school can be an advantage, an advantage flavored with disadvantages. There's things like not being able to cut classes as frequently as one would wish, and not being able to enjoy the luxury of lying around in the grass . . . soaking up the sun?

Fall Ushers in Groans and Anticipation for Students

September brings the inevitable groans to the upperclassmen and anticipation to the incoming freshmen.

It means the beginning of fall quarter. For the upperclassmen it ushers in all the frustrations, disappointments and work of classes. For the underclassmen it brings expectations of things that rarely seem to materialize . . . automatic success, recognition, and primarily, acceptance as an adult. The only thing that remains for many by the middle of November, is the recollection of new friends, experiences and a whole bunch of unheard-of rules.

'67 Campus Chest Attains $18,000 Goal

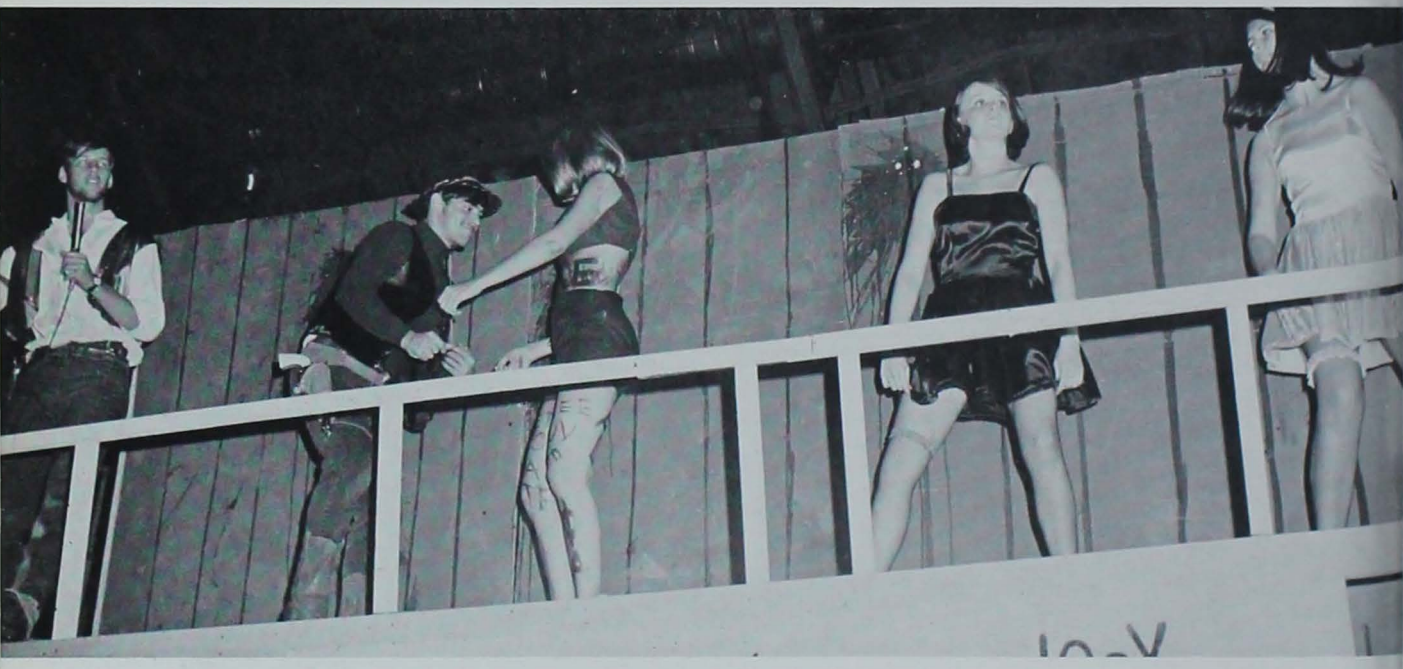
During a week of wild fund raising, Campus Chest worked toward its goal of $18,000, $2,000 above that attained last year.

For The Roudy Red Roup, which is North English and Irish for auction, over 29 groups put on skits and over 40 articles went on sale. The parties offered ranged from Polish Sewer and Tenth Victim to bridge for six to eight with Dr. Edwin Lewis and dinner for four at the Knoll with President Parks. What a chance to further better student faculty relations!

And then there was "Blast" or "Blast through Time" as it was officially called. Crowds packed the armory, and everywhere there was friendly jostling and elbowing to see just what all the booths were about.

Elbowing, Legs, and Pies Signify Spirit of Blast . . .



The idea of "The Naked Lady" booth seemed to attract many by-standers. But at Iowa State, everyone knew there had to be a catch to it!

And then there we the lines to get in! Fun seekers could choose from discotheques with go-go girls to barber shops with lathered baloons. The five Miss Legs finalists waited behind a swinging pendulum for those people brave enough to come in and cast their pennies. (Votes that is!) Sue Merkel had the legs the most people were willing to spend their pennies for.

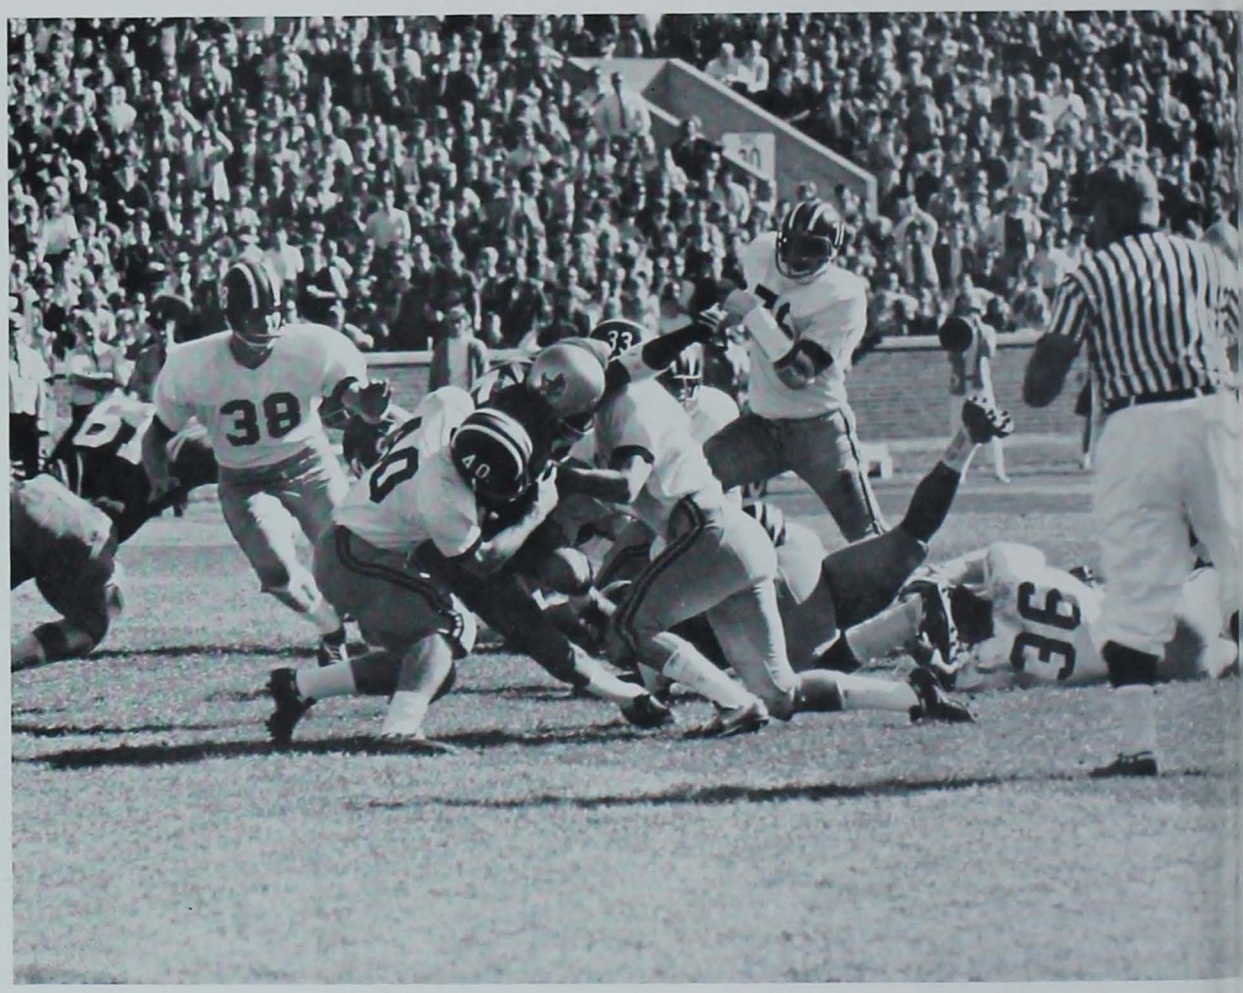
The first pie in the face does feel pretty bad! But after that first "distaste," its easy to really begin enjoying things!

Mizzou Tigers Deliver Homecoming Defeat



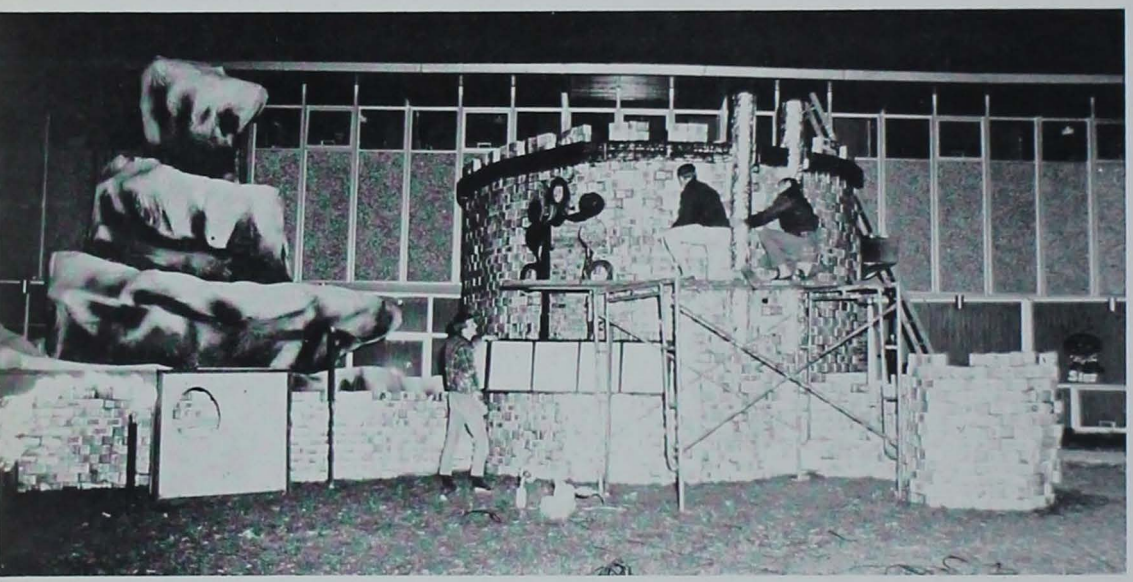
Something new but designed to become a tradition was added to Homecoming '67—a monument erected on the southwest bank of the hill between Alumni Hall and Friley Hall. This fall the residences chosen to erect the monument were Delta Chi and Alpha Gamma Delta.

Other lawn displays were their usual flamboyant selves with Sigma Chi winning the competition with its huge castle of milk cartons!

Pep Bar-B-Que and Yell-Like Hell were combined this year under the guidance of an Iowa State Athlete of the 30's, Fred Poole. There was a lot of soft shoe amongst the yelling that night!

Jill Trousdale was selected Homecoming Queen for 1967 from an original field of 70 applicants.

Sigma Chi Display Wins With Milk Cartons



Competition was also heavy for naming the Little Cy, the off-spring of a secret marriage between Cy and the former Suzy Snapper Hawk. But despite the spirit and effort of Homecoming preparations, the Cyclones "had a Tiger by the tail" and couldn't overcome the power of the University of Missouri.

Jill Trousdale made a lovely queen, however, and later that night Simon and Garfunkel sang their songs of alienation, loneliness, and lack of communication to an enthusiastic audience in the Armory.

Belly Dancers and Sex Lectures Bring Culture to Campus

Cosmopolitan Club which is designed to further better relations and communications between people of all nationalities, celebrated its 60th anniversary on campus, November 2–4. The club held a Cosmo Queen contest from which the winner Suzette Moore is eligible for Veishea Queen of Queens.

"Sex and Selfhood", the first social problems institute sponsored by YW-YMCA and the University Lectures Committee, raised much controversy upon our supposedly "staid" campus.

Robeless Engineers Prepare for Annual Ag. Bath in LaVerne

Sale of "Try It" buttons began 1967's Engineers' Week— a fitting sequel to "Do It" and "Love It."

But then the Knights of St. Patrick and Engineers' Week central committee challenged Alpha Zeta, Ag honorary, to a tug of war—hopefully, of course, to be held in front of Shakey's Pizza Parlor.

Engineers Say 'Try It'!

It seems, however, that the Knights of St. Patrick pledges were missing their green and white robes. During preparations for the tug of war, who do you think were wearing the robes? You guessed it! The Angies! Sue Fitzsimmons was selected as Engineers' Week Queen.

At Iowa State's Ratskeller, students and special beginning young entertainers perform to appreciative audiences. Folk and traditional music dominate the program.

Students Fire-up for Winter Quarter and Top Basketball

This was an exciting basketball year for Iowa State, with some tense moments. . . .

And some times when students forgot their apathy and cheered wildly together!

With Christmas break just two weeks away, it was hard to begin studying for winter quarter! How easy it was to put off assignments till we got home! But its odd what a scramble of studying there was the night before classes began again in January.

And once again, up came the snowfences. Students still walked on the snow-covered grass, but they couldn't go exactly as they wished to. The question is whether Iowa State needs new sidewalks to follow the diagonal paths or whether the students are just averse to walking on sidewalks.

Miriam Makeba Highlights Series on Africa

The second annual Institute on World Affairs presented "Emerging Africa: Social Change in Sub-Saharan Africa."

The program brought eight visiting lectures, a display of primitive art in the Gallery of the Memorial Union, and a concert by Miriam Makeba, African folk singing artist, to Iowa State.

Last year's institute focused on China.

Varieties '68 Creates New Image for Itself

Flash acts for Varieties ranged widely from singers to shadow figures behind screens to tap dancer Julie Sartor, here, second runner-up.

Varieties '68 brought Off-Broadway performances to the Iowa State stage, which as the Daily put it, "is as about as far off Broadway as one could get."

Skits in Varieties, however, seemed headed in an entirely new direction. Gone was the wild slapstick humor with its accompanying gross remarks. Instead, skits seemed to appreciate the use of subtle humor and meaningful messages.

The original idea for Varieties came from a weekly student-faculty talent show begun in 1933. Varieties today—What a difference!

'Rhythm of Life' Wins Varieties

"Rhythm of Life" by Alpha Gamma Delta and Sigma Chi was the winning skit which dealt with life in a "Big Daddy" world of the future. With psychedelic lighting and robot-like persons, they convinced the audience of the dire possibilities for the future.

Philip Traum and Brothers, all from Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, presented the winning flash act which showed the horrors of our modern world through the use of a silk screen and psychedelic effects.

The second place skit, "Spanky and our Gang", by Kappa Alpha Theta and Delta Tau Delta, however, contained no meaningful message but was in good, clean fun.

It would appear that the critics have won out and that Varieties is becoming a more serious and meaningful student presentation.

Wanda Roden, first runner-up in Varieties flash acts, sang a romantic trio of songs "Where am I going?", "Him", and "If he walked into my life."

Meaningful Messages Replace Traditionally Gross Skits

"Spanky and Our Gang" with Kappa Alpha Theta and Delta Tau Delta was light and funny, the only Varieties' finalist with no message other than that of good fun.

What is winter quarter at Iowa State? Is it co-eds in over-the knee socks, bundled up against the cold of Central Campus? Or snow fences and in spite of them paths through the snow worn by students and their shortcuts?

Perhaps it is fireside singing and long talks indoors; or toboggan parties with hot cocoa or ice skating on Lake LaVerne.

To some it means fun and participation in winter activities, perhaps memories of Christmas tree lights on Central Campus shining through the night mist. To others it is only a long, cold and dreary trudge towards Spring!

18th Annual Barjche Held

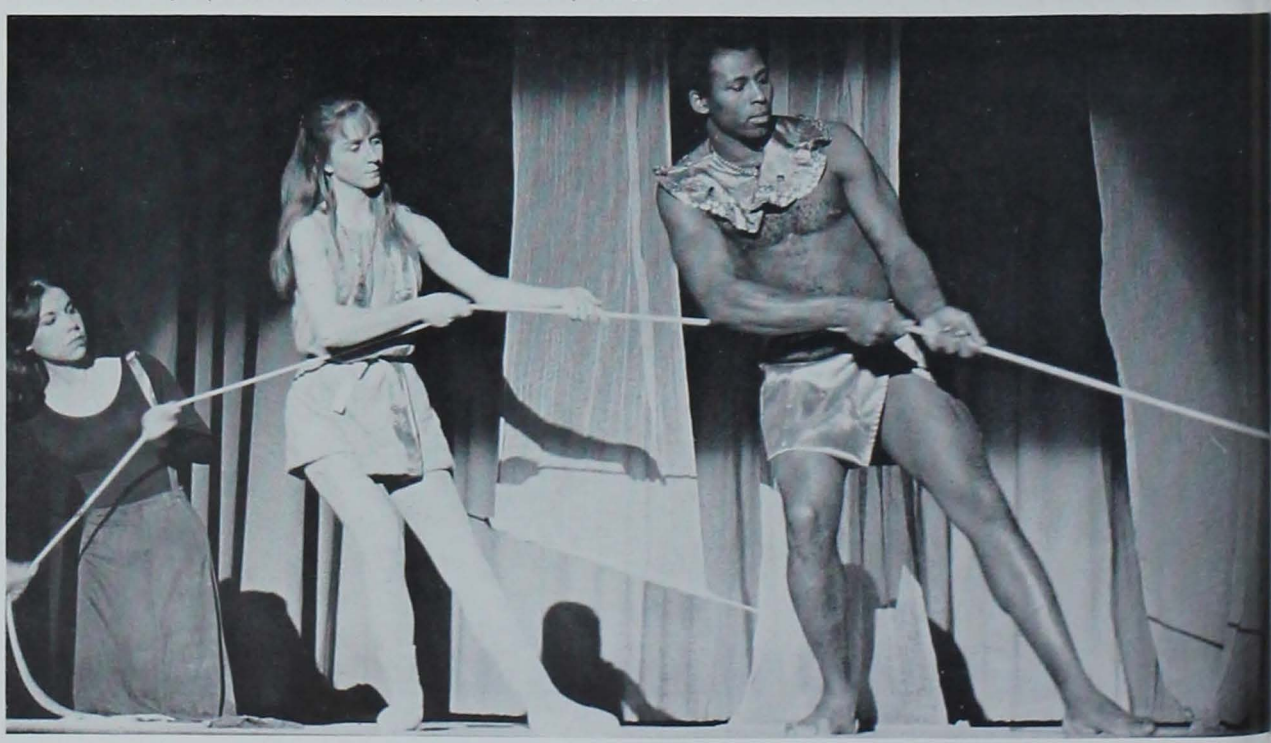
Barjche '67, Iowa State's 18th annual modern dance presentation, was handled entirely by students.

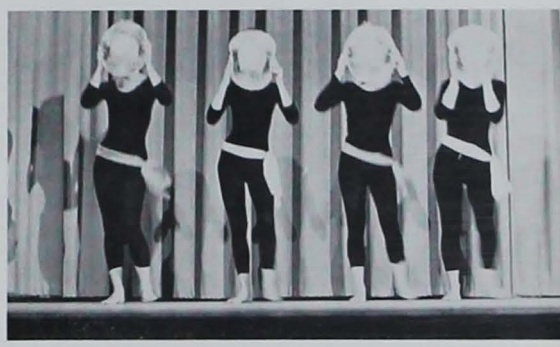
Members of Orchesis prepared all choreography, stage designs, costumes, and programs. But Barjche was not sponsored by just dancing enthusiasts.

Among its participants were Don Graves, ISU football player, and Don Timmerman, ISU Track.

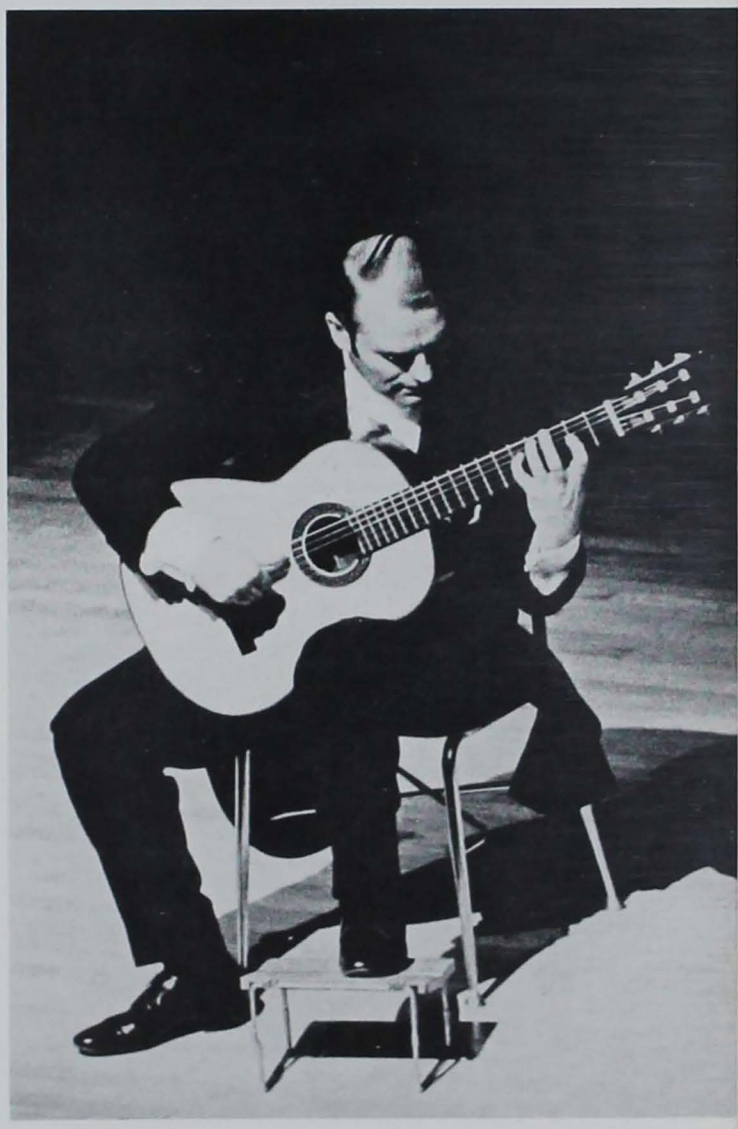
Selections in Barjche ranged from "Labyrinth of the Mind", a study of the Greek myths to an audience favorite "Mitosis."

The origin of the word Barjche actually comes from the names of the modern dance group's first officers; Barbra, Jean, Charlotte, and Jean.





In "Four Dances" traditional dance forms were set to electronic music with irregular rhythm. Can you imagine a waltz not in ¾?



ARTS

A Diverse Focus Program Attempts To Reach All Interests

Focus, ISU's annual spring festival highlighting arts and humanities, presented a little something for everyone.

Iowa State was visited by a Chinese opera group from the University of Iowa, a theatrical fencing expert, and actor Philip Burton, father of Richard Burton, to name just a few.

The men's and women's national music fraternities also presented "Crescendo", a new focus event featuring American music.

Focus events were described as well balanced and so varied that it was hard to call one event outstanding.

The Focus program included an art exhibit and accompanying lecture.

Eric Hawkins Dance Company presented his unique approach to modern dance.

London Royal Philharmonic Orchestra Featured I.S.U. Cellist

Iowa State welcomed a visit from the London Royal Philharmonic Orchestra. The orchestra was formed 21 years ago and has since then played in countries throughout the world.

As a special feature of the concert, Iowa State's Cellist in Residence, Prof. Frantisek Smetana, was featured as a soloist.

Smetana, a native of Czechoslovakia, was invited to play by orchestra conductor Vaclav Neumann who is a native Czech also and a good friend of Smetana.

Ferrante and Teicher, skilled duo at the piano, entertained Iowa State students and their families for the annual Parents' Weekend concert.

A large crowd listened as Ferrante and Teicher played and wisecracked their way through the evening's performance.

Students had the chance this fall to hear the Norman Luboff Choir in concert.

Artists Concert Series presented this event free to all Iowa State students.

The Iowa State Singers

The performing activities of the 62 member Iowa State Singers have been expanded to a full week's tour, recording projects, and performance at the Christmas Festival of Music.

The group, conducted by Dr. W. Douglas Pritchard, toured four states with performances in Chicago, Milwaukee, and St. Louis.

The tour ended with a home concert in the armory before a record turnout.

In 1967 Iowa State Singers used the Davenport Masonic Temple for cutting a special album.

Practice is sometimes informal but never taken lightly. A small group often gets together for a quick session around the piano.

The Singers spent much time preparing their program of German Baroque and Contemporary Scandinavian Choral music and traditional folk songs and spirituals.

Students capable of advanced study and interested in small ensemble music make up Iowa State's Chamber Singers.

The group under the direction of Richard Koupal sings chamber ensemble music, both ancient and modern. During the past year, the Chamber Singers performed for the Iowa Bankers' Convention in Des Moines.

They also participated in the Madrigal Dinner and Musica Antiqua, a program of music from the court of Frederick the Great of Prussia.

Song practice became a common and accepted thing in dormitories and sororities during Spring '67.

The girls were preparing for Sor-Dor, the annual singing competition between women's residences.

This year was a triumph for the dormitories as Welch Hall took first place, closely followed by Birch and Roberts.

Symphonic Band Tours Mid-West

The empty chairs surrounding the saxophone player may be indicative of his musical abilities.

Entertainment is provided for Iowa State Students by the five bands on campus. The marching band, Varsity band, symphonic band, stage band, and basketball band, participate in a variety of events.

Present at all our home football games are the 120 male members of the marching band along with the five twirlers, headed by Miss Cookie Richards, and two bell players. This year the band traveled to Kansas at Migration and will march in the Veishea parade. The band plays original music arranged by James (Red) McCloud.

A select group of 55 band men is chosen from the marching group to play in the basketball band. Performing at all home basketball games as well as a few wrestling meets, the members must compete for a position.

Symphonic band is composed of seventy-five members. They toured South Dakota, Nebraska, and Iowa in five days, presenting over nine concerts. The stage band, commonly known as "lab band" is working in the field of experimental music. The fifteen members create and play variation of modern jazz. Providing "listening" music for its audiences is the varsity or concert band. Annually the groups give a spring concert. All of the bands working together make ISU a more cultural and enjoyable place.

After a successful tour through the Mid-West, the band climaxed its performances by a concert with The New York Brass Quintet in the Armory.

'The Servant of Two Masters' Features the Unconventional

The Servant of Two Masters, a light farce by Carlo Goldoni, was produced by Laboratory Theatre, during fall quarter.

The play was unconventional from the beginning and involved changing an old play to one with overtones of today's "Mod Style."

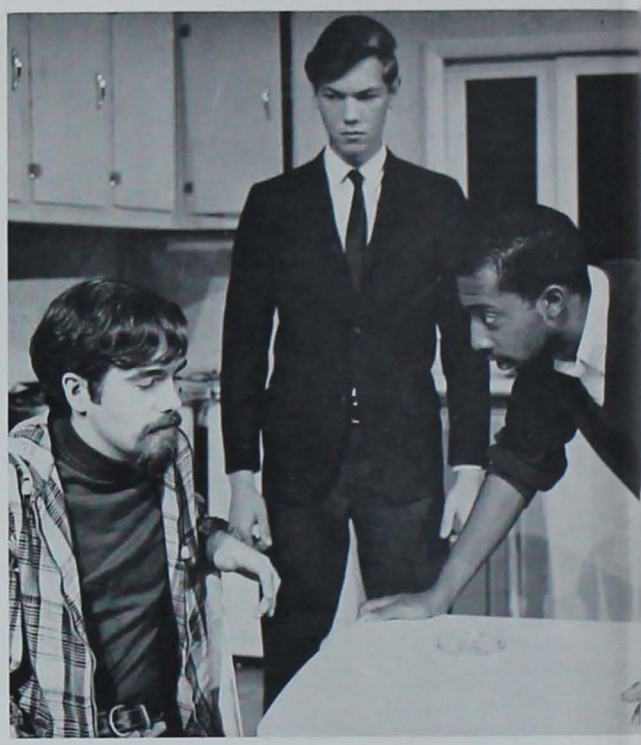
The curtains never closed, and actors would rapidly strike and reset the stage to appropriate music between scenes.

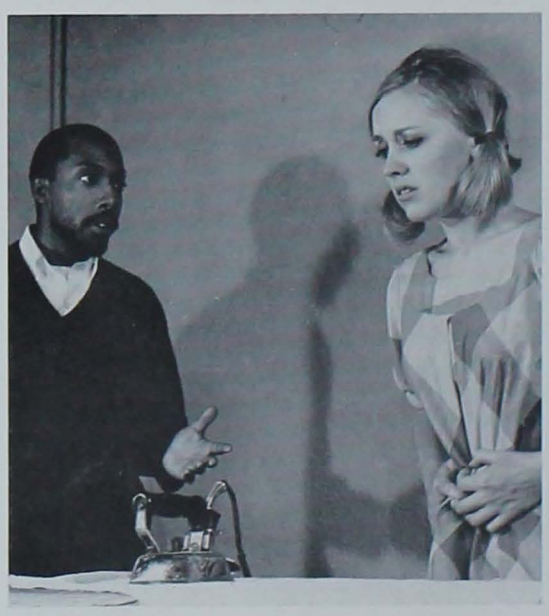
Much was done with unusual sound effects and exaggerated acting.

'Charlie' Involves Todays Special Problems

My Sweet Charlie by David Westheimer, author of Von Ryan's Express, was a production of Iowa State Players. The play's two main characters were a white girl hiding and illegitimately pregnant and a negro wanted for murder.

From being unable to understand or trust each other, they eventually began to truly communicate. The communication came to no permanent good, however, as "Charlie" was shot while attempting to summon a doctor.



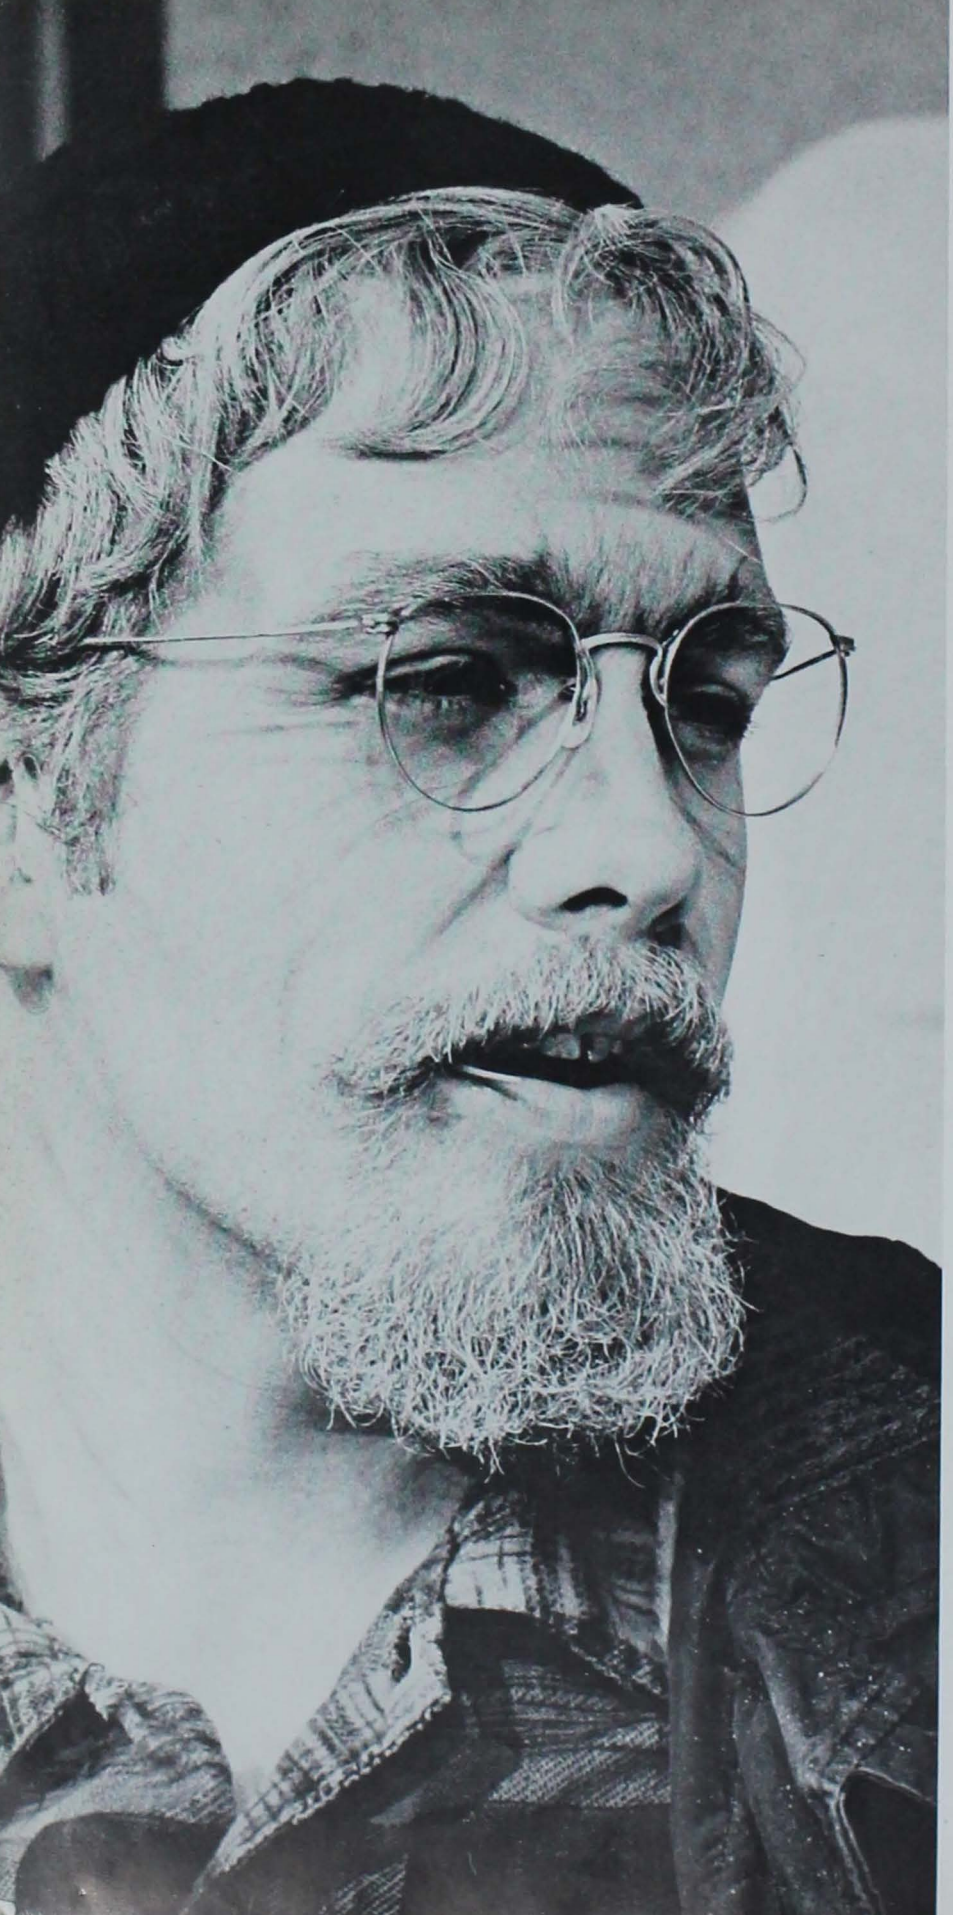


'Tartuffe' Is Commentary on Religious Hypocrisy

Moliere's famous play, "Tartuffe" was presented February 8 through 10 by the Iowa State University Players.

Directed by Thomas Johnson, English, the play was presented in it's original form—as a biting comment on the religious hypocrisy of the times.

In the play Tartuffe, played by William Page, attempts to fool a wealthy Frenchman out of his money and eventually is made his heir. When Tartuffe is discovered making advances toward the man's wife, his plot is discovered.



QUEENS

A University would hardly be a University without its share of campus queens. They come in all shapes, sizes, in varying degrees of beauty, and for all kinds of activities, be they Engineer's Week or Homecoming. It matters not: A queen is a queen is a queen.

ADMINISTRATION

Governor Hughes Now Completing Third Term

Harold E. Hughes, Governor of Iowa, is now completing his third term. Hughes rose to executive capacity in the Iowa trucking industry, was elected to the Iowa State Commerce Commission in 1958, and then was elected Governor in 1963.

Members of the State Board of Regents are appointed by Governor Hughes to six-year terms. The board administers the three state institutions of higher learning; Iowa State University, University of Iowa, and University of Northern Iowa. It also has charge of the Iowa Braille and Sight-Saving School and the Iowa School for the Deaf.

President Robert Parks Continues Reorganization

President Robert Parks became president of Iowa State University on July 1, 1965. Previously he had been professor of government, dean of instruction, and vice-president of academic affairs. He received his B.A. degree from Berea College in 1937, the M.A. from the University of Kentucky in 1938, and the PhD. from the University of Wisconsin in 1948. Pres. Parks also has an honorary doctor of laws degree from Berea.

During the third year of his administration, President Parks continued his reorganization of various aspects of University operations. A major undertaking was the establishment of the office of Vice President for Student Affairs and the appointment of a University Council on Student Affairs. The council, composed of faculty members and students, advises and aids the vice president.

Wayne R. Moore
Vice President for Business and Finance

George C. Christiansen

Office of Information and Development Is Added

Working closely with the President are the six men directly under him in the ISU administration. As vice-president for academic affairs, George C. Christensen has the final say about the curriculum in the various colleges. Wayne R. Moore, vice-president of Business and Research controls the purse strings for the incoming and outgoing university funds, hopefully keeping a delicate balance between the two. Directing the graduate college with its fine reputation is the vice-president for research, J. Boyd Page. Student affairs is headed by vice-president W. L. Layton whose primary purpose is keeping the students happy but challenged. A newly created office this year was the vice-president for information and development headed by Carl Hamilton. This office issues public information about the university as well as the many alumni affairs.

Carl Hamilton
Vice President for Public Information

Arthur M. Gowan
Dean of Admission and Records

J. Boyd Page
Vice President for Research

Dean of Students Is Concerned With the Individual

The Dean of Students Office's primary concern is with the individual development and welfare of each student at Iowa State University. It is the goal of this office to assist students in their total education at the university, through counseling of individuals and advising and supervising student organizations and activities.

All policies concerning students ultimately pass through this office which was under the direction of Dr. Eugene Robinson this past year. He is known and admired for his open-minded student centered approach.

GSB Moves Forward With First Female President

Having lost the leadership of its bearded president, Don Smith, Government of the Student Body moved jerkily forward with its first woman president. Mary Lou Lifka described herself as being "less spectacular than Smith because he did something before he became frustrated. I became frustrated before I did anything."

GSB did accomplish much, however, in spite of the cross purposes between its administration and senate. The pass-fail grading system became a reality, and through the Xoby-In the administration made a real attempt to communicate with students.

Through GSB Pass-Fail System Becomes a Reality

Many actions, however, brought complaints that GSB was overstepping its responsibilities. At one point, GSB censored President Robert Parks for alleged editorialship of the "Sex and Selfhood" lectures, and at another time GSB issued a resolution demanding immediate return of the U.S.S. Pueblo which was captured by North Korea.

With Spring '68 came a less controversial administration under Denny Forsyth and Bill Gilbert. Action has been swift with several major bills including one to set up a GSB draft council being passed within the first few weeks of business.

Residence Department Plans For Future Expansion

The Central Staff of the Department of Residence is responsible for the different sections of the department including accounting, assignments and contracts, maintenance and custodial services, food service, food stores, student government and Head Resident programming, and general overall management.

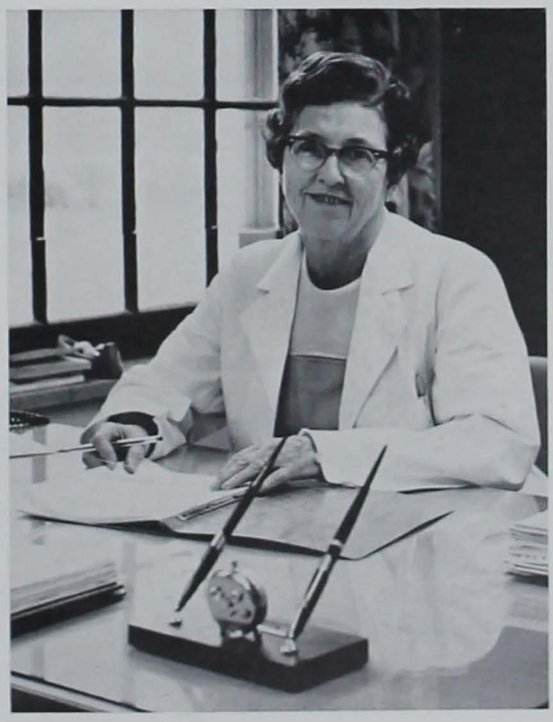
The department can presently accommodate 7,000 single students in Residence Halls and 1,164 families in married student apartments.

Additional facilities are under construction for 1,126 single students and 200 families.

Extensive Remodeling Improves Hospital Service

Dr. Gail Proffitt, director of the University Hospital, said that campus furor over single girls and "the pill" brought no significant increase in its demand. "Its still just in demand by the married students," she explained.

The hospital building, itself, underwent a great change, however, when extensive remodeling resulted in an improved X-ray department, lab, pharmacy, business office, and doctors' space.



ATHLETICS

Stapleton Concludes Ten Year Coaching Stint

As the 1967 season came to a close for Iowa State football players thus ended a ten year coaching career here for Clay Stapleton. From playing guard at Tennessee, graduating in 1948, to coaching at Wofford, Wyoming, Oregon State, and finally Iowa State, Clay has been the general of the football forces under him.

Les runs into the "brick wall", a typical and effective weapon used against us this year.

Compiling a 42–52–4 record, Clay's supremacy is shown in his great mastery of teaching the fundamentals. Basic as they are, they form the foundation upon which professionals are built, and he has formed many; Nichols, Barney, Van Galder, Carwell, Strachan, Hoppman, Vaughn, Watkins, to name only a few.

Upon moving into his new position as athletic director a new emphasis on football can be seen for the future. John Majors and a "new breed" have taken over the football generalship. With them, speed and agility rather than size will be the emphasis, and conditioning the only means by which to procure it.

The 1967 team had some highlights and outstanding performers, even though suffering a 2–8 season. Completely outclassed in the first two games, the team bounced back with an impressive 17–12 win over New Mexico. Colorado, highly rated and with a young team smashed our "streak" with a 34–0 win.

Not to be slighted again, the team bounced back with a 17–0 win over Kansas State. After this game we knew that we could score and did, but not enough to handle Missouri or Kansas as they beat us 23–7 and 28–14 respectively.

The next game was with Nebraska, big, powerful, highly ranked, and leading the conference in almost all categories. We played them muscle for muscle through three quarters but they scored where we had failed and we lost 12–0.

Our spirits dampened, and with two powerful teams still to face, we fell prey to them also—Oklahoma 52–14 and Oklahoma State 28–14.

So ended a desperate season with memories of sweat, muscle, and determination embedded in the minds of many.

Jim Doran and Eppie Barney in career catches and total yards.

On the defensive side, Willie Muldrew has been ranked along with All-Americans Liggens of O.U. and Maylin of Neb. His final season should bestow many honors on him and his team.

Iowa State Basketball Fans Will Remember Don Smith

"Sky, and the amazing sophs." as they were sometimes referred to, made Iowa States basketball team one of the best in recent years and a promising future looks likely. Not picked to even be near the top of the ladder, especially after their last place finish in the pre-season tournament, the cyclones rallied to the occassion time after time and finished third in the conference race. Only in the last week was Iowa State eliminated from the title contention.

The best example of the team's determination was shown at Lincoln when the roundballers pulled a 93–92 upset over the Huskers who, the previous night, had smashed eventual champion

Led by consistent performances from Mike Houck, Ernest Lindley, Ken Gallagher and seniors Terry Cline and Al Simpson, the team compiled a 2–2 dual record and a fifth place finish in the conference meet. The experience gained by this young team plus an excellent freshman team should give the Cyclone harriers an even stronger team next year.

Sophomore Dan Gable proved himself the perfectionist he was touted to be in gaining a first in both the conference and national tournaments. Along with him Dale Bahr and Reg Wicks 'took national titles in their respective weights. In Big Eight action Jim Duschen and Mike Schmauss took titles along with Gable. This team follows a rebuilding year and shows what careful selection of recruits, good coaching, and plain old muscle and guts can achieve.

Hockey Team Wins Iowa Hockey Tourney

With his eyes glued on the puck, the goalie needs lightning-fast reflexes and plenty of protection to stop it if he should miss.

In its third year as a recognized university club the Hockey Club has had its best year ever. As an athletic club it consists of anyone interested in the sport of hockey and strives to provide an opportunity for its twenty-five members to enjoy and learn about hockey. The squad played a seventeen game schedule during the 1967–1968 season and compiled a record of 11 wins and 6 losses. Included in the schedule was the first annual Iowa Collegeiate Hockey Tournament, which the I.S.U. club sponsored and won. The club also conducted a campus poll on skating facilities and won an Executive Budgetary Commission allocation to build a pleasure skating area and hockey rink with natural ice behind Beyer Hall. E.B.C. also alloted the club money to purchase complete uniforms. To further expand its budget, the club held several money making projects such as selling Veishea programs, selling tickets to a double-header hockey game featuring the Des Moines Oak Leafs in the first game and the I.S.U. Hockey Club in the second game, and a Veishea concession stand.

Even the upside-down world of a gymnast requires stamina and form.

The lack of depth in key positions impaired the 1968 Cyclone gymnastics team from finishing higher than ninth in the nation. They did excellent in the Big Eight, however, by finishing second behind Colorado in the Conference meet. Led by outstanding performances from Mike Jacki, Ward Meythaler, and Tim Clarke the squad posted a 6–4 dual meet season record against tough opponents. Jacki set a record in the Conference meet by winning three gold medals, and he finished fourth in the nation on the rings. Also placing at the national meet were Meythaler, seventh place on the rings, and Clarke, eighth place on the trampoline. Although several outstanding men from this year's squad will be graduated, Coach Ed Gagnier is very optimistic about next year's team. A highly rated freshman squad and excellent recruiting, coupled with a good nucleus from this year's team, should give the Cyclones the makings of another championship team.

ISU Swimmers Finish Second in Big 8 Meet

The 1967–68 season was another excellent year for the ISU swimmers. Not only did they post an 11–1 dual meet record, but they set almost every ISU record this year as they worked their way through the season finishing with an 11–1 dual meet record. The outstanding performances by Dave Rathke, Steve Strauss, John Westensee, Bruce Lechler, and Jim Cotsworth, throughout the season, led to a second place finish at the Big 8 Conference Meet and a 23rd place finish nationally. Although six men are graduating, Coach Jack McGuire will have a fine nucleus and a good freshman team which might be another championship team for ISU.

Cellar Seen by Cyclones for First Time in 30 Years

The year 1967 was not for Cyclone supremacy in Big Eight baseball. Lack of hitting strength and a week defense led to the downfall of the Iowa State diamond men. Finishing in the conference cellar for the first time in Coach Timm's 30 years as head coach. Iowa State completed the season with a 10–19 record. As usual, bad breaks and bad weather plagued the squad. One bright spot of the season was the selection of outfielder Steve Gerlach to the NCAA all-district and all Big Eight teams as a sophomore.

Track Team Finishes Sixth in Conference

The ISU track squad had fine team performance and many outstanding individual efforts this season. The team's best showing was at the Corn Palace Relays where they won five relays and two other individual events. Probably the outstanding individual on the squad was Steve Carson who took first place in the indoor 600 yard dash at three meets; Big Eight, National Federation, and NCAA. Outdoors, he placed first in the 440 yard dash at the Big Eight and National Federation meets, and second at the NCAA meet. Other standouts which helped the team take a sixth place finish at the conference meet were Harry Alley, John Wagner, John Dvorak, and Mike Houck.

The Iowa State Cyclone Internationals kicked and butted their way to a 3–2 record during the 1968 season. This was done in the midst of several great teams in the midwest such as Carleton and Omaha. The soccer team was formed in 1960 and since has grown to a true melting pot of all nationalities. Only one American is presently on the squad. President Tossos said he wished more people would try out for the team as their reserves were dwindling and were especially needed on road games. This year's team did well considering their small numbers with standouts such as Savas Tumer and Samil Sermet, Steve Torvik, and Androneko. The highlight of the season would have to be the United Nations game in which we beat Minnesota and helped finance Iowa State's United Nations.

Under a new coach but still hampered by a late winter the Iowa State golf team posted an impressive record. Coach Jack McGuire's linksters broke both Parsons and Southern Illinois undefeated strings and rolled up a fifth place finish in the Big Eight meet.

With this finish came an individual honor as senior John Hurst took medalist honors. A new award, the Bob Lamson award to be given to the medalist in the conference tournament, was given to John for his fine performance.

The coming season puts Marshall Victor as the captain of the team with junior Jim Lockwood in the probable number one position. With all but one returning letterman the coming season looks very optimistic.

In addition to this the cheerleaders at ISU held a cheer clinic for high school students, attended athletic social events, and helped the coaches recruit athletes for next year.

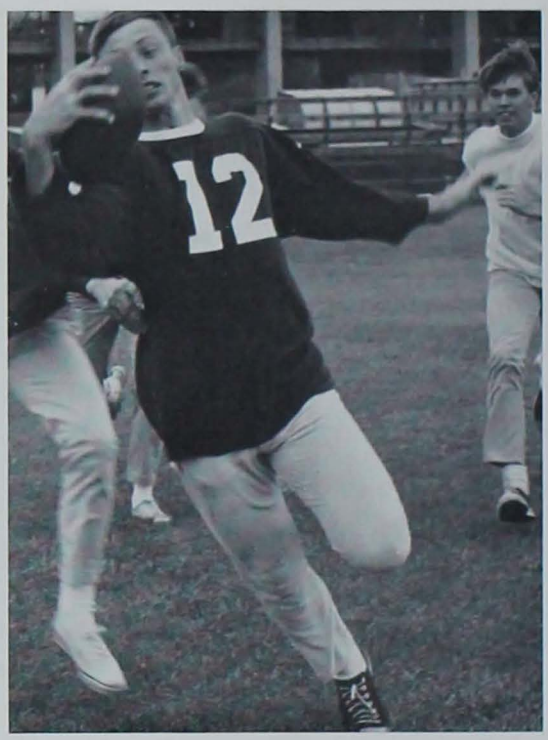
Five New Sports Added to Intramural Competition



Men's intramurals is growing fast on the Iowa State campus. This year five new sports were added to the already long roster of sports. These were such things as water polo and trap shooting.

The men ran into some weather problems this year such as having to play softball in 40 degree weather and football in a blinding snow storm. The Turkey trot had some excitement when the second place prize flew away. If you should happen to spot a loose pheasant please contact someone about it.

Each year a winner of the over all intramurals is selected for both the Greeks and the MRA. Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Lauden House were winners this year. Recipients of the outstanding managers were Charles Cummings, Pi Kappa Phi and Rick Kuhling, Kimbel House.

Greek Community Notes Progress

Progress has been the keynote of the Greek community at Iowa State. By re-evaluating the past the Greeks have tried to relate their traditions to the changing society of today.

On this basis many changes have taken place during the past year throughout the entire Greek system. These changes have come about slowly and still have not been completed. Changes were in the area of physical facilities and in Greek thinking.

As for the future no one knows, but to survive the Greeks must progress as the University does.

Like many houses, the FiJi's and Gamma Phi's combined to hold a service project for the underprivileged children from the Roadside Settlement House.

What does the Greek system at Iowa State have to offer? Thousands of new students face this question each year. Is it important that Greeks provide 80 per cent of the leaders in All-University activities? Is it important that the Greek system emphasizes service with houses working individually on service projects or together on such projects as the Greek Week Blood Drive which netted over 1000 pints of blood?

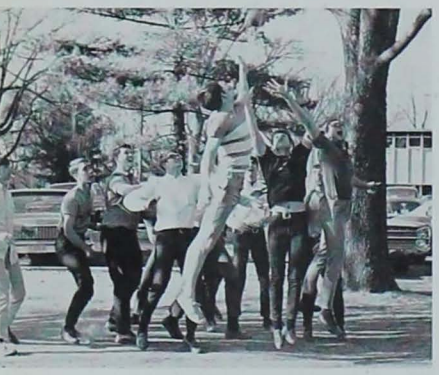
Or is it important that Greeks emphasize the fun and learning that come from living and working with a closely knit group? Brothers and sisters as they call themselves.

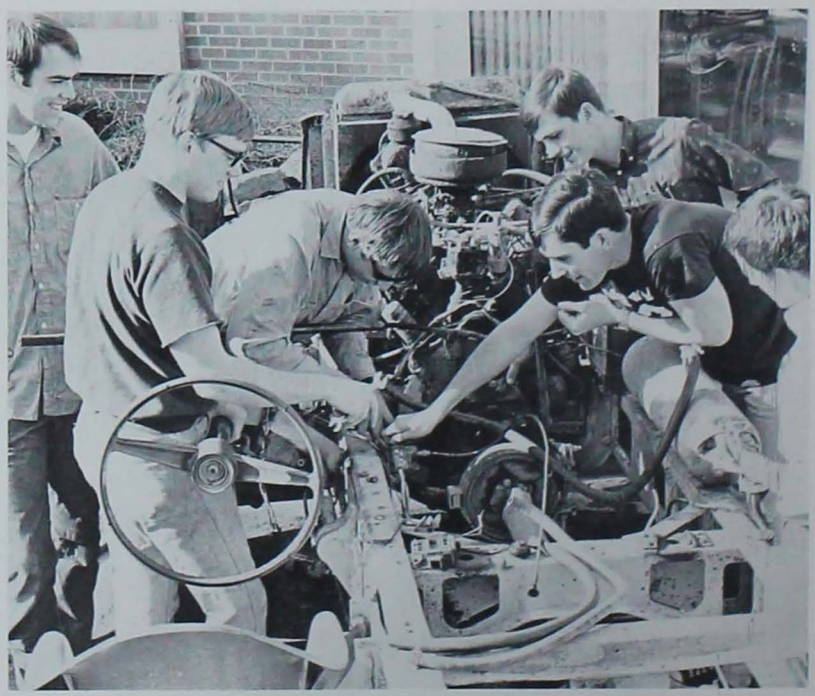
Others may say that the Greek system wastes much time with its required activities and functions or that people are better off independant with responsibilities and obligations only to themselves. Well they may be right, but they'll never convince a Greek!

After cocoa and cookies, Santa appeared and presented the children with presents.

Greek System Offers Programs to Meet All Interests

When spring arrives song practices sometimes turn to an impromptu serenade for a photographer.





In addition to being both work and a lot of fun, events such as Veishea give the houses as well as the system a chance to show what a close knit group can accomplish.

Gamma Gamma

A maximum of one per cent of the Greeks on campus are eligible to be tapped for Gamma Gamma. Gamma Gamma is a Greek honorary open to juniors and seniors. Members are tapped on the bases of service to their chapter, the University and the Greek system. Members were tapped this year during the kickoff of Greek Week. ISU boasts the first chapter of Gamma Gamma. Since its inception in 1957 at least three other chapters have been founded on other campuses and more are expected soon.

KIFC

After a relatively short existence the Greek radio station KIFC died this winter. The station was owned and operated by the Inter-Fraternity council and broadcast to all of the Greek houses.

KIFC had a staff of approximately 40–50 people. The reasons given for the abandonment of the station were a lack of responsible workers and a lack of money.

Panhellenic Executive Board

The Panhellenic Executive Board's main project this year has been to re-evaluate the position of the Greek women at Iowa State. In doing so several changes have been made. The New colonization policy has been changed and a new colony, Alpha Omicron Pi was established. The Foreign Students program has been enlarged. Also the board itself was reorganized to facilitate easier and more efficient administration.

The board voted to again recognize Kappa Delta and Sigma Kappa and also sponsored a service project for underprivileged students in South America. Money was raised by the sororities to send these students to summer camp.

Panhellenic Council

Panhellenic Council, composed of two representatives from each sorority, governs and directs the sorority system. This year, Panhel conducted a successful fund drive for Campo Allegre, a children's camp in Peru. The group also held dinner exchanges among the sororities to further better and closer relationships among them.

Junior Panhellenic Council

Junior Panhellenic is the pledge council to the Panhellenic council. The members of the council are encouraged to play an active part in the Panhellenic program. The council sponsors various social activities such as overnight pledge exchanges, breakfasts, and dinner exchanges. This year the members also worked for the Easter Seal society and sold lillies.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

The achievements of Alpha Chi Omega look pretty good on paper.

Last spring the girls worked hard and long on a Veishea float with Beta Theta Pi. Unfortunately they didn't win anything. They ended the year with an annual formal, "Stairway to the Stars," and started this year by winning Sweepstakes at Blast with a booth featuring a psychedelic theme and the help of Lambda Chi Alpha. The girls went on to capture the women's division of Homecoming's Yell-Like-Hell contest.

The party end of the year featured Haight Ashbury and Mardi Gras. As a part of their service work, the Alpha Chis adopted a Korean War orphan.

ALPHA DELTA PI

Fall quarter brought a complete transfiguration of the ADPi house. Trees were chopped down, the lawn was ripped up, holes were dug and beams began raising. The ADIi's new addition brought the promise of more study rooms, typing rooms, lounges and a chapter meeting room.

In spite of the buzzing saws and pounding hammers the ADPis managed to keep their wits and continue their fast pace of varied house activities. Three trophies were added to the house collection: one for taking first place in the Greek Week blood drive, another for first place in Sigma Chi Derby Days, and one for taking second place among the small combination Veishea floats. The ADIis added service projects, among them, supporting Marta Ramirez, the chapter's South American foster child, writing to servicemen in Vietnam, and raising over 130 for the Panhellenic fund drive for a children's camp in Peru.

ALPHA GAMMA DELTA

As always, the Alpha Gams were active on campus this year. One member was even tapped for Mortar Board in the spring. But with all their activities and dates, something had to give. And that was their grades. They jumped from first on campus to number 12 among sororities spring quarter.

Alpha Gamma Delta suffered another disappointment spring quarter. This was the Veishea that the judges decided to take the Tekes off their pedestal by not even ranking them among the winners for the Veishea float competition. And, unfortunately, the Alpha Gams were partners in defeat. However, there was one consolation.

The two houses received the Purple Shaft award from the other fraternities and sororities.

ALPHA OMICRON PI

Iowa State now claims Alpha Omicron Pi's largest colony established here October 29, 1967. Three active transfers were already here to take charge of the large pledge class of 72. One pledge, Barb Halverson, was Iowa Dairy Princess for 1967–68. An Iowa servicemen wrote the University for permission to use the Greek letters of a sorority on his company tank. Alpha Omicron Pi is now serving in Viet Nam.

For Veishea '68, the A O Pi's are float building with Sigma Phi Epsilon. The chapter house will be completed by Fall '69 at 231 Beach.

CHI OMEGA

This past year the new addition was completed on the Chi Omega house, with landscaping and a new southern style porch adding the finishing touches. The year has been filled with activities for the Chi O's. An elaborate Veishea float was built by the Chi Os and Phi Delta Theta, centering around the theme of the Chicago fire and Mrs. O'Leary's stable.

This fall the Chi Os decided to have their Parents' Weekend the same time as the University's. A tea was given and skits highlighted the weekend when the parents moved into the house.

During Homecoming the Beta Sigs and Chi Os participiated in Yell-Like-Hell together with a cheer that made the finals, they had their annual Homecoming tea, and Sigma Phi Epsilon and Chi Omega participated in a Varieties production which didn't make finals.

DELTA DELTA DELTA

"It's About Time" as Delta Delta Delta and Delta Upsilon combined some energy and lot's of late hour escapades for a colorful contribution to the Veishea parade.

As the year continued, other memorable events included the annual Spring formal in Des Moines; and State Day, with Susan White Perry, our National President, paying us a visit. Amid all the activities we managed to study enough for a first place grades among the sororities. Fall brought involvement in Homecoming positions and festivities, followed by Campus Chest participation. Of course, Varieties with the Pikes this year was another must as Alice went on the "trip". A long standing Tri-Delta tradition is our Christmas party. An old-fashioned Christmas atmosphere was set throughout the house.

DELTA ZETA

Delta Zeta's academic year has been highlighted by numerous honors and activities, not the least of which was "Mr. Toad on the Move", the DZ-Theta Xi entry which captured the first place trophy for large combination Veishea floats. The entire house greeted the first night of the "no hours" policy by playing a rousing game of volley ball with Sigma Nu jocks at 1:00 a.m. Spring quarter was culminated with a berbeque held at the Ledges for DZs and their dates.

Fall quarter activities began immediately with "Sleezy DZ-Phi Psi Speak Easy" blast booth and a Miss Legs finalist. Fall party time found the DZ house transferred into a haunted mansion complete with bath and witches for the Halloween party with Omega Tau Sigma. Prizes were even awarded for the best costumes.

GAMMA PHI BETA

The women at 318 Pearson greeted the 1967–68 school year with a new housemother, cook, maid, and a 59-membered colony at Drake University. The Gamma Phis fired up to win both the singles and doubles division of Homecoming's Yell-Like-Hell contest with the help of the Beta Theta Pis; Gamma Phi Jill Trousdale was crowned Homecoming queen.

Winter quarter the GPBs and Phi Gamma Deltas gave 35 underprivileged children from Des Moines and Ames a memorable Christmas party, while the TKEs worked with Omega chapter to place in the Varieties Sweepstakes competition.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

Thetas returning to school last fall found themselves in new surroundings. The "Green Barn" had a new facade and a large new addition, as well as a new housemother. The girls found a scholarship standard to maintain in being awarded the first place trophy for pledges and second for actives.

Proving the Thetas have beauty as well as brains, Vicki Steil was named Iowa College Queen and Liana Waldorf Miss Wool of Iowa and first runner-up in the national contest.

Veishea 1967 brought honors to an enthusiastic group, as the KATs teamed up with the Sig Eps, taking Sweepstakes in the combination floats with "Man Versus Machine." Varieties efforts yielded the group a second-place position in the Sweepstakes competition.

KAPPA DELTA

Kappa Delta was pleased to be back "on campus" again—no longer having to compete as those fluffy off-campus girls! Participation in fall rush brought a big pledge class and meant that KDs on coke dates were no longer Union fixtures. Blast with Sigma Phi Epsilon and its slinging of chocolate pudding was yummy to say the least, and Varieties and "The Great Date Race" with Delta Sigma Phi was great fun.

The KDs entertained the mentally retarded children of Woodward in a rewarding service project.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA

Kappa Kappa Gamma was well represented at Veishea '67 by Jane Mack, Veishea Queen of Queens and attendant Jo Ellen Beemer. The Kappas also joined Sigma Alpha Epsilon in placing third in float competition. For Homecoming they again had two queen finalists, Carol Mondt and Kay Elliot. Later Beth Runsvold was named to represent ISU in Glamour Magazine's Best Dressed Co-ed competition.

The girls joined Delta Sigma Phi in a Christmas service project for underprivileged children in Des Moines and had great fun in a puppet show with Kappa Sigma for Varieties. To honor their new housemother, Mrs. Laura Elliot, they held a tea.

PI BETA PHI

Spring quarter Pi Beta Phi teamed up with Delta Tau Delta in construction of a Veishea float. During the summer alums and carpenters were busy working on a new addition, making it ready for Pi Phi use this fall. Besides a new additional good deal of remodeling was done on the first floor, all of which was completed when Pi Phis returned this fall.

In true barbershop spirit, Dads were entertained during their Parents Weekend. Farmhouse fraternity went to the Pi Phi house for a Polack party, purchased during Blast. They worked out the skit "Charlie Where's the Wizard" with the Phi Delts for Varieties and held the traditional Monmouth Duo with the Kappas.

SIGMA KAPPA

After two and a half years of non-recognition and entering such activities as Blast and Veishea without mention of the house, Sigma Kappa finally got recognized and is once again allowed to enter the stream of University and Greek activity.

During that period of time the house spent a good deal of time on internal cultural programs and the development of sisterhood, partially because it couldn't compete as part of the University whole. Part of this program is involved with such activities as a Professors' Tea, held each spring for retired professors, a rotation dinner with the alums and a pledge fireside centered around a 20-foot tree.

The primary and most important accomplishment, though is University recognition.

Interfraternity Council

Winning runner-up to Iron Man at the National Interfraternity Conference this year, Iowa State's Interfraternity Council was recognized as the second best in the United States. IFC's energetic participation in student government was shown by the presentation of "Outstanding Senator Award" to Roger Christensen, IFC senator. This December IFC again joined the Ames Jaycees in a Christmas service project. Care projects of food were delivered to needy families, and young children were taken shopping in downtown Ames for toys.

Interfraternity Pledge Council

Interfraternity Pledge Council is made up of the vice-presidents of every fraterntiy pledge class. IFPC again this year sponsored the pledge dance for all fraternity and sorority pledges. They also sponsored the seminar "Direction '68" where members of the faculty and administration presented their views on what the fraternity system actually is or should be and where it is going in '68.

As a service project, IFPC provided newspapers to University Hospital and Mary Greeley.

Johnny Majors, head football coach, discussed his plans for next year with IFPC, and tried to stir some enthusiasm.

ACACIA

A nice thought it may be, successful it was. "Movin' Easy", the ADPi-Acacia Veishea float, depicting a hobo lying on his back, smoking a cigar captured second place in the small combination division.

Veishea and Spring was actually the Acacian time of year. Two brothers got elected to Cardinal Key, one of whom was named president of the organization, as well as Veishea co-chairman. The highlight of the year, though, was the formal held in the Georgian Room at the Tallcorn Motel in Marshalltown.

Perhaps not a social highlight, but a beneficial part of the year, the Acacia brothers washed windows at the Order of the Eastern Star Home in Boone. It's always nice to see other people work.

ADELANTE

Among the social highlights of the past year was the Adelante's spring formal, this year with an Oriental theme and motif. Not wanting to be caught napping, the brothers proved they have kept up with current affairs and threw a full-scale hippie/psychedelic party. On Homecoming the Adelantes celebrated their 60th anniversary and Founder's Day. A Homecoming display honoring the returning alums was constructed.

Winter quarter hit with more than the usual number of tobogganning trips (difficult without any snow) and impromptu parties. The pledges came through, as they must, and supervised December's function. The house party, following the holiday break, turned out to be a pajama party, much to the surprise of too many people.

ALPHA CHI RHO

The A Chi Rho's have been more or less hiding out on their corner of Welch and Hunt. After all, it is a bit difficult to participate in campus activities when you're hoping for a new house and haven't any money. It's also difficult when you've lost half of your house membership and have directed most house efforts toward internal improvements.

However, the brothers were not hindered in the area of service. They have hosted a group of boys from the Woodward Mental Institution, as well as a Veishea Orientation. This orientation was for 35–45 high school seniors and was an introduction to University and fraternity life. It was also directed with rush in mind, but the high schoolers weren't supposed to know that.

ALPHA GAMMA RHO

After getting into their new house, the AGR's fired up for Veishea by building a 90-foot long float, "Along Life's Pathway," with Roberts Hall. Brothers also staged their Pink Rose formal and a Farmers Ball, or informal.

Fall quarter included a hippie party with the Alpha Gams, rush parties and a plain party party.

Then there was the traditional Christmas party, including a skit reaffirming the idea that Santa Claus is a dirty old man. And, last but not least, was the annual Playboy party, the real way to warm up a cold winter quarter.

ALPHA KAPPA LAMBDA

Alpha Kappa Lambda began an intensive rush program last spring designed to fill a new house. The house was finished during the summer, moved into at the start of rush week and dedicated in December. The dedication was conducted to the tune of "Snowflakes over Psy."

Founder's Day was acknowledged with an annual banquet and dance, perhaps more sedate than the Wild Angels house party held in the fall.

Participation in such University activities as Veishea and Homecoming was kept to an absolute minimum.

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

Spring quarter, the Alpha Sigs crooned their way to a second place in Sinfonia Sing and the pledges caused some automotive careening in the first Annual Alpha Sig Car Rally. Veishea activities included co-sponsorship of a street dance, set to the sounds of the Mad Hatters. For Saturday activities, the Sigs hosted twenty boys from the Toledo Juvenile Home.

The Sigs displayed Miss Legs finalists among fluorescent gears of the "Watch Anatomy" of a Campus Chest Blast booth. A tale of tails in a botanical garden was the Homecoming display, "What's Up Tiger Lily?" The fall house party, with a minimum of flushing, was a full house for high stakes in the Sig Casino.

The highlight of winter quarter was the Sig Bust and annual Founders' Day banquet, as alumni returned for reminiscing and, hopefully, reimbursing.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA

This year Alpha Tau Omega completed the first phase of its $250,000 remodeling and expansion plans. With a complete interior remodeling combining masculine colors and textures, the Taus feel that the $60,000 improvement was a successful first step of a program that promises an addition to the house and a capacity increase by twenty-five men.

Socially, the ATO's have started another first in fraternity tradition with the debut of their first white tie formal. ATO plans to continue this austere happening as an annual event.

On a more urgent social scene the Taus played host to a group of underprivileged youngsters from the YMCA Boys Camp in Ankeny. The boys were invited up to the Iowa State-Oklahoma football game and afterwards to a hamburger party.

This year ATO hopes to establish another tradition as they go for their second straight Greek Week Olympics championship. Last spring the Taus rang more bells and tugged harder than anyone else to take the silver cup running away.

BETA SIGMA PSI

Beta Sigs were bustling around from rush week until final week. With a productive rush week (twenty-eight new pledges), the Fall Party, Parents' Day celebrations, and a Homecoming display, nearly every weekend was filled with activity. An all-house retreat served well to promote unity and spirit among Beta Sig brothers.

While blowing snow chilled the spirits of most students last winter, parties, intramurals, and house activities kept the warmth alive during the cold season.

With spring quarter, men's fancies turn to . . . intramurals. Beta Sigs were first in points-per-man last spring. But intramural participation wasn't the only activity on their minds. The Gold Rose Formal, highlighted with the crowning of Miss Judy Larson as queen, topped a successful year.

BETA THETA PI

Spring was probably the busiest quarter for the Beta's, at least, that's when they engaged in the most sanctioned activities. Phi Delts, Sigma Chis and Betas all combined efforts in commemorating the founding of the three fraternities with the Miami Triad dance.

For Veishea they joined the Alpha Chis in construction of a float, "King of the Road." To top it all, they earned a second place standing in points per man in spring intramurals.

To start off fall Beta Theta Pi brothers held their annual Beta Barbecue, among the various other functions fraternity brothers might engage in.

DELTA CHI

Delta Chi started off spring quarter with their annual formal dance, Carnation Fantasy, at the Hotel Fort Des Moines. That marked the beginning of an eventful Spring, completed on a happy note when their singles entry in the Veishea parade, Reverance for Thought, took first place in its division.

This fall the D Chi's, together with Alpha Gamma Delta, built the first Homecoming Monument, a new tradition started by Homecoming Central Committee. In addition they initiated the charter members of their new women's auxilliary, Chi Delphia, Sisters of the White Carnation.

During the winter they hosted members from six other chapters of Delta chi in the area at the fraternity's annual regional conference.

DELTA SIGMA PHI

The Delta Sigs won the Delta Award for being the top chapter in the nation for the sixth time in seven years. The University didn't quite see it that way, and caught the Brothers in unwarranted acts of mischief.

The men of Beta Alpha welcomed a new housemother this fall, Mrs. Katherine Counter and received a variety of awards. Included are: the Alpha Chi Omega Service Project trophy for collecting nearly $4000 for the tornado-stricken town of Belmond and a Christmas party held with the Kappas for Des Moines orphans; the All-University champion softball team; second place in the Homecoming novelty division and second in singles competition for Veishea floats.

There was one sad note, however. This chapter lost Tim Van Galder to the St. Louis Cardinals. How can they replace the Spider?

DELTA TAU DELTA

Teamwork seemed to characterize the past year at Delta Tau Delta. The Delts teamed up with Pi Beta Phi in the construction of their Veishea float, "Call of the West," which depicted the gold rush to Sutters Mill.

The house softball team spent their spare time capturing the All University Softball Championship, while brothers Mike Shetter and Doug Dashner climaxed the year with their initiation into Cardinal Key. Homecoming '67 was celebrated with the annual Alumni Party and the capture of the Men's Division, "Yell like Hell" championship.

Between classes, studies, and work both in and out of the shelter, the Delts found time to honor two sweethearts, Merrilee Bukowski, Pi Beta Phi, who reigned as queen of the annual Orchid Formal; and particularly their housemother, Mrs. Peden, who climaxed a nineteen year career of service to the chapter.

DELTA UPSILON

If you have any complaints about campus communications, go to the DU house to air them. Where else can you find the editors of the Daily, the Bomb and the Iowa Engineer all at one chapter meeting?

The DUs have proved to be masters of fabrication. The spring house party, "Hayseed Holocaust" necessitated renovation of the house. Members obliged and the 18th century tudor decor of the house became a 19th century barnyard setting. Veishea came and the DUs and Tri Delts fixed up a float all "About Time."

Not to be stopped in their efforts, the brothers came up with a Homecoming lawn display and theme: "Mr. Magoo Mauls Missou" . . . a fabrication in every sense of the word.

The more mundane aspects of the year included capturing the all-University class A volleyball championship and winning the University 50-mile bicycle race, as well as three first-place Campus Chest trophies.

FARMHOUSE

FarmHouse and Kappa Alpha Theta hosted about 100 American Field Service students in the spring. The students stayed for a weekend and were entertained at parties, toured the campus, went serenading and had a great time meeting the students from their own and different countries.

During the fall, FarmHouse regained its scholarship ranking. The men ranked as the number one fraternity with an impressive 3.005 grade point average. They also held the annual Mothers Weekend, at which time the mothers took over the house and found out just exactly how their sons live in college.

Daughters and sisters of FarmHouse alums were entertained at a Legacy dinner at the house, winter quarter, and actives and pledges saw Norm Sawyer win Varieties M.C.

KAPPA SIGMA

The men of Kappa Sigma worked and played their way to another very successful year in 1966–67 and began another promising year for 1967–68.

Fall quarter this year, as it is every year, was dominated by the Western Dance—the final function before those frustrating finals. Winter quarter brought the usual brilliant performance in Varieties, joining forces this year with the women of Kappa Kappa Gamma. It matters not that they didn't quite make it to sweepstakes.

Kappa Sigs also were very active in campus activities, holding major positions in Homecoming, Campus Chest, and having the Greek Week co-chairmanship for the second consecutive year.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

This fall the Lambda Chis invaded the world of architects with the construction of a 19 foot geodesic dome to top off their blast booth for Campus Chest. Their venture was successful as they made a clean sweep of both Blast and Campus Chest Sweepstakes, for the second year in a row.

This year also marks the innovation of the fraternity's sisterhood, the Crescents. The group was first organized as a pledge class of 15 girls and, at the present time, they have become an integral part of the house.

The year was climaxed with the White Rose formal when Linda Dougherty of Kappa Alpha Theta was crowned Crescent Girl, and the celebration of the chapter's 50th anniversary during Homecoming.

PHI DELTA THETA

Even though they didn't come up with any big wins, the Phi Delts were kept busy. Veishea's attempt was the "Chicago Fire," Homecoming's was a Tiger Safari with Mr. Magoo and the Varieties attempt was done with the Pi Phis.

A bit more successful was the Hells Angels party held in Des Moines in conjunction with the Drake Phi Delts. It's something the brothers will remember, at any rate.

The Phi Delts have been successful in two of their service projects. One involved the cleaning and fixing up of the Girl Scout camp at Inis Grove Park and the other, the Heart Fund.

PHI GAMMA DELTA

A flood of projects and events filled the year for the Phi Gams. Their perennial mission is the search for a new house. The chapter has been practicing by redecorating the Annex and has been conducting daily tours, for a small fee which goes toward the new house, of course.

Socially, the fall party, or "Little Reno" offered the Fijis a chance to lose the money for next month's house bill. Purple Garter and Grass Skirt held their usual place of success and enjoyment.

The IFC Scholarship Improvement trophy took its place beside the award for first place novelties in the Veishea parade. Afternoons spent with youngsters from the Woodward School for Retarded Children rounded out a year filled with successes, laughs and a new color tube via Green Stamps.

PHI KAPPA PSI

Phi Psis went topless and splashed their way into a new backyard swimming pool. Blast again saw the brothers take it in the face, only this time with whipped cream.

Despite the fact that they didn't do a whole lot in Veishea, Varieties and Homecoming the Phi Psis managed to keep in step with campus laughs, games and academic chores.

And, of course, Mrs. Lurene Greer, housemother, gets the brothers' praise for being the true picture of courage.

PHI KAPPA TAU

After a two-year struggle to establish residence at 307 Ash, the Phi Taus had probably their most productive year in their house.

Spring quarter was high lighted by the first annual Dad's weekend when the fathers were greeted and treated in the Phi Tau tradition. The social scene was alive with a pajama party at which the intriguing game of musical beds was originated.

Fall quarter saw a tea for the new housemother, Mrs. Florence Huibregtse. The Brothers also kept the Union fountain going more often than in the past by volunteering to clean it out whenever the "sudsers" went to work. Luckily the group wasn't too active this fall.

PHI KAPPA THETA

The Phi Kaps are perhaps most remembered for sponsoring the "Blitz," the largest all-University dance of the year. Over 2500 people attended last Spring's Blitz.

Intramural competition is strong and the Phi Kaps pulled a second place ranking in softball, while participating in other athletics, basketball among them.

The chapter boasts of six Brothers listed in Who's Who in America's Colleges and Universities.

PI KAPPA ALPHA

Throughout the year the Pikes have been active, whether it was at the Office or at the house. They got a Homecoming display worked up in time for the judges to award it a second place position. And, even though it didn't make Sweepstakes, Pikes and Tri Delts put in a lot of time and effort on their skit which pictured the psychedelic world of Alice in Wonderland, an eerie and spooky production.

The pledges went Roman for the fall house party and staged a Bacchanalia, which may or may not have been an accurate representation of the times. The winter house party was, per usual, an open Hawaiian Party.

PI KAPPA PHI

House and campus activities have highlighted life for the male Pi Phis. The Pi Kapp's 24-man pledge class brightened an otherwise dull corner of Welch Avenue by comically decorating their annex with multi-colored polka dots.

Several Brothers involved themselves in campus happenings by holding positions on the GSB cabinet, which may or may not be a distinction, depending on how you were to look at it. They also held positions on the Homecoming central committee, as well as clubs and scholastic-professional honoraries.

With a 25 per cent increase in house membership, Pi Kappa Phi looks for a new 60-man chapter house by spring, as well as interhouse occupations.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

The activities during the past year were rather varied for the men of Sigma Alpha Epsilon. One of the major events of spring quarter was the clinching of the intramural championships for the third straight year. Fall competition was tight as volleyball teams battled to a close victory in fraternity finals.

In a more social light, the tradition of a pledge sorority tea was continued and more than 250 pledges were afternoon guests at 140 Lynn. It gives the guys a head start. Several weeks later, Sig Alphs were again hosts, this time to a nostalgic "High School Harry" fall house party.

One of the year's most rewarding projects was entertaining the Des Moines Boys Club during Homecoming. Approximately 30 Boys Club football enthusiasts watched the ISU-Missouri game and experienced the dual thrill of Big Eight football and recognition from the Homecoming crowd.

SIGMA CHI

The year proved profitable for the Sigma Chis. Their Homecoming lawn display wrapped up the Sweepstakes award and their Varieties performance, with the help of Alpha Gamma Delta proved to be a haunting and thought-provoking production. Enough so that the judges awarded Varieties Sweepstakes to them.

They were, perhaps, not quite as successful in other areas. They didn't do a whole lot in the area of intramurals, but not because of a lack of enthusiasm. Sigma Chi public relations days were rained out, although not so completely that ADPi's couldn't be declared Derby Days champs and have Sherry Nelson named Derby Darlin'.

SIGMA NU

Last year brought several improvements to Sigma Nu. Refurnishing of the living room and remodeling of the TV room added to the homey atmosphere of the house. The chapter's mascot, Brandy, contributed her own addition in the form of ten Saint Bernard pups.

In April, Gamma Sigma chapter served as host for one of the twelve regional conferences held by the national fraternity.

Sigma Nu and Alpha Gamma Delta took time out to help needy children in the area by holding an Easter party for students of the Ruth B. Wilson school. In the fall the brothers and pledges went trick-or-treating with the KD's and donated gifts to the Easter Seal Center in Des Moines.

Scholastics were not neglected and the house maintained its ranking in the top ten. The usual parties and exchanges rounded out what most considered a very good year.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON

The Sweepstakes trophy, oddly enough if you consider past history, went to the Sig Eps and Thetas' entry in the Veishea parade, "Man Versus Machine."

Even though they didn't have any "Plum Fairies" in Varieties this year, the brothers did scare up some fairly successful intramurals teams.

Socially, the highlights of the year included the first annual Pledge Fireside at Lynn Fuhrer Lodge and the Queen of Hearts Ball where the chapter sweetheart is selected.

SIGMA PI

The brothers of Sigma Pi are not what you'd call active. Bowling is their primary intramurals interest, and in proving it, they only lost the fall championship by two little points.

There are the usual house parties, though the house participates in no outside activities or service projects. But then, there is the prospect of a new house in two years and funds must be raised. Something has to suffer.

TAU KAPPA EPSILON

The men of Epsilon chapter began another year at Iowa State by receiving the runner-up award for top Teke chapter and runner-up in scholarship supremacy at the national conclave. This they followed with a successful and productive rush week, pledging 41 men, and a first place trophy with Homecoming's "True Tale from the Old West," and third in Varieties Sweepstakes with "Apologue of an Achromatic."

This fall the Tekes had their annual snipe hunt. Who's to say if any snipes were captured, but hunters sure had fun trying. Playing a bit of a turn-about, brothers escorted 20 underprivileged children to an Iowa State football game.

THETA CHI

Theta Chis have been working this year, both academically and socially. Their cumulative jump to sixth place among fraternities brought them the IFC scholarship improvement award winter of 1967.

Greek Week found Theta Chi men carting off the "Operation Lifeline" trophy for the third consecutive year, and they even made a strong showing in the Olympic games. They earned a second place trophy with their depiction of Lil' Abner and "Why Move."

Even Homecoming proved successful when the brothers placed first in the novelty division with the "Cyclone Country" annihilation of "Tiger Paws."

THETA DELTA CHI

Theta Delt growing pains, encountered during an ambitious two-year expansion and self-improvement program, are over, and now the Theta Delts work in conjunction with Iowa State and fellow Greeks.

Scholarship and campus activity have a prime position in the house. Theta Delta Chi is ranked among the top ten campus fraternities. Brothers compete in Varieties and Homecoming, and in 1968 added Veishea to their ambitions. They participate in public service projects such as one at the Woodward Mental Institution.

The Theta Delta Chi National Fraternity Organization honored members as the number two individual Theta Delt house, nationally.

THETA XI

Theta Xi National Fraternity was founded on April 29, 1864, at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, New York. Throughout its 103 years of existence, Theta Xi has expanded to a membership of 77 chapters, with Mu chapter locating at Iowa State University. Founded on April 2, 1909, Mu chapter has a present membership of 70 men.

High points of the Theta Xi social calendar include fall and spring quarter formal house parties, winter quarter's Bowery Brawl, the traditional Theta Xi Pancake Supper, and the house's contribution to the Campus Chest drive. Informal functions frequent all quarters and include hayrides, barbecues, toboggan parties, canoe trips, and woodsies.

While scholarship is first at Theta Xi, the house actively participates in almost all campus activities, and has for the past two years received first place honors in the large combination division of the Veishea float competition.

TRIANGLE

An expanded membership during its fourth year at Iowa State has led the Triangle chapter to association in nearly every facet of campus activity. True to the tradition, Triangle ranked first among the fraternities all last year to retire the IFC traveling scholarship trophy.

In addition, during spring quarter, Triangles added the runners-up trophey for intramural competition, and found the first Triangle brother elected to Cardinal Key.

OMEGA TAU SIGMA

As a young fraternity on campus, Omega Tau Sigma has found that legal matters and internal problems demand time, effort and abstention from such University function as Veishea and Homecoming. The 70 members, all Veterinary students, hosted the fraternity national convention this fall, and received the national's Progress award. The Iowa State chapter has begun hosting speakers at its meetings. These speakers come from outside the field of Veterinary Medicine and discuss such topics as law, insurance and politics.

This does not preclude social activities, however. OTS holds a major dance each quarter, and intermixes small parties to spice up the social life.

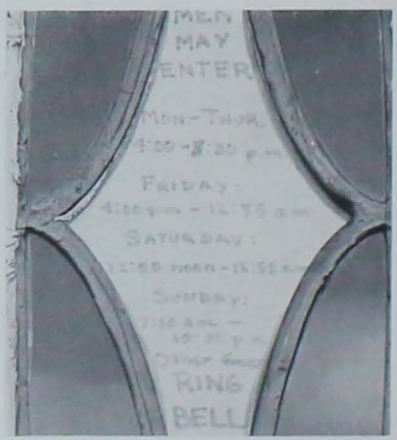
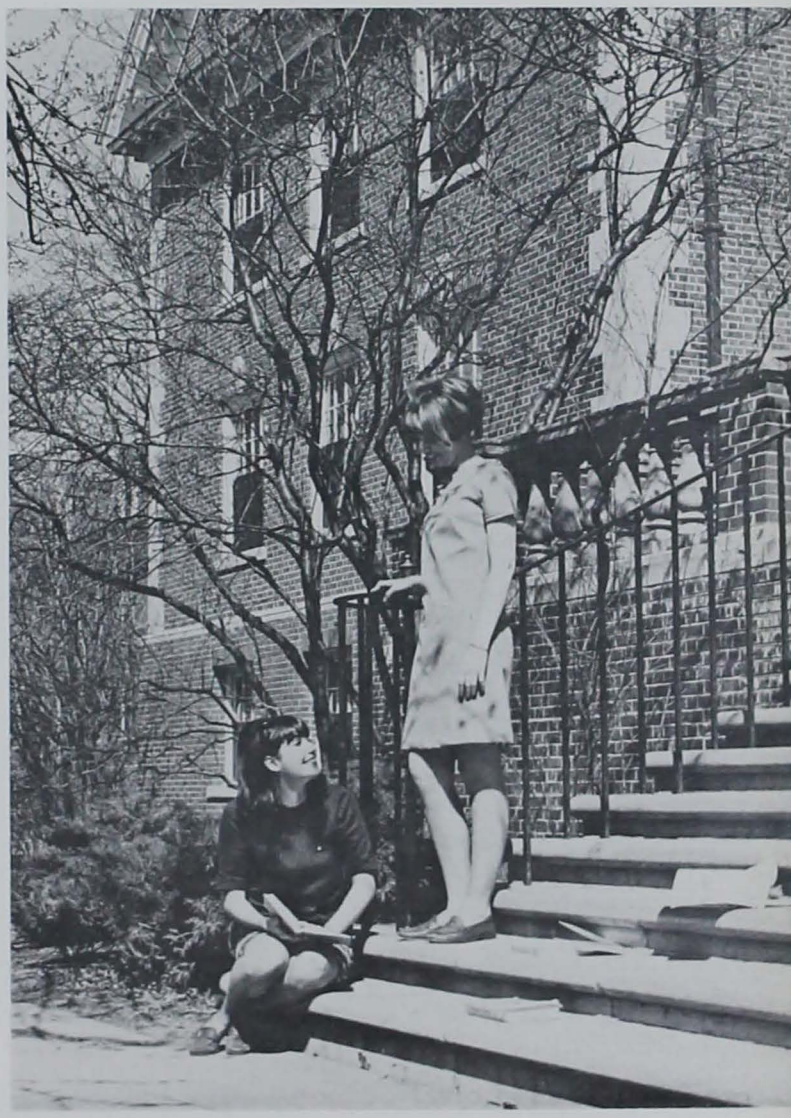
RESIDENCE HALLS

Residence Halls Provide Refuge for Maladjusted Freshmen

As with the Greek system, the independents got their chance to write some Bomb material. The response was, of course, good with some and fairly poor with others.

This section of the Bomb is to reveal the inner workings of the residence system. The reader will find that many, in fact most, of the residents participate in much the same activities as the Greeks, except generally on a smaller scale. They try just as hard, though.

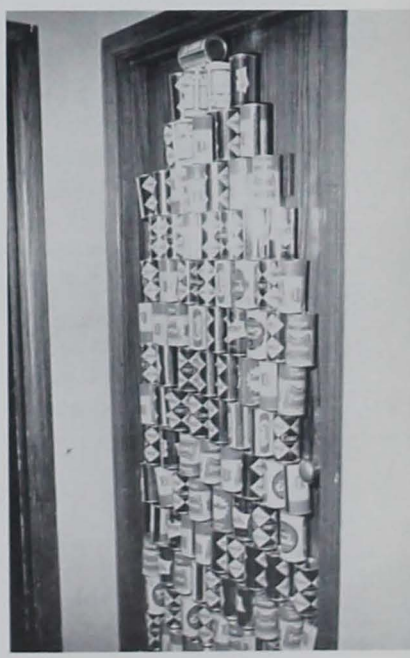




The House System Brings Administrative Pains to WRA

The Women's Residence Association is in the process of converting to the house system, resulting in growing pains of a sort. Not all of the halls have converted to the system as yet, so there comes the necessary problems of coordinating house and hall rules and regulations, of which there are frequently many.

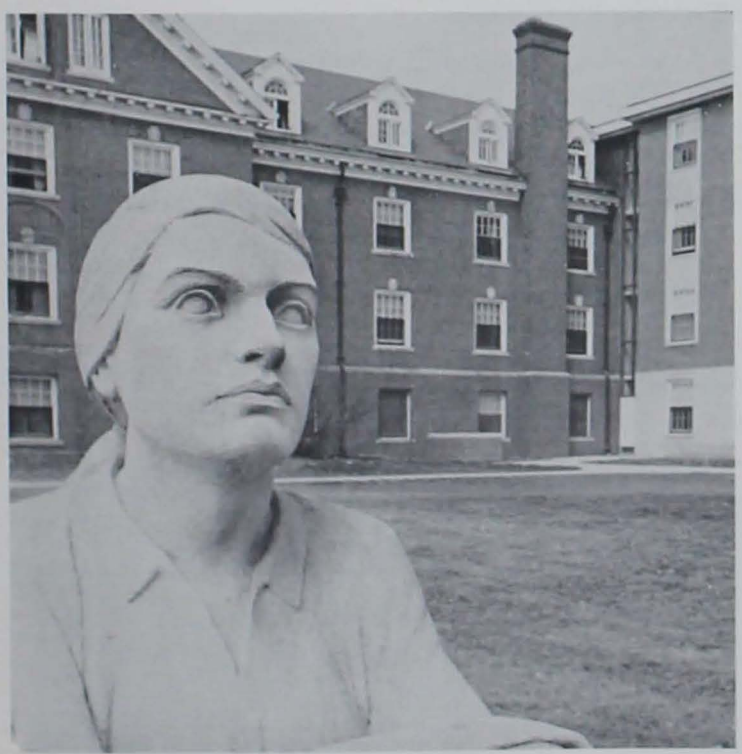
The houses start with no history of their own and must build up a future, difficult often, because of the limited size. Halls start with a history and must backtrack if they change to houses. It six of one and half a dozen of the other.



It matters little if the residents live according to house or hall regulations. The girls always seem to find a degree of unity within their own system. There's always someone around with whom the girls are able to discuss last nights' date, a heavy academic load, or a problem roommate.

And there's always someone there to gripe about rules, regulations and the inevitable house dues that no one seems to know anything about or what they are used for . . . all they know is that if you don't take advantage of the things they provide, it's your own fault.

Time and Human Relations Comprise Dorm Living



Dorm living means candle passings, dinner lines, cold or beastly hot rooms, quiet hours, discussions of great length over subjects of great or minute significance, and john conclaves.

It means friendships, responsibilities, arguments and house or hall meetings, all of which seem to stretch out over a varying length of time. Friendships seem too short at times, arguments seem awfully long and frustrating.

House or hall meetings seem to last for an interminably long time, with little accomplished.

WRA Executive Council

The WRA Executive Council is the system's administrative body, designed as a planning section for the WRA. This is where coordinating committees gather to discuss problems within the halls and houses and where information is diseminated and returned to the houses.

Legislative Council

The Legislative Council is the policy making or changing body of the WRA. This is where Constitution changes are made, dining hall codes are made up, white sheet revisions are accomplished and a conduct code is written. Here, too, is where the Panhel-WRA council was set up to coordinate the two groups and women's hours are pondered.

Head Residents

The house system has begun in an attempt to improve programming and communications between the Residence Department, the WRA and the residents. The HR acts as a sort of liaison.

It is her responsibility to act as a supervisor, disciplinarian, counselor and friend to the girls in her house.

Beacons

Beacons is an independent service honorary originated by the WRA to honor sophomore women, who, in their freshman year were outstanding in both scholarship and activities. Members work as ushers, hostesses, and secretaries for University events.

Birch Hall

Birch Hall, residence for over 160 women has a busy calendar for the year. Along with numerous exchanges and teas for parents, the year has included activities such as participation in Sor-Dor, and a regularly scheduled open house.

The spring formal, "Daffodils and Daisies," found upperclassmen at a distinct advantage with their newly acquired key cards. Hard work with Starbuck produced a three-piece Veishea spectacular; Norman house blasted some good times during Campus Chest, while several men felt their money would go to a good cause when their money bought the Birch PJ party at the Blast Auction. In their Homecoming attempt the Birch residents and Stange helpers tried to burn the biggest tiger on campus.

Elm Hall

Now at the end of their second year in existance, the 64 women of McGlade have a good number of memories.

They can remember the weekend they invited their mothers to Mothers' Weekend activities. They can remember their "Roaring 20's" spring house party held with Wilkinson house. They have memories of the picnics, parties and exchanges with their big brother house, Halstead. And they can remember the McGlade-Stange Blast booth, "Make Love, Not War."

Merchant—Elm Hall

The residents of Merchant feel it was a very good year for the house. It can boast of such activities and honors as a Bomb Beauty, top grade point averages in the WRA spring quarter, and winners in the Veishea canoe races in the Women's Division with entrants dressed as the campanile, a boy and a girl.

They also talk of their major fall quarter activity, Blast's Club 2100, a space-age casino put together with Niles house.

Miller—Elm Hall

Miller High-lighted spring "Under the Yum Yum Tree" by treating Miller favorites to a formal. Veishea came with a Western theme and the honor of having a resident, Marty Stuntz, tapped as Mortar Board president. Once again residents maintained a high scholastic rating. Fall quarter brought the first trophy through collection of 23 pounds of pennies for Campus Chest.

For Homecoming Miller and Elwood combined forces to build a lawn display; Christmas caroling and house parties warm the winter months.

Turner—Elm Hall

Enthusiasm runs high in Turner house, and the residents join wholeheartedly in a variety of activities. Their participation runs from a style show held during Parents' Weekend, covering events from formals to panty raids, to tackling a Blast booth complete with a slide to a psychedelic world and a mortuary slab back to reality.

With Firkins' house, papier mache and floral sheeting they built their own Homecomnig display.

Busse—Freeman Hall

Busse House is one of the two new houses in Freeman Hall, and is named after Florence Busse Smith, a former food and nutrition instructor. The women of the dorm gave a tea and open house in the fall to show off their remodeled dorm and introduce their new resident advisor, Mrs. Elizabeth Hitzhusen, to the University.

The big house project for the year was the WRA formal, "Pinecones and Hollyberries."

Vollmer–Freeman Hall

Vollmer House started its first year of existence by working on a Blast booth with the men of Alumni Hall. Kimball house bought the Vollmer girls at the Blast auction and all enjoyed a woodsie pumpkin party in October. The whole campus heard the girls yell like Hell in the contest at the Homecoming Pep Barbeque.

Pixie Pal Week, Hallowe'en caroling, door decorating contests, as well as other campus activities kept the girls busy as they started their first year on the house system.

Lyon Hall

Lyon Hall, home of 121 women and housemother Mrs. Madge Stark, chose Chamberlain house of Friley as its Big Brother this year. Together they sponsored a spring formal, various exchanges and a third place winner in the Milk Maid contest.

Lyon women also participated in Veishea canoe races, Sor-Dor, Campus Chest, FEG and Varieties. A new interest was the "adoption" of a Korean child with whom residents correspond.

Cranor—Maple Hall

Cranor began the year by planning a constitution, budget and general house activities to guide them in the future. The house joined campus activities by selling a Back "40" party at the Campus Chest auction, having finalists for Engineering Week queen and a Pershing Rifle representative, and entertaining their parents with an open house during Parents' Weekend.

The girls made plans for a house party and other activities for a full or perhaps fuller social calendar.

Forbes—Maple Hall

With 67 residents from all over the country, from New York to California, Forbes house had the numbers and variety to be quite active both as a house and as part of the University. The women had several exchanges on their calendar for the year, many of which were with their big brother house, Hanson.

The women participated in the annual Blast auction and, planned the traditional Christmas party for winter quarter.

Front Row: Linda J. Madden, r.j; Danuta M. Jankowiak, soph.; Diane L. Roewe, fr.; Barbara J. McGinnis, fr.; Susan L. Perdock, fr.; Mary B. Matz, jr. Second Row: Mary J. Friant—Maple Hall

With no history behind it and a long future ahead, Friant received its first bunch of 67 exuberant girls.

Popping corn and burning it, noisy quiet hours, baking cakes, carving "great pumpkins," papering doors, Homecoming, Parents' Day, a variety of exchanges like canoeing parties and a Tom Jones dinner typify the activities perpetually underway.

Hayden—Maple Hall

Although a lack of funds has handicapped the new house, Hayden enthusiasm runs high. Hayden had a milkmaid participant, showed skill in intramurals, and even struck up, much to Maple's delight, a novelty band, the muscially-inclined Hayden Horns.

The highlight of the year, however, was the service project in which residents entertained children from various institutions for a weekend.

Knowles—Maple Hall

As a new house, Knowles had a busy year establishing policies and coordinating the efforts of 67 women in enthusiastic work on house projects and participation in house programs. Knowles scored an early success when Sam Boge was declared first runner-up in the Milk Maid contest of All Ag Week.

A Homecoming display with Franklin house required many hours of work from the house, but the women feel it was quite worth the effort.

Shilling – Maple Hall

Shilling is another of the many new houses formed this year under the almost universal house system. Most of residents' time is spent on planning and building for the future, but the house as a unit did house this year's Milk Maid.

Shilling also sold a Roman Orgy at the Blast Auction and held a decorating contest during winter quarter.

Walls—Maple Hall

Walls House began the school year by inviting the freshmen women and their parents to a reception in the seventh floor den of Maple. For Homecoming and Veishea the women, working with the men of Harriman house, made their own sign to hang outside.

A Halloween sleep-in, a Christmas caroling party, a spring formal and numerous exchanges constituted house social activities for the year.

Young—Maple Hall

Young house originated when coeds from Barton Hall migrated to Maple last winter. Colonization took place spring quarter of '67. Elections were held for fall and newly elected officers made plans for the house to act as a unit.

Young house activities included a laundry exchange purchased by Alpha Kappa Lambda at Campus Chest auction. The women were active with intramurals, open houses and campus functions. Winter quarter they were busy in Varieties with Delta Chi. Life in the penthouse of Maple swings with the campus and the breeze.

Durian—Oak Hall

The Durian Dolls got their first trophy by winning first place in the small combination Veishea floats, which they built with Noble house. Other spring activities included a service project for the Des Moines zoo, Sor-Dor, a spring formal planned in conjunction with other Oak houses and a Blast picnic with Knapp house.

To start the new year off right the women accepted MacRae house as their big brother, after, of course, many courting activities. The spotlight was on Durian as it was awarded the best women's skit trophy at the Campus Chest auction.

Fosmark—Oak Hall

Fosmark's chief claim to fame this year rests in their third place-winning Homecoming display which they accomplished with the able assistance of Converse house. They set up a working program involving Mortenson house as their big brother.

Residents joined forces with the other houses in Oak in planning an annual spring formal, and, as a unit, worked on a Varieties skit in winter quarter occupations.

King—Oak Hall

King's spring quarter was highlighted by their formal, "Younger Than Springtime", Veishea participation and Mothers' Weekend. Fall quarter ushered in continuation of the Big-Sis Little Sis program, Blast with Spinney house, Homecoming and Parents' Day Plans.

As the winter months passed, King hosted a festive Christmas party and honored parents at a special Parent's Day.

Sims—Oak Hall

The house of Sims joined the Dodds rebellion at Veishea with "Mancini on the Move." Fall saw the women blast off with the Firkins fellows at "Ye Pub." By leading Homecoming button sales, the freshmen brought the house another trophy. Cadence was a showcase for house beauty with a Sims' Dorm Darlin'.

The watchful eye of Big Brother Louden focused on strengthening sibling relations. Deserving recipients of the house award, the Sims Sinner, are apparently difficult to find.

Roberts Hall

The Roberts that was was: waiting for the mailman; the quiet beauty of a candlepassing; coffee at 3 a.m.; the shrill cry of a telephone; the FORMAL and the swish of skirts; VEISHEA, grubbies, cokes and paste-spattered shoes; BLAST, hammers, saws and paint.

It was SOR-DOR and hunting for black dresses; cigar smoke and fathers in the rec room; Christmas gifts for children; cases before House Council; alarms at dawn; midnight fire drills; John buckets and sleepy-eyed "Good Mornings." Next year will it be houses?

Welch Hall

After many weeks of practice, the women of Welch took top honors at the annual Sor-Dor competition. Because of this accomplishment, they were invited to sing during the intermission of Sinfonia Sing.

Welch fired up for intramurals, placing second in total points for over-all participation in women's intramurals. They placed in basketball, volleyball and fencing, and wound up winning the softball championship.

Fleming—Westgate Hall

Being a small house, and without the necessary manpower, Fleming has found it difficult to participate in many of the all-University events, such as Blast, Veishea and Homecoming. Residents, however, can participate, and do, in womens intramurals, notably volleyball, basketball and bowling.

House members also have exchanges to let their presence, if not size, be known.

Lowe—Westgate Hall

With a preponderance of attached girls, Lowe finds itself lacking in the number of exchanges it can participate in and sponsor. However, this fact did not top residents from being awarded the Best Theme and Performance trophy for the Blast booth which they built with Lange house.

They also managed to erect a Veishea float with the help of Niles house. They also were able to execute successfully their annual steak fry held during Dames Daze.

Nelson—Westgate Hall

Spring quarter was an enjoyable and productive ten weeks for Nelson house, the third floor citadel of Westgate. From the distribution of house sweatshirts to the steak fry in unexpected snow, enthusiasm dominated. A high cumulative grade point and a number of residents on the Deans List boosted morale.

Homecoming found Nelsonites next door with Alpha Sigma Phi molding, stretching and pasting a creation called "What's a Tiger Lily?" into being. Winter found the girls at their annual Christmas party with their own pseudo Santa Claus, Dr. Schweider, their faculty associate.

Tilden—Westgate Hall

Tilden celebrated its first house party in history, winter quarter, at the YMCA camp, which several members found difficult to locate.

Tildenites managed what residents termed a "super-improved" grade point during the past year, which, needless to say cheered them all up considerably.

The men of Alumni Hall invited house residents to build a Veishea float during the spring. It proved so successful that the girls are again going to build a float for this year's Veishea parade.

Devitt—Linden Hall

Fairly distinctive in its own right, Devitt is the only house in the MRA which can be found on two floors. It doesn't necessarily mean that residents can do twice as much, but it is something different. Devitt joined all of Linden in construction of the trophy-winning Knapp/Linden Homecoming display this year.

It's had its share of exchanges with men's residences. And its members captured the Women's Intramural volleyball title fall quarter.

Hoxie—Linden Hall

No more first floor Linden; now it's Hoxie House. The name withstanding, the women auctioned off a lawn party to Stalker house residents for Campus Chest. Homecoming rolled around and the women provided newspapers, paint brushes and elbow grease to help Knapp house and Linden take first place in the MRA-WRA division.

Winter quarter brought the opening of that much longed for and waited for den.

Lawther—Linden Hall

Newly formed Lawther house started its year of activities by auctioning a picnic during Campus Chest Week. Knapp House and Lawther worked together and built a Homecoming display.

Writing a constitution for the house, working on plans for a den and participation in women's intramurals tournaments were some of the other activities the girls worked on as they got their feet on the ground.

Sullivan—Linden Hall

Their first year proved a good year for residents of Sullivan house. Working with Stalker house, their Blast Booth, "In the Nick of Time," captured the first place trophy for the "Best Pre-Blast Publicity." The booth, based on a barber shop theme, challenged customers to shave balloons covered with shaving cream with only one hand in only 30 seconds.

The prize-winning publicity included shaving demonstration, "Beardshears," on the steps of Beardshear Hall, with the girls actually shaving the guys, and Blastashave signs along sidewalks.

Brandt—Linden Hall

Although organized just this year and having one of the smallest houses on campus, Brandt house has worked diligently to create a spirit and name all its own. Its nomination for Miss Legs was one of the five finalists in the Campus Chest competition.

And, naturally, it was one of the Linden houses working with Knapp on the prize-winning Homecoming display.

Rowe—Linden Hall

Newly formed this year, Rowe House women participated in University activities on two levels. First, by working as a unit, members wrote a skit for Varieties with Alumni Hall and helped Knapp house build a winning Homecoming display. They also had an intramurals team, participated in Campus Chest and sponsored candidates for Homecoming and Engineers' Week queens.

On the second level, the women participated as individuals in Orchesis, Festival Chorus, bands, SOV and campus political organizations.

Sadler—Linden Hall

Sadler was another of the units newly established under the house system this fall. Residents got off to a fairly rousing start by joining the men of Caine house for Blast activities.

Later in the fall Sadler combined energies with six other houses in Linden and those of, you guessed it, Knapp house, to build the MRA-WRA division first place lawn display.

Some guys don't have girls to do laundry for them.

Men's Housing

Housing for over 4,000 men is provided by the residence department. These men are housed at the Towers and the Friley-Helser complex.

Men not only sleep, eat and study in the halls, but also participate in dorm activities such as sleepins over cold rooms, protests over bad sidewalks, competition with other halls and houses, and general boys activities like dropping bombs down the stairwells.

A change in housing for men is in the forseeable future. After much campaigning by both the TRA and MRA, coed housing is planned for Friley with girls planned to move into Hughes house in the Fall of 1969 and men into some of the girls dorms.

Top houses this year are Chamberlin for the MRA and Griffith house for the TRA.

KISU

KISU is the residence hall radio station and broadcasts to each of the dormatories on campus. The station has a staff of 60 who run the station from 6:30 a.m. to 1:00 a.m. daily.

This year, besides expanding their hours, KISU has acquired some new equipment including a cartridge machine. Members of the staff are also able to work for college credit for the first time.

Cadence

Cadence, first established in 1965, is a publication designed to provide independents with something a little out of the ordinary twice a year, winter and spring. It gives a novel, yet informative slant on residence hall living and campus life. This year, edited by Augie Braaksma, Cadence is published as a joint effort of the TRA, WRA, and MRAN. This is a relatively new phenomena started only last year. The only qualifications one need possess for participation are a desire to write, work and have a good time doing it.

Order of Chessman

The Order of Chessmen Honorary was begun in 1955 on the Iowa State campus in order to give recognition to those men deemed outstanding in the Men's Residence Association and the University. Members are judged on participation, leadership and initiative. No more than .5% of the men are selected each year. The Chessmen are now helping the WRA establish a similar honorary in its own system. In addition, they send a newsletter to all former Knights of Chessmen, and they had considered challenging the Knights of St. Patrick to a canoe joust on Lake LaVerne, but since then have had second thoughts.

Towers Residence Association

Relatively speaking, the Towers Residence Association is a new entity on this campus, with the majority of the houses being established in only the past year or so.

Even so, there is a certain bond among the residents there, particularly when it comes to the long cold winter walk, which they all must share, and Lake Wallace, and Welch Avenue. They've also got their house signs and messages, created in lights or other materials, and, of course, their elevators.

The TRA is going through growing pains right now, and probably will for a while to come. It's got a model, though, to base it's actions on, perhaps with more success than had it been started with nothing but initiative. Perhaps some of the inevitable mistakes can be avoided by taking a long, hard look at the model, the MRAN.

TRA Presidential Forum

The TRA Presidential forum meets each Monday night to discuss the problems of their houses. The forum is made up of the 30 house presidents of the Towers.

At this time programs of the president and other policies are presented. Some topics under discussion were noise in the stairwells, the conduct act, and the possibility of bunk beds in the rooms.

TRA Head Residents

The thirty TRA head residents are responsible for the smooth operation of the individual houses at the Towers. These men also act as a liaison between the administration and the residences. Smooth operation was made quite difficult for the 10 head residents in Wallace hall this Fall due to the lack of necessary facilities such as hot water and elevators. HRs are selected on the basis of past performance, an interview, and recommendations for leadership and stability.

TRA Executive Council

The TRA Executive council is made up of 10 elected officers. Each officer is in charge of a separate phase of administration, such as intramurals and activities. These men met weekly to discuss the policies of the University and the TRA. They also help each other with their individual problems by giving opinions and suggestions. During the year these meetings were closed for the most part to enable candid discussions.

Ayres—Storms Hall

Ayres house is a collecting spot for campus big-whigs. This year it boasts residents such as the TRA President, Secretary-Treasurer, the M.C. of Freshman Kickoff and the Cadence editor for 1968.

It was the home of founding officers of two houses in Wallace Hall, and is now the home of the members' mascot, the drunken' bunny in the cocktail glass.

Bergman—Knapp Hall

At almost any time one can see several of the Bergman Raiders on Welch Avenue, the main route between campus and the Towers complex. The typical Raider can be recognized mainly by the fact that he isn't carrying' any books (probably because he doesn't plan to do any studying while he's at the Pizza Den.) During study hours most Raiders spend their time in independent research in such fields as human relations, speculative finance and experimental liquid nutrition.

Baker—Storms Hall

The past year brought changes and, hopefully, novel ideas to Baker House. The athletic and social aspects of life have undergone the most changes. The house entered teams in many phases of intramurals; an Athlete of the Week award was added to the house tradition to help increase participation and to recognize outstanding performances of the men. In the social line, the conventional dinner exchanges were held along with exchanges including miniature golf, singing and bowling.

Boyd–Storms Hall

Boyd House generated big plans for 1967–68. Actually, the only things carried out were the "cool ones" to the showers. Freshman enthusiasm supplied good power at the first annual bed race, but the long walk to campus soon tired them out. They also spurred the upper classmen into reconstruction of the large Panther that had sprouted wings last spring.

Few distractions kept Boyd house from those activities which keep the blushing pink color in their smiling Panther.

Cassell—Wallace Hall

Cassell house was established as a working organization during spring quarter when the founding officers drew up a workable Constitution by which to live.

When the residents arrived at Iowa State to start the academic year, they had another life ahead of them. The Social Chairman set up an active social calendar and intramurals formed a good deal of house unification.

Keen though the competition was, Cassell managed to place high in TRA Class "A" football and volleyball.

Coover—Storms Hall

Coover House almost won two more trophies for their trophy case, but, of course, almost isn't quite enough.

When not competing in athletics, the men of Coover spend much of their time on such social activities as a house formal, a toboggan party, exchanges and house dinners. In the remaining time enough studying was done to have 11 men achieve 3-points.

Starting this year with 30 new men gives the house a chance to develop lighted house signs and beat out the competition with their flashing red sign.

Dana—Wallace Hall

Named after Forrest C. Dana, former Iowa State professor of Industrial Engineering, Dana house is another of the many new houses on campus.

Although somewhat far away, members are striving to take their places in campus activities. The men have successfully supported a candidate from Dana for TRA senator to the FEG.

The intramurals football team made a good bid for Class B championship. Socially, the men have had frequent exchanges and cooperated with women's houses for orientation and house functions.

Emerson—Wallace Hall

This past year Emerson residents have distinguished themselves for having the cleanest individuals in the Towers complex. Whether this recognition is an honor depended on whether or not one happened to be a recipient of one of the many "Angel" shower parties, which usually climaxed the otherwise ho'hum business of the weekly house meetings.

Emerson teams were just short of the talent, hustle and everything else it takes to have good teams. Their athletes were never defeated because of not playing well, but many times they were just out-personelled. They're just trying to build character there anyway, so . . .

Errington – Wallace Hall

A new house, Errington, named in honor of the late Dr. Paul L. Errington, has been added to the University roll call. One of the first notable contributions of this house was the naming of "Lake Wallace," the underwater sidewalk. Other activities included active participation in football, volleyball, pocket billiards and basketball. First quarter social functions involved the house in nine scheduled exchanges of various types and a dedication dinner honoring Mrs. Errington.

Fuller – Knapp Hall

They say "dynamic versatility" best describes Fuller residents and that dozens of new programs have been put into effect. Only in its second year of existance, Fuller is one of the only houses to claim an established house honorary, honoring members for service, loyalty and leadership at the house level. Officers initiated a summer newsletter, den plaques recognizing long-time house members, a scholarship file and program, member recognition through the weekly "ma Fuller" award and a productive social and intramural calendar.

Gilman–Wallace Hall

Gilman House was colonized by six men from Storms Hall. With the arrival of freshmen and transfer students, the house became active in Orientation, hanging of an "original" sign, stocking Wallace Hall with pidgeons and having the first crew to successfully cross Lake Wallace in a canoe.

Furthermore, the house distinguished itself in its showing in intramural football, volleyball, bowling and trap shooting.

Griffith – Storms Hall

Griffith house has perhaps been busier than most, with members placing first in All-University College Bowl competition, first in scholarship in the Towers and third in the MRA, first in intramurals for the Towers and second in points per man in the MRA; all occuring during spring quarter. Members have continued intramural competition throughout the fall and winter quarters, and have added to that numerous exchanges and house activities.

Hanson – Storms Hall

"Screw" nominations closed Hanson house moves to elect the recipient of the "Royal Screw," the house award given to the favorite son for the biggest botch-up of the week. Starting three years ago, it has been customary to honor the house member with the highest grade point each quarter. He gets his name engraved on the house scholarship plaque.

Hartman—Wallace Hall

Blessed with the same handicap as the majority of the houses in the TRA, Hartman house is just too new to have established the traditions and activities possessed by MRA houses. Nevertheless, residents have established a relatively busy exchange and Homecoming calendar.

Fall quarter they held, in addition, a dedication dinner for the entire Hartman family, with dignitaries from the Department of Forestry and the Department of Residence also present.

Lancelot—Wallace Hall

It doesn't really take too long for 55 strange men to become acquainted with each other, especially if you've got a special message to deliver to the football and basketball teams and fans, intramural team and a social life supplemented by numerous exchanges.

If you were to add to this a house dedication dinner, a spring formal and participation in the Veishea Open House competition, you could have a pretty-well unified house. Lancelot has and does.

Lantz–Wallace Hall

Fall of 1967 saw the appearance of Lantz House on the campus and the challenge of adapting to life in an unfinished building. Its first year was a building year, but members felt that experience gained from FEG, intramurals and participation in Homecoming activities will prove invaluable to residents.

The men of Lantz quickly appropriated funds to purchase a color TV, which enhances the den, and provides more illustrative material.

MacRae—Knapp Hall

MacRae House was named for the late Dr. Tolbert MacRae, a former head of music at Iowa State. It tends to follow one of Dr. MacRae's interests and is activities-oriented, evidenced by the participation of the house during its first year. MacRae became the first TRA house to capture the MRA-TRA Veishea Open House Sweepstakes trophy, was a leader in establishing a house honorary, as well as a successful sister house program.

Maney—Knapp Hall

Maney house began its existence in 1966 as one of the ten houses of Knapp Hall. Since the house exists for and because of the men living in it, all activities are planned with the desires of the members of utmost importance. In keeping with this idea, parties, social exchanges and intramurals topped the list of house activities. Competition in intramurals created unity in the house and and livened many dull evenings.

McCowen–Wallace Hall

"We're not even number 2; We've got to try harder."

The unofficial motto, this missive helped build a tradition and reputation for the occupants. They had the typical problems of a house just getting on its feet, but showed up as well as some of the more established houses in collegiate activities. As early as Orientation Week they were playing an instrumental part in planning the opening street dance. As the year progressed intramurals were fielded and the inevitable house functions were held.

Murray—Knapp Hall

Ho-Ti, the Buddhist god of good luck for Murray house has emerged from Knapp Hall confines and started the house rolling, beginning by sending football, basketball, bowling and chess teams into the field of intramural battle. A favorite pasttime of Murray members is to meet between the elevators for the nightly wrestling or boxing matches, frisbie catching contests or general noise making.

Nielson—Storms Hall

Nineteen-sixty-seven marks Nielson's third year as a Towers unit of some 56 men. Occupying the fifth floor of Storms Hall, Nielson boasts three of its original colonizers as members, with freshmen forming the bulk of house membership. In recognition of worthy achievements, trophies are awarded quarterly at formal house dinners. Highest Grade Point, Most Improved Grade Point and Most Valuable Athlete are included in the award list.

Otopalik – Knapp Hall

Otopalik house is a two-year old member of the Towers Residence System. Without colonization officers, Otopalik was slow in becoming a functioning residence; but through the "devotion" of some forty freshmen, the house has made much progress.

Otopalik has sponsored the usual variety of social events ranging from hayrides to exchanges and quarterly parties. Annual inaugural dinners for officers and a steak fry are a part of the short but growing tradition of Otopalik house.

Petersen—Wallace Hall

Geographically the highest house at Iowa State, Petersen worked to establish a "top" name for itself. Beginning with the bed race victory during Orientation Week, the house stayed in front of other houses by being the first with television, first with a lighted sign, first with a house dinner and first with house stationary.

Successful intramural and social programs rounded out this phase of activities. Plus they already had a GSB Attorney General, and FEG Senator and Ag Festival greased pig winner and more.

Raymond—Storms Hall

Raymond residents have been kept busy this year both scholastically and socially. The house was third in the Towers scholastically, having risen one place each quarter during the year. It pioneered TRA social events by co-sponsoring a spring dance in the Towers dining areas.

High points included a hayride, a pizza party during the Orientation Week jumble and an all-house dinner for the first graduating senior. The house regularly enters all intramural events, last year winning two bowling trophies.

Sage – Storms Hall

With the addition of 38 new house members and an entirely new set of officers, Sage House began the year with renewed vigor. A material product of this vigor, after three years at the Towers, was the building of its first house sign. This unity was continued in an intramural program, the house formal, "April Foolishness," and two successful TRA Pacemakers.

Schmidt–Knapp Hall

Although this has only been the second year of existence, Schmidt house has already begun to earn a reputation for itself on campus. Schmidt walked off with two trophies during Veishea; their float was awarded the MRA singles division title and two Schmidt men teamed with a Birch resident in taking the canoe race championship in the mixed division.

Annual construction of a "Schmidt House" has become something of a tradition for Schmidts who are also active socially, in intramurals and in other unsanctioned activities.

Starbuck—Storms Hall

Fall quarter traditionally brought freshmen and studies, to which residents added intramural activities and a "Let It All Hang Out" dance party, and the James L. Martin Memorial Trophy, a traveling trophy awarded weekly to the member who pulls the biggest boner.

Men also added participation in the TRA dedication with a dinner for Mrs. Starbuck and an open house representing the five points of the house: senior, scholar, freshman, playboy and hangout.

Vance–Knapp Hall

During this, the second year of existence for Vance house, residents have participated in several activities. A house dedication ceremony was held in the den honoring the family of the late Thomas Vance, after whom the house was named.

Democracy is taught in the house and new members quickly learned that majority rules, especially when the selection of a TV program is brought to a vote. Vance house works as a group whether it is watching a wrestling match between the elevators or a Cyclone football game.

Wilkinson–Knapp Hall

Wilkinson house, the walk-up penthouse, provides its residents with a spectacular view plus the added luxuries of leaking ceilings and gurgling, cold water heat.

Being a studious house, the men voted down a television for the second consecutive year and concentrated their leisure hours on more cultural events. For example, a house dinner with Mrs. Margaret Lange, Social Director of the University, helped the men become better versed in the social graces. Her profound ideas were later put to actual use on Wilkinson exchanges.

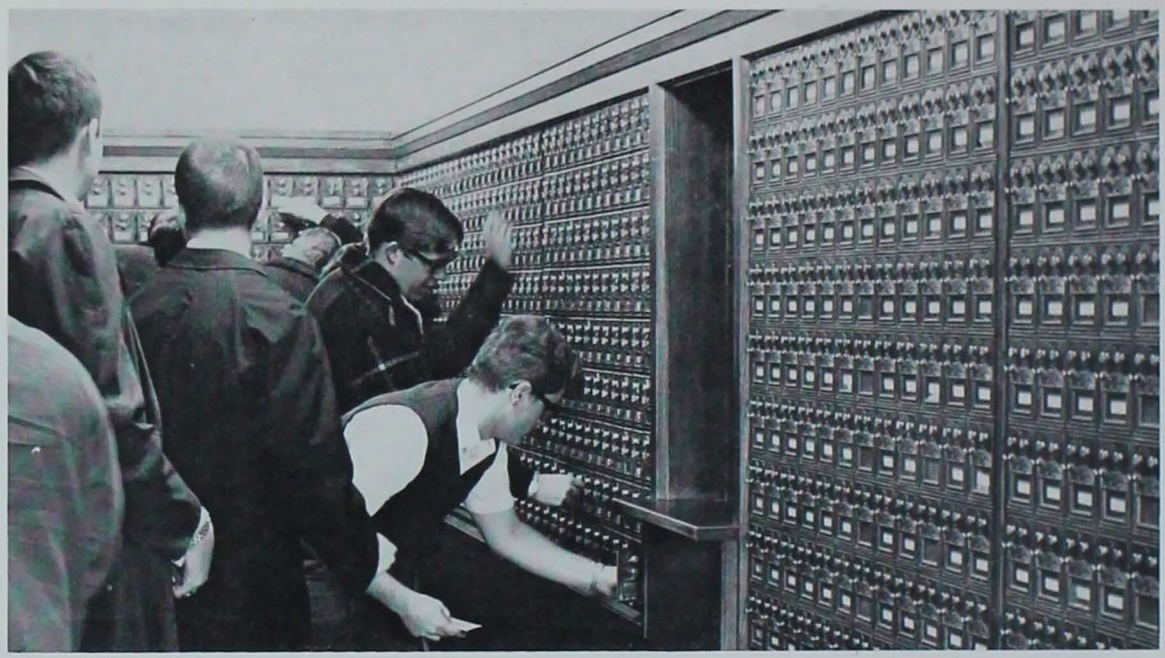
Wolf—Storms Hall

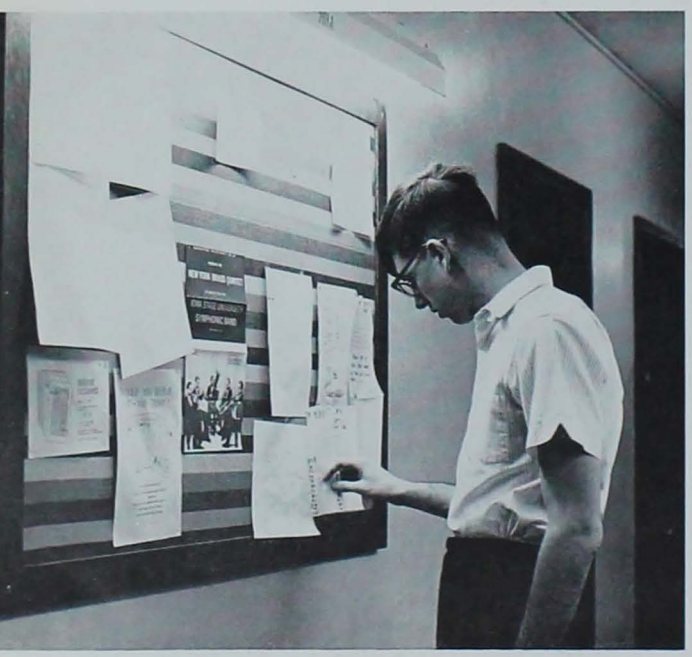
Wolf House has continually had its paw in TRA and University activities. The only house to have two signs, Storms Hall is sometimes confused with Wolf Hall from the west side.

Of the 57 members 27 are upper classmen, leading to a high degree of unification and success in intramural and social activities.

Many times the girls show up at exchanges, they say, just to see what a true wolf is really like!



MRA-TRA Split Produces Rivalries and Incentives



This year for the first time the Men's Residence Association was completely separate from the TRA. The MRA now consists of the Friley-Helser complex only.

Aside from arguing with the TRA over trivialities, the MRA has managed to accomplish a few things. Last Fall the largest orientation program in the history of the organization was initiated. The possibility of coed housing was studied in detail and it looks as though girls will be living in the newly completed Hughes house and men will be living in Welch and Roberts halls.

Perhaps the most popular accomplishment of the MRA was the development of the Open Hours Policy for men, which enables girls to be in men's rooms on weekends.

MRA Head Residents

Forty-eight men living in the Friley-Helser complex have the awesome job of acting as head resident to between forty and seventy men.

The job of these men is to act as a friend, disciplinarian, counselor, administrator, leader, and as a good example to the members of their house.

MRA Executive Council

The Executive council is the administrative branch of the MRA. The council is made up of ten officers selected from the 2400 men of the MRA.

During the past year they have written a new constitution, implimented Residence Hall Week, facilitated the guest policy, and worked out a new orientation program.

MRA Presidential Forum

The presidential forum acts as the link between the administration and the houses. The forum is composed of the presidents of each of the 44 houses in the MRA. The men meet once a week at which time they discuss current university issues. The group is influential in the making of policies for both the MRA and the university.

MRA Camera Club

The purpose of the MRA camera club is to provide facilities for film development. These facilities are used by camera bugs, photography students and individual house members for house activities. The club has approximately 35 members and is open to any member of the MRA. Meetings are regularly held at which there have been speakers from the university and slides shows on good photography.

MRA Weightlifters Club

For improvement of your health and great competition what can beat the sport of weightlifting? The 50 members of the MRA Weightlifters Club support this theory all the way. Each year the club competes in state meets and has had several champions and runners-up in weightlifting and powerlifting. On October 19 the Club sponsored a weightlifting clinic and now is working toward plans for future intercollegiate meets.

Amateur Radio Club

Radio transmitting equipment is forbidden in Iowa State dorm rooms, but once again, student ingenuity has triumphed. This group of student radio operators have developed a means by which students interested in amateur radio may follow their hobby while still living in the dorms. The result, the Cyclone Amateur Radio Club, is now in the process of building up complete transmitting and receiving facilities in order that a larger number of interested MRA members may join this organization.

Bennett—Friley Hall

Although Bennett hasn't been noted as one of the more active houses in intramurals, University or social events, they have been trying. They did participate in intramural football and came up with a third place in the All-University division. As a highlight for the house members' winter quarter, "A Walk in the Black Forest" was held in conjunction with Knapp house and Welch hall.

Beyer—Friley Hall

Beyer House has traditionally been one of the more active houses in the intramurals program. Beyer was among the top ten houses last year and has pursued a vigorous program again this year. The house social life has been encouraged by a house picinc and Halloween party as well as a Christmas party and Spring dance. The men of Beyer have shown an interest in world affairs by sending two delegations to the Iowa Model United Nations.

Brown—Helser Hall

Probably the biggest stumbling block for Brown this year was a fifty per cent turn-over in house membership. It makes it difficult for a house to do much more than be selected as one of the MRA Open houses, have a house hayride and a party at the Ledges. This isn't to say that the turn-over precludes any type of accomplishments. The house placed third in Class A football, second in Class B basketball and garnered the most intramural points fall quarter.

Carpenter—Helser Hall

The Carpenter house men continued their undefeated streak by winning the "Battle of Beef Contest" for the third year. The winners of this tug of war received steak dinners with all the trimmings. First place in the wild cow riding contest of the Cyclone Stampede was also captured by house members.

Social life this year included dinner exchanges, hayrides, and serenades. Carpenter is even represented in various University activities such as varsity athletics, the ISU marching band and the Iowa State singers.

Cessna—Friley Hall

Refusing to let their lilliputian membership danger activities, the men of Cessna charged through the year with determination and espirit de corps. Their troops boosted a favorite son to MRA Vice-president, won two bowling championships and brought home awards for Blast perticipation, One-hundred per cent GSB election participation and one of the highest grade points in the MRA. However, the highlight of the year had to be when the Sigma Phi Omicron pledges brought home "The Christmas Bush."

Chamberlain—Friley Hall

Little sister Lyon hall provided much of the social life for the men of Chamberlain house. Last spring a spring formal was held with her and throughout the year there were many exchanges. Chamberlain received recognition for having the top open house in the M.R.A. Residents also constructed a Blast booth with Welch hall. In sports Chamberlain has made a name for itself too. They came out on top in the class A bowling touranment and fought hard in intramural football and basketball.

Converse—Friley Hall

Converse Brings a Psychedelic Cyclone to Homecoming in the MRA-WRA combination lawn display, Fasmark and Converse won the third place trophy. The enthusiasm of the freshmen was largely responsible for this success. Converse displayed some talent in the academic sphere as well. Last winter quarter Converse was in the top ten of the MRA.

Davidson—Helser Hall

For the third time out of the four years since it was chartered, Davidson House won the honor of creating the Veishea Queen of Queens Float and representing Iowa State at Drake Relays. Davidson men excelled in intramural sports, including bowling, volleyball, basketball, football, handball, archery, and billards. The men enjoyed an "exciting" social year which was highlighted by the annual formal, "Snowbound", at the Boone Country Club. The year was culminated by a stag steak fry.

Dodds—Friley Hall

Dodds house is perhaps one of the busiest houses in the M.R.A. The house initiated two new traditions during the year. The H.R. invited faculty members to speak on varied subjects, and initiated an Open House policy. "Mancini on the Move" was the title of the Dodds-Sims Veishea float. In intramurals, Dodds was first in class B bowling, second in the Battle of the Beef contest, third in trapshooting, and first in co-rec volleyball.

Elwood—Helser Hall

The men of Elwood took a more active part in Homecoming '67 than some and built a display with Miller house. Intramural participation is strongly concentrated on volleyball and basketball. Elwood teams are defending champions in class A volleyball, and runner-up in the class A basketball.

Fairchild—Friley Hall

The men of Fairchild, after being split up Spring quarter, returned to bright new living quarters this fall. A completely renovated Hughs hall was a welcome sight. To show off their new home an open house was held for parents and other guests on Parents Weekend. The renewed spirit continued with plans to hold a house formal which had proved so very successful the previous two years, along with the regular intramural and social programs.

Firkins—Helser Hall

The 1966–67 school year was a profitable one for the members of Firkins house. Firkins was chosen as the Number one house in the M.R.A. The men of Firkins combined with Turner house to build the second place Homecoming lawn display in the MRA-WRA division. Winter quarter was climaxed by the House formal, "Snow Bound," and the winning of the first Snow Sculpture contest with one giant snow woman. Spring quarter saw the building of Veishea float, "The Progress of Courtship."

Foster—Helser Hall

Foster House helped cupid last winter with their winter formal "Our Winter Love", as well as with the usual exchanges plus a hayride. Both intramural and activity jocks brought honor to the house. Foster won class B in volleyball, and second place in the M.R.A. open house. Scholastically Foster House was competing for the bottom spot in the residence grade point rankings, however, several men did become good card players, excellent prograstinators about studying, and experts on T.V. watching. May was Foster clean-up month; all 54 men were thrown into the showers.

Franklin—Friley Hall

A new Hughes hall awaited the men of Franklin upon their return to ISU this fall. Because of the renovation, many of the house activities were broken up during Spring quarter. However, they did participate in intramurals and enjoyed (?) a house dinner and the fourth annual steak fry. This year Franklin displayed more unity than ever by building a Homecoming lawn display and participating in many exchanges (mostly verbal). Some of this unity was displayed in the turnout for the house picture.

Fulmer—Helser Hall

Exchanges are the main social activity of the men of Fulmer house. They have had dinner and picnic exchanges throughout the year. Last spring the men had a steak fry and participated in the canoe races for Veishea. The house also enters almost every intramural activity offered and studies a lot, making it fifth in the MRA Fall quarter.

Godfrey—Friley Hall

Intelligence is abundant in Godfrey house. This has been proven by their grade point fall quarter. Godfrey was number one in the MRA scholastically. Athletically the Godfrey men have done outstanding in all intramurals in which they have participated. They won the Class A championship in basketball last Spring.

Haber—Helser Hall

Through a series of exchanges the men of Haber have won a sister, namely Walls house in Maple hall. With their sister the men held a formal, "Avalanche", this Winter. On the social scene this year Haber has also had a hayride and a party at the 4-H camp. The house is quite active in intramurals including bowling, volleyball, basketball, softball, billiards, and handball. Haber boasts the individual handball champ and a second in class B volleyball for Fall quarter.

Halsted—Helser Hall

Halsted's most outstanding effort of the past year was the wooing, but perhaps not winning, of McGlade house in Elm as a little Sis. This fall Halsted's name was put on campus with a new house sign. The yellow-gold Old English letters make theirs one of the finest house signs on campus. Fall activities included a serenade, the annual Homecoming "Woodsie", and a night of "Pumkin Caroling" with the houses little Sis.

Harriman—Friley Hall

This fall the men of Harriman house were finally able to return to the newly remodeled Hughes hall. The new facilities along with a new color television purchased by the men should help to make Harriman the showplace of the M.R.A. as soon as the curtains arrive from Belgium. The men feel things are definitely looking up for Harriman.

Kimball—Friley Hall

The men of Kimball started the new year by buying the auctioneer and a Woodsie with Vollmer House in their support of the Blast Auction. The auctioneer was used at a house auction exchange. Social activities included dinner exchanges, a hayride, a spring party, and eating at the annual steak fry. Intramurally, they came on strong with three football teams, five basketball teams, three bowling teams along with teams in softball, volleyball, golf, and the turkey trot. Other activities included the biannual sign of "Screw Mizzou."

Jones—Helser Hall

Homecoming brought the advent of a tremendous display by the men of Jones house. This display was constructed and designed entriely by these industrious boys. The display even received an award in the combination division. Other activities of this excitng house include such things as house parties and canoe races. Athletically the house has entered several intramural activities including volleyball, in which they were class C champs, and basketball.

Knapp—Friley Hall

Knapp House's trophy case received another addition as Knapp with Linden Hall won first place in the MRA-WRA Homecoming lawn display. Intramurals saw the MRA Turkey Trot champions race their way to a berth in the quarterfinals of class A basketball and the semifinals of class A volleyball. The annual winter formal with Welch Hall rounded out a full social calendar, which included a woodsie bought from Durian House at Blast Auction and a winter sleigh ride. A new experience was the House's coordination of the MRA Veishea Events and the MRA dance (Checkmate).

Lange—Friley Hall

Lange house hasn't remained idle this past year but has been quite active. Although definitely not blazing a path of glory, their athletes played the field and fared well in wrestling, volleyball and bowling.

Lange's claim to glory came fall quarter upon receiving the Theme and Performance Trophy for their Blast booth, "The River Palace". Although failing to match the first place scholarship record set in the fall of 1966. Lange house managed to win fifth place in the MRA spring quarter.

Lincoln—Friley Hall

Highlighting the past year for the men of Lincoln house were the house auction held last Spring and a Blast booth which they constructed with Turner house. These are highlights of the houses' restricted social life, restricted referring to house parties and exchanges.

Another achievement for the house was a class B volleyball championship which it captured last Spring.

Lindstrom—Friley Hall

The best things come in small packages certainly applies to Lindstrom House. Lindstrom has exibited much vigor, entertainment, unity, and study throughout the year. House parties at the 4-H camp and a pizza and bowling party were popular. Week end parties were also well attended judging from early morning sounds in the hall. Exchanges with Roberts, Oak and Linden got the freshman off to a good start this fall.

A strong interest in intramurals was shown when the thirty five men of Lindstrom entered two basketball teams, two volleyball teams, two bowling teams, a football team and a softball team. Lindstrom participated in ping pong, wrestling, and handball and won the spring MRA bowling championship, and placed fifth in scholarship in the MRA fall quarter.

Livingston—Helser Hall

The Men of Livingston are proud of their modest record of achievements. Being a house which supports intramural activities, Livingston has finished in second and third place in numerous divisions.

The Men of Livingston are constantly striving to achieve the well rounded experiences college life possesses. However, being a modest house, the members feel that most of their accomplishments, in this and other endeavors, would best be left unpublished.

Louden—Helser Hall

Although Louden residents "sat on their haunches" for most of the last three quarters, both scolastically and socially, they did pull class B and D basketball championships out of the intramural bag. They also got the house named the second most outstanding house in the MRA, in addition to being named the intramural points champ in all-round points. Each quarter, socially, the house holds a house party, as well as a hayride in the fall.

MacDonald–Helser Hall

MacDonald House is a house of tradition. The house opened 1966 with its annual orientation picnic at the Ledges, and the BANG of a firecracker in the H.R.'s room. Beauty and brawn played significant roles in the house's activities. The House's Winter Cotillion candidate was a Queen's attendant and Bomb Beauty. MacDonald was also active in intramurals having teams placing first in swimming, both quarters; first in archery; and first in bowling in its respective class. These efforts gave MacDonald third place in total intramural points.

Meeker–Friley Hall

Meeker started the year off right with six exchanges and a seranade during orientation week. Soon afterwards, new officers were elected to fill posts vacated and at the end of spring quarter. Blast saw Meeker overcome determined opposition in acquiring the Durian House Spook Party. Then there was their own Psychedelic Party at Lynn Fuhrer. Revision of the House Constitution was begun, and House seranade practices were organized. In Intramurals, the men showed great interest as they entered strong teams in most major sports.

Merrill–Helser Hall

Merrill house doesn't do much, although they have entered intramurals and racked up enough points to make them 10th in the MRA for total intramural points for Fall quarter.

On the social side the house had a house party in the Spring and a hayride this Fall. The house does plan to have some exchanges. However the house is quite busy watching their new color TV.

Mortenson–Helser Hall

Although Mortenson isn't a house that is noted for activities, the men have participated in a few things.

For example, Spring quarter the house played football but lost. However, house exchanges were held and a sister house, Vollmer, was wooed and won. Not only that but, a new house sign was built and displayed for Homecoming '67.

Niles—Friley Hall

Niles house is the home of the top trap shooters of the M.R.A. The question is; "What are they shooting at?"

House activities the past year have centered on parties. Spring quarter the annual house formal was held. While both Fall and Winter were marked by numerous parties. The men of Niles also built a Veishea float and a Blast booth and participating in numerous intramural activities.

Noble—Friley Hall

"A Helping Hand to Progress" was the Veishea theme of Noble house and Durian in their first place small-combination float last spring.

Working to promote house unity, Noble encourages participation in activities and intramurals for their upperclassmen and new members. One result was that a largely freshman team came up with a win in the class C bowling tournament. In furthering tradition, Noble men are laying plans for Veishea activities and the tenth consecutive year of sponsoring the MRA Inaugral Banquet.

Norman—Helser Hall

The men of Norman house tackled the problem of intramural football quite well coming up with the championship in MRA football. Veishea and Blast were a little better for the float and booth contributed by Norman house. Perhaps you remember their outstanding efforts. On the social scence the house enjoys having parties and thus indulges itself frequently. Last Spring the men even planned a formal.

Pearson—Friley Hall

Although it may not have had the most active social calendar of the MRA, Pearson house has had an active intramural program. The house has come up with firsts in: Class A bowling, Class B softball and Class C volleyball. Socially, the men have a number of hayrides and even a house party at the 4-H lodge in Boone. As far as University events are concerned, Pearson competed in and won first in the novelty division of the MRA float competition.

Richey—Helser Hall

Although Richey is very poor in bowling, the house excells in other athletics. They have some great runners. These runners caught the pig in the Greased Pig contest, captured the MRA softball championship, and placed second in Spring track.

A formal this Winter was the highlight of the Richey social calendar. The house also held a keg party and a street dance.

Spinney—Friley Hall

Spinney house is a very versatile house. They excell in scholarship, making the top ten list for the entire year including a third place fall quarter. In intramurals the house is quite active although they are not as outstanding as they are scholastically in that they could only come up with a lower class win in foobtall this fall. Other activities of the house included a Pub for Veishea, a Luau in the Spring and a Blast Booth.

Stalker—Helser Hall

"In The Nick O'Time" Stalker House with Sullivan House joined together for Blast and shaved their way to receiving a trophy for best Pre-Blast Publicity. Two men are currently serving on the MRA Executive Council.

Stalker House, Citadel of the MRA, claims the distinction of being one of the few houses with no TV—the men go out for intramurals, have open houses, exchanges, and parties instead of sitting around the tube.

Stange—Friley Hall

Stange house began its activity filled year with a series of orientation exchanges. These were followed by a "War of the Future" booth at Blast, a Homecoming lawn display (a magnificent mechanical marvel), several fun-filled house parties, and numerous intramural and sports activities.

In short, no matter what the occasion, the men of Stange house follow their sweatshirt motto—"Stange House Tries Harder"!

Stanton—Friley Hall

Intramurals and exchanges are the two words that are met with enthusiasm by the men of Stanton. The men have participated in just about every intramural activity on campus. However, they did make the records only once as MRA softball champs last Spring.

Stevenson—Friley Hall

Stevenson house has been active this year in intramural bowling, football, and softball.

The house also created a homecoming display, "Trip 'em Up". The display featured a psychedelic theme and took second place in the novelty division.

Stewart—Helser Hall

Card playing is the main activity of Stewart house. They have mastered the art. Other activities of the house include hayrides, exchanges, and picnics.

As far as intramurals are concerned the men enter just about every intramural activity offered on campus.

Woodrow—Helser Hall

The men of Woodrow house have been quite active in intramural activities, having participated in volleyball, chess, bowling, tennis, and basketball. Unfortunately their record is not too good, but last Spring the house did come up with a win. It took Veishea canoe race sweepstakes.

During the year the house held numerous dinner exchanges, some of which proved fruitful.

WARD SYSTEM

A week with the Ward System is jam-packed with responsibilities as well as pleasures. At least twenty five per cent of Ward System members are either elected or appointed to a position of significant importance. This trains the individuals in leadership and cooperation with others.

This was exemplified by the execution of such projects as the Blast booth, the IBM dance, Varieties and intramurals. Madame La San Da and her gypsy fortune tellers created a mysterious atmosphere for the Blast booth. Tea leaves, palms, cards and stars provided the media for a look into the awesome future.

The computer played cupid for the IBM dance. It mixed and matched until it organized close to 1,000 lonely students into "happily-ever-after" love matches. Some of the more talented Tau Ward System dances are held every couple of weeks. Some people even go.

Through the Ward system the men and women have a chance to participate competitively in one or more of their favorite sports throughout the year.

The Ward System was organized in 1930 and 1931 to give its members:

1. An active part in all campus activities and organizations.
2. Constructive use of each individual's talents and ambitions.
3. Better housing conditions.
4. A complete program of organized intramural athletic competition.
5. Training in group ledership and cooperation.
6. Channels through which students may meet and make friends.
7. Training in manners and customs.
8. Training in the appreciation of moral and social standards.
9. An organized social program.

The Ward system is divided into four wards: North, South and East wards for the men and Tau Gamma for the women. Each ward has its own officers who run their individual ward's business. These officers are coordinated by an executive council, elected by all the ward members, and the presidents and vice-president of each ward.

ALUMNI HALL

Alumni Hall, an independent undergraduate house for men, was conducted by student advisors. Jerry Bever, head advisor; Tom Smith, freshmen advisor; and Denny Kinittig and Gary Speicher, third floor advisors.

This year Rick Johnson, Steve Jordening, Larry Bruxvoort, Al Armbrecht, Ivan Johnson, Lee Coffman, and Larry Dahms won the Class A MRA-TRA Basketball Championship.

We also played intramural softball, football, volleyball, track and entered individual's contests. Several serenades were sung before the men's chorus performance in Sinfonia.

With the float building for Veishea, Blast Booth, Ankeny Country Club Formal, Varieties, Spring Banquet honoring our seniors, we have remained scholastically within the top 10% of the men's residences.

ACTIVITIES

CONSERVATIVES
I'M BACKING REAGAN

As index editor, Kathy Emmert butchered several "herd" books confirming the spelling of names, not to mention checking the existence of C. C. Rider, Hugh Betcha, etc.

Jolly Joie Winter discovered that being photo editor wasn't such a fun job afterall, but due to her "tight" scheduling all the activities and residence pictures were taken, and retaken and. . . .

If editorial assistance was needed, Mr. Johnson was always willing to help, but he rarely came into the office since the cookie jar was never full.

Coordinating the names and activities of the 1500 graduating seniors was the responsibility of seniors editor Audrey Johnson.

Bomb Portrays Contrasts in University Life

After the disappearance of our copy editor and all the copy, Judy Jahnke had the awesome task of re-accumulating the information and writing the missing copy.

To simply record the year's activities is not sufficient; a yearbook must attempt to portray the different aspects of university life and capture the many contrasts in student activities, moods, and ideals, allowing each person to be reminded of his own experiences.

It is impossible to explain to outsiders what goes into producing the Bomb, or what it requires of the staff members. Time and grade points are only superficial measures of the expense and the intangibles are by far the most important, both in terms of costs and rewards. The '68 staff was like no other. It had more than its share of problems which ranged from a completely inexperienced editor to the loss of most of the copy. When our copy editor found the calling of wedding bells stronger than that of writing copy, she moved promising to mail the remainder of the copy. These last vital shipments apparently were lost by the post office and thus the story ends. We also had the usual moments of excitement, along with an excess amount of despair.

In spite of the many complications, we did manage to produce a book using as our motto, "Better late than never," and to incorporate a few

The '68 Staff Thanks All Who Have Helped

changes in the process. Perhaps the most noticeable, at least to the juniors, was a buck charge for this asthetic masterpiece. This stemmed from a difference in views between the Bomb Publications Board and the evil E.B.C. On the positive side, the changes included an increase in the number of color pictures and the addition of 32 more fun-packed pages.

In an attempt to make the book more readable, the page layout was rearranged placing the sections which are of interest to the majority of the students first. Perhaps one of our bigger mistakes was agreeing to give each of the residence houses space for copy. After much prodding from the residence editor, all the copy was finally submitted. However, much to our surprise they began to read like carbon copies. Wade through a few and see what we mean.

The staff would like to extend a special note of thanks to all those who helped in making the Bomb of 1968 what it is. And as a final note, to those who have inquired, "How is the Bomb?" Gary Hodson, Editor, can finally reply, "It's finished and so am I!"

Many Believe Daily Hatches From Under Rock

According to the usually authoritative GSB Code-a-Phone, better known as Crackpot-a-Phone, 93 percent of the members of Otopalik House believe the Daily hatches under a rock each morning just outside the Leaning Towers of the Chicken Farm. It's about time this vicious rumor was ruthlessly stamped out. The Daily is born out of confusion, wrathful oathes, veiled threats, cringing 222 students', antique typewriters and molded by fearless editors who fondle lovebeads and cookies bought with EBC funds, while William Randolph Hearst posters stare down from Bactine-colored walls.

It is also not true that there are an inordinately large number of mistakes in the Daily. It's all a plot to fill up little nooks and crannies in the Daily with corrections because nothing else will fit there and blank spaces look funny in a newspaper, although they could be designated as doodling space.

The Daily got rid of its circa 1926 flatbed, web perfecting, Duplex press—it got a bit part in Gut-

Each morning, groggy-eyed reporters persue their assignments for the day and sometime, between classes, write the great American news story, or at least they hope.

Daily Circulation Increases From 9,500 to 13,500

enberg Meets Hercules' Unchained Brother-in-law. You'll be able to tell the difference because the photography doesn't look like it was done in driving rain at dawn with a Brownie Twinkflash. Every night the Daily copy makes the trip to the Jeffereson Bee and Herald (can you believe that) to be printed and back to your doorstep, all the while fighting off bands of Iowa State Conservatives who want to stop the SDS stories and bands of SDS members who want to stop the Conservaties' stories. The Daily thoughtfully increased its circulation from 9,500 to 13,500 to give everyone something to fight about and added a crossword for those with short classroom-attention spans.

CARDINAL KEY

The Cardinal Key honors outstanding junior and senior men. The men are judged and selected by senior members of the previous year on the basis of outstanding leadership, service, and character. The honorary, formed in 1926, recognizes these men for their outstanding contribution to the university. This is the highest honor that can be conferred on an Iowa State man.

Cardinal Key members organize the annual Leadership Day banquet and sell graduation announcements before Commencement.

The ISU 4-H club is a major part of the lives of approximately 150 ISU students. These students are active throughout the year in various service projects and self improvement programs. In preparation to send out recreation deputation teams to instruct groups in recreation, the club sponsored a lecture on leading and workshops. Other programs during the year included a project on emergency preparedness and one on creativity. A social function is held each quarter and a banquet for the election of officers is a yearly event. The majority of members are former 4-H members however the club is open to any interested student.

Iowa State Players

Have you seen a good play lately? There is a strong possibility that it was presented by the Iowa State Players. Each year the Players present three plays. This year the plays were "Arsenic and Old Lace," "My Sweet Charlie," and "Tartufft." In addition to their regular activities the club traveled to the Tyron Guthrie theater this year where they viewed three plays. The players also awarded the best Varieties skit, and the most outstanding actor in aVrieties.

The members are selected on the basis of points earned through work on productions.

Student Properties Board

The Iowa State Student Properties Board was started in 1945 by Iowa State College students as a non-profit organization. The original capital was supplied by the University, and now the board has a net worth of roughly $7,000.

Members of the board supply the lighting and backdrops for various parties and University functions.

Naiads Show Features 'Rawhide' Theme

Naiads is a swimming club organized to promote swimming as an aquatic art corresponding to ballet. The club is composed of approximately 35 members of which 6 are men. Each spring the club puts on a water show. This year the show featured a western theme, "Rawhide." Naiads also sponsor a service project.

The members made rhythm instruments for the patients of the Story County hospital for this year's project. As a member of the International Academy of Aquatic Arts the ISU Naiads is eligible to participate in festivals held throughout the country. Last spring 6 members attended one such festival at Dekalb, Ill.

The majority of a Naiad's life is spent in the water preparing for the Spring show.

Pep Council Sponsored Athlete of the Week

The purpose of Pep council is to promote school spirit and to act as a liaison between the student body and the administration. The council is divided into 5 areas; central committee, mike man, cheerleaders, Cy, and pom pom girls.

This year the council has sponsored the Athlete of the Week program, and little Cy in addition to another card section failure.

The council is the main organizer of migration, a Veishea display, and all projects to promote school spirit.

Mortar Board

This year marked the 50th anniversary of Mortar Board at Iowa State. This highest national university honorary annually taps senior women, during Veishea opening ceremonies, who are outstanding in scholarship, leadership, character and service. These women promote the qualities mentioned; they award a senior woman who might have been in Mortar Board and hold a Recognition Luncheon for outstanding freshman and sophomore women. They also work jointly on a special project, in which problems facing women on the Iowa State campus are analyzed.

Radio Workshop

This year the students of Radio Workshop completed their second year with the "Christmas Living Letter" project which involved families and friends of servicemen using Telecommunicative Arts facilities to record Christmas messages for servicemen unable to be home during the holidays. On February 6, 1968, the Des Moines Ad Club presented an "Addy" to the Workshop project citing the "excellence in publicity and public relations" throughout the project. In addition to this project, Radio Workshop offers the student a chance to train and gain experience in the areas of production, direction, program continuity, and technical skills. Student programs are broadcast on WOI-AM during the academic year. This year marked the beginning of a series of training sessions with KASI Radio Station, which involved exposure to a commercial radio station and the use of their broadcast equipment.

SPAN

Interested in going to Peru, Germany, Japan? Join Span and see the world. Span is a program for individual study abroad. Each year a group of students from ISU travels to a country during the summer. Last summer they went to Peru. The students spent two months working on a project of their choice and one month traveling throughout Peru. They lived with families in the country. The trip is financed by the travelers and also by projects here at ISU such as a faculty talent show, and a candy sale. Upon returning from Peru the students wrote a paper about their projects and their exciting summer.

Phi Eta Sigma

Phi Eta Sigma is a freshmen men's honorary which is open to any student who has a 3.5 cummulative grade point average at some time during his freshman year.

The honorary sponsors a scholarship each year for a graduating senior who is a member of Phi Eta Sigma planning to enter graduate school. They also award a trophy each quarter to the house with the highest freshman gradepoint. A smoker and banquet are held each year for the members.

MILITARY

Scabbard and Blade, 'Black Berets' Are Prestige Groups

The 275 members of the Army ROTC Brigade work hard to gain the gold bars of a second lieutenant, but they take time for pleasure, too.

Many award ceremonies are interspersed throughout the year, honoring scholastic ability as well as skill in military subjects. Often, these awards are presented by the company, battalion and brigade sponsors, whose presence always seems to "shape up" the appearance of the cadets.

The ROTC extracurricular activities also provide ways for the cadets to enjoy themselves while improving their proficiency. Among the various military organizations, the one with the highest prestige is Scabbard and Blade, which sponsors the annual Military Ball.

Col. Vern L. Joseph, Professor of Military Science, is responsible for all training given to the cadets.

AFROTC Builds Leaders

"The next guy that steps on my spit-shine is going to get it!"

Lt. Col. Paul Von Wiedenfield directs the various AFROTC activities.

The Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps is a program designed to instruct future officers in the military. The cadets are trained in the procedures and intricacies of military life.

The ISU Air Force ROTC will provide flight instruction to all qualified cadets. Instruction is given with 36 hours of flying time logged.

Social functions of AFROTC include the Air Force Ball and the Military Ball.

Many Books and Little Water in NROTC Training Here

Although there is not to much water in the State of Iowa, ISU has a fairly large branch of the Navy Reserve Officers Training Corps.

The purpose of the Corps is to instruct future Naval officers in naval education. The NROTC does not confine its work to bookwork alone.

They have a fine drill team, which acted as honor guard for such events as Homecoming, a Drum and Bugle Corps, and a Rifle team.

Angel Flight

Angel flight is an honorary service organization sponsored by Arnold Air. The girls are selected each year through a formal rush.

The purpose of the organization is to learn about and promote Air Force ROTC. Each year the girls work on a service project and usher at the concerts. Angel Flight girls are the official hostesses of the University.

Arnold Air

Arnold Air is an honorary service organization affiliated with Air Force ROTC. The purpose of the organization is to give the Air Force cadet an incite into what the military is really like. Men are selected on the basis of individual achievement.

The organization has worked with Angel Flight as ushers at University concerts and other functions. The men have also gained experience in the military and have had speakers throughout the year.

Pershing Rifles

To qualify for membership in Pershing Rifles, a national honorary military organization, one must be a cadet in good standing in any of the three ROTC units on campus. Company G-2, one of 149 Pershing Rifle companies, was founded at Iowa State in 1948. It has been the custom of the organization to act as Color Guard at football and basketball games, to provide 24-hour a day guards for the Veishea torch and act as ushers at concerts and other functions.

Dress Blues

Hup two three, hup two three are familiar words to the members of Dress Blues, a competitive drill and service organization affiliated with Pershing Rifles. The purpose of the organization is to compete with other girls of the second regiment and to acquire a knowledge of the military.

Although the group has not competed as yet, they did participate in band day, a drill for Moose Lodge, and Veishea. The girls also were hostesses at military functions and wrote letters to service men.

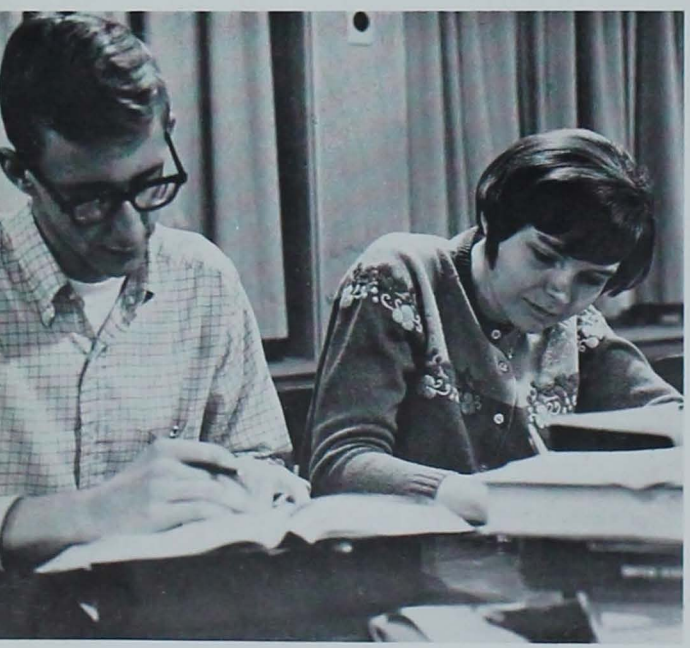
Gamma Delta



Formed in 1934, Iowa State's Theta chapter of Gamma Delta has since grown to be one of the three largest chapters.

It is a Lutheran Student organization formed to encourage Lutherans to participate in their church; to study and understand the Word of God as it pertains to Christian vocations; to aid integration in campus life; and to stimulate and facilitate Christian discipleship.

The group supports students in the ministry in foreign lands and sends "goodies" to a company of soldiers in Viet Nam at Christmas and St. Valentine's Day.

Iowa State's Gamma Delta was selected to host the International Board of Governors of Gamma Delta this fall.

Lectures, Seminars, Small Study Groups Occupy ULC

University Lutheran Congregation, a student church, is composed of students of the ALC/LCA. Worship which is the chief celebration of the week, gathers students in the chapel, often referred to as the "Holy Hex," because of its unique architecture. The ministry throughout the week comes alive in Sunday evening lecture discussions; weekly seminars dealing with relevant issues in the life of the student; small study, service, social divisions within the congregation called cell groups; counselling; and interaction with friends in the relaxed atmosphere of the center.

In the course of the year ULC is actively working through retreats, social action trips, Christou Canoe, (a program of camping), Friendly Town (an ecumenical service project) and Smorgasbord, the Scandinavian feast held in the spring.

The University Lutheran choir is composed entirely of students and adds a great deal to each service.

ISU Newmans Rated Second in United States

Newman Association, the Catholic Youth Group, provides fellowship in Christ and strives to meet the needs of its members. The college chapter has been rated second in the United States among Catholic youth groups and its many activities support this decision. Four Christian Formation Weekends provided the student with the opportunity to realize his role as a student as well as the community aspect of Christianity. A closed retreat was also held at Cedar Falls. This was a time of personnal evaluation and thought. Social functions are not overlooked by the Newman with dances, hayrides and coffee hours sponsored regularly. The center itself is run by the students and is always available to them for studying or just socializing.

The Newman Center is a good place to socialize.

Wesley Foundation Offers Fellowship and Service

Refreshments add enjoyment to a gathering of Wesley Foundation members.

An active and worthwhile organization at ISU since 1918 is the Wesley Foundation, Student branch of the Collegiate Methodist Church. The foundation is composed of five groups varying in both age and interests, but all striving for fellowship. The members participated in parties at halloween and Christmas, plus the annual retreats, hayrides, and study groups. Guest speakers also spoke on many topics ranging from controversial subjects to student centered items.

UCCM Challenges Members To Move Toward Unity

The United Campus Christian Ministry is an ecumenical organization representing five churches in campus; American Baptist, First Christian (Disciples), United Presbyterian, Church of Christ, and Evangelical United Bretheren. The organization feels that it is the Christians duty to be involved and informed on what is going on in the world and that through this involvement he will become a better Christian. UCCM has followed this philosophy of involvement to the letter. UCCM has held study groups and student confrontations throughout the year. As the result of lectures by well known Thelogians sponsored by UCCM and the Catholics, theological discussions were held on campus with the faculty. Along with the Catholics the UCCM has also begun a new publication called the Heretic. The group also sent representatives to a United Christian Movement conference in Cleveland over the Christmas holidays.

Young Women's Christian Association

Offering opportunities for developing leadership, creative thinking and a Christian life is the Young Women's Christian Association. Under the supervision of Miss Claudia Johnson, the organization's first full time director, membership has increased to over a hundred. Emphasis was on service this year as the girls traveled weekly to Woodward State Hospital as well as helping a group of retarded Campfire Girls. Three conferences were held this season in conjunction with other campus organizations. "Sex and Selfhood", "Nitti Gritti on the Pill", and "The Image of Woman" provided interesting discussions for the ISU coed.

Young Men's Christian Association

Contributing much to the student body this year was the Young Men's Christian Association. They sponsored three conferences entitled "Sex and Selfhood" "The Problem of Dissent", and "Central Africa". Again this year the Y was responsible for many service projects. Project Help provided tutors on the junior high level and the newly initiated Pal program offered intensive help to problem children. The Y catacombs was a source of entertainment with plays, folk groups and poets highlighting the year. Twenty eight members traveled to New York and Washington this spring. In the fall, Frosh weekend hosted two hundred men in an organized retreat.

Canterbury Club

The Cantebury club is an Episcopalian student group for Iowa State students. The organization attempts to relate the students Episcopal Christian faith to the world and campus life by providing opportunities in service to the church and the world. During the year members raised money by sponsoring a sports car rally. The club also conducted a variety of study programs on subjects related to the Episcopal church. The major concern this year has been Christian ethiscs in relationship to the current issues and social problems.

Christian Science Organization

The Christian Science Organization at Iowa State is a group of students and faculty members which meets regularly to consider how an understanding of God is meaningful in one's college experience. The organization holds weekly meetings which include readings from the Bible and Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy, and testimonies of the successful application of Christianly scientific thought to college life. Each year the Organization sponsors a Christian Science lecture, to which all students and faculty members are invited.

Reformed Principles Are Basis of UCRC Student Groups

The main task of the Council on Religion is coordinating the activities of the various religious groups on campus.

The Council is open to all church groups that serve the students and faculty on campus. It's activities start each year with a freshman orientation held during the summer for both new students and their parents to familiarize them with the religious groups and their activities on campus.

They also provide lectures throughout the year conducted by their members, outside speakers, and programs concerned with religion in today's society.

The Council on Religion listens as Dean Robinson speaks on their relationship to the University.

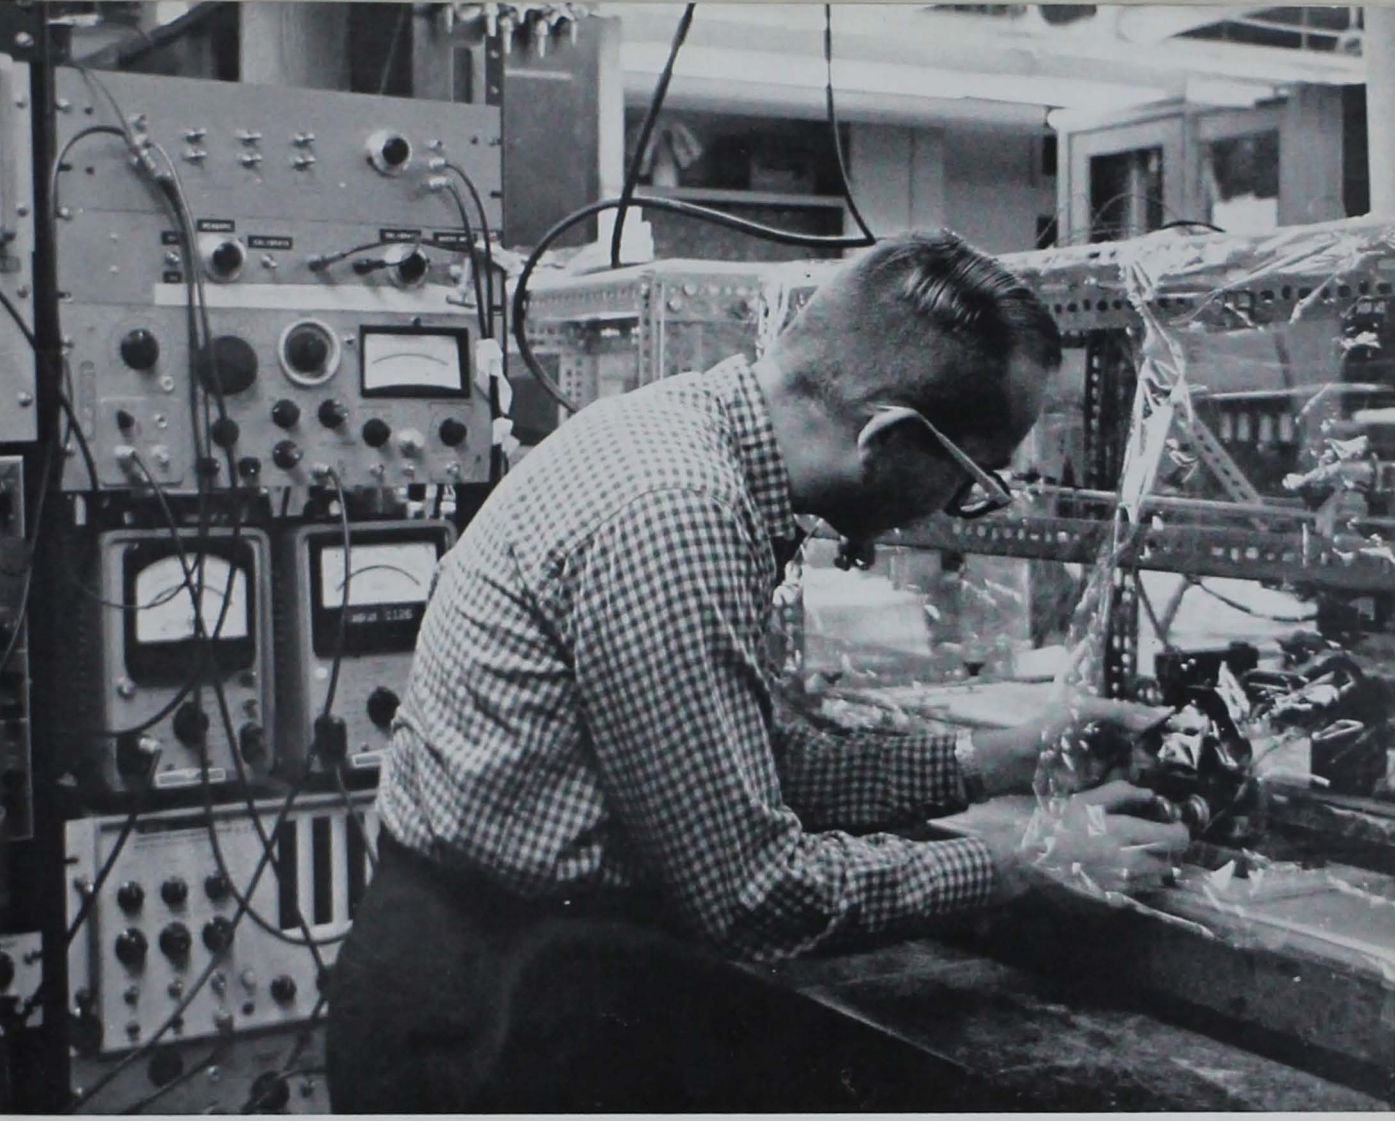
Council on Religion Leads Activities of Campus Group

Religious worship according to reformed principles is the basic purpose of this group, whose first meeting was held in 1961. The membership is responsible for regular Sunday morning worship and evening supper fellowships, as well as an orientation party in September and a Christmas party.

This is an organization of the University Christian Reformed Church.

COLLEGES



Alf Alfie Publicizes Agriculture Hall of Fame

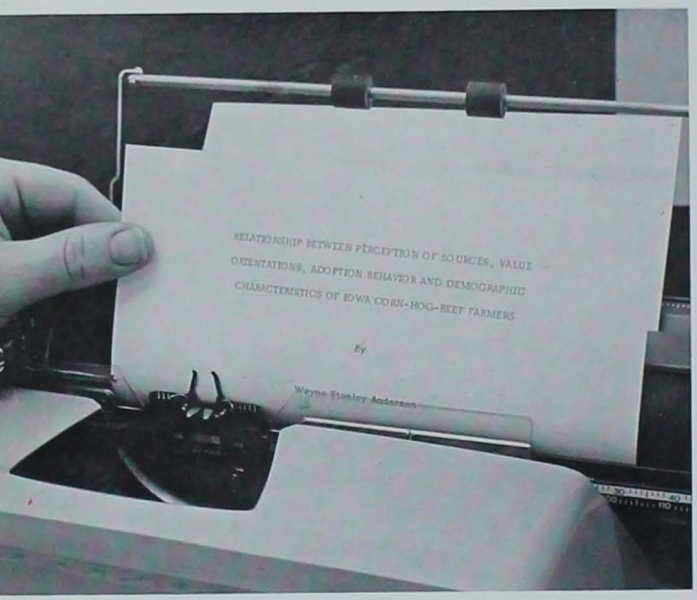
Dean Floyd Andre knows the problems and reward of being the dean of the largest College of Agriculture in the nation.

The College of Agriculture is concerned not only with food production, its marketing and distribution, but is also concerned with the utilization of land and water resources for forestry, recreation, fish and wildlife, and for urban development. This broad based program in agriculture and resource development has caused the College of Agriculture enrollment to grow faster than the enrollment in the University as a whole since 1962. The College of Agriculture continues to be the largest in the nation. In 1967 the Agriculture Council initiated its Fall Festival, designed to increase interest and prestige for the college. Festivities included an all-University Bar-B-Q which was attended by 1200 people and an all-University convocation with congressman William Scherle as speaker. The college also began an Iowa Agriculture Hall of Fame. The publicity figure for the event was Alf Alfie, the stereotyped farmer image.

Jl.); Dexter French (Biochem. and Biophysics); John Hinrichsen (Sociology and Penthropology).

An Agriculturist staff member methodically cranks out copy for the upcoming issue.

Agriculturists are still trying to solve the age old problem—"Which came first."



And to think this grad used to feel he had too many papers when he was an undergrad in the Ag college!

The mighty oak symbolizes the strength of Iowa State's Agriculture College.

Horse judging highlights one section of Little International, a chance for students to show their abilities in judging and showmanship.

Little International Sponsors Milk Maid Contest

Little International, sponsored by Iowa State's Block and Bridle Club, judges student showmanship of livestock.

The animals are worked with for three days prior to the competition and then shown. The show is designed to interest freshmen in such activities but all contestants are welcome.

An added attraction features representatives of womens' residences in competition for the title of Iowa State Milk Maid.

Block and Bridle Named Fourth Most Active in Nation

The Block and Bridle Horse Show has grown to be the largest student sponsored horse show in the nation. Over 1,000 entries from throughout the Mid-West compete in the show's 59 classes.

Basic divisions of competition include western style, harness, society, and 4-H horses. The show, sponsored by Block and Bridle Club, is held for two days at the Iowa State Fairgrounds in Des Moines.

Block and Bridle is best known for its Horse Show and Little International where there is total promotion of Animal Science in Iowa. Less acknowledged, however, is that the club presented the first chapter report at the national convention and was named fourth in chapter activities.

Judging a pig finds its greatest difficulties, perhaps, in finding a part that will hold still long enough to be rated.

Iowa State Horse Show Largest in the Nation

The Block and Bridle Horse Show celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary this year. It has grown into the largest student sponsored horse show in the nation.

Complete management and sponsorship was turned over to Block and Bridle Club in 1960. Outstanding exhibitors and horses from the whole Midwest compete in the annual event.

Contests range from calf roping and harness displays to obstacle courses. Trophies, cash prizes, and ribbons are awarded to the winners of each class.

Rodeo Club Promoted Cyclone Stampede in October

Membership in the I.S.U. Rodeo club, which now totals sixty-eight, is open to any Iowa State student. The purpose of the club is to promote rodeo on the collegiate level.

Activities of the club include a Veishea concession booth, a horse show in the spring, and the Cyclone Stampede held in October. During the Cyclone Stampede the N.I.R.A. members of the Great Plains region invade Ames for a weekend to compete in intercollegiate rodeo for prizes and points, which count toward national recognition.

Horticulture Club Wins National Award

Horticulture Club was organized in 1900 by professors A. T. Erwin and E. E. Little, and was the first departmental club to be formed in the College of Agriculture.

Members participate in one weekend field trip each quarter, one five-day field trip out of state during spring quarter break, and construction of a display and sale of corsages at the Iowa Florist Convention. This year the club received the Outstanding Horticulture Club Award for being the best in the nation.

Members annually award the E. S. Haber Award, the Apple "I" pin, and the Bronze "I" Award.

It Was Rumored Farm Op Sold 'Honey' At Veishea

The departmental Farm Operations Club furthers the education of its members by means of guest speakers. An address by Mr. L. B. Liddy, State Secretary of Agriculture, highlighted the annual winter banquet. Other club activities include a fall tour and All-Ag Fall Festival. At Veishea, the Farm Operations open house won third place while the concession stand made money for club activities. Because of their contribution to agriculture, the club currently holds the "Outstanding Club Award."

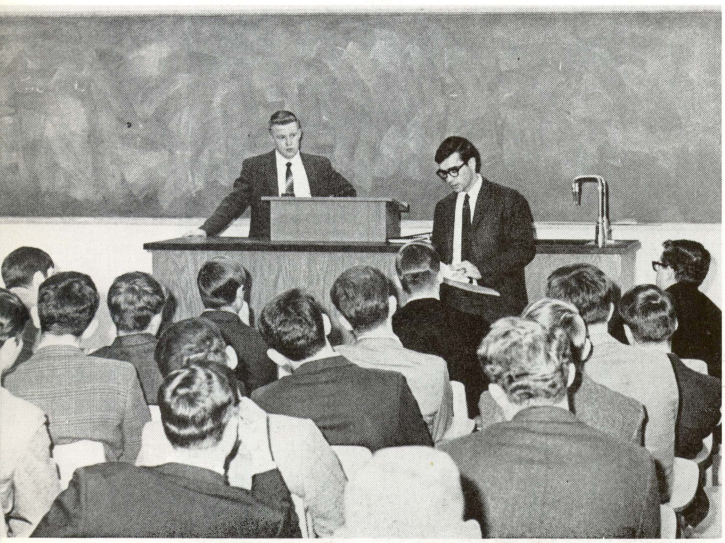
Agriculture Education Held Freshman Watermellon Feed



Planning the Ag Ball is one of the main responsibilities of the Ag Ed Club members.

The purpose of the Agriculture Education Club is to promote personal development and improve professional interests, and is open to anyone in the agriculture education curriculum.

The club sponsored a Veishea concession stand, participated in Veishea Open House, and held an All-Ag Banquet. It also holds quarterly parties, a freshman watermelon feed, and a Christmas party.

Agricultural Business Club

Each year this club awards an Agriculture Business Manager of the year award.

This year it was to the outstanding farmer and businessman in the ag business field.

The organization was founded in 1952 to stimulate interest in this field and related fields.

Ag Council Received Service 'I' Award

Ag Council serves as a unifying agency among the various departmental clubs of the college.

Two representatives from each club serve two terms and represent the club to the Dean of Agriculture and the Agriculture student body.

The All-Ag Fall Festival, Winter Cotillion, freshman reception, and the All-Ag Banquet are part of the Council's responsibilities.

Last spring, Ag Council was awarded the Service "I" Award.

Agriculture Journalism Club

The object of this club is to promote professional improvement in journalism, both in the University and in the profession. It sponsors a writer's workshop and competition each spring, awards a "real guy" award to an outstanding club member, and places special emphasis on freshman orientation. Guest speakers represent areas within the media: radio, television and magazine publications, advertising, and photography.

Agronomy Club

An active club, Agronomy Club is the second in the College of Agriculture. It is credited with the sale of weed seed sets, Agronomy manuals, popcorn, newsletters for undergraduates and alumni, an open house for high school students, and a concession stand at the Agronomy Farm Field Day.

It was founded in 1915 to promote understanding and fellowship between members and faculty.

Dairy Food Club

This year the Dairy Food Club received an Honorable Mention certificate from the American Dairy Science Association. It was awarded for the annual report and scrapbook, submitted at ADSA's annual meeting at Cornell University. The club functions at both a social level and a professional level, providing programs which relate to the Dairy and Food Industry.

The main club activity is a Veishea Open House display and refreshment stand.

Dairy Science Club

Started about forty years ago by students and staff of what was Dairy Husbandry at that time, the Dairy Science Club has continued to be active ever since. It sponsors the Milk Maid contest during Ag. Festival Week, a Little International showing contest at the same time, and a judging contest for FFA and 4-H teams.

Fellowship, contact, and development of Dairy Science compose the purpose of the organization.

Forestry Club

Forestry members are those students responsible for the Fall and Spring Forester's Days, management of a 320-acre woodland tract (Holst Tract), and the Ames Forester Publication. They are also in charge of Christmas tree sales each year, providing the basic supplies for student Christmas spirit. There are different guest speakers at every meeting, usually with slides or movies.

These speakers promote an interest in topics relating to Forestry among students in the Forestry and Outdoor Recreation curriculums.

Poultry Science Club

The biggest project for the thirteen members of the Poultry Science Club is that of the Dressed Turkey at Thanksgiving. This project nets the members, students studying or interested in poultry science, about $150.

They also sponsor something else—a club banquet, held each spring at the club advisor's home.

Landscape Architecture

This year the Student Society of Landscape Architecture followed three theme topics based on the three quarters in the year. They were faculty and student experience, natural and social sciences, and art and philosophy. Meetings consisted of speakers and slide lectures, incorporating the main topic plus student work experiences, summer vacations, and summer study tours.

Some of the major activities were the Ag Festival during fall quarter and the spring Veishea display.

Alpha Zeta

Alpha Zeta members must be in the upper 40 per cent of their class and must be outstanding in activities and service. This agriculture honorary and service fraternity has a threefold purpose: to honor outstanding ag students; to be of service to the ag college; and to promote the agricultural profession.

These members sponsor speakers from the profession, a smoker for potential members, and a breakfast for alums at the National Farm Institute in Des Moines.

Iowa Agriculturist

The Agriculturist provides an informative and interesting magazine to the students of the College of Agriculture, and provides students with an opportunity to gain practical experience in planning and preparing a magazine. The Iowa Agriculturist is a member of the Agricultural College Magazine Association and has been awarded first place in overall excellence for five of the last six years.

Circle K Club

Although small in size, the Iowa State Circle K Club has high ideals. The club is a college level service organization patterned after the Kiwanis. The club strives to develop future leaders and citizens whose philosophy is founded on freedom, initiative, and unselfish service to others.

At the university level the club has worked on Veishea, selling programs, painting, cleaning barrels, and assembling a club display.

New Freshman Program Advances Engineering

The Engineering College of Iowa State has instituted a new freshman program designed to get students into real engineering courses immediately rather than much later after their having finished with the more conventional courses. In addition, the college expanded its program with a study tour in Denmark by some of its Department of Architecture students. Engineers have also established a co-operative plan with the University of the Philippines, by which two ISU faculty are instructors there and many Phillipine students are here for graduate work.

The College of Engineering has also made plans for courses to be offered via videotape lectures to Charles City, Davenport, and Waterloo. WOI television personnel are taping regular lectures and then shipping them to the field stations. After the lectures there is a special telephone hook-up with the professor so that he may answer questions.

Knights of St. Patrick Honor Participators

Knight of St. Patrick is an Engineering honorary, a fact disputed by some. Its purpose is to honor those engineering students who participate in activities, regardless of grade point.

Members of the honorary participate in the Engineers Week volleyball tourney, as well as fall and spring initiations, activities in themselves.

The group awards no awards and believes that it has received entirely too much recognition, but . . .

American Ceramic Society

Undergraduate students in Ceramic Engineering may participate in this departmental club, organized as a professional society before the turn of the century. American Ceramic Society works to coordinate student activities and acts as a liaison between the students and faculty. It also coordinates local activities with the national A.C.S. Part of this involves a speaking contest.

Last years representative, Dean Wiley, won the national contest, marking the first time Iowa State won the contest.

American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics

The AIAA is a departmental club for those students taking courses relating to aerospace sciences. The club was organized to provide students with the opportunity to have informal contacts with the faculty and to expose them to a wider aspect of Aerospace. The latter is accomplished through lectures by men from both the faculty and industry and through films of current interest.

AIAA also participates in the various university activities and even captured the Engineers' Week volleyball tournament title.

American Institute of Architects

The AIA is a departmental club devoted to furthering the education and preparation of architectural students for professional practice. It also tries to foster a greater appreciation for the profession. To do so, AIA sponsors lectures by such people as Micklaus Mongenthaler, an architect from Berne, Switzerland.

American Institute of Chemical Engineers

The American Institute of Chemical Engineers is an organization for the promotion of the Chemical Engineering profession. The organization is open to anyone enrolled in an accredited institution offering a chemical engineering degree. The local chapter sponsored a banquet for the C.E. department. It brought back recent graduates, who then discussed their first year in their jobs.

Speakers from three companies spoke to the group, and described the uses of chemical engineering, and the opportunities in the field.

American Institute of Industrial Engineers

During Veishea the AIIE members worked on a Hovercraft project—an air car or ground effects machine. At that time, they also provided a challenge to ASME and AIAA, both of whom failed to confront them at the canoe races (a disappointment, probably). Later, they worked actively on a "Day in Industry" project, part of interest and activity promotion.

The club provides an organization for individuals to work within for their own goals in Industrial Engineering.

American Society of Civil Engineers

The purpose of the student chapter of ASCE is to raise interest for the parent chapter and to promote the civil engineering profession. The society is open to all undergraduate and graduate students and is one of the most active groups of this kind on campus. Last spring, thirty members attended a regional meeting in Brookings, South Dakota, and won the traveling trophy for having the most men and traveling the greatest number of miles. They also worked on Veishea Open House.

American Society of Mechanical Engineers

The Iowa State student section of ASME was organized in 1919. Any student enrolled in an engineering curriculum is qualified for membership in the organization, a purpose of which is the advancement of theory and practice of mechanical engineering.

Members involve themselves in three industry tours and construction of a group effect machine, as well as a spring banquet and special meetings.

Chi Epsilon

Chi Epsilon was established in 1922 by a group of Civil Engineering students at the University of Illinois. The Iowa State chapter of the honorary was founded in 1965. Chi Epsilon was organized to recognize and develop the characteristics of the individual Civil Engineer, as well as to place distinction upon him.

A special project of the honorary is a list of member phone numbers given to underclassmen who might need help.

Electronics Technology Club

The Elec. Tech. club was founded in 1964 for all students in the electronics curriculum. It was founded for the purpose of supplementing the education of the members through the use of informative talks, films, visits to industrial sites; social activities; and to provide a common medium for all members of the electronics technology curriculum. As a means to the end, lectures have been given by representatives from industrial nucleonics and the Texas Instruments Company.

Engineering Council

Engineering Council was started as a local branch of the Association of Collegiate Engineers in 1920. Later, after dissolving as a national organization, it was reorganized to its present college purpose—the promotion of cooperation among Engineering departments and student representation and sponsorship in official functions, among which is Engineers Week.

Eta Kappa Nu

Eta Kappa Nu, the honorary for outstanding men in electronic engineering, has increased its membership by 25 during the past year. For its service project, the group under the direction of Dr. Larry Coady visited high schools throughout the state, answering the questions of seniors about the engineering curriculum and its honoraries on campus. For the first time in several years, the group sent delegates to the East Central Regional Conference in Chicago. Perhaps the highlight of the year was the picnic "blast," a swinging affair held on a farm just outside Kelley!

Gamma Epsilon Sigma

An engineering honorary, Gamma Epsilon Sigma was founded at Iowa State in 1953 with 10 members. Today, the 23 members work to foster the ideals of engineering welfare and development of students. The honorary is open to junior and senior students of sound engineering ability, scholarship, leadership and achievements, as well as standing in the upper 50% of the class.

Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers

IEEE is a departmental and professional society originated for dissemination of knowledge and advancement of theory and practice of electronics, radio, etc. Approximately 100 members work for the professional development of the student. They have heard presentations from such organizations as Collins Radio, RCA, IBM and Sylvania concerning such topics as space exploration and new developments in vacuum tubes. These people also attend the National Electronics convention. The EE picnic and the EE Banquet is where seniors present skits about faculty members and vice-versa.

Mechanical Technology Club

Each year there have been new attempts to improve the organization of this club, open to students in the two-year Mechanical Technology program. This year the club was completely reorganized and is in the process of gaining University recognition. It sponsors programs for members by major industries, designed to stimulate interest, to answer student questions, and to indicate what a Tech. Institute graduate is and does.

Omega Chi Epsilon

Iowa State's chapter of Omega Chi Epsilon honors outstanding men in the chemical engineering department. The Beta chapter at ISU was founded in 1932, deactivated in 1937, and reactivated in 1966. Those chosen for the honorary must be in the upper 20 percent of the chemical engineering junior class or in the upper 30 percent of the senior class. There is initiation every spring and fall quarter. Omega Chi Epsilon sponsored a winter fireside for students and faculty and participated in Engineers' Week activities.

Pi Tau Sigma

The Pi Epsilon chapter of Pi Tau Sigma was established at Iowa State in 1942. The primary function of the Mechanical Engineering honorary is to ". . . foster the high ideals of the engineering profession and stimulate interest in coordinating departmental activities. It promotes mutual professional welfare of its members and leadership and assumption of responsibility." As part of this, Pi Tau Sigma awards the Ken L. Evans award to the outstanding Mechanical Engineering senior.

Sigma Gamma Tau

To honor people outstanding in the field of aerospace engineering and to foster a high standard of ethics and professional practice among its members, Sigma Gamma Tau was founded as a national honor society of that profession. Qualifications for membership in the honorary include high scholarship, integrity and achievement in Aerospace Engineering. Members hold an honorary banquet and pledges spend their Pledge Work Day working for the Aeor. E. department.

Society for American Military Engineers

Iowa State's student chapter of the Society for American Military Engineers was founded in 1939. The group, under the direction of Major Harrison Moot, is made up of ROTC cadets interested in military engineering. Through a trip to Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri, the cadets received an orientation to the training received by enlisted men in the corps of engineering. The group also attended the Midwest Regional Conference of SAME.

The Iowa Engineer

The Iowa Engineer is put out entirely by the efforts of engineering students at Iowa State. Under the direction of Dr. Burton J. Gleason, the staff produces a magazine that is both thought-provoking and entertaining, with most of its articles related to engineering. Some regular features in the magazine are Engineer's Girl; Bent Talk, a joke page; and Tech Notes, small descriptions of new technological developments. The Iowa Engineer also produced a special Veishea issue this past year.

Engineering Student Advisory Committee

The student committee, composed of student members of faculty committees, was started several years ago as a subcommittee of the Engineering Council. In 1965 it was made its own committee when it became too large for the Council. The advisory committee discusses matters of mutual interest to students and faculty of the Engineering College. Members of the organization are interviewed and, to hold a position, must be sophomores with at least a 2.25 all-college average.

Tau Beta Pi

Those Engineering students in the top ⅛ of their class during their junior year and of the top ⅕ of their senior class may be invited to join Tau Beta Pi Engineering honorary, an organization originally founded at Lehigh University "to mark in a fitting manner those who have conferred honor upon their Alma Mater by distinguished scholarship and exemplary character." There are currently 55 active members, some of whom attended the national convention at the University of Michigan, and the Winter Initiation Banquet; all of whom participated in the polishing by Marston Hall during Tau Beta Pi pledge week.

Tau Sigma Delta

Tau Sigma Delta is an honorary for students in the curriculums of Architecture, Landscape Architecture and Applied Art. Seniors in the top 20% of their respective colleges are eligible for membership, assuming they have attained a set standard of scholastic achievement determined by the society. The organization strives to emphasize scholarship, leadership, and character; to stimulate mental achievement and effort.

Home Ec. College Forms Family Environment Department

In an attempt to domesticate out-of-state girls, sewing is taught. Iowa girls have already learned this back home on the farm.

The College of Home Economics as of Winter '68 had an enrollment of 2680, up by 66 per cent since 1962. Although the rest of the university has faced the increased enrollment problem by providing more facilities for the students, the Home Ec College facilities have not increased since 1962.

The college has instituted a new Peace Corps program this year. This is the first internship program of its kind. In the project volunteers spend three months of training in a country and then return to ISU to finish their degree work. Upon graduation, the students return to the country in which they have trained and work in their specialized fields.

The Home Economics College has also formed a new department, family environment, by merging the departments of home management and household equipment. Experimental courses were presented throughout the year to add to the present program.

Home Ec. College Institutes Peace Corps Program

Home Economics Council

The Home Economics Council is made up of a representative from each of the departmental clubs, a senator-at-large, and is GSB Senator. The council correlates the affairs of each of the clubs, provides legislation, and handles all administrative duties of the ISU chapters of the American and Iowa Home Economics Associations. It also helps in the planning of the fall orientation. This past year the council was quite active in getting the vending machines installed in MacKay Hall.

Institution Management

Institution Management Club is open to anyone in that particular field or a technical institute program. This past year, the fifty-five members were introduced to different areas of institution management, as well as information related to class work. Several members attended the Iowa Restaurant Association convention in Des Moines in the fall. As a whole, the club sponsored a departmental banquet, worked on Veishea Cherry pies, and constructed a Veishea Open House display.

Omicron Nu

Catherine MacKay, the first dean of Home Economics at Iowa State, founded Omicron Nu in 1913. It is an honorary recognizing superior scholarship and promoting leadership and research in the field of Home Economics.

As a part of the annual functions of Omicron NU, members hold a sophomore recognition tea and an Initiation Banquet; each year outstanding students in the college are recognized by the honorary.

Phi Epsilon Omicron

The purposes of Phi Upsilon Omicron are to promote home economics on the college level, promote the intellectual and moral development of the members, and establish and strengthen the bonds of friendship. Members must have a third quarter sophomore or junior status, and must be in the top thirty per cent of their class.

They are also chosen on the basis of interest and background in home economics activities.

Enrollment in the College of Sciences and Humanities continued to climb steadily with fall quarter's enrollment up by more than 500 over that of Fall '66. Sciences and Humanities received three new majors also. They were computer science, music, and philosophy. As of winter quarter, music and philosophy had 23 majors a piece. To ease the crowded class situation, Sciences and Humanities received many capital improvements including a new physics addition and Botany's Bessey Hall.

The faculty has also approved a proposal to reduce the total number of credits required for graduation in Sciences and Humanities from 205 to 192. At present a student must average over 17 credits per quarter, and thus 74 per cent of the students take over 12 quarters to graduate. The faculty also recommended reducing the minimum credit requirements in several groups such as math and English.

In PEMM Club, the girls helped with planned recreation such as square dancing in this retirement home.

PE Majors and Minors Club

PEMM is more established than the men's, having been organized in 1960 when a physical education major and minor for women was initiated at Iowa State.

The organization is designed to create a unity in and knowledge of the profession.

Alpha Chi Sigma

Alpha Chi Sigma is a professional chemistry and chemical engineering fraternity, established in 1929 at Iowa State. It is an organization open to students with at least a sophomore ranking in chemistry, biochemistry, or chemical engineering and a 2.50 grade point. The Alpha Chi Sigma membership works for the advancement of chemistry as a science and profession.

Alpha Kappa Psi

About 75 students are members of Alpha Kappa Psi, a professional business fraternity for men in Industrial Administration. Its purpose is relative to advancing relations of members and the standards of business. The organization is responsible for the sale of Veishea programs and the sponsoring of speakers who lecture to the Industrial Administration organization.

Botany Club

Pursuing enjoyment and education are the members of the Botany Club, a departmental club of undergraduate majors, faculty, and graduate students. Spring is the club's busiest quarter. As a group, they present a Veishea Open House. Later in the year they pack their gear and go to the wilderness on a field trip. Each year an award goes to the member who has contributed significantly to the club's goals. The club is not without a social side as each year they have a Christmas party.

Business Students Association

An Industrial Administration departmental club, membership in Business Students Association is open to any and all students in Industrial Administration, Ag Business and Economics. As members, it is hoped that students will become better acquainted with various phases of business and the business world through the appearance of guest speakers from diversified business fields. For instance, a panel from Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith made a presentation concerning investments. The club annually erects a Veishea display and jointly sponsors a banquet with Alpha Kappa Psi, professional business fraternity.

Ethos

Ethos, the magazine representing the College of Science and Humanities, began emphasizing controversial, contemporary articles in its issues this year. It had a number of full issues in which a theme was emphasized, among them were themes on racial minorities and international issues. Ethos policy indicates that its staff of some 12 people wants to ". . . stress changes in the modern world . . . to bring social issues to a focus . . ." In other words, to stimulate.

French Club

France, its language and culture are the prime interests of French Club members (which makes sense). Le Cercle Francais was initiated in 1962 by faculty member Floyd Pace, and finally received University recognition in 1966. Since that time the members have sponsored Christmas dinners and several picnics promoting food and soccer, a popular French game. This year, too, members heard Mrs. Charlotte Bruner speak on the life of a French college student, and Miss Peggy Israel speak on a French summer.

Geology Club

The earth sciences are represented in the Geology Club. Through informal lectures and discussion groups the members become better acquainted with the subject matter and the staff. The club annually sponsors a field trip to a rock infested area and they also have a Veishea display.

Iowa State Debaters

With awards and recognitions too numerous to mention, the Iowa State Debaters compose a student activity sponsoring interest and participation in debate and forensic events on an intramural and collegiate level. This year the organization also sponsored the sixth annual Iowa State University Desperado Debate Tournament and the Iowa State High School Speech Tournament, in addition to an open house for new members. Debaters had approximately 30 trips all ". . . dedicated to effective, intelligent and responsible communication . . ."

Lampos

Lampos, a local science and humanities organization, was organized in 1954 to recognize the efforts of outstanding juniors and seniors in the College of Science and Humanities. Juniors and seniors, who are in the upper one-third of their class, are selected by the juniors of Lampos each winter quarter. Students are selected using leadership, service, character, and scholarship as criteria. Through Lampos, it is hoped that each member will gain the essentials of citizenship and integrity.

Mathematics Club

Math club was revived during winter of 1966 as an active departmental club promoting interest in mathematics. As a unit, it promotes this interest outside the classroom and enables students to pursue their interests. As a part of its program, Math club has toured the computer facilities at Iowa State and has sponsored both faculty members and students in presentations relating to various mathematical topics. It has a Veishea open house display and helps in a departmental reception for freshmen.

Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia

Among its other functions of fostering the cause of music, Phi Mu Alpha is part of the joint production of Crescendo, an all University concert (The other part is Sigma Alpha Iota.), and Sinfonia Sing, the University men's choral composition. Those students with a 2.25 grade point and at least three quarters of music at Iowa State under their belt are eligible for membership. The organization also conducts tours of the campanile during Veishea.

Physical Education Majors Club

PEM was initiated in 1966. Although it is a recent organization, it functions actively, placing particular emphasis on physical education, recreation, health, and safety. Members, all of whom are physical education majors or minors, sponsor basketball exhibitions, a track meet for Ames boys, and a "Fun Night" for Science and Humanities freshmen.

Sigma Alpha Iota

With a new major in music being offered this year, Sigma Alpha Iota, a national music fraternity, is placing a fresh emphasis on talent and interest in the field. Its members work together toward a greater understanding and promotion of music by sponsoring programs such as Crescendo and Sor-Dor. Proceeds from a concert given this spring by singer Constanza Cuccaro were earmarked by SAI for a scholarship fund for I.S.U. music majors.

Science Council

Science Council is a representative body for the students in the College of Science and Humanities. It helps the students of that college by sponsoring programs and proposing and discussing new ideas. The council is made up of eight members, one from each department, and is selected by application and interview. The other three members are selected in all-university election. Freshman orientation, faculty firesides, and sponsoring speakers are some of the projects of the council.

Sigma Delta Chi

Sigma Delta Chi is a journalism honorary for upperclass male journalism students. Students are selected on the basis of promise and proficiency in the field of journalism. Each year the men put out the "Petticoat Pamphlet" and sponsor a high school press day. On the Friday of Veishea approximately 70 high school journalism students invade the Daily office and produce another work of art. During the year the honorary invites a series of speakers to lecture at their meetings. The goal of Sigma Delta Chi is "better journalism."

Sketch

Sketch magazine tries to give an ". . . . incentive and outlet for undergraduate creative writing." As a means to its end, the magazine, published once a quarter, prints the creative efforts of student writers. Selections are made by an editorial board consisting of four students and a faculty literary advisor, Dr. Will Jumper. A simple majority vote completes the selections.

Student Curriculum Committee

Each year the Student Curriculum Committee chooses two or three students from the freshman class to fill vacancies on the nine-member staff. These positions are kept the four years each member is in school. As a subsidiary of the Science Council, the committee's job is to survey curriculum problems and find possible solutions. To achieve this goal the committee gave students a chance to individually evaluate the courses and instructors they had during the year.

Statistics Club

This year the first Statistics club scholarship has been awarded. It is a $375 scholarship co-sponsored and supported with the IBM Corporation. The major function or purpose of the club, however, is informing students about applications of statistics and job opportunities in statistics. To achieve this end, the club sponsors lectures from faculty members and members of the profession outside the University.

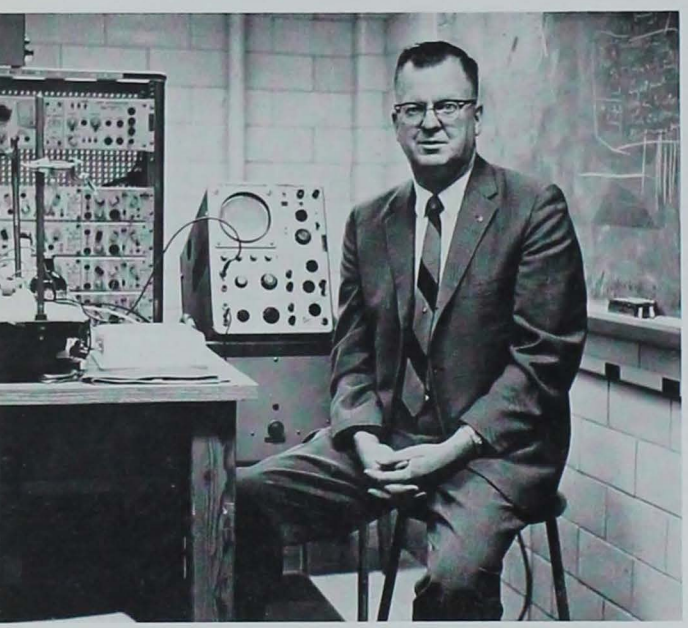
New Plan Would Move Vet Med to Beach Avenue



Dean Ralph Kitchell has hopes for new and more adequate buildings for the College of Veterinary Medicine.

Every fall, after two years of preprofession study, a maximum of seventy-five students are admitted to the College of Veterinary Medicine. Through instruction and research, each student gains the knowledge necessary to prevent and control diseases that affect both man and animal.

The first two years of study develop principles which are applied later in such courses as Pathology, Pharmacology, Microbiology. All subjects must be learned well as a failure in one course means a year drop from the college. After completing six years of study, one can be sure that each student is a competent member of the veterinary profession.

A new curriculum has been initiated for the first year students which they will follow throughout their four years of study. It attempts to more closely coordinate the presentation of material in related courses.

Preliminary plans are also underway for relocating the College of Veterinary Medicine on Beach Avenue. This will make possible the admission and training of more veterinary students than is currently permitted in the present limited facilities.

AVMA Chapter Assists Anderson Memorial Fund

The Iowa State University Chapter of the American Veterinary Medical Association is an organization of all students in the College of Veterinary Medicine.

The students become acquainted with an organizational structure much like the American Veterinary Medical Association. The club sponsored the annual Spring Banquet at Brookside, the Veishea Open House, and the AVMA banquet.

The club contributed to the Merrill B. Anderson Memorial Fund, which provides for blood donations and includes loans to students in time of crises.

Faculty and Senior Vets Counsel Pre-Vets

This departmental club has a four-fold purpose: to promote a closer relationship between pre-vets, as well as the college of Veterinary Medicine; to stimulate interest in the profession, and to provide couseling to pre-vets by Vet students.

Each year the club sponsors a reception for the college's faculty and senior vet students, a tour of the Veterinary Clinic, and speakers such as Dean R. L. Kitchell and Dr. B. H. Skold.

Graduate College Strong in Spite of Draft Policy Change

Although a change in policy by the government toward deferring grad students from the draft occurred this year, many students still pursue advanced studies in the Graduate College.

Having one of the top graduate schools in the nation, Iowa State's program offers the opportunity to delve deeper into different fields such as engineering, agriculture, home economics, the sciences and veterinary medicine.

Besides the traditional Master of Science degree, other specific degrees offered are Master of Architecture, Master of Engineering, Master of Forestry, Master of Landscape Architecture and Master of Education.

Candidates for the degree Doctor of Philosophy attain an extremely high level of proficiency in their fields and complete intensive study before attaining their degrees.

Eight Patents Received as Result of Research

How does a rat react to a hypo? Researchers find out.

Most of the faculty members and graduate students at Iowa State are actively engaged in research. Their research ranges from the field of food processing to electronic equipment. After many years of work the researchers had 37 disclosures this year. Disclosures are the first step to a patent. Within the next 3 years the department hopes to have 30 patents from these disclosures. This year twenty-three applications for patents were made. Of these eight were received. The most outstanding ones are a respritory augmentor and a new process for the production of sulphur from calcium sulphate. The latter is extremely important because of the scarcity of sulphur on the world market in the past year. The main portion of the approximately 27 million dollars allotted for research this year was granted to the University by the federal government. The rest is acquired from patent royalties.

University Extension Establishes Four New Area Offices

Extension workers contact farmers in many ways including large gathering for the purpose of demonstration.

In its second year since reorganization, University Extension is progressing well in its installation of new area offices. In addition to the three offices established last year, four more have been added toward the final goal of twelve. This year area offices have been set up in Mason City, Fort Dodge, Creston, and Council Bluffs.

Under director Dean Marvin Anderson, University Extension extends its resources to the people of Iowa. The divisions of the program include the Cooperative Extension, working in agriculture and home economics, the Engineering Extension, the Center for Industrial Research and Service, and the short course program.

A few more shovels and they will have a perfect block of mud.

Technical Institute Trains Specialists in Practical Application

The technician is the specialist in carrying out the practical and technical details of a job. A graduate of one of the two-year programs in the Technical Institute receives a diploma as an Associate in Applied Science. These programs include technical agriculture, engineering technology and food service management. Technologists in agriculture work in farm related businesses and industries. Engineering technologists assist and supplement the work of engineers in the chemical, construction, electronics, and mechanical fields.

With increasing population, many opportunities are opened up in food service management, such as the need for trained personnel in restaurants and hotel operation, schools and universities, hospitals, and government institutions.
