Dedication

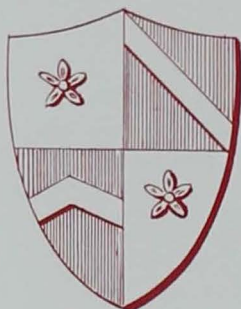

One year ago, in the Bomb of '52, we described the Frileys as "the most popular couple on campus" which we explained was due to their active part in college social life. This year we want to amplify this statement to include some of the enduring improvements they have made in the more serious aspects of college living. In his final year as president, we hope to have demonstrated to Dr. Friley our gratitude.

DR. CHARLES EDWIN FRILEY was appointed ISC president in 1936, launching a tremendous program for college improvement — financially, educationally and culturally. Because of this undertaking the college enrollment has nearly doubled. If the student of '36 were to pay a visit to his college home, it is likely he would wonder what impressive new college had grown up in place of the ISC he knew. Upon second glance he would see the source of his confusion to be the numerous new buildings constructed in his absence. He would marvel at the massive addition to Friley Hall making it one of the largest men's dormitories in the world. The modern architecture of the Electrical Engineering and Agronomy buildings would leave him breathless with their beauty. And a trip to the Atomic Research Institute would convince the student his alma mater was still among the leaders in the field.

The first educationally owned and operated television station, WOI-TV, with its special new building, would interest our visitor. He would be told the foresight of Dr. Friley had made this venture into the field of educational entertainment possible. Included on our guest's tour would be the two new duplex Home Management houses where Home Economics students learn the most efficient ways to manage and care for a family. He would want to see the modern new Foods and Nutrition kitchens where potential homemakers and professional home economists are trained. Also attracting the attention of our visitor would be the numerous temporary buildings constructed during the post-war years to handle the influx of homecoming veterans. Before our guest's departure, he would be convinced that under Dr. Friley Iowa State has become one of the foremost leaders in the field of technical education and research.

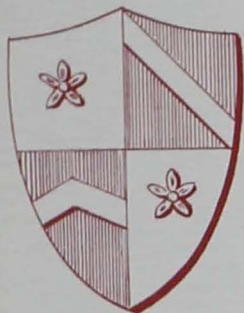

Foreword

What is college? What is life at Iowa State College? To most of us it is a mental, social and moral challenge which forms the nucleus around which our college society revolves. Our life here is not only glorious and impressionable but is a pause and preparation for what lies ahead. All phases of college could be compared with the roots of a plant. Always probing — always seeking. Sometimes seeking the small and insignificant and other times the large and purposeful — and yet all of these “runners” relate to the common core which composes our college education. Whether a “mighty oak” or a scrawny “milkweed” results from these roots depends entirely upon the individual.

We of the yearbook staff have attempted to create a book which will not only be cherished now but in the ensuing years. We realize that college means different things to different people and it would be impossible to allow each item the relative importance given by the individual. We have, however, attempted to dwell briefly upon the high points of this year and within the cover of the 1953 Bomb we hope you will find pictures and text which will help recreate the mood and the spirit which you experienced in college.

The College Administration

To these five men is due the credit for the expansion of our school from a small unknown college to a college of agricultural and mechanical arts of international fame.

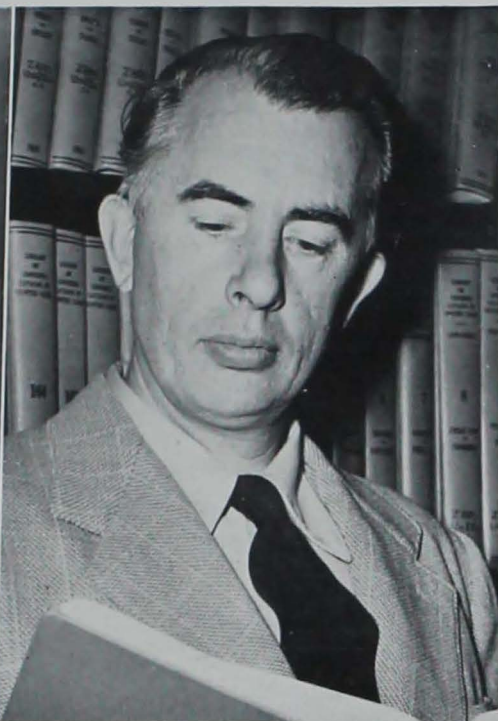

Familiar faces to most ISC students are those of the administration. If asked to name the "administration" most of us could answer with at least five names. These persons are the members of the administrative board. But at this point, the average student's insight into Iowa State becomes lost in the vast organization of the college.

In addition to these directors of various service activities, deans and directors in teaching, research and extension of every division of the college are represented by the board, forming a wing of the administrative structure which serves the school.

Apportioning millions of dollars each year for operating the college is also among the duties of the administration. Further evidence of our oblivion to the organizers of the college would undoubtedly be proved if questioned as to their duties. What graduating senior, for instance, upon receiving his diploma, could explain who approved that certificate of higher education . . . or who drew up the plans for the memorable graduation service? The administrators also arrange and present the college calendar, decide on matters of scholarship and personnel. We, the students of ISC, give the administration our thanks.

Yards of crepe paper, lengths of lumber, added to DZ artistry earned them the Sweepstakes Award Trophy in the Veishea Parade.

Veishea

"The greatest Veishea ever!" This statement has been made annually for the last 30 years when speaking of I S C's traditional spring festival. Each year Veishea gets bigger and better — and the Veishea of '52 was no exception. At this point an explanation is in order to those unfamiliar with Veishea. Some may ask whether it's an educational open house, a dance, or perhaps a parade and jubilee. The answer is that Veishea is all of these. The first Veishea, in 1922, was primarily a departmental display of student work for visitors. But each year the students have added something new to the event until it has grown to be the largest student-managed festival in the world. This year over 3500 students took an active part in the Veishea presentation — starting work on the project as far as eight months in advance. Iowa State was given an opportunity to "show her colors" and they couldn't have been shown more brilliantly.

Identifying Carol Fisher as Veishea Queen of Queens is the traditional crown presented by Governor Beardsley at Opening Ceremonies.

Cecil B. DeMille, distinguished Hollywood movie producer, made the trip to Ames by plane to get Veishea officially underway with a talk at Opening Ceremonies.

DeMille took time from his busy schedule on the coast to discuss higher education in conjunction with the Veishea theme, "Spirit of Leadership." The speaker was introduced by President Charles E. Friley, who presented him with a scroll from Tau Sigma Delta, honorary fraternity in architecture and landscape design.

The presentation to DeMille of a plaque made in his likeness by Prof. Christian Petersen, noted Iowa State sculptor, was a special honor accorded the guest.

Another distinguished guest was Governor William S. Beardsley, who crowned Carol Fisher as Veishea Queen of Queens. The queen and her attendants were announced by a fanfare of trumpets and escorted to their thrones by members of Scabbard and Blade.

As DeMille set aflame the 1952 Torch of Higher Education, an aerial bomb was set off on central campus, announcing the formal opening of Veishea to the surrounding area.

Speaker Cecil B. DeMille holds attention of Governor Beardsley.

Beneath the soft lights of the combined ballrooms of Memorial Union, sweet music under the baton of Duke Ellington set the scene for the three Veishea dances.

"Ooh's" and "Ah's" were the audience's reply to Ellington's own compositions, "Solitude" and "Mood Indigo"—favorites of everyone with a taste for danceable music.

The "Duke" expressed the sentiment of the band when he said, "The boys in the band want you to know they love you madly." This was in response to the round of applause from students, alumni and high school students crowding the dance floor. Those that wanted to just listen filled the balcony.

Ellington began his Veishea stay with a concert of jazz and swing under the stars at Clyde Williams Field.

It's Duke Ellington and his famous band playing for Veishea Dance.

Concert and Dances

The scene, Memorial Union — the occasion, 1952 Veishea Dance — the orchestra, Duke Ellington — all were wonderful Veishea Dances.

The Follies girls, sparkling in sequined dresses, joined others in the cast for the musical finale of the 1952 "Stars Over Veishea."

Stars Over Veishea and Veishea Vodvil

The largest stage used for a Stars Over Veishea production incorporated complete waterproofing and a Grecian setting for the 1952 performance, "Ten Golden Years."

The show's skit, which commenced in a speak-easy, progressed down the "Great White Way" for a review of the then new Broadway plays. Characters from "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" were cleverly combined with those from "Showboat," "The Vagabond King," and "The Ziegfield Follies." A skillful Charleston routine by Colene Ruch, Marilyn Jensen and Bruce Johnson added the perfect 'Twenties' touch to this gay extravaganza.

Veishea Vodvil's winning production, "Ever Since Eve," concerned the most famous female charmers since the Garden of Eden's mistress. The audience was delighted with the Tri Delts' humorous portrayal of famous women from Cleopatra to the ISC coed.

This fellow talked himself into a first place Open House trophy.

Thirteen-foot balloons anchored on top of the major buildings pointed out each division's Veishea open house. Three-foot balloons were used for subordinate departmental functions.

A chance to see themselves on TV at WOI-TV and a greeting from a talking robot at the Modern Languages Open House were among the surprises in store for open house visitors.

High school students were guests on conducted tours across the campus. Guides introduced them to all the open houses and emphasized those students' major interest fields.

After the hustle of the celebration ended, five organizations were cited as the winning groups. Trophies were awarded to Agronomy in Agriculture, YWCA in activities, Civil Engineering in Engineering, Modern Languages in Science, and Pathology in Veterinary Medicine.

Open House

Just like real that little train is comin' 'round the curve . . . the C.E.'s open house exhibit captured many Veishea visitors' interest.

Looks like a photo finish as Alumni Hall noses out the Delta Sigs to take first place in the men's division of Veishea Canoe Races.

Canoe Races

With umbrellas in hand, hundreds of spectators lined the banks of Lake LaVerne last spring for the annual Veishea Canoe Races. Cheering loudly for their favorites, and clutching raincoats around them, the crowd watched 69 crews compete in the preliminary heats. The 28 fastest teams were awarded places in the final contest for a "fight to the finish." Overturned canoes were the frequent result of the feverish fight for number one place — much to the delight of the crowd and competing crew members. The success of the race varies in direct proportion to the number of dunkings.

Winners in the women's division of the '52 race were the wet but victorious Tri Delt. Alumni Hall took honors for first place in the men's group. A new feature in the '52 race was a special event in which canoe teams from Iowa high schools competed.

Freshmen receive their first taste of Iowa State as they listen to instructions in preparation to taking entrance exams in the armory.

Freshman Days

A Freshman arrives at Iowa State fresh from the comforts of home with high school diploma clutched in his hand. He gets to ISC and what happens? He is overwhelmed with entrance exams, physicals at the College Hospital and seemingly endless numbers of buildings about which he knows nothing of the name or location.

The simplest of all for the confused Freshman is the taking of identification pictures — he sits down, the camera clicks and he is through with that phase of orientation.

Fraternity and sorority rushing take place during Freshman Days, and the new students interested in pledging have to squeeze time for rushing activities into their busy schedules.

Time for relaxation comes the last day when the new Iowa Staters dance at the Freshman Mixer, reciting over and over again their names, home towns and college addresses. They compare notes on Freshman Days, take part in the pie-eating contest and at the end of the evening stroll home with new friends.

Through this arch pass the men of Friley ten, twenty times a day.

From all indications, it's the Freshman Mixer in the Union . . . during Frosh week . . . gives all freshmen a chance to wheel.

... Watch that man with the ball . . . can he make it through that opening? . . . ISC on the offense battles power-packed Buffaloes.

Homecoming

The 1952 Homecoming celebration was off to a chilly but spectacular start as over 4,000 students, alumni, and guests witnessed an array of song and dance routines, quartets, hillbilly bands, and pajama relays at the annual Pep Barbecue Friday night. The climax of the event was the coronation of the 1952 Pep Queen, Sue Moore, and her attendants, Mary Weatherhead and Mariann Schonemann. Gib Stanek had the honor of being the first Pep King crowned at Iowa State. The King and Queen were again introduced that night during intermission of the opening dance in the combined ballrooms of Memorial Union, Ralph Marterie and his band providing musical accompaniment.

The weatherman had a change of heart on Saturday as he offered a beautiful day composed of warm temperatures and sunny skies. Many of the 16,000 spectators at the football game came away with sunburned noses, obtained as they watched the Cyclones bow to the weight, speed, and maneuverability of the Colorado Buffaloes.

Alums were entertained at planned functions over the week-end. They were addressed by Coach Abe Stuber and Athletic Director Louis Menze at a pre-game luncheon and following the game were guests at a reception for faculty and alums in the state gym. Class reunions were held where members could turn back the calendar and "remember when" with former classmates. Teas were given by sororities and fraternities to give alums a chance to relax in their former college homes.

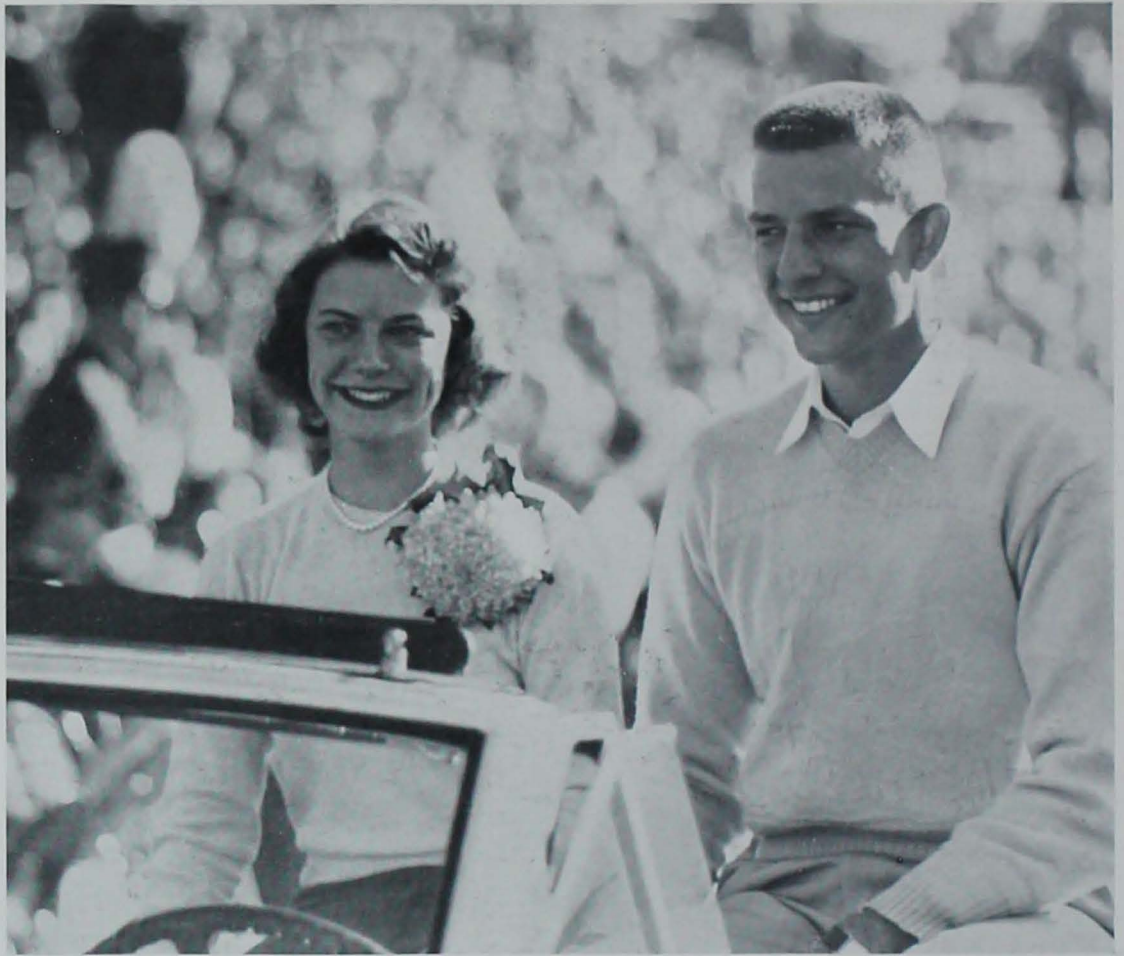

This year, ISC students joined in the fight against polio with a Homecoming Polio Drive. Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority and Theta Xi fraternity donated their allotments for house decorations to the polio fund as did all eight women's dorms. Remaining residences went ahead with their decorations and contributed by other means. More than $550 was pledged for polio. Kappa Alpha Theta came through with first place trophy in the women's division, and Phi Delta Theta took honors in the men's group.

... Alums found quiet beauty here ... Homecoming everywhere.

It's a "V" for victory as these peppy ISC cheerleaders lead a Cyclone yell at the mass Pep Rally before the Homecoming football game.

"Cigars — cigarettes?" Two smiling "patrons" appear impressed with the atmosphere, authenticity and service of the Union Nite Club.

General Social Events

Introduction to Iowa State social life comes with the Freshman Mixer, where Iowa meets Illinois, Missouri, and Nebraska. Closely following are the "Y" Mixer and registration dance which start the "ball rolling" on social events.

Throughout the year there are divisional proms, ranging from the formal Sweetheart Ball to the informal Harvest Ball. The Panhellenic Dance, Military Ball, and Union Nite Club are skillfully combined to make a well-balanced program for dance lovers.

Firesides, with hot chocolate after the basketball games on Saturday nights, are typical fall and winter quarter diversions. Other popular wintertime activities include tobogganing at the Country Club and ice-skating on Lake LaVerne.

Religion-in-Life Week exemplifies the serious outlook of campus life. A reminder of this week throughout the year is the "All Out to Church Sunday" each quarter.

It's fun! It's prizes! It's the 1953 Varsity "I" Carnival! The wearers of the cardinal and gold jackets started spring quarter with a bang as they held their annual festival in the State Gym.

Patrons of the event had no trouble finding at least one booth at which they could shine athletically. Every type of contest was on the agenda; from football passing and basketball throws to shooting at ping pong balls supported by a vacuum cleaner. Many girls proudly displayed nylons or gift certificates which their talented escorts won for them. A new attraction this year was a weight guesser who was drafted from the new initiates of Varsity "I" Club. The booth was very popular with the girls!

The athletes saw that the carnival was not lacking in pulchritude. Jim Doran, former Iowa State football star, chose five lovely girls as finalists for title of Varsity "I" Queen. All ticket holders voted and during intermission the winner, Mary Molison, was crowned by club president, George Holan.

Watch it—if you don't score we'll sell you another ticket.

Multi-thumbbed contestants team up to see who can win the race against the clock in the frustrating but challenging puzzlers contest.

Let it never be said that engineers' minds run along one track. One look at their annual carnival would disprove this. The event was overflowing with a varied array of features — such as games of skill, a knighting ceremony, dancing, a stage show and a frustrated engineer.

Booth chairmen this year made patrons prove their talent before prizes were given. They offered such games of aptitude as golf putting, hoop pitching and throwing a ball at hats held by coeds.

Special attractions of the evening were the announcement of the new Knights of St. Patrick and the presentation of the Most Frustrated Engineer, who was elected by an all-college vote the previous week. Strictly for entertainment was ballroom dancing and the "girlie show." Both were very popular!

Bend over, handsome . . . a kiss is the reward at Engineer's Carnival.

Pick a card, any card, teases this ISC lovely . . . at Engineers' Carnival . . . throw a dart and snag a card and there's an award for you.

Senior Class Officers

The '53 Seniors revived class officer elections as Winter Quarter balloting named Jim Winfrey president. The capable quartet of successful candidates was immediately faced with the responsibility of organizing for that time interval between the "final" final and Commencement. Recognizing the development of strong alumni as their primary objective the "Big Four" laid plans for a Senior Senate — a mass meeting of the Class of '53.

Other features of Senior Days were a Union Openhouse, an all-day Picnic, a Class Banquet, a Senior Prom, Commencement-morning Brunch and the traditional President's Reception. Although Commencement climaxed Senior Days it did not end the duties of the class officers as they'll be kept busy channeling '53 Class Spirit into reunions. Mrs. "Tippy" Timm, "Red" Barron and Mrs. Lang were most helpful advisors.

An Oscar Levant admirer, upon leaving the gym, finds his cryptic personality as fascinating as his piano concert.

Guest Artists

Glittering musical performances and inspirational philosophies crossed the footlights before Iowa State audiences this year. Sponsored by the Guest Artist Committee and Music Council they included Bizet's opera, "Carmen," Igor Gorin, famed baritone, and John Mason Brown, author and drama critic. Altaloa told of the fascinating customs and legends of her Indian heritage. Piano performers were the duo-piano team of Golde and Fiske and the personality of the keyboard, Oscar Levant. Dorothy Thompson lectured from her wide experience as a novelist and traveler. The spotlight shone again on Antal Dorati conducting the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra.

Bizet's colorful opera, "Carmen," was a new, spectacular and successful addition to the ISC concert series.

Rafael Mendez thrills ISC audience with his brilliant rendition of several world-famous trumpet solos.

Union Activities

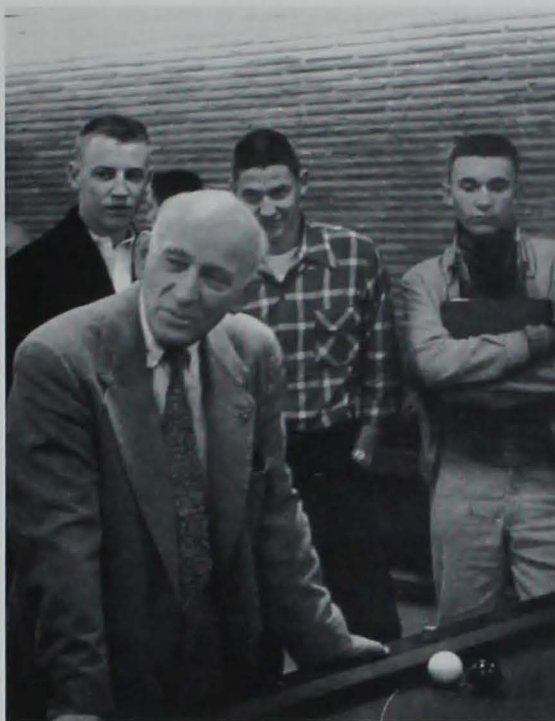

All year the Union was the center of social activities. Even if the activity was no more than a Union lab, it was still an important part of college life at ISC. The Union sponsored bridge classes so that these labs would become still more popular. With dancing on the patio during spring and summer and the new juke box in the Commons in fall and winter, it was crowded all year.

But it was during the hilarious evenings at Varieties that crowds became so large that many had to be turned away. These capacity crowds enjoyed entertainment which ranged from slap-stick comedies and can-can chorus lines to good musicals and a few serious skits.

The Union gave ISC its only night club. Complete with head waiter, floor show and dimmed lights, it was a popular spot all of winter quarter.

Besides these many activities the Union also was the headquarters for Cardinal Guild, Ward System, Veishea and Homecoming committees and many other activities — including panel discussions, Books and Cokes, and the Coffee Forum.

In order to provide more space for relaxation and give better office facilities to the many groups using the Union, it has been undergoing an extensive building program. A long awaited wing has been added. New offices for many of the campus organizations, as well as two new lounges have already been completed. Soon there will be a chapel and new bowling alleys, as well as the billiards room and space for table tennis. Despite the confusion caused by moving into new offices and working in temporary quarters, all of the many Union activities went on without any difficulty.

One of the lucky Iowa State coeds tries out the new ladies' lounge in the recently finished addition to the Memorial Union.

Varieties

Skits given at Veishea Vodvil were chosen from the preliminary contests which were held in Great Hall of the Memorial Union on Friday nights during winter quarter. Skit plans for these contests were drawn up and submitted by each resident house, and, from these plans, the Varieties Committee chose the skits which were to be given. The skits were given in groups of four, with two winners chosen from each group. Five trophies were awarded by the judges after all skits were given. The winners of these were: Alpha Gamma Delta with "Scandinavian Scampers," Chi Omega's "Syncopated Curriculum," Kappa Kappa Gamma's "Dark Horse Reigns," Sigma Alpha Epsilon's "ISC's ROTC," and Phi Delta Theta with their interpretation of Iowa State during cave-man days. The four houses chosen to give their skits in Veishea Vodvil were Alpha Gamma Delta, Chi Omega, Kappa Kappa Gamma and Delta Tau Delta. A bronze cup was awarded to Sally Schermer and Dorothy Dilworth for their in-between act.

Bomb Beauties

Iowa State has always been proud of her Bomb Beauties and she can well afford to be. This year competition was keen and to become a candidate was in itself a great honor. In order to be eligible to compete each girl was required to have a petition with 100 signatures on it. This was no simple task since no one was allowed to sign more than 2 petitions. Next, the girls were personally interviewed by a committee of judges imported from Des Moines. To cut this large group of beauties down to eight finalists was enough to drive any judge wild, but they completed their task and turned the final decision over to John Wayne in Hollywood who selected the four Bomb Beauties of 1953.

Beauty may be only skin deep, but a Bomb Beauty has charm, personality, loveliness and, in the case of Janet Peterson, a diamond.

Virginia Kurtz

Illinois can well boast of producing beautiful girls. A perfect example is Miss Virginia Kurtz, of Elmhurst. "Ginny" is a March graduate in the curriculum of General Home Economics. There is no disputing that Ginny, a Kappa Alpha Theta, is truly a Bomb Beauty.

BOMB BEAUTY

BOMB BEAUTY

Jeanne Paarlberg

Miss Jeanne Paarlberg, Kappa Kappa Gamma, hails from Harvey, Illinois and is finishing her third year at Iowa State as a Home Economics Education major. Jeanne, easily identified by her big blue eyes and dark lashes, is another beauty the Bomb proudly presents.

BOMB BEAUTY

Janet Peterson

Osage is the only Iowa town able to boast having a Bomb Beauty this year. She is Miss Janet Peterson, senior majoring in Applied Art. Jan is a five-foot seven beauty with brown eyes, light brown hair and a constant smile. She is a member of Gamma Phi Beta.

Sandyann Story

Sparkling and vivacious describe Bomb Beauty Sandyann Story. She is a little girl — only five-foot two, from a big city — Chicago. Sandyann is a sophomore at Iowa State, majoring in Institutional Management. She is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

BOMB BEAUTY

Veishea Queen of Queens

Amidst the cheers of the Opening Ceremonies audience, Carol Fisher was crowned '52 Veishea Queen of Queens. Uniformed trumpeters played a fanfare as the Queen and her court took their thrones in front of Beardshear and Cecil B. DeMille placed the crown on Carol's blond head. Carol's loveliness had been acclaimed earlier in the year by the Arnold Air Society when they chose her to be their Lady In Blue and when she became a Bomb Beauty. The radiance in Carol's sparkling blue eyes and warm smile shone as she reigned over all the Veishea festivities.

Thus Carol Fisher's reign as 1952 Veishea Queen of Queens began. Throughout the three-day celebration she was honored at all events she attended.

Beauty is only one of Carol's enviable qualities. She is an accomplished artist and those attending Stars Over Veishea saw her in another of her creative roles — that of a dancer.

Carol's court of attendants was chosen from the year's Iowa State queens. ISA Sweetheart Dona Weber adorned the Veishea court with her charming smile, as did the Engineer's Lady, Elsie Knodel. Colene Ruch had previously been elected Outstanding Junior Girl and Lois Downing was a Bomb Beauty.

It was with great pride that Iowa State students this Veishea pointed out Carol Fisher to all as "our Queen of Queens."

Five smiling beauties, Queen Carol and Attendants Elsie, Dona, Colene and Lois, are the featured attraction at Veishea Ceremonies.

HOMECOMING QUEEN

Sue Moore, Science sophomore and Pi Beta Phi, was aptly named Pep Queen of 1952.

HARVEST BALL QUEEN

Dorothy Thompson, noted author and columnist, is guest speaker.

Women's Day

February 25, 1953, was the 15th annual Women's Day at Iowa State College. This day has three main purposes: to promote women's activities, to recognize outstanding women with positions for the day and to schedule appearances of outstanding women to bring inspiration for "after college" life.

Guest speaker for the morning convocation and the all college lecture in the evening was Miss Dorothy Thompson, noted author, columnist and radio commentator. She expressed the idea that passion for security and undermining of the concept of good and evil are typical of the present generation.

The student women elected Delores Bauman President of Woman's Day. She presided over the convocation and was main speaker.

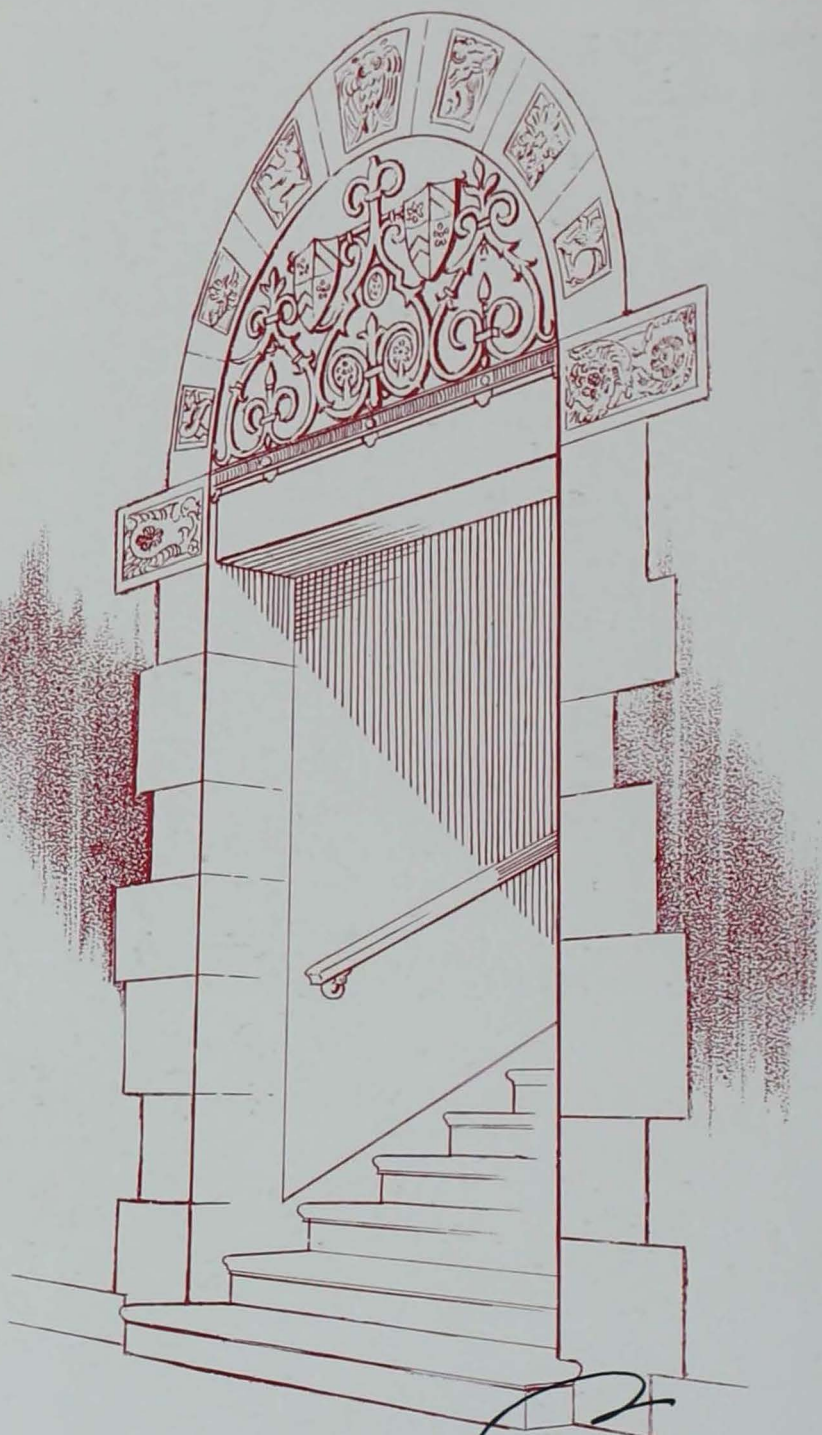

Thousands of friends and relatives of graduating seniors fill the Armory, engrossed in the speaker and eagerly awaiting diploma-time.

Graduation

The goal of four years' hard work was about to be realized as black-robed seniors marched down the aisle of the Iowa State armory for the commencement exercises June 13. Iowa rain prevented the graduation ceremony from being held outside as scheduled and thousands of spectators crowded into the humid Armory, each straining to catch a glimpse of his special graduate in the long line. After a congratulatory address by President Friley the seniors moved slowly toward the stage to receive their degrees and a handshake, a brief moment of recognition to acknowledge their achievement. Each had feelings of expectancy for the life to follow and regret for leaving college.

Sports

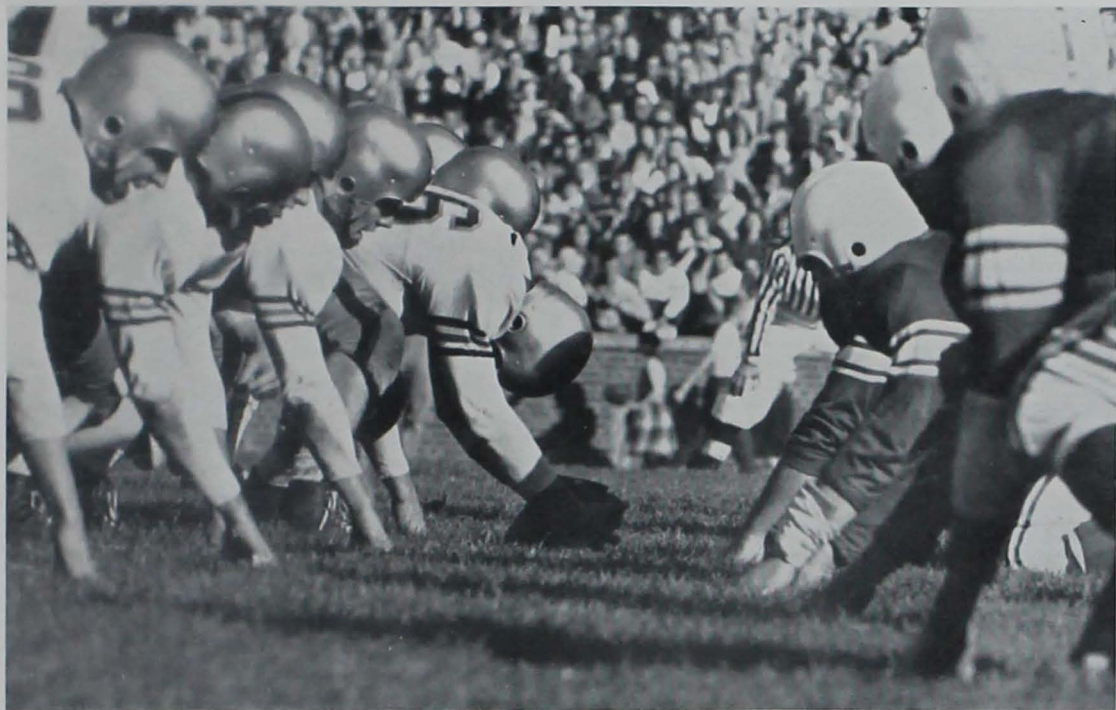

Louis Menze, Athletic Director, observed his silver anniversary in ISC athletics this year. He was appointed Director in '45.

Athletic Office Staff: Merl Ross (bus. mgr.), Irwin Christiansen, Barb Erwin, Marilyn Hitchings, Louis Menze (athletic director).

Signals are barked . . . ball is snapped . . . cleats bite the turf . . . fans roar approval . . . a notation is made in the record books.

Athletics . . . Competition Keen . . . Spirit High

Iowa State's athletic department, under the capable direction of Louis Menze, is organized to offer an opportunity in athletics to anyone interested in sports. From football to table tennis, from swimming to golf, every student enrolled at Iowa State has a chance to participate in the sport of his choice.

Aside from featuring every major sport sponsored by the Big Seven conference, ISC's intramural program affords well-rounded recreation for more than 5,000 students. Offering 20 different activities, the program is generally recognized as one of the outstanding intramural programs among colleges and universities in the nation.

Iowa State belongs to the Big Seven, one of the prominent conferences in the country, including such high athletic-ranking schools as Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Kansas State and Oklahoma. Cyclone teams, facing some of the strongest competition in the nation, annually come through with well-coached, fighting squads, giving the devoted public and students an opportunity to go all out in their support.

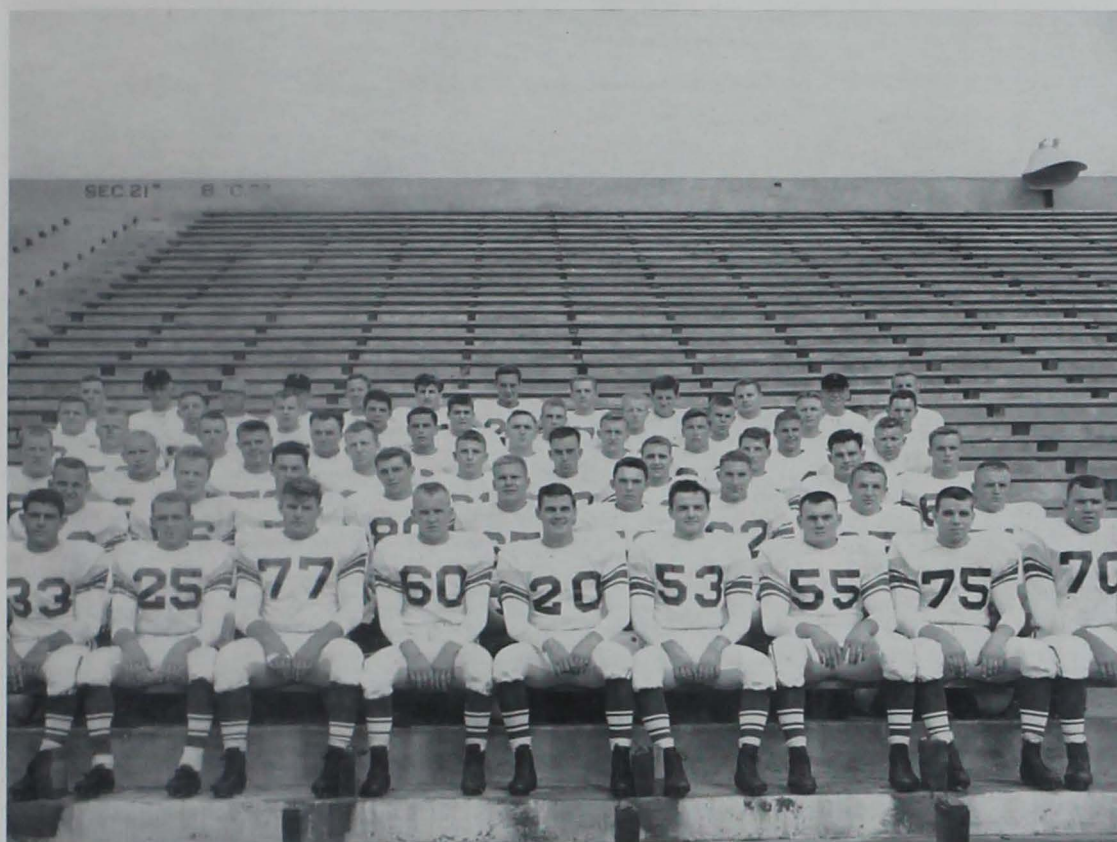

Iowa State Cyclones and their fans . . . the two names are synonymous among the schools of the mid-west. So fervent is the fans' support, that visiting teams have a constant fear of Cyclone territory due to the psychological disadvantage. And their fear is well-founded, for win, lose or draw, ISC fans will continue to enthusiastically back the Cyclones.

Record Books Fail To Tell Entire Grid Story

With three wins stacked up against six defeats, ISC's football season appears to have been mediocre. However, often matched against superior odds, and plagued with injuries throughout the campaign, the Cyclones always gave the fans what they paid to see — hard, rugged football.

A disheartening note was struck early in the season when a Big Seven eligibility committee ruled transfer Jack Erickson ineligible for future conference competition. Later the rule which terminated the rugged tackle's career was revoked, but not made retroactive.

The ability of the Cyclones to bounce back from a loss with a spirited determination won them the respect of conference opponents. This indomitable spirit was reflected in the last two games of the season. Rebounding from a humiliating 41-0 defeat at the hands of Oklahoma, the Cyclones rolled up a record total of points against Drake the following Saturday. The score was 55-7. Then they went on to post an impressive 27-0 victory over Kansas State, clinching sixth spot in the conference standings.

A trio of Cyclones, Shibley (20), Brettschneider (81), and Rawley (50), move in to "triple-time" a hapless South Dakota Jackrabbit.

ISC, 57—So. Dak. State, 19

Opening the season in royal style, ISC blasted the South Dakota Jackrabbits 57-19. The Cyclones calmly opened the scoring with a safety, then slammed their offense into high speed, and rammed home eight TD's.

Quarterback Dick Mann kept the Jackrabbits in a state of complete confusion as he cleverly mixed his effective passing (good for three TD's) with a smooth and well-coordinated ground attack.

Illinois, 33—ISC, 7

Illinois started early in the season to establish itself as a football power in the Midwest by defeating Iowa State, 33-7. Departing from Big Seven play and venturing into Big Ten competition, the Cyclones were unable to cope with Illinois' potent passing attack and stellar pass defense. However, statistics proved that the inspired Cyclones outgained the Big Ten team on the ground.

ISC's lone tally came late in the fourth quarter. An 18-yard pass from Plantan to Congiardo placed the ball on the 2-yard line and Burkett smashed over for the TD.

An Illini slips past Hemingway's reaching arms for a first down.

Nebraska, 16 — ISC, 0

A limping but defiant Iowa State crew went down before Nebraska, 16-0, lacking needed punch when touchdowns were within reach. Iowa State stopped fancy Bob Reynolds, all-American in '51, but George Cifra took up the slack with his 8-yard rushing average.

Barney Alleman's timely punting and Max Burkett's savage line-backing checked the spirited Cornhusker offense. A big gap in the forward wall was caused when a conference committee ruled stand-out tackle, Jack Erickson ineligible, for the rest of the season.

Across the line . . . a short gain . . . two Cyclones and an abrupt end. Back to the line, but no farther, as a "Cyclonic" storm breaks loose.

Kansas, 46 — ISC, 0

Fumbles and erratic passing, fused with a powerful Kansas football machine, proved to be too big a combination for the injury-riddled Cyclones. Iowa State bowed to K.U. 46-0.

ISC showed its only offensive spark of the game in the second half when the team rammed, sliced, and passed 80 yards to the Jayhawk 4-yard line — only to lose the ball by fumbling.

Colorado, 21—ISC, 12

What started out to be a rout completely reversed itself, as ISC came back from a scoreless half determined to win. Sophomore Bill Plantan quarterbacked his mates across the double stripes twice in the second half, causing the final tally to read 21-12. It appeared to be a different squad Coach Abe Stuber fielded for the second thirty against the powerful invaders. As a result the visitors had their hands full proving they belonged on the same turf with the inspired Cyclones.

ISC led in statistics, but games are still decided by points, and another loss was added.

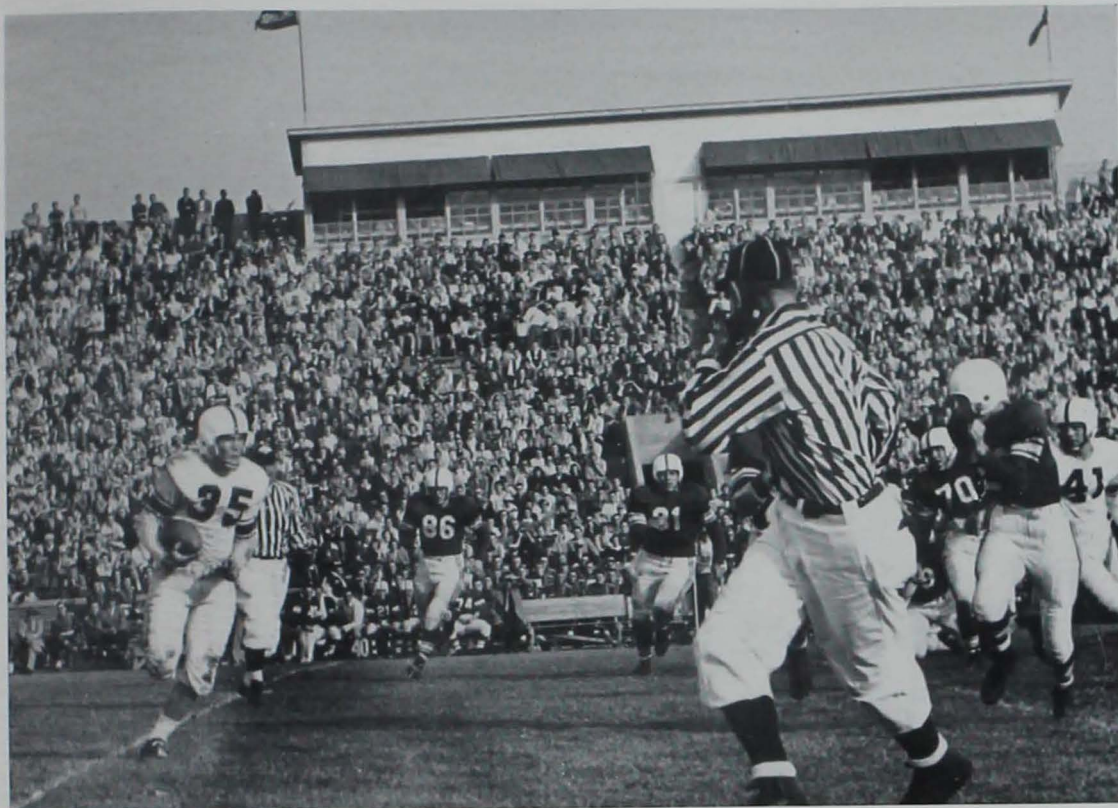

Missouri, 19—ISC, 0

In an attempt to thwart conference-leading Missouri, Coach Abe Stuber molded together a powerful Iowa State defense. The stubborn Cyclones held the driving Tigers scoreless for nearly three quarters before finally yielding. In the first half Missouri repeatedly hammered at the ISC line, twice driving within the 10-yard stripe, but the mulish Cyclones held.

It wasn't until late in the third quarter that mighty Mizzou broke the ice, with two consecutive long marches ending in TD's. Adding another in the final period, MU went on to wrap up the game, 19-0.

Burkett appears to be slapping his thighs in approval as Hemingway throws a Tiger for a loss. Kowalski (61) lends moral support.

Oklahoma, 41—ISC, 0

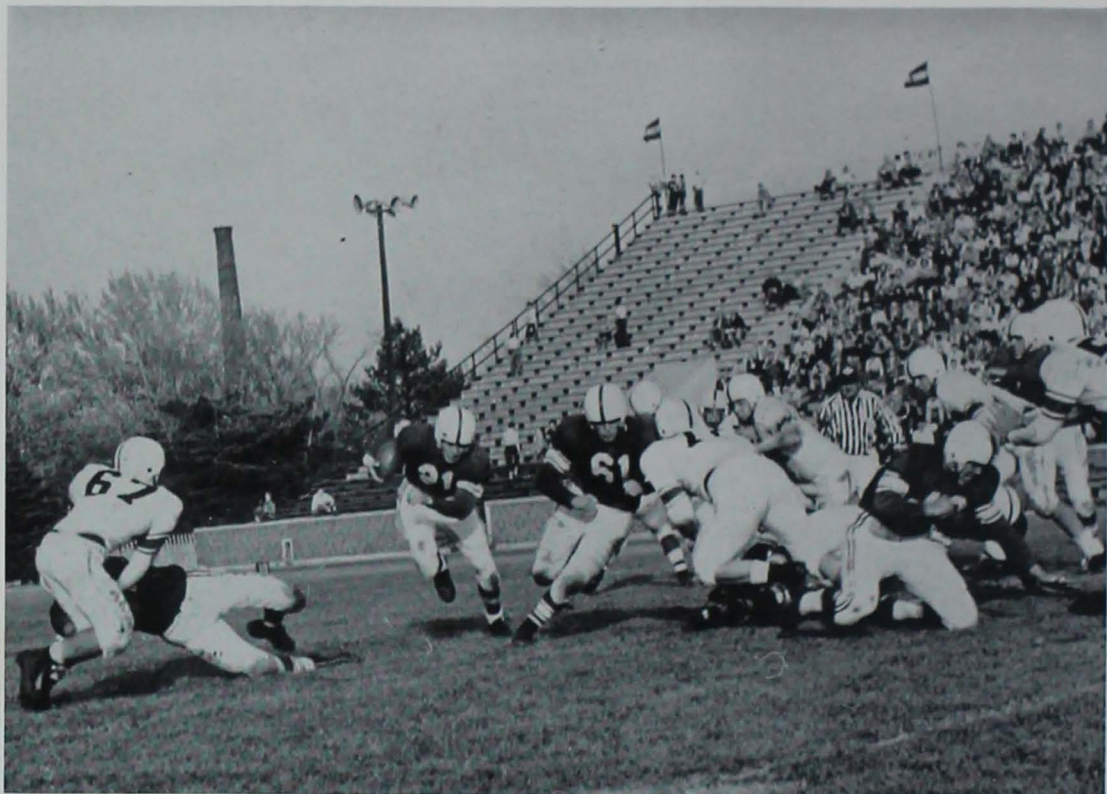

"Hold that line," was the chant that echoed across the stadium all afternoon as powerful Oklahoma flexed its unbeaten muscles and posted its 33rd straight conference win, 41-0.

Recovering from a three-touchdown barrage in the initial quarter, the Cyclones came surging back in the opening of the second fifteen with a sustained march of 78 yards which was halted just one short yard from pay-dirt. Bill Plantan, Paul Shupe, and Dick Cherpinsky sparked the only offensive threat the Cyclones could muster. Plantan took over as generalissimo after Dick Mann was viciously blocked and sidelined for the season with a broken leg.

Led by a pair of All-Americans, halfback Billy Vessels and fullback Buck McPhail, the Sooners from the South proved why they deserved the ranking as the number three team in the nation.

Eddie (The Magician) Crowder fails to fake Iowa State's Burkett.

Rice rips through a gaping hole in the Bulldog's line for a sizeable gain. Gains like this enabled ISC to set a record total of TD's.

ISC, 55—Drake, 7

A pass play that didn't work. That's Plantan on the bottom.

Iowa State closed its home schedule in booming fashion by crushing Drake, 55-7. The Cyclones rolled up a record total of points in handing the Bulldogs the worst beating in the history of the long series.

Capitalizing on fumbles and stolen passes, the Cyclones wasted little time in tallying three times in the initial quarter, first on a short slant by Cherpinsky, and then on two Plantan passes; one to Alleman and the other to Hemingway. Plunges by Eichorn and Cherpinsky added two more in the second period, leaving a 34-7 half-time margin.

The second half was repetition of the first, with the exception of the manner of scoring. Sprints replaced aeriels and plunges, and the scoring rolls kept moving. Eichorn sprinted 40 yards for one; Cozzi galloped 60 for another; and Cherpinsky bulled his way over from 11 yards out for his third.

ISC, 27 — K-State, 0

Iowa State climbed out of the cellar spot in the Big Seven with a 27-0 walk over the boys from K-State. Relying mainly upon a ground attack, the Cyclones came through with their best game of the season.

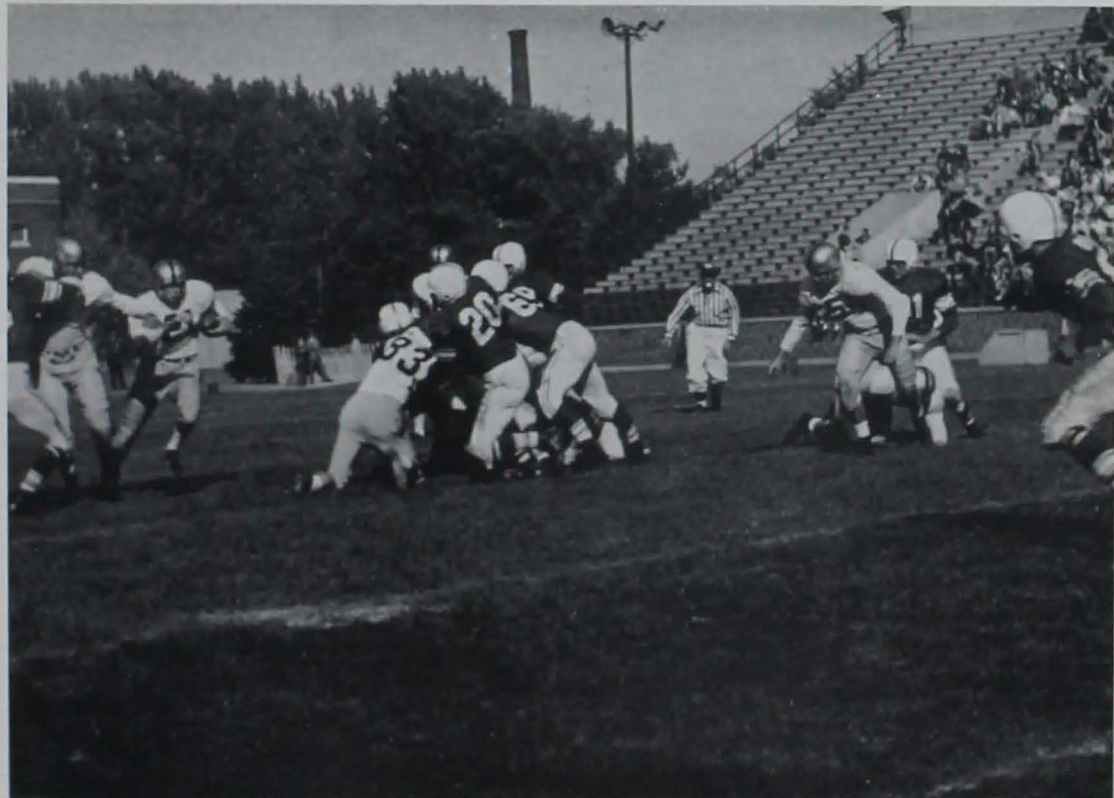

Eichorn climaxed a 71-yard drive when he smashed over for the first Cyclone TD of the afternoon. A Plantan pass was good for the extra point. Number two was set up when Shupe hauled back a punt to the Wildcats' 27. ISC battered near the goal and Plantan slipped over. The 3rd seven found Spence falling on a K-State fumble behind the goal, and Clendening booting the conversion.

Going into the second half, K-State made its sole bid with a series of long passes. However, the threat ended with an Iowa State interception. To add the finishing touches, Congiardo sneaked away from Wildcat tacklers, and pranced 50 yards for the final TD.

A K-State back is all up in the air about nothing . . . Eichorn waits.

A wide hole is opened up in the Cyclone line for a hard-charging back, but Bob Shibley (20) is moving over to plug the gap.

Coach Clayton (Chick) Sutherland celebrated his sixth year of coaching at Iowa State by producing one of the highest scoring squads in ISC's history.

Offensive minded, basketball team sets record

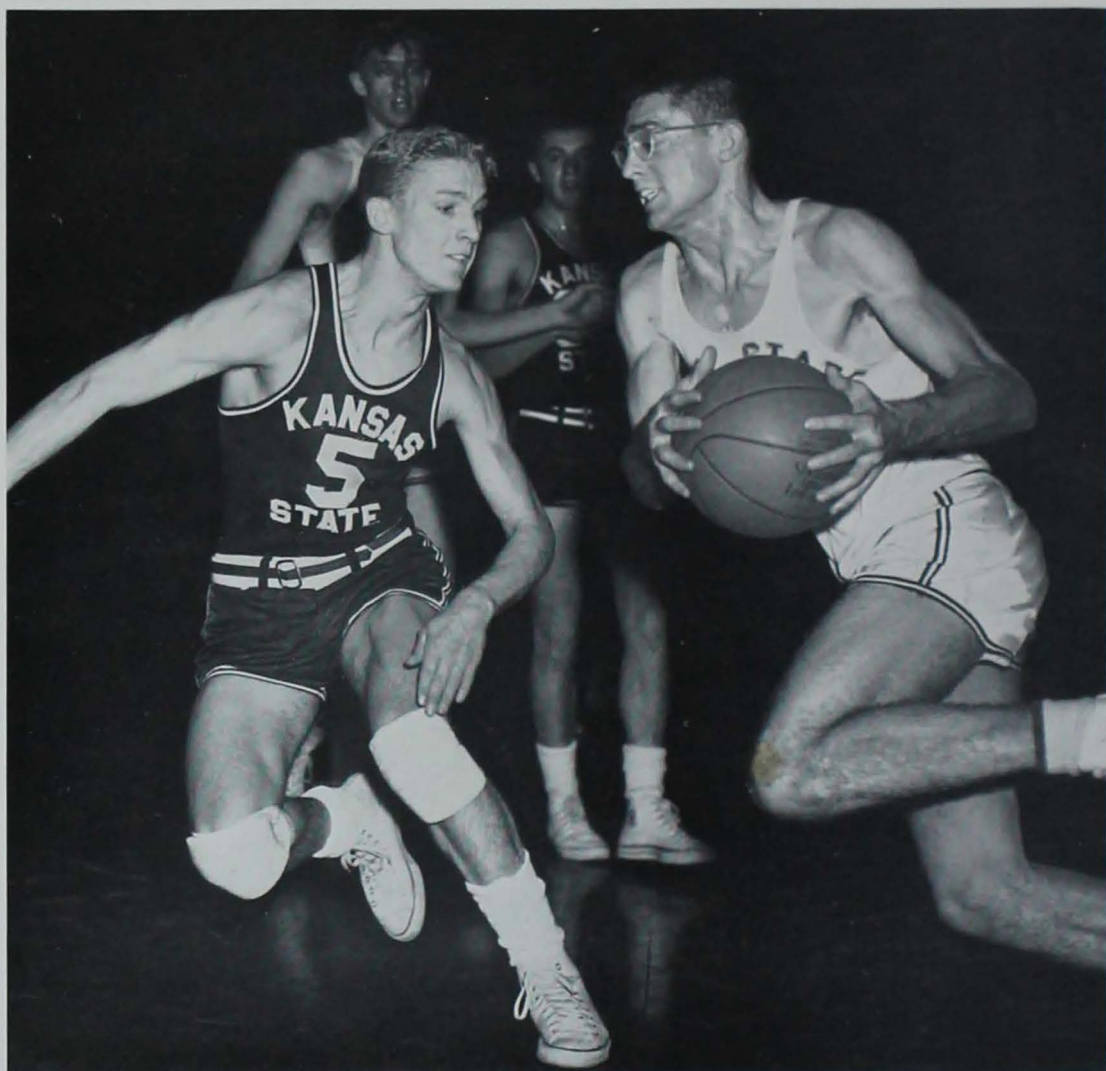

Iowa State's 1952-53 basketball team was termed as the "best scoring team we ever had," by Coach Clayton (Chick) Sutherland. The Cyclones had an offense average of 71.5 points per game and set a new scoring record in the Armory for ISC basketball squads to shoot for in the future.

The cagers ran up a grand total of 93 points for the record in their last home game of the season on March 2. They beat rugged Nebraska 93-66.

The Cyclones finished the season with 10 wins and 11 losses in one of the toughest conference battles of recent years. Iowa State had some difficulty in winning games on its home floor, as did other Big Seven teams, and the season saw most of the league wins on "away" courts for the Cardinal and Gold.

ISC ended the season in a fourth-place tie in the conference with Oklahoma. Both clubs owned a league record of 5 wins and 7 losses.

The Cyclones had the usual disappointments and the good games of any season. The cagers stood out when they battled to an 81-79 loss to a great Kansas State basketball team.

Cyclone Jerry Davis starts on his drive and a possible fielder for the Cardinal and Gold against the perennially tough Kansas State.

Basketball

Although Iowa State's cage quintet had an almost even record for the season, the fans were treated to some of the best basketball playing in the Midwest. Cyclones Delmar Diercks and Sammy Long put on some outstanding exhibitions during the season.

"Del" proved to be invaluable to the Cyclones as he set a new scoring record for the school. He rang up a total of 371 points during the season and tucked away 21 ISC scoring records in the process. Senior Sammy Long set a scoring record for a guard by splitting the nets for 247 points. Long was the standout for the Cyclones, not because of his scoring, but for his great ballhandling and dribbling. Carl Van-Cleave also broke the guard scoring record, taking second place.

In another of his speedy drives, Guard Sammy Long heads for the basket and a possible pass-off to Delmer Diercks.

Coach Sutherland depended mainly on the use of his starting five throughout the season, but had some strong replacements on the top of his reserve list to play when the regulars fouled out.

The Cardinal and Gold fared well in non-conference competition by winning 4 of the 6 games. The Cyclones lost to Drake in the first meeting of the two clubs, but revenged that loss to the arch rival by beating the Bulldogs on their home floor later in the season.

Center Delmar Diercks was named to the United Press all-Big Seven conference first team and guard Sammy Long was placed on the second team. Iowa State was awarded the annual Sportmanship Basketball award this year. The award is presented each year by the conference.

"What do we do now coach?" . . . Cyclone Chuck Duncan appears to have the advantage, but that elbow looks very uncomfortable.

The expression of Dutch VanCleave shows the drive he put into his ball-playing for the Cyclones.

Tankers splash to successful swimming season

Cyclone tankers once again successfully defended ISC's swimming reputation, notching a 5-2 dual-meet record and clinching second place in conference rankings.

Freshman star Jim McEivitt set the season's pattern by twice breaking the U.S. 220-yard free style record during the state AAU meet; the last time by 6/10 of a second.

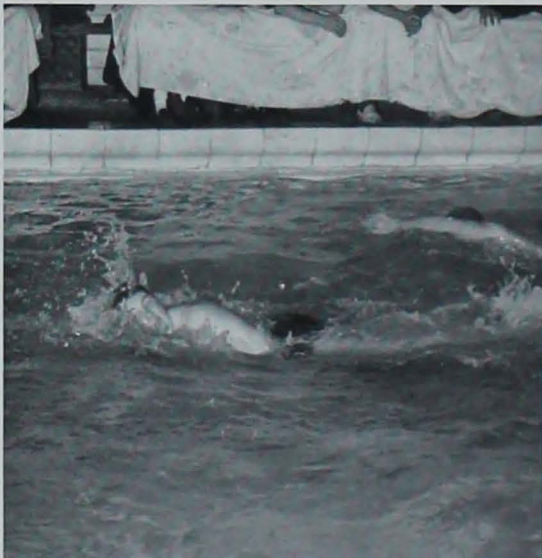

Traveling to Colorado for the first conference meet of the season, Iowa State smashed four meet records in rolling up an impressive 63-30 win over the Buffs. Returning to the home pool for the last home meet of the season, the tankers faced the TV cameras and splashed out a 56-33 victory over Kansas. Lee Anderson took advantage of the first televised ISC swimming meet, and clipped 4/10 of a second from his own NCAA 200-yard back stroke record.

The Cyclones faced their toughest competition of the season when they met a trio of teams from Michigan in mid-season. The road-trip resulted in the only dual-meet losses of the year, as the tankers bowed to Michigan and Michigan State, two of the outstanding collegiate swimming teams in the country. However, Wayne U. felt the full force of ISC swimming power, as Cyclone swimmers swept every event.

Smooth and effortless stroking like this enabled Lee Anderson to establish a new American record this year . . . Looks easy doesn't it?

Body length lead . . . then the final sprint . . . and it's a photo finish.

With only three tankers, (Co-captains Lee Anderson and Russ Thomas, and sprinter Larry Johnson) leaving by graduation, Coach Jack McGuire will have a nucleus of eight lettermen for next year's squad. Combined with this year's spirited frosh team, led by Jim McKeivitt, Jim Valleau, and Loren Braught, Iowa State should have one of the best swimming seasons in the school's history.

Individual laurels go to Russ Thomas, Lee Anderson, Mike LaMair, Bob Best, and Jack Kruse for stellar performances this year.

Mighty matmen strongest in ISC's history

The Cyclones of 1953 presented one of the strongest and most spirited mat teams in ISC's history. The grapplers won nine out of ten dual meets and came in second in the conference meet.

The matmen's only dual meet loss was to the defending national collegiate champs from Oklahoma. The aggressive ISC wrestlers put up a valiant battle, going down in defeat against the well-balanced southern team that boasted five individual loop champs.

Bob Wirds, outstanding 177-pounder for the Cyclones, was noted throughout the nation as being the best in his weight. He was the only Cardinal and Gold wrestler to win a Big Seven individual crown. Mel Waldon, Don Larsen, and Capt. Sam Ruzic took Big Seven seconds.

The Sooners were again dominant in the loop meet, but the ISC matmen placed four men in the finals. The Cyclones gain some consolation in the fact that six varsity men will be returning for next year. Wirts, a senior, was wrestling for his last year, and Lou Oscarson, 130-pounder, was lost to the armed services at the end of the season.

The Iowa State wrestlers made one of their best showings of the season when they defeated Oklahoma A&M 16-11. This was the second time in a long rivalry that the Cyclones had been able to overpower the Aggies.

Baseball

The Cyclone baseball squad wound up season's play with a 6-6 conference record, good for a .500 average and number four spot in the Big Seven standings. However, outside the Big Seven, the diamond men met with less success, ending the season with a 9-10 record.

Dropping five straight at the start of the season, the Cyclones shook off opening season jitters and settled down to play heads-up conference ball. At times their play was quite erratic, reflected in the season's statistics. The Iowa State nine won five out of eight contests with upper division teams and lost three out of four against clubs in the bottom half of the league.

Although the squad posted only an average record, their spirit and hustle demanded respect from each of their opponents.

With the return of seven lettermen, ISC's prospects for next year's season look bright. Although next year's club will lack an experienced mound staff, all-around speed and power at the plate should compensate for it.

After a bad inning in the Drake game, Burgess sullenly heads for the bench. ISC won 7-6.

ISC Thinclads Taste Dust on Track Trail

Iowa State's indoor track squad, coached by Burl Berry, finished the 1953 season with a record of one win and two defeats in dual meet competition. The lone victory was over Minnesota, while the losses came at the hands of Missouri and Drake.

The team placed third in a triangular meet with Kansas State and Colorado, and seventh in the conference meet at Kansas City. Although the Cyclones were last in the Big Seven, they were only one point away from fifth.

Top performers throughout the season for the cindermen were: Captain John Wilkin, John Dickinson, Jim Mielkus, Jim Robertson, Jack Cozad, Tom Shupe and Ray Long.

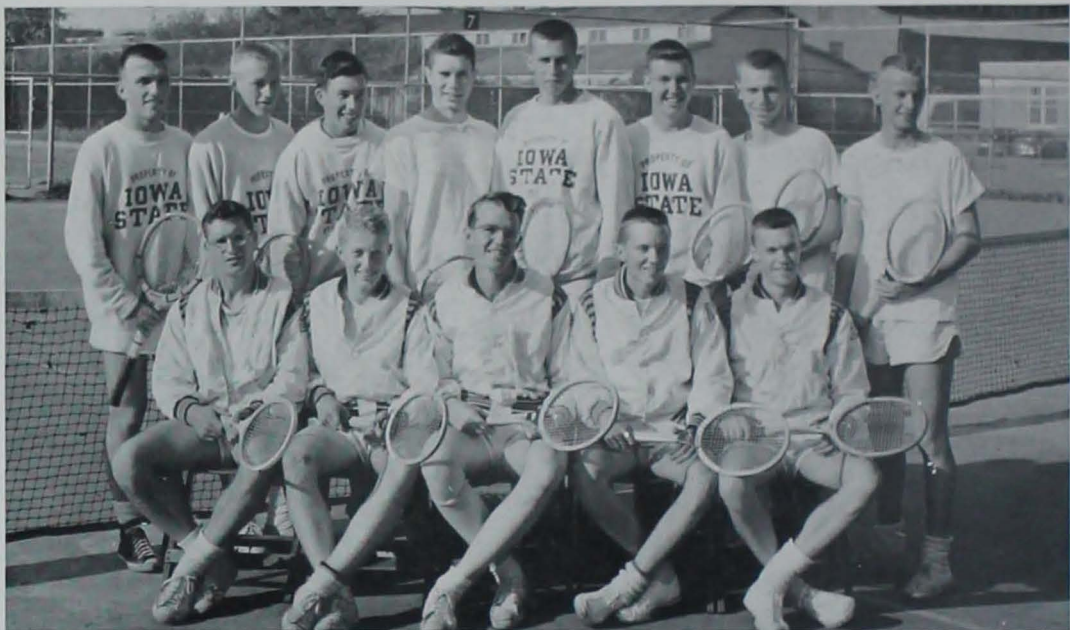

The squad was severely hampered with injuries and sickness throughout the season, every man on the squad being on the sick list at least once during the year.

Combining this year's winning frosh squad with returning lettermen, next year's record should greatly improve.

With the advent of spring and warm weather, ISC's outdoor cindermen, guided by Coach Burl Berry, moved to outdoor tracks and competed in nationally prominent meets.

Beginning with the Texas Relays at Austin, the Cyclones traveled on to the Kansas and Drake Relays, winding up the season in Norman, Oklahoma, site of the conference meet. Also included in the season's schedule were three dual meets: Drake, Colorado, and Kansas State.

The thinclads lost the trio of dual meets, but received some consolation in the K-State meet when Harold Rhode beat the Big Seven dash champ, Thane Baker. No school awards were presented at the Relays, excepting the Big Seven meet, because all three featured individual competition. At the conference meet, muscular Jim Robertson successfully defended his discus title, and Harold Rhode took second in the 100. Twelve returning lettermen brighten next year's prospects.

ISC's Racket Squad Shines as Season Ages

ISC's netmen volleyed their way through an average season, evenly dividing an eight-game schedule. Drake, Iowa Teachers, Grinnell and Missouri fell before the slashing drives of the racketeers. But Kansas, Minnesota, Omaha and Nebraska proved too powerful for Coach Harry Schmidt's charges.

Led by Captain Dan McEachran, the squad developed rapidly as the season wore on, emphasized by their one-point loss to Nebraska for the final dual match of the season.

Time Spells Intramural Expansion at ISC

Iowa State's intramural program had its origin before the turn of the century, when student groups (despite faculty opposition) issued challenges for athletic contests. A party always followed, and the loser paid the bills.

Now, over 55 years later, the program has grown so large that it is recognized as one of the outstanding programs in the country. Under the capable hand of Harry J. Schmidt, the system offers 20 different activities to over 5,000 participating students.

The idea of actually organizing an Iowa State intramural program was first started by the Athletic Department. However, this soon proved to be unsatisfactory when the department began using the set-up as a screen for scouting varsity material, thereby discouraging many students from participating.

After a series of experimental changes, the program evolved to the present system, that of a student-planned administration. Three intramural councils, Ward, Dorm, and Fraternity, meet with Harry Schmidt to discuss and decide the year's policies.

Growth of the ISC intramural program is reflected in last year's intramural basketball season; one hundred and ninety-four teams, involving over 2,000 students, played 464 games.

Fall Sports Program

Iowa State's well-rounded intramural program commenced with the playing of touch football. The school was divided into four classes, fraternity, dormitory, ward and Pam-mel Court.

Kappa Sigma took the fraternity and all-campus football honors. The fraternity sports triad which includes table tennis, golf and horseshoes was won by Tau Kappa Epsilon. Independents' basketball free throw contest was taken by Hughes Hall and Nu Ward. Volleyball provided the most exciting sport of fall intramurals as Kimball emerged victor in the dorms, Delta in the wards, and Phi Delta Theta in the fraternities.

The swimming competition was run on a dual meet basis with Alpha Tau Omega showing the best tankers. Franklin House emerged as victors in the dormitory section. Dual track, with a record number of competitors, was won by Chamberlain House and Phi Kappa Psi.

"Where are dem guys? We'll moider 'em!" Remember men it's touch!

The ball is snapped, but no action ensues. It appears as though both teams are employing an "aggressive" offense of passive resistance.

Up in the air they go, both expecting to control the jump.

Winter Intramurals

Winter quarter found ISC's intramural program offering seven sports for student competition.

Basketball headed the list. Sigma Phi Epsilon moved to an easy championship in class A fraternity ball, but ran into trouble with an East Stadium quintet before carting away the all-campus trophy. However, the crew from East Stadium took consolation in the fact that they copped the Dorm title.

Beta Theta Pi literally ran away with the fraternity indoor track meet. Bob Buxton, Beta Theta Pi, won the indoor broad jump for the fourth consecutive year. The thin-clads from Fairchild took the dorm class, and Delta Ward's cindermen maintained their track reputation by winning in their class.

In indoor swimming, the tank team representing Fairchild proved that house's versatility by splashing their way to the dorm swimming title. The tankers from Delta Ward annexed the ward tank title, while Phi Delta Theta paddled its way to the fraternity class A trophy.

In the wrestling world, Phi Kappa, Phi Kappa Psi and Tau Kappa Epsilon ended the season in a three-way tie for first place. Alumni Hall wrestlers flexed their muscles and captured the Dorm class A trophy.

Alleys were crowded and pin-boys were busy as intramural bowling came into the spotlight. The Sig Ep's and Nu Ward took all the bows in their respective classes.

In table tennis, the squad from Iota Ward slammed their way to the championship in ward competition and the team from Theta Delta Chi downed all competition from the fraternity section of the campus.

The click of billiard balls was heard for the first time in the history of the intramural program this year. Chuck Kingsley, Phi Kappa Psi, wrote the first page in the new record book by winning the fraternity championship.

Never behind the 8-ball—that's Chuck Kingsley, billiard champ.

Ray George desperately tries to add inches to his leap, but his effort was all in vain. He placed fourth in broad jump competition. It's close . . . Leg muscles bulge and facial expressions tell the strain.

Spring Intramurals

As spring quarter started, intramurals moved from the confines of walls to the limitless outdoors. The great American game of softball started the spring program; Alumni Hall slugged their way to the dormitory and all-campus championships. Alpha Chi Rho of the fraternity class, Kappa of the ward section, and the Chem Grads all played good ball as they took their respective titles.

The other major sport of the spring quarter was track. A grand total of 352 runners participated as Phi Kappa Psi won the fraternity section, Lincoln House the dorm class, and Nu Ward the ward group. There were three minor sports included in this well-rounded program, horseshoes, golf, and tennis. Nu Ward took the ward horseshoe crown; Delta Tau Delta threw their way to a smashing victory in the fraternity class. Tennis trophies were won by Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Epsilon Ward; Phi Delta Theta and Delta Upsilon tied for golf honors.

Women's Intramural Board

Women's Intramural Board originates all those tournaments you hear the girls talking so enthusiastically about. Each dorm and sorority sends a representative, who, with the town girls' representative, set up the mechanics of these contests. Their advisor, Virginia Taylor, helps the Board with the scheduling of the games and the establishing of the rules of the tournaments.

The college women played in all kinds of tournaments from table tennis to baseball. The competition for the intramural plaques awarded at the annual spring picnic became pretty tough as the year progressed.

Under the combined leadership of Virginia Taylor and Shirley Wartchow, the president, Intramural Board accomplished much this year. During spring quarter they helped plan the annual spring picnic at which they managed the tennis and softball finals. At their bi-weekly meetings the Board thought up ideas to get the women on the campus interested in athletics. From the tournament participation, one might gather that they had a very successful year.

Success was heralded by the enthusiasm with which each of the women's athletic functions was met. Aside from the tremendous turnout for the tournaments, other scheduled events were strongly attended by all members of the college. It will be hard to beat this record!

Expressions range from indifference to enthusiasm as the finish line is one stroke away.

"Another strike!" . . . But don't worry, it's a pretty poor scorekeeper who can't keep her team ahead. What do you think, Jan?

Future Iowa State modernistics receive professional advice from Miss Harriet Ann Gray.

WAA Council

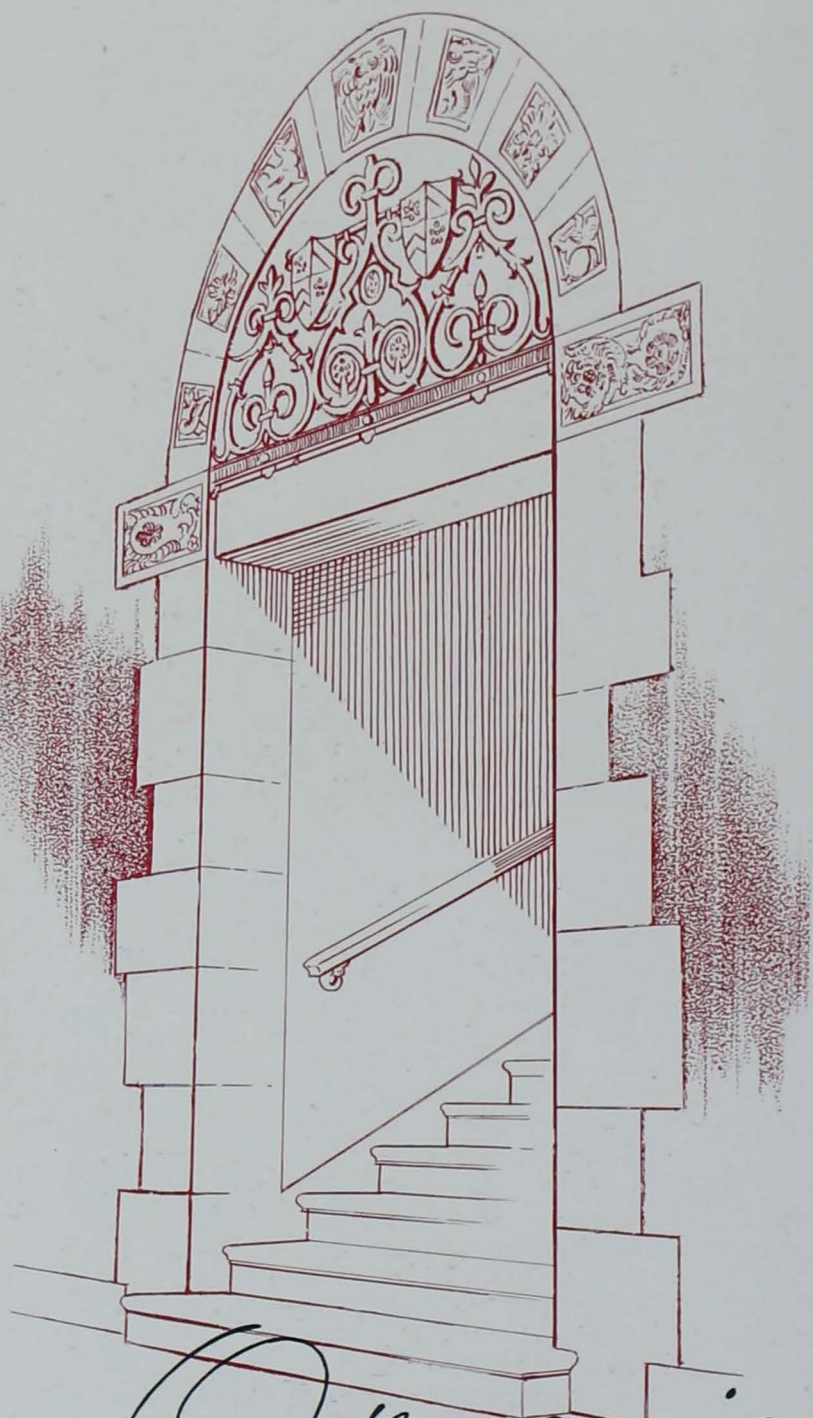

Have you wondered how it is possible to co-ordinate the women's athletic program so efficiently? WAA Council makes this co-ordination possible through its organization of the dues, membership and program of each club.

However, WAA Council is not all work. The members, including the presidents of each WAA club, "I" fraternity, and Intramural Board, plan and participate in the annual spring picnic which is a party for all the women on campus. Excitement runs riot for during the picnic, the annual championship softball and tennis tournaments are played off and the "I" awards and plaques are given to those who have earned them.

During the fall WAA Council helps the freshmen get acquainted by throwing what they call a freshman preview of WAA. All freshmen are welcome to participate in an afternoon full of skits, refreshments and fun.

The playday, as it is called, is sponsored by the Council and is planned by each divisional club.

This year with Phil Paulson heading WAA Council they have tried playdays with other college clubs. The result was a few new techniques learned, a few hard bumps and a good time by all.

Organizations

A thrilling experience! Bob Hoak was slapped and given the famous key of Cardinal Key by his father, an alum of the organization.

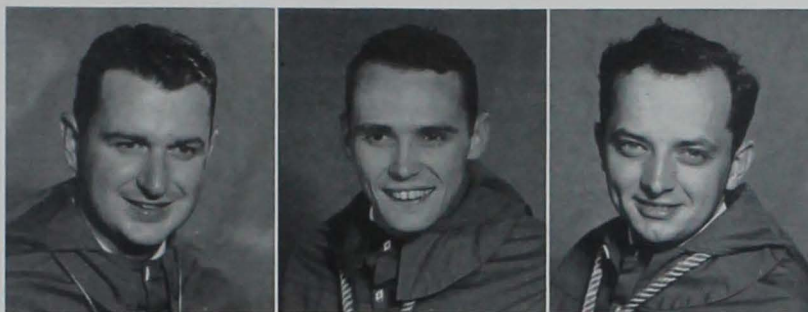

Cardinal Key

A hearty slap on the back and a welcoming handshake indicates that another man has earned the distinction of joining the ranks of Cardinal Key. This traditional ceremony takes place during the Veishea festivities in the spring and has become symbolic as a token of membership in the highest honorary for men at Iowa State. As the 14 men and two faculty members were tapped, anxious on-lookers watched Don Wheeler receive the last tap of the group, labeling him as the man who would wield the gavel for the organization this year.

The men chosen were those who rated highest among their classmates in scholarship, leadership and service to the college.

Each winter quarter brings the annual Leadership Day banquet and convocation which honors outstanding men who have been recommended for membership in Cardinal Key. Previous to Veishea, Cardinal Key and Mortar Board serenaded residences of students who had been chosen for membership.

The thrill of a lifetime for Peggy McLaren as she is capped president of Mortar Board during Veishea by the retiring president.

Mortar Board

One by one the newly capped members of Mortar Board were brought through the arch of the campanile to be presented to the crowd which had gathered to witness the choosing of the outstanding women of the junior class. Mortar Board women are chosen on the basis of leadership, scholarship and service.

These women proudly wear their white suits on campus and can be seen every Monday evening going to meetings at the Memorial Union. On February 25 Mortar Board sponsored the annual Women's Day. Dorothy Thompson, the columnist, was guest speaker at the convocation. A senior coed, not a member of Mortar Board, is chosen as student body president, and the campus is run for one day by feminine students. The induction candlelight service for freshman women is the first project of the school year for Mortar Board.

Book work and brain work go into the job of fitting all graduating students with caps and gowns, say Mortar Board women.

Phi Kappa Phi

Phi Kappa Phi selects high ranking graduate students and faculty members for membership each year. The number of undergraduates elected in any one year may not exceed one-sixteenth of the graduating class and is selected from the upper one-eighth.

Alpha Zeta

Alpha Zeta pledges carried out the resolution of last year to abolish Hell Week. In the spring pledges tore out trees and took down fences to help complete the new 4-H camp at Boone. Fall found these Alpha-Zeta's-to-be cleaning windows and putting up storm windows.

The creating of the Agriculture Reading Room is another Alpha Zeta project. Alpha Zeta and Ag Council meet here, and tables for studying and ag publications for research or relaxation complete the reading room. The monthly meetings include a speaker. The speakers, while not members, are from campus and speak on topics pertaining to agriculture.

The Iowa State chapter was well represented at the Alpha Zeta national conclave, for six men were sent to the New York gathering.

Two banquets highlight the Alpha Zeta year. In the spring comes the initiation banquet, at which the pledges entertained this year. Kirk Fox, editor of Successful Farming, was guest speaker. Another successful banquet was held in the fall, with Howard Hill, president of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation, speaking.

Alpha Zeta members are juniors and seniors in agriculture and veterinary medicine who rank high in scholarship and have participated in campus activities.

Tau Beta Pi

Engineers in the upper one-eighth of the junior class or the upper one-fifth of the senior class may be elected to the division's honorary, Tau Beta Pi. Tours of the engineering departments, with explanations of the buildings and curriculum, were given to the freshman engineers by the active members, giving the new students their first taste of engineering.

The brown and white robes massed on the steps of campus buildings showed initiation in progress. The pledges serenaded students with "St. Patrick Was an Engineer" and other engineering songs.

Freshman scholarship is encouraged by the annual Tau Beta Pi award to the freshman engineer with the highest scholastic average.

Pledgeship of Tau Beta is no easy life. Twenty-inch slide rules can be mighty hard to manipulate in working the problems the actives dream up.

The brown and white robes designate a new Tau Bet pledge class.

Knights of St. Patrick

I wonder if the Blarney Stone is in the box or if the Ags have it.

Did you see Saint Pat? If you were at the Engineers' Ball, you saw Saint Patrick escorting the attractive Engineers' Lady who assisted him in presiding over the dance. The engineer who owned the Saint Pat title for the evening was an active chosen by both the actives and pledges at their annual banquet.

Only a few students active in events on campus may become knighted with a tap of the shillalah into the Guard of Saint Patrick. True to the old Irish tradition, each pledge must kiss the Blarney Stone for good luck before being initiated into this organization of outstanding engineers.

The highlight of the year was the Hour of Saint Patrick when all 24 members met the candidates for Engineers' Lady and later selected the finalists. An attendance record was made for choosing the Iowa State coed to preside over the annual Ball.

Edd Mason "engineered" the Knights as president.

Epsilon Pi Tau

The spring initiation banquet in April brought another group of men from the Industrial Education department into Epsilon Pi Tau, the department's honorary professional fraternity. Members are chosen for high scholarship and professional attitude.

Although many of the members plan on going into the field of education after graduation, not all have declared intentions of joining the profession implied by the department's name. A career in industry has been chosen by some Epsilon Pi Tau's, so meetings are planned to cover professional work of many kinds.

The group meets the first Monday of every month in the Memorial Union with Robert Lathrop in the president's chair. The main purpose is discussion of the educational field among members and the acquiring of new ideas in industrial education by bringing in speakers to discuss the most recent trends in the profession.

Is the Industrial Education lab really as bad as all that, fellah?

Phi Upsilon Omicron

Although all Phi U's aren't food majors, the cakes came out fine.

"Such wonderful nuts." "Terrific dates." Subject? Fruitcakes — very special fruitcakes made by Phi Upsilon Omicron. Once every year the Phi U members take over the institutional management tearoom during the Christmas holiday rush and turn out their popular little fruitcakes for sale to the public. The profit from this project goes toward a one hundred dollar scholarship which is awarded to an outstanding freshman or sophomore girl in the Division of Home Economics.

Another annual project of this national professional honorary is the co-sponsoring of Home Economics Day with Omicron Nu. This special day is for all home economics students. In the spring the chapter sponsors a buffet dinner for the actives, alumni and faculty members.

Phi U members are chosen on the basis of scholarship and leadership qualities. The present 25 members are headed by President Thelma Ross during the bi-monthly meetings.

Alpha Chi Sigma

A safety program in the Chemistry and Chemical Engineering buildings is the newest project of Alpha Chi Sigma, professional fraternity for chemists and chem engineers. They emphasized accident prevention and more availability of fire prevention materials.

A 50-50 ratio is kept between chemists and chem engineers, also between graduate students and undergraduate students. They meet twice monthly in the Memorial Union.

At the Honors Day convocation in May, an award of Lange's Handbook is given to the outstanding sophomore in the chemistry or chem engineering department.

Eta Kappa Nu

Another pledge class, another treasure hunt for the symbol of the organization. Seems like the symbol, entrusted to the pledges, always disappears just before initiation, and pledges are told, "No symbol, no initiation."

The Eta Kappa Nu's are members of the Electrical Engineering department and are chosen on the basis of scholarship, service and general character.

Meetings are held once a month in the Electrical Engineering building and conducted by President Dale Sparks. John E. Legerstrom is faculty advisor to this group, which twice yearly initiates new members.

Tau Lambda Rho

To provide a place where all the "boys" who meet at Civil Engineering Summer Camp can get together and renew friendships; this is the purpose of Tau Lambda Rho. All members have spent one summer at the departmental camp at Wirt, Minn.

The campus recognizes Tau Lambda Rho pledges by the wooden brush hooks around their necks. Each pledge makes one from specifications given by the actives and gets the signatures of 20 actives and 20 pledges on the hook before initiation.

Besides business meetings, the men keep up their camp friendships with a spring picnic.

Pi Tau Sigma

Gone for a day from the hectic hustle of college life were the Pi Tau Sigma's on their spring picnic.

The mechanical engineers in this honorary don't seem to mind hard work too much, though, as is evidenced in their campus leadership and activities. Men are selected for the honorary from the upper 35 per cent of mechanical engineering juniors and seniors with the aim of stimulating interest in departmental activities and promoting professional interest. Two of the activities for the year were the construction of a booth at the engineers' carnival and a float for Veishea.

Delta Phi Delta

A Christmas bazaar offering for sale objects made by members highlighted the year for Delta Phi Delta, art honorary. The talented girls' handiwork included table cloths and matching napkins, wooden bowls, Christmas tree decorations, place cards and Christmas cards.

A new project this year was a display case on one of the landings of Home Economics Hall. During the year each member displayed samples of her work in the case.

Jeanette McCurdy served as president of the honorary, whose membership is determined by art ability and high scholarship.

Omicron Nu

Omicron Nu is the reward to outstanding juniors in home economics for working their hardest. Membership in this society is available with a 3.2 average, and selection is the reward for this high scholarship.

Outstanding sophomores were honored at the annual sophomore tea Jan. 29. Omicron Nu, co-sponsor with Phi Upsilon Omicron, worked on Home Economics Day to give students an idea of their place in the professional field. Meetings at the homes of faculty advisors were lively, including reports from foreign students and promotion of better homemaking in the community. Joan Toth is president.

Pi Mu Epsilon

A skit by the new initiates and a speaker climaxed the banquet and initiation for the spring pledges of Pi Mu Epsilon. New members are chosen by high scholarship for this mathematics honorary.

Director Kalliope Papantonis presided over the meetings held in the mathematics office in Beardshear Hall. The group sponsors the Math Club, which is led by Stan Petrick, vice director of Pi Mu Epsilon.

The Pi Mu Epsilon Prize in Math is awarded each year to the individual who, for his freshman-sophomore years, has the highest cumulative average in six quarters of mathematics.

Psi Chi

A battery of tests, which measured finger dexterity, strength of hand grip and other motor skills, formed part of the Veishea Open House display of the psychology honorary, Psi Chi. To test the Veishea guests' knowledge of a few commonly known psychological facts, they also devised a "psychometer," which lighted up for a correct answer and buzzed for a wrong one.

During the year, they meet bi-weekly in the Memorial Union. The group includes guest speakers as well as informal discussions of such topics as job possibilities and motor learning in the programs. Lynn Fuhrer Lodge was the site of the spring initiation picnic.

Tau Sigma Delta

Even Eisenhower's medal was there in the display of medals set up by Tau Sigma Delta, a national collegiate honor society. The display was exhibited at the library and included all kinds of medals awarded on many different occasions. Besides setting up displays, the society holds initiation banquets for new members of the organization.

Members of Tau Sigma Delta are elected on the basis of scholarship and character. It is open to students enrolled in the department of architecture, landscape architecture and allied arts.

Jerry Dommer served as president.

Phi Eta Sigma

A smoker during winter quarter helped to acquaint eligible freshman men with Phi Eta Sigma, freshman honor society. A 3.5 grade-point for fall quarter is necessary for eligibility.

A banquet in spring quarter preceded initiation of new members. The program included a speaker and election of officers.

The honorary, founded in 1923, now has an active membership of 46. Phi Eta Sigma seeks to encourage and reward freshman scholarship among men students. Max Burkett was president. Other officers included: William Gardiner, R. Alexander Atwood, Bruce Johnson and Alberto Ng.

Phi Mu Alpha

The men of Phi Mu Alpha, music honorary, sang their way into the heart of ISC at their annual fall recital.

Besides their recital and sponsoring of Sinfonia, the competitive singing contest for men's residences, these male songsters helped bring "a bit of culture" to the campus last winter with the Oscar Levant concert. ISC songbooks were published and sold the year around by the active members.

The men are chosen for their high scholarship, musical ability and service to ISC musical organizations. The fraternity made several broadcasts over WOI radio station.

Sigma Alpha Iota

The active members of Sigma Alpha Iota, women's professional music honorary, celebrated the golden anniversary of the national organization at a luncheon in November.

The honorary promoted music on campus in many ways this year. It sponsored Sor-Dor, women's singing program, and helped the Phi Mu men sell ISC songbooks. With the men, it co-sponsored a public musicale, which included vocal and instrumental ensembles.

The proceeds from this program were contributed to the National Foundation Fund which is used for music scholarships. An hour program was presented over WOI in October.

Sigma Delta Chi

The co-sponsorship of the Green Gander was only one of the ways which Sigma Delta Chi, men's journalism fraternity, fulfilled its purpose. This group, which includes undergraduate and professional journalists, found many ways to encourage journalistic activities on the Iowa State campus.

It presented its annual gold watch award to an outstanding campus journalist and gave the Journalism Awards Banquet. Two Iowa newspapers received trophies from the fraternity for outstanding service to their communities. The members, led by George Peterson, met bi-monthly in Memorial Union.

Theta Sigma Phi

The women of the typewriter are the Theta Sigs, members of women's professional journalism fraternity.

Led by President Nancy Voss, the Theta Sig women invited the chapter at Drake University for dinner and a tour of the new WOI-TV studios.

An all-student luncheon was planned last spring featuring Marion Looft, Swift and Company, who discussed public relations. Chosen for high grades and journalism activities, the women supported their Beckman Reading Room Fund and sent a representative to the national convention in Columbus, Ohio.

Military Activities

These sailors are at the Norfolk Base awaiting embarkation for Paris. Their student pallor seems to have disappeared already.

NROTC

Anchors aweigh and the freshman midshipmen from Iowa State College were on their way to Europe for their summer training cruise. It was not all work on the trip; leaves in ports of London, Paris and Lisbon gave the men a chance to have some sightseeing fun.

Men in dungarees at "right shoulder swabs" escorting women to classes? A familiar sight seen last fall as the NROTC's honorary, Sextant, sent the chosen men through initiation. The main function of the Sextant is a service organization for the NROTC. The navy men organize the Navy Ball, Veishea float and Veishea open house through Sextant. The future ensigns found that precision was needed in studying navigation, fire control, gunnery and naval history. A crack drill team and rifle squad are the boast of ISC's navy men. This year the Chicago Tribune gold star award was received by Henry Kroeger, ISC commander, and Harry Wharton received the silver star.

Ready . . . Aim . . . Fire! Another red flag! (To those who haven't been on a target range lately, the red flag means you've missed.)

ROTC

Almost 2000 men are members of Army ROTC at Iowa State College, which offers four branches of military service — artillery, signal corps, engineering and veterinary medicine. College ROTC provides a ready reserve of capable and trained officers for the United States Army Reserve.

Each member of ROTC attends 6 weeks of summer camp in his branch before or after graduation. If attended before graduation, the commission of second lieutenant is received at graduation ceremonies. However, if summer camp is not attended until the summer following graduation, the commission is received at the end of camp.

In the 6 weeks at camp, each member goes through vigorous training for his after-graduation position in the Armed Forces. He is trained both individually and in groups and is given a chance to put his book warfare into practical application.

A healthy, robust group of Pershing Rifles men stand at "parade rest"! Why are they so unhappy, afraid they might drop their rifles?

Pershing Rifles

Military proficiency is the requirement for membership in the Pershing Rifles organization, which now has 80 men. Founded in 1894, its purpose is to further the ideals of military leadership and command which John Joseph Pershing, American general, exemplified.

The group met weekly at the Armory, sponsored the all-college Drill Meet and Pershing Rifles Dance last November. During the year, representatives have been sent to drills and conventions at Ohio State and Nebraska Universities. Spring quarter featured its annual banquet for recognition of outstanding members and the Regimental Military Ball at Nebraska in May.

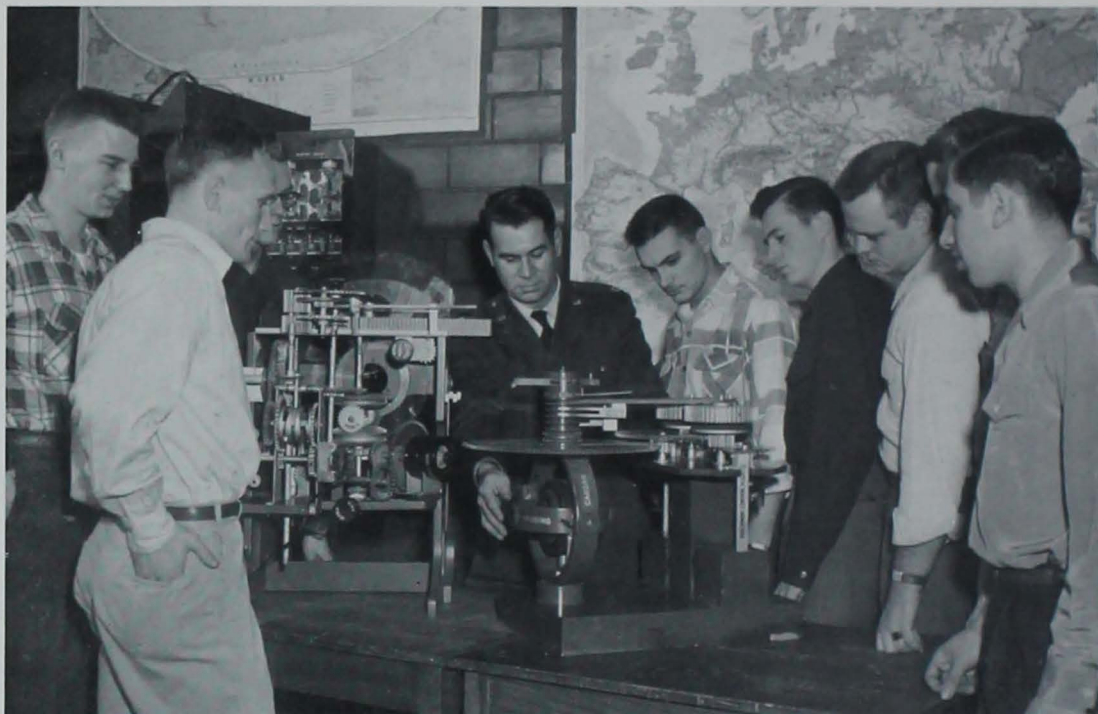

Company G-2 at Iowa State is the third largest company of the 127 companies in the United States and is still growing. We mustn't forget the "military guard" of Pershing Rifles' pledges on the sorority houses during the men's week of initiation.

Class work is an important part of the Air ROTC program. Major Hall is explaining a bomb sight model to a class in the Armory.

Every summer Air ROTC men from ISC go to camps all over the United States. This group is at Rapid City, South Dakota camp.

From the expressions on the faces of these Air ROTC men it seems there's a lot more to this propeller business than meets the eye.

Air Force ROTC

Military service to one's country is always an important matter. Today, more than ever, it is essential that each citizen understand and accept his moral and legal responsibility in the defense and security of the United States.

The AFROTC program is designed to select and train qualified men for leadership roles in the United States Air Force during national emergencies. Training encompasses these broad areas: citizenship, leadership, national and international defense structures, concept of air power, world political geography, meteorology, aerodynamics, air navigation, military law, flight training and summer camp.

These AFROTC scenes are dedicated to the young men of Iowa State College who hold with Alexander Hamilton that "Those who would enjoy the fruits of democracy must be willing to bear arms in its defense." — by The Air Force ROTC Staff

Time out for refreshments for the Arnold Air Society members in the Coffee Room of the Armory. Looks like a good strong brew.

Arnold Air Society

The Arnold Air Society, a group made up of advanced AFROTC students, met this year on the second and fourth Thursdays of each month in the Armory. The group, under the direction of Squadron Commander Harry Upton, worked throughout the year to further civilians' understanding of the United States Air Force. Guest speakers were invited to the meetings, which also featured films dealing with subjects varying from defensive tactics to air attacks on Japan.

The group sponsors the Air Force Veishea float and open house. To encourage the interest of visiting high school seniors in the Air Force, the society set up an information booth near the Armory.

Almost every member attended the all-day picnic in the spring highlighted by a baseball game and wading. The initiation banquet was winter quarter, and the Iowa State College group sent representatives last fall to the national convention in Los Angeles.

Scabbard and Blade

From the steps of Beardshear Hall comes a rousing shout, and you know Scabbard and Blade initiates are presenting their annual exhibition of drilling. The marching and singing of these NROTC, ROTC and AFROTC upperclassmen always attract a crowd of curious students.

This is one place where all branches of the armed forces are merged. In Scabbard and Blade the outstanding sophomore, junior and senior students in military are bound together in membership. Social activities are included on the group's agenda. They help sponsor the Military Ball and hold a party for their own members during spring quarter.

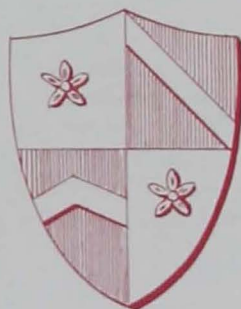

And have you ever wondered who is responsible for the food consumed by the many ISC basketball fans? Scabbard and Blade has half interest in the concession stand.

"Pledges have as much fun as we do," say actives. Ask a pledge.

Agricultural Economics Club

An informal Cider Spree introduced freshmen to the Agricultural Economics Club, founded "to increase the fellowship, knowledge and general character of the students."

The banquet held in the spring had Former Editor of the Des Moines Register W. W. Waymack as featured speaker. Through this annual banquet students established a feeling of unity and loyalty to their organization.

When Veishea time rolled around, the men pushed up their shirt sleeves and went to work on an Open House display. The exhibition illustrated stages of agricultural economics; marketing and production were two phases depicted. President Luther McKinney led the men in bi-monthly meetings in Agriculture Annex. Dr. I. W. Arthur and Dr. R. R. Beneke are the faculty advisors to McKinney.

We find the boys in a heated discussion on late market prices.

Agricultural Education Club

"The court will come to order." No, it wasn't a court trial, just the skit at the Ag Education Club's fall party. Other social events included a semi-formal dance and a picnic with all education majors.

Members edit and publish their own newspaper, the Agricultural Education News. The paper is published twice a year and sent to members of the local club, ex-members in the armed forces and vocational agriculture departments of high schools with Future Farmers of America chapters.

The club sent members to state and national FFA conventions and Dairy Cattle Congress. Bi-monthly meetings of the 210 members led by President Carl Wells include outside speakers and panel discussions.

Agronomy Club

"Agronomy Paves the Way" read the large sign above the Veishea Open House display prepared by the Agronomy Club. Mounted pictures below the sign showed the visitors what is being done in agronomy, both in classes and in present-day agriculture. Inside the Veishea guests found a rain-making device and a gieger counter which clicked away when placed near radio-active phosphorus.

A student-faculty smoker scheduled winter quarter gave the agronomists of the present and the future a chance to get acquainted and talk over their common interests. The annual banquet was also during winter quarter.

The Agronomy farm was the site for the senior send-off picnic in the spring. The annual baseball tournament between the faculty and students was played — the faculty took home the trophy.

Meetings featuring enthusiastic speakers are enjoyed by members.

American Institute of Architects

We don't know who is helping whom, but it sure looks like fun.

A girl who looks like a magazine rack, a fellow who looks like a magazine . . . what is this? Don't worry, Iowa State isn't in the atomic age, it's just the Beaux-Arts Ball, sponsored by the American Institute of Architects. Each year this group has a big costume party for the whole college.

These boys managed to keep busy this year with their successful booth at the Engineer's Carnival (they took in top money) and a display at Veishea Open House. The open house display included models, drawings and a sketching demonstration.

President David Ladehoff directed the group in promoting fellowship in the department and giving service in the professional field. The group honored Prof. Thomas K. FitzPatrick at the spring banquet for help given to the men of A.I.A.

American Institute of Chemical Engineers

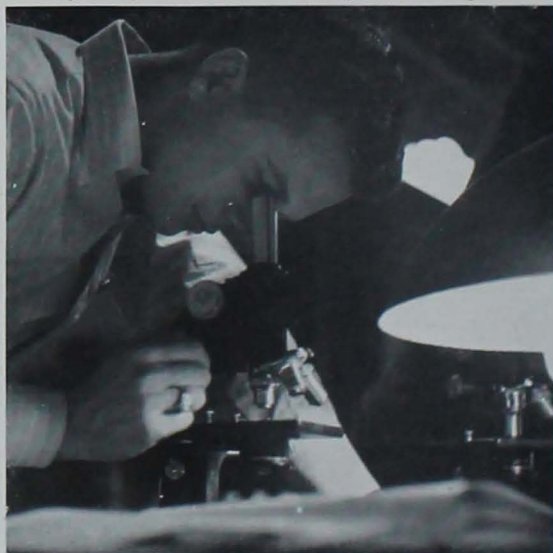

A ping pong ball dropped into a fishbowl, and another satisfied customer at the Engineer's Carnival had won a goldfish at the Chemical Engineers' booth.

Veishea found busy members of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers demonstrating the wonders of science with a "magic" show. Campus plumbers discarded work clothes in favor of more dressy attire for the annual Plumber's Ball, AIChE's biggest social event of the year. This dance for Chemical Engineers was held at the Chemical Engineering Building.

Chemical Engineers looked to the future and took interested freshmen on tours of the Chemical Engineering Department.

American Society for Civil Engineers

From September to June you can always find a civil engineer somewhere on campus with his surveying equipment.

Tom Boyle wielded the gavel over the 98 men in the American Society of Civil Engineers. Membership is determined by paying of dues, and the group met twice monthly in the assembly of Marston Hall.

The main objective of the society is to assist the student in preparing himself for entry into the civil engineering profession.

The regional meeting of civil engineering student chapters was held in the spring of 1952 on the Iowa State campus with this chapter as host.

An original idea and plenty of hard work brought the civil engineers the first place award at Veishea last year for their open house display in the engineering division.

On one day during every spring quarter, the civil engineers lay aside their books and hold a spring picnic at the Ledges State Park near Boone. A day of hiking, joking, wading and eating around a campfire is a welcome change in the college student's life.

William C. Alysmeier acted as faculty advisor for the club this year. Other officers are: Ralph Speer, vice-president; Dale Weber, treasurer; James Hoover, recording secretary; and Daniel Roth, corresponding secretary.

American Society of Agricultural Engineers

The Iowa Student Branch of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers spread good will when they sent Christmas cards to ASAgE student branches throughout the United States.

At the Engineer's Carnival students displayed great strength at the ASAgE booth, which held the bell ringer. Real men are needed to ring that bell!

The Winter Banquet for students and faculty featured Kirk Fox, Successful Farming magazine editor, as the speaker.

The traditional student-faculty softball game added to the success of the annual picnic at the Ledges.

Corn borer control and requirements of a design engineer were among the topics members heard discussed at their bi-weekly meetings.

Alumni Fund Student Advisory Council

The group works with Alumni Office, which directs scholarships.

Iowa State students become well acquainted with the alumni fund through the year-old Alumni Fund Student Advisory Council. The council works especially with the annual "giving" program of the Alumni Association and makes recommendations for objectives after studying student needs which might be met by Alumni gifts.

Senior and graduate students meet during winter quarter to have the Alumni Achievement Fund program explained to them by council members.

Spring quarter finds these students encouraging and assisting the senior class committee with arrangements in the promotion, as well as the acquisition, of the senior class' gift to the college. Each spring quarter new appointments for 2-year terms on the council are made.

Campus 4-H

Members of Campus 4-H corralled new members at the annual Fall Roundup, an informal reception for old and new members. Campus 4-H'ers are social individuals, judging from the number of events they sponsored during the year. Parties during 1952-53 included a hayride, Valentine party, tobogganing, waffle supper and picnic.

Campus 4-H members worked at the new State 4-H Campsite near Boone, helping to ready it for use. Four-H girls held the traditional May Breakfast for their mothers and members of the Extension Staff. Representatives were sent to the National 4-H Club Congress.

Dairy Husbandry Club

Classes are held in the Judging Pavilion at the Dairy Farm.

The Dairy Husbandry Banquet was one of the main events on the club's agenda this year. No, there weren't all men at the banquet. Shirley Cully, club historian, saved the day for the women's representation.

Jack Ohms wields the gavel for the 40 members in the club during its meetings once a month. The meetings are educational for the students as they have a chance to talk over problems common to their curriculum.

This group of dairy students keep themselves busy during the year by sponsoring the Sophomore Dairy Judging Contest and its annual Veishea Open House Display.

One of the main functions of the club is to establish contact between the students and breeders in the area to foster the development of dairy husbandry. Prof. A. R. Porter acted as faculty advisor for the club this year.

Dairy Industry Club

If you don't know about the cheese or ice cream made on this campus, just ask the students in the Dairy Industry curriculum; they can tell you.

This club, founded on campus in 1909, has a roll call of 60 members led by President Dick Tweenen.

The boys in the club plan the annual Dairy Club Dance and Dairy Club Banquet each spring quarter.

This year representatives from the club made a 350-mile trip to Chicago for the National Dairy Industry Exposition in September. Many new ideas of profit to the club were brought back from this trip.

Forestry Club

Practice at summer camp makes next Veishea's Paul Bunyan.

Buffalo meat and other wild game made a tempting spread for the forestry men at their annual banquet. It's been a tradition each fall for the foresters to have their stag camp-fire but this year the name stag didn't apply since two girls are enrolled in the curriculum.

Paul Bunyan days reigned over Veishea for the men with logger's boots, long beards and moldy ax handles. Men worked hard during Veishea and were rewarded with a second-place trophy for their float and open house display.

The men in the curriculum who have a flair for writing are in charge of the Ames Forester put out by the club annually.

Iowa Engineering Society

The Iowa Engineering Society's Student chapter provided its members with several important opportunities: A chance to get better acquainted with each other and with the faculty members. Together they explored various job opportunities in the field of general engineering.

Marston Hall and the Memorial Union took turns serving as meeting places for the engineers. Guest speakers, usually representatives of companies interviewing on campus, were invited to speak at the Wednesday night sessions.

The ticket sales for the group's booth at the Engineers' Carnival proved it to be one of the popular ones. At this booth men tried to throw wooden rings over the feet of three Drake University coeds. A successful attempt was rewarded with a kiss.

Horticulture Club

Apple polishing is something Hort students can practice legally.

Iowa State coeds sporting corsages made by members of the Horticulture Club highlighted the 1952 Horticulture Show. Girls from each residence appeared in the style show wearing the corsages with clothes of the latest fashion.

The Horticulture Show also included competition in flower, fruit and vegetable displays. Winners in each division received trophies as prizes. Dwight Shappell compiled the largest number of points to win sweepstakes.

"Education Reigns" was the theme of Horticulture Club's Veishea float. As might be expected, the float featured a garden, with a large umbrella suggesting the "rains."

Institute of Aeronautical Sciences

The annual Tailspin party highlighted the Aero E's social calendar. In February, the men and their dates gathered in the Council Chamber at the Memorial Union for dancing, games and refreshments.

Members of the society hold meetings once a month to meet the faculty, hear speakers and exchange ideas. The purpose of the organization is "to give technical and industrial information, and to promote interest in the field of aeronautical engineering." The group is patterned after the Royal Aeronautical Society of Great Britain.

Meetings of informal parties and picnics proved that this group has something besides aeronautics on its mind. During the year, the group was ably guided by President Duane Schoelerman. Other officers were Lyle Summers, secretary, and Bernard Scott, treasurer.

Industrial Education Club

Looks like poor light to be working over a drawing board. Tch!

It wasn't hard to recognize an Industrial Education major and his date on their way to the club's annual costume party, Hobo Hop. Strains of hobo harmony furnished by club members was the entertainment for the evening.

Eldo Reid banged the gavel for the club twice a month at the meetings where educational movies, speakers and demonstrations by the students were presented. Members found themselves busier than ever when warm weather came to the campus with the planning of the annual Industrial Education Club State Conference and Veishea Open House.

The 80 members' main purpose is to promote good fellowship among the members and to discuss common problems which pertain to industrial education.

Iowa State Society of Industrial Economists

The Industrial Econ students proved themselves good Thespians at the annual science presentation of "Wissenschaft," by taking first place trophy for their skit.

Secretary of the Des Moines Chamber of Commerce Arthur Bratton was the speaker for the annual banquet in February. The main purpose of the 100 members is promoting interest in industrial economics.

Roy Nelson, president of the society which was founded on Iowa State campus in 1947, and the rest of the members took a day off in the spring and forgot school affairs, put on old clothes, and roasted hot dogs and marshmallows.

Prof. William Schrampler, faculty advisor for the society, still wonders who was the victor in the bowling tournament when five faculty members challenged five of the students.

American Veterinary Medical Association

Iowa State's chapter of the American Veterinary Medical Association had a busy year under the leadership of President Robert McCulley.

The club's annual banquet to welcome the freshman class was fall quarter. Next on the list of the group's fall activities was the fourth annual veterinary homecoming. It may have been the ham picnic which the students' wives prepared, but the attendance at this event was greater than ever. Included in the homecoming for the alumni of the division were informal discussions, the ham dinner and the game, at which the group had a block of seats reserved so alumni could renew friendships with old classmates.

The AVMA's Christmas party was a happily noisy affair. All the vet students and faculty, their wives and children were invited. Even Santa Claus paid a call.

Refreshments for the winter smoker were served by Phi Zeta, national veterinary medicine honorary.

The Iowa State chapter of the AVMA has 248 members who attend the monthly meetings of the group. All meetings consist of a talk by a prominent man in the veterinary profession or a discussion so the students can hear each other's ideas.

Veterinarians become journalists three times a year to publish the ISC Veterinarian. The influence of this chapter of the American Veterinary Medical Association is not only felt in the world of journalism but in education as well. Vet auditorium is the scene of Wednesday evening educational movie showings.

Dr. Oliver Whitcomb is the faculty advisor of this group. Vice President Durwood Pedigo, Secretary Bill Thomas, Treasurer Ray Pahle and Critic R. G. Miesbauer helped President McCully direct the active organization. Along with their 248 members, they made great strides toward achieving the three-fold objective of the group: to raise the level of education, of ethics and of the social life of the members.

Block and Bridle

As the horses pranced the judges jotted down notes, and Block and Bridle Club members smiled after many months of work on the Veishea Horse Show sponsored by them each spring. All animal and dairy husbandry students are eligible to become members of the organization, which promotes higher scholastic standards of those two departments and emphasizes the closer relationship of its members.

The Little International gives the 235 members an opportunity to compete for prizes in showmanship. Block and Bridle Club members work hard when it comes to their animals — washing, trimming and showing them.

The main winter quarter activity was the annual banquet where winners of the livestock and meat judging contests were awarded prizes. Stanley Held led the Iowa State chapter assisted by Max Deethardt as vice-president.

This group, which is showing Hampshire hogs, is at one of the judging pavilions on the Iowa State campus for the Little International.

Block and Bridle members are getting their animals ready to show. The men, who are grooming steers, are out by the college barns.

The president directs an executive council meeting. Largeness not only denotes the club size but the size of the Farm Op council, too.

Farm Operations Club

"Swing your partners and dosie doe," familiar words heard by farm op majors and their dates at their annual fall dance, the Plow Jockey Jump.

The club boasts 180 members making it the largest departmental club on campus. It tries to bring a means of leadership and fellowship to farm op students and to give them information concerning practical farming which would not be gained in the classroom. Members of the club who have a flair for writing help twice yearly in publishing a farm op newsletter which is sent to club alumni and present members.

These men were well represented in last year's Veishea when their open house took third place among all others in competition. Winter quarter brought their annual banquet, and, with the coming of spring, the men threw away their books for a day to enjoy themselves at a picnic.

DAIRY PRODUCTS: Best, Zurborg, Mr. Rosenberger, LaGrange, Teegen.

Judging Teams

All of Iowa State's judging teams have been active this year and have done great things to bring honors to Iowa State. In the American Royal Contest at Kansas City last fall, both animal husbandry teams placed eighth in their respective fields. Richard Thompson took high honors in lamb grading at this contest, and Rudy Schuver was sixth high individual. The meat judging team was first in pork judging.

The livestock team placed sixth in 35 teams in the International Contest at Chicago, while the meat team placed fourth in 20 teams. The meat team scored first in beef and lamb judging. Dairy industry's judging team placed third nationally as a team. A scholarship was awarded to Carl Zurborg who was the gold medal winner in butter judging.

The poultry judging team competed in the Midwest Intercollegiate Poultry Judging Contest at Chicago, while the DH team placed sixth in the National Dairy Cattle Contest of 30 competing teams from all over the U.S. and Canada. The AH teams entered the Southwest Exposition and placed second and third. Bob Kauffman placed first in beef grading and lamb judging.

The secretary is ready to write down the results of the thoughtful consideration being given to this problem of executive council.

For these Science Women's Club members, ping pong comes under the head of socializing, an important part of every club's activities.

Science Women's Club

Whether they are tasting spaghetti in a kitchen for their annual spaghetti supper or brewing a strange concoction in lab, the 75 members of the Science Women's Club are experts. These future scientists, agriculturists and engineers meet alternate Tuesdays for educational and "socializing" purposes.

The annual club spaghetti supper at Lynn Fuhrer Lodge had tap-dancing, a skit and spaghetti. Other social events on the year's calendar included a Christmas party attended by members and college women not in Home Economics, a Valentine Fun Night, a spring tea for the installation of new officers plus various poster parties.

To further the education of members, faculty and student speakers presented programs of scientific and personal interest throughout the year. Tours of the sculpturing laboratory and WOI-TV studio were part of this year's program. Serving as head of the organization was Pat Fobes.

CERAMIC ENGINEER SOCIETY

First Row: Mr. Fitzsimmons, Larson, Douglas, Houston, King (Pres.), Crowley. Second Row: Fenstermacher, Bauleke, Bader, McKenna, Folkers, Nadler, Welch. Third Row: Banister (V.P.), Code (Sec. Treas.), Mr. Dodd, Basler, Gugeler.

Ceramic Engineer Society

Tiles, bricks and cement. All engineers in the American Ceramic Society have the know-how of making these compounds.

President Harry King stated that the main function of the society is the providing of a departmental club for ceramic engineering students, giving them technical training and social entertainment.

The 20 members of the society put all their efforts into Veishea when they provided an open house for guests of Iowa State College. Running their popular booth at the Engineers' Carnival last fall gave the men another chance to show their ingenuity.

Cosmopolitan Club

More American students than ever before have become members of the Cosmopolitan Club. Foreign students are not the only ones welcomed at the bi-monthly meetings.

The International Dinner last fall featured 20 foreign dishes prepared by the students themselves. Costumes from their native lands were worn by the students, and music of many countries entertained the dinner guests.

The annual International Night winter quarter carried out the purpose of stimulating international friendship. Skits and individual acts representing many parts of the world made the evening enjoyable and entertaining.

COSMOPOLITAN CLUB

First Row: Robert, Puri, Bose, Obeng, Pegah, Swayampati, Nitayasuti, Dangoria, Froimowicz, Wanderley. Second Row: Smith, Keilani, Sadat, Morinaga, Benshoof, Pfaffle, Tandon, du Toit, Cranch, Vidaud, Sen, Ganora. Third Row: Kunze, Ng, Gutierrez, El-Bakri, Solh, Nielsen (Sec.), Diaz (Pres.), Samvik, Martin (Treas.), Jundi (V.P.), Boayue, C. CYCLONE ROLLERS

Cyclone Rollers

Every other week the Cyclone Rollers met in the Cyclone Cellar at the Memorial Union. On Friday nights they could be seen at the Skateland Roller Rink.

Fellows and girls with skating skill as well as some who want to learn comprise the group. The organization's aims are to provide recreation for its members and to spread their interest in skating to other students.

In November they held a large, all-college skating party. Several times the members enjoyed skating at rinks in other towns. Tobogganing and picnics lent variety to the program.

Promenaders

Swinging your partner to the tune of "Old Zip Coon" is a lot of fun, especially if you do it the way the Promenaders do every Friday night.

Besides sponsoring square dances for all Iowa State students and giving demonstrations on television, these 50 dancers sponsored a Fall Fling, Winter Whirl, Spring Swing and clinic to train square dance callers. Dancing at the Chicago International Square Dance Festival along with the experts in square dancing was a real experience for members of the group, which is headed by Ernest Thomas.

IOWA CHEMICAL SOCIETY

First Row: Gaston (V.P.), Jackson, Olson, Second Row: Kintner, Heusinkveld, Tillotson (Sec. Treas.), Cooper, Morris, Third Row: King (Pres.), Daniels, Ruby, McLean.

Iowa Chemical Society

Several of the Midwest's larger cities were visited this year by the Iowa Chemical Society. The club members visited various chemical societies on their field trip to St. Louis during the first week in April. An afternoon was spent examining the Des Moines waterworks during the fall.

The members of ICS were further enlightened at their meeting when different chemistry graduate students gave talks on research projects they were working on.

The club was active again this year in the chemistry Veishea display projects.

Poultry Club

The members of Poultry Club, the smallest departmental group on campus, got together in the Cyclone Cellar once a month. Discussions, talks by guest speakers and movies filled these monthly sessions.

A February poultry show, open to the public, was held at the poultry farm, featuring a poultry judging contest. Large keys were given to the winners. Their Veishea open house, the Iowa State Chick, Egg and Poultry Show, attracted many interested guests.

The club had as president this year George Bucheit.

Electrical Engineers

Technical papers contest, fall smoker, radio workshops, Short Circuit magazine, Veishea open house, Veishea concession stand, Engineers' Carnival and freshman tours gave the men in the American Institute of Electrical Engineers enough to keep them busy the whole year. Kenneth Ried presided over the meetings held in the Memorial Union for the 75 men.

One of the main functions of the club is the presentation of practicing engineers as speakers. Movies are shown illustrating problems in the field, and there is student participation in electrical exhibits and experiments.

Industrial Engineers

The Industrial Engineers' hard work on their Engineers' Carnival booth was rewarded by many ring throwing enthusiasts and a fascinated crowd. Each project chosen by this organization means work for each of the 13 members. They give proof to the saying, "Not quantity but quality."

The club, led by Harve Wolfe, is comprised of juniors and seniors who meet twice monthly at the Memorial Union.

The group was organized in 1948 to further the interests of the curriculum and advance the knowledge of the members.

INDUSTRIAL ENGINEERS

Winter Sports Club

When most hands and feet were freezing and people were lamenting winter's coming, members of the Winter Sports Club dragged out their toboggans and skates and looked forward to a glorious time. These outdoor sportsmen and women met twice a month. They worked to promote participation in winter sports among all college people. The lovers of the outdoors watched sports movies when the weather wouldn't permit actual participation. When winter sports subsided and warm weather came, the club had a steak fry on the same hills it had used for tobogganing.

United World Federalists

The United World Federalists is an organization interested in strengthening the United Nations to its intended role as a world government. They feel that peace is possible only if the Security Council has the power to enforce peace-promoting laws enacted by the General Assembly. They would have changes in the UN made; then pressure could be brought upon any warmongers. Numbered among their backers are men like Albert Einstein, William O. Douglas and Walter Reuther. Anyone can join by paying the small membership fee and going to the Tuesday evening meetings.

Student Society of Landscape Architecture

Not doll houses but a miniature layout of a landscape project.

The Landscape Architecture building on campus serves a triple purpose for its students — classrooms, dances and meeting place for the Student Society of Landscape Architecture.

Approximately 35 members met twice monthly for speakers, slides and discussion groups. Travelogues by men who had traveled in France, Switzerland and other countries were featured to give members an idea of architecture of other nations.

Everyone who was at the Studio Stomp agreed that the skits were hilarious. The February 28th dance also included dancing and refreshments prepared by the wives of the married men.

Veishea Open House and a concession stand on campus during Veishea made a busy spring.

American Society of Mechanical Engineers

One of the main purposes of Iowa State's chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers is to give members the "social side" of engineering, according to John Rauenbuehler, chairman of the group. The 140 members, who have joined the group because of a demonstrated interest in Mechanical Engineering, met every two weeks. Club activities included trips to local manufacturing plants. Occasionally the group heard a speaker from some industry within the profession.

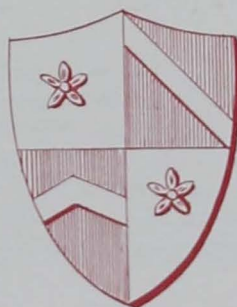

Iowa State's chapter of the ASME was headed this year by Rauenbuehler; Robert Quaintance served as vice chairman and Leland Haack was the group's treasurer. Prof. Robert C. Fellingner, Department of Mechanical Engineering, acted as the society's faculty advisor for the year.

Religious Activities

Realizing the value of the message given by Dr. Harold A. Bosley, the administration dismissed class for the all-college convocation.

Religion in Life Week

"God and Man" was the theme taken for the 1953 Religion in Life Week. Dr. Harold A. Bosley, pastor of the First Methodist Church in Evanston, Illinois, was the guest speaker. Dr. Bosley, considered the outstanding Methodist preacher in the world, had the State Gymnasium packed for the all-college convocation.

The central committee, under the chairmanship of Kenneth Joslin, planned the entire week. Evening vesper services were added to supplement this year's activities. They were held in the new chapel in Memorial Union, where an atmosphere of calm and serenity was evident after a busy day of classes. The evening house discussions held on Tuesday and Wednesday were continued this year with more enthusiasm than ever. Every effort was made to secure the best possible speakers, and student participation was great.

This year the week's official activities were drawn to a close on Saturday evening, but local churches carried the theme Sunday.

Interfaith Council

Interfaith Council, the organization responsible for the major religious activities on campus, was its usual active self this year. The council, composed of two representatives from each Ames church, is guided by the Rev. R. E. LeMoine.

The outstanding religious event of the year, Religion in Life Week, is sponsored by this group. They choose the central committee which is in charge of the week's activities. Two religious convocations, one featuring a Catholic speaker and the other a Jew, lead up to this event. A Protestant speaker usually speaks for the main convocation.

Morning Matins, heard over station WOI in Ames, is taken over by Interfaith Council for this week. The Thursday morning devotional services in the new chapel of Memorial Union are also managed by this group.

The representatives, each having an equal say, are satisfied.

Frisbie Fellowship

Both speaker and audience are enjoying the Frisbie House program.

Frisbie Fellowship, the student youth group of the Congregational Church, is a busy one. "Christ Work Days," as they are called, provide fellowship for the members plus money for their service projects. On these days, the members do various jobs for the people of Ames. The Woodcutter's Holiday is another of these work days, but this time the members show their muscles as they cut and saw wood for the student center fireplaces.

Frisbie House, the oldest student center at Iowa State, has another distinction. It has a mascot! Little 4-year-old Jimmy Carothers, the son of the club's advisor, serves in this capacity. He helps to make the timid people feel more at ease and has also been known to help cement friendships between young men and women of the church.

Gamma Delta

The Gamma Deltans are a fortunate group! They have access to the Lutheran Student Center in the basement of the Memorial Lutheran Church. There they have facilities for cooking, plus television, ping-pong, a record player and many other table games. When the weather is nice, there are also tennis and basketball courts for those who are interested in more active sports.

The Sunday evening meetings are begun with an impressive candlelight vesper service at 5 p.m. A "cost" supper, prepared by Gamma Delta members, is served after this service. A religious lesson presented by a professor follows the meal. The recreational facilities are then put to use as the Gamma Deltans enjoy a game of ping-pong or cards or watch television before making their way home.

Dinner is a time to make new friends and chat with old friends.

Lutheran Student Association

The colorful drapes of the modern LSA frame students at dinner.

Many worthwhile projects are found on the list of activities of the LSA. They, in cooperation with the TKE fraternity, have made it possible for a foreign student, Andris Fogelmanis, to attend Iowa State. German students at the University of Erlangen also receive assistance from the Lutheran Student Association.

Ashram, the weekend retreat, was so successful that it is now scheduled for each quarter. Riverside Bible Camp near Randall is the site for these weekends of study and worship. The students not only accomplish their tasks, but get away from the dreariness of school work for a short time.

The LSA Smorgasbord was again a highlight in the year's social calendar. The students themselves do the preparing of the traditional Swedish and Norwegian dishes.

Roger Williams Club

Active in Christian activities, the Baptist students always cooperate whole-heartedly with the Interfaith Council in the sponsoring of all-college religious functions.

The members of Roger Williams Club are lovers of good food. Each Sunday evening the young people gathered in the new student center for the meal prepared by members themselves. The big Thanksgiving dinner also found everyone well-filled. A series of picnics in the spring and fall helped to round out the "food" activities.

Eddie Easley leads the club as president. Malcolm E. Haughey, the pastor of the First Baptist Church, serves as the advisor.

The functions held at the Roger Williams Club are sponsored by the Baptist young people, but they are open to anyone who is interested.

Westminster Fellowship

Her announcement has contrasting responses — a smile and a frown.

Much enthusiasm has been fostered this year by Westminster Fellowship for the whole campus. Every Sunday afternoon a group of students go out to the Woodward State Hospital for an informal afternoon program of Christian fellowship.

This year, incoming freshmen were welcomed to the newly opened student center opposite the West Gate of the campus. Students could always be found studying, playing the piano and singing or just relaxing. Friday night open houses were particularly lively with a hayride, sock hops, taffy pulls and the Christmas party.

The new student center is something for the Westminster Fellowship to be proud of. The equipping of the kitchenette was made possible by the proceeds from a pancake supper given by Westminster Fellowship.

Newman Club

The activities of Newman Club, the Catholic student organization on the Iowa State College campus, are varied as well as numerous. One of the major features was the Sunday evening discussions, which were held after the regular evening meal. "Qualities in Selecting a Mate" and "Personal and Occupational Interests in Marriage" were some of the topics of discussion planned for students.

Daily coffee hours brought about not only religious feeling, but an atmosphere of friendliness at the Student Center. These were held each day from 4 to 5:10 p.m. Cups of coffee, bridge games and just "shooting the breeze" were tools in helping the members become acquainted. The reciting of the Rosary at 5:10 each day brought in the religious aspect.

Students can always be found at the altar in the club basement.

Kappa Phi and Sigma Theta Epsilon are fraternal service organizations within the Wesley Foundation of the Methodist Church. Their main purpose is to develop church leadership, train workers for future church work and participate in the present activities of Wesley Foundation.

To encourage Christian fellowship, the members have worked on the Wesley personal devotions chapel and participated in church services by ushering, singing in the choir, leading worship and teaching church school classes. An interest in service promoted visits to homes for the aged and financial aid to WSSF, a Japanese student and a Korean Children's Home.

A Christmas pageant of the birth story and the meal in the Upper Room commemorating the Lord's Supper are sponsored annually by these organizations.

A schedule of retreats, banquets, picnics and informal parties round out the activities of the year, as well as provide a lot of fun and entertainment for the Kappa Phi and Sigma Theta Epsilon members.

Wesley Players, who put on productions for Wesley Foundation and church congregations on deputation trips, is composed of students.

Wesley Foundation

All eyes to front of the room; must be interesting to everyone.

Each year at Wesley Foundation, Methodist students gather to renew, strengthen and share their religious faith so that they might better demonstrate Christian living in their campus activities.

This year, Sunday evening meetings were kept lively and interesting by the cooperation and participation of many students. President Jerry Cross served as a capable coordinator and leader. He and Isabelle Burrus, student director, were always standing by to give assistance and words of encouragement.

A variety of programs such as political talks, plays and outside speakers kept interest high. Recreation and the fellowship suppers gave students a chance to become acquainted.

The activities didn't end on Sunday, for each day brought committees, cell groups and many other opportunities for leadership.

Hunter, Khivalie. Fourth Row: Humke, Nelson, Nichols, Bate, Wheeler, Bond, Lett, Petry, Sunderman, Stockdale, Oldfield, Jensen, Olson, Tyseling, Wopata, Christensen (Pres.).

I.-V. Christian Fellowship

The Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship is one of many similar student groups in universities and colleges throughout the country which trace their spiritual foundations back to Cambridge University in 1877. This organization is open to all students regardless of religious affiliation. Discussions and meetings are centered around the message of the Bible; coupled with informal Christian fellowship it makes an unbeatable combination on any campus. The meetings are designed to help the student meet his daily problems and experiences on a spiritual basis. Meetings are held weekly with weekend camps and retreats planned during the year.

Bethany Fellowship

Bethany Fellowship, the student group of the Church of Christ, is an active group. One of the highlights of the year was the summer conference held in Estes Park, Colo. The meetings lasted several days and there was plenty of entertainment as well. The mountains were especially inviting to the Iowa State College delegation.

When it comes to working, the Bethany members are right in there pitching. On several Saturdays during spring quarter you could find Bethany people raking lawns, washing windows and doing other spring tasks to earn money to help meet the expenses of the year.

BETHANY FELLOWSHIP

YMCA

YMCA members became temporary woodcutters fall quarter when they got together and cut the year's wood supply for Lynn Fuhrer Lodge. A chicken dinner and fireside in cooperation with YWCA women who worked inside the lodge were ample rewards for the work. Maintenance of Lynn Fuhrer Lodge, which belongs to the Y but is used by many different groups each year, is just one of the projects of YMCA.

Firesides, featuring discussions, square dancing and singing, enlivened the year.

YMCA's International Student Service Program sponsored eight meetings in which different foreign students presented programs on the culture in their own countries.

An all-college mixer co-sponsored by the YMCA and YWCA helped further social relations on the campus.

Is this fireplace discussion on last week's date or Y business?

YWCA

After your 4 o'clock class is over, relax at a YWCA meeting.

Need a baby sitter? Just call up the YW and you will find one, for many of the members are experienced baby sitters. Other projects carried out by the coeds belonging to the Young Women's Christian Association are making dolls for a children's home in Des Moines, assisting the Girl Scout and Campfire troops, and selling popcorn balls, cookies and Christmas cards.

The purpose of this national organization is to provide an opportunity for non-denominational Christian worship and fellowship. This is made possible through speakers and student group discussions.

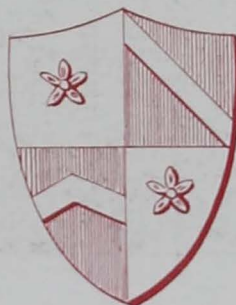

YWCA and YMCA mixers and firesides help fill up the social calendar along with a buffet supper for President and Mrs. Friley, and regional district conferences. Jean Lundblad was president.

Bill Holmes, who runs the ISC Press and assists in the production of student publications, is in the backshop with Daily staff members.

Publications

Our hats are doffed with thoughts of humble thanks to Bill Holmes, the man who has run the Iowa State College Press and has been able to keep his sanity at the same time for these many years. His role in the production of student publications is often below the surface when it comes to recognition, but his inevitable contribution is omnipresent. No matter how large or small the problem, Bill has always come through with the solution in a thorough and thoughtful way. The 1953 Bomb marks Bill's twenty-fifth year with the publication. We on the staff of the Bomb would like to extend our heartfelt thanks to one who has made the publishing of this year's book an easier chore.

Bomb Publication Board

The sixtieth anniversary of the Bomb will be commemorated with a banquet spring quarter. When all the Bombs have been distributed, both the editorial and business staffs will celebrate with the Bomb Publication Board.

Five of the nine members of the Bomb Publication Board are chosen by the student body in the all-college elections. Together with an advisor from the Department of Technical Journalism and one from the business office, they comprise an advisory and executive board. The group selects the Bomb staff, approves contracts and purchases permanent equipment for the yearbook office. An enlarger for the photographers and much-needed book shelves were added this year.

Board members represent each of the five divisions of Iowa State College and serve on the board until graduation. They meet every other Monday in the Bomb office where they make appointments, as setting up the Bomb Beauty selection, and hear reports of progress. Though the members of the board may not work on the Bomb themselves, the meetings are attended by staff members who keep the board informed of all the work being done.

Daily Publication Board

Chatter of typewriters accompanied by a radio somewhere that no one is listening to. This is the Iowa State Daily office. On the bulletin boards, there are cartoons, humorous notes and serious memos nestled next to the beat sheet. Posters urge the ad salesmen to gather more inches. Even the ceiling is decorated — with directions for an aimless treasure hunt.

Yes, this is the Daily office, where the campus newspaper is put out. It is sponsored by the Daily Publication Board, a group of students elected at the all-college election in the spring. Faculty are members of the board, too, and together they advise the Daily staff.

Besides the students who are elected to the board, membership is given to the editor, managing editor and business manager of the Iowa State Daily. These staff members are on the board until their position expires; members chosen at the all-college election remain on the board until graduation. Meetings, held in the Memorial Union, are on the first and third Thursdays of every month.

The board chooses the Daily staff, supervises the accounting books and approves all large equipment bought for the Daily offices.

Editor Roger Hill and Managing Editor Alice Thomas enjoy a cup of coffee and a cigarette while they look through Bomb copy.

Bomb Editorial Staff

Not long after the appointment of the editor, which seems many more moons ago than it actually was, a staff was chosen. For the most part what we called a staff at the initial offset of the publication of the Bomb was more an accumulation of "good joes" and perpetual coffee drinkers than a closely knit group of workers.

During the spring and the first of fall quarter activity at the Bomb office was nil except for a few spiders who were methodically spinning their webs over the tables, chairs and typewriters. This lack of hub-bub was shrugged off by the editor and managing editor as the calm before the storm (and that it was). Eventually the staff came to the rude awakening that there was a job to be done and that things would have to start happening. Paper, typewriter ribbon, coffee pot and a radio were the first acquisitions of the staff. Flaming notes on the bulletin board by the editor, panicky telephone calls inquiring about delinquent copy and progress charts soon followed.

Temper became rather frazzled, and some of the more composed members of the staff lost their composure as deadlines came and went. Slowly the machinery began to turn. The coffee cups were continually dirty, and wastepaper baskets were usually full of discarded copy. The photographers kept the coffee pot perking 24 hours a day as they became snowed under with orders for dance pictures and work for the Homemaker, Scientist, Gander and last but not least the Bomb—but we loved them because their supply met our demand.

It was not until after spring vacation that there seemed that there would be an outside chance to get the Bomb out in time for distribution. With the coming of spring, birds, flowers, picnics and the completion of the Bomb, staff morale reached a new high. We hope that you enjoy your copy of the Bomb as much as we did putting it out. Hey—you spiders can get back to work now.

Business Manager Dave Williams and Dave Miquelon, his assistant, look busy but are probably plotting against the editorial staff.

Bomb Business Staff

Here we are, the Bomb editorial staff, writing about the business staff of the Bomb. We think back on all the rubberbands, typing paper and typewriter repairs we had to squeeze out of them. . . . on all the coffee they "borrowed" from us to refresh their tired little souls. . . . and all the snappy and invigorating conversations we have had with them as we both worked away in the southwest corner of the Press Building, the Bomb office. While we rushed around trying to meet copy deadlines, to get pictures to the engravers and to find identification for all the Bomb pictures, they sat by calmly writing checks and spending money. We have to admit they are workers though; Business Manager Dave led them in a successful campaign to get a 6-cents increase on each student's activity fee from Cardinal Guild.

We always found someone working in the business office. Hours of work were put into recording the name of each person who buys a Bomb, who gets a Bomb free or who wants to have his annual mailed.

They work with a budget of thousands of dollars, and the records have to be kept up to date. At least one of the Daves had to put in a daily appearance to keep the business office working efficiently. Another face that was seen working over accounts almost every afternoon was that of Treasurer Jean Miller.

Office Manager Angie Bryant and her helpers could always be seen working over the file drawers. The annual prizes to the top salesmen in each residence system were given by Roger Smith, sales manager, at the end of the Bomb selling contest.

Do you remember the huge, white balloon that floated overhead at a football game last fall? Chuck Nelson, public relations man, helped fill the 6-foot diameter balloon with helium, inscribed with "Buy your Bomb now" and send it into the air. Each member of the 16-man staff gave much of his leisure time to the Bomb and even found time to raise money to send free Bombs to all Iowa high schools.

Experts are showing Treasurer Jean Miller how to forge checks.

Every night the Daily is edited and proofed. This keeps journalists like Managing Editor Don Gustafson and Editor Jerry Bennett busy.

Daily Editorial Staff

The phone rang unanswered at the Iowa State Daily office in the Press Building, despite the swelling of the staff by eager sophomore journalists. Calls of "Reporter! Reporter!" rang through the office without too much luck sometimes. Another such call might bring five journalists, fighting hard to bring up that total number of "inches." In fact, "inches" ruled the lives of these Journalism 221 and 222 students. The Daily was eagerly read, to find and clip for pasting in the scrapbook those precious articles they had written. Each little campus brief counts, because they do add up.

The beat sheet was a constant source of interest for its pictures, stories and subtle comments. The Daily men are intellectual — they all speak foreign languages. This posed somewhat of a problem for the poor lowbrows who could not read and translate the Russian and French comments the editors made. "Gromwell" was the cure-all potion of the year and gathered much notoriety around the Daily office.

Herd books were the object of constant searches by the reporters. Even tying one to the desk of the society editor proved futile. Every name that goes into the Daily must be checked with the herd book for accuracy. Accuracy: the word which is foremost in the mind of every journalist.

The Daily campaigned long and hard for Sketch to continue through money from the activity fund. The all-college elections strengthened the Daily outlook, for the students voted yes on the ballot.

The Daily staff was changed for winter quarter, bringing variety to the office. Jerry Bennett moved from managing editor to replace Editor Fred Tunks. Don Gustafson stepped up from sports editor to fill the position of the managing editor.

In even the very coldest days of winter such as only Iowa has, the Daily office typewriters were clicking away as beginning and experienced journalists alike worked hard at turning out that copy.

Headlines are written and copy checked on the rim of the Daily.

Daily Business Staff

The money bags behind the Iowa State Daily are found in the first door to the left as you enter the Daily office. The students found in this room are the business staff of the Iowa State Daily. To an outsider the room is in a chaotic condition, but everyone knows exactly what his job is and keeps on the job day after day. Journalists soon find it takes weeks to build up an ad account.

Jim Browne, business manager, kept the paper in running order fall quarter and if some accounts weren't buying, Jim always would have a few ideas in high pressure salesmanship for a student to learn before going out the next day.

The 3 p.m. deadline found many a frustrated salesman rushing to get out and sell ads. Sometimes the ad salesman had it easy. If in a hurry the business manager's car was always available, but Jim could never figure out why the gas was so low or why the tires were ready for repair everytime he drove into the gas station.

The end of the quarter was celebrated with the traditional 30 party which is attended by the whole staff. Everyone can laugh then over the funny incidents that happened all quarter.

Russell Pigott and Bob Simmons took over the business managers' duties then.

Ads in the paper may mean the difference between a 4- and 8-page edition and the business staff made it a point to put out very few 4-page editions. The typical dream of an ad salesman is to have an account willing to buy ads over a long period of time. Ambitious salesmen who solicited, drew up, wrote and sold advertising copy continually racked their brains to think of some new ideas.

The business office may look like a frenzie, salemen's shoes may be worn thin from too much walking, their voices may be hoarse from too much talking and their persuasive ideas may be at a minimum, but ask anyone on the business staff if he likes working at the Daily and the answer is yes.

Gene Chamberlain, spring business manager, helps with an ad.

Iowa Agriculturist

The beautiful traveling plaque belongs to the Iowa Agriculturist permanently! Three times they have received a rating of first in the general excellence division of the Agricultural College Magazine Association contest.

In judging for this general excellence award, the Agriculturist was viewed on editorial, layout, picture and general material presentation. And in the last four years, the Agriculturist has won first rating three times.

In the same contest the Agriculturist this year was awarded first prize for the best popular presentation of technical material. One other award — third place in the cover contest — was also given to the Agriculturist.

The American Institute of Graphic Arts had the Agriculturist exhibit in its show, which is open to all magazines produced in Canada and the United States. To celebrate entering the second half century of publication, the Agriculturist put out the largest student magazine ever to be published at Iowa State. The 64-page issue commemorated the new Agronomy Building.

The 1953 Ames Forester celebrated its fortieth anniversary with a new larger size. The reconverted model is 8½ by 11 inches.

The yearbook, which is the only departmental magazine on campus, is published annually by forestry students. It serves as a medium of contact between Iowa State and alumni and others in the profession.

The Forester featured the dispute among different factions interested in soil conservation and flood control. The different phases of natural resources in soil conservation were considered. An article by the ex-chief of Army Engineers explained the Army Engineers' viewpoints on soil conservation.

Experts on wildlife, forestry, grazing and watersheds had a chance to give their points of view, also. With this very timely group of articles, the Forester lived up to its reputation as an interesting and worthwhile contribution to the profession.

An essay contest was sponsored last year with the winning essay being published in the yearbook. Allan Kuester headed the staff of 25 workers.

Green Gander

Students who found themselves selling the Green Gander had no trouble dispensing this 24-page "liberal education for a quarter." Reliable sources report that Iowa State students devoured even the ads in the Valentine issue, along with such moving stories as Krycl, Grzzl and Nod.

The staff always had a good time getting it ready for press. Under the direction of Editor John Bates, the staff met once a week.

Sigma Delta Chi and Theta Sigma Phi, men's and women's journalism honoraries, sponsor the campus humor magazine. A new staff was chosen by the honoraries for the Valentine issue, and the honorary members went out and sold advertisements for the issue. With the new staff, still led by Bates, the issue was rolled off presses into arms of salesmen to be sold to eager students.

Journalism students are posted at the most-frequented places on campus to sell the issues and can easily be spotted by the number of students swarming around them. Issues are gone from the salesmen by noon and can be seen propped inside texts the rest of the day.

Iowa Homemaker

What is the Iowa Homemaker? A magazine published monthly by Iowa State home economics students and dealing with subjects of general interest to home economics people? It is that, but it is also a lab for the beginning home economics student, her first taste of a professional magazine. For the journalism enthusiasts, it is a wonderful opportunity for real experience. For teachers and professional home economists, it is better than a letter telling them of new trends in homemaking at Iowa State.

The 35 girls who publish the Homemaker have completed the training course given on four Saturday afternoons in winter quarter, have applied for staff positions and have been chosen by vote of previous staff members.

The Bride's Issue published in May was preceded by a "bridal luncheon" at the Sheldon-Munn Hotel for the outgoing and incoming staff members. Those present toasted with sparkling glasses of ginger-ale this "largest issue ever" of the only student published, all home-economics magazine in the world.

Iowa Engineer

The engineer's slide rule comes in mighty handy in figuring out the layout for the Iowa Engineer. Founded in 1911, the magazine has a roll call of 50 members which contribute to the publishing.

Published monthly, the magazine's main objective is to supply the college engineering students and faculty with a divisional magazine. The staff is divided into two departments, business, headed by Norman Scott, and editorial, headed by James Hirt.

All efforts of the staff are put forth on the March issue which goes out to Iowa high schools in the area. The main purpose of this issue is to show high school seniors the possibilities in engineering. Veishea open house, freshman engineering open house and Engineer's Carnival are just a few of the college functions that the magazine helps to sponsor.

Last year the Iowa Engineer rated third best magazine in competition with 35 other college engineering magazines of the "Engineering College Magazines Association."

In this attic-like atmosphere, the Vets (like true geniuses) write.

You can't miss the Iowa State Veterinarian. Each quarter when the publication is released, a border showing Christian Petersen's sculpturing on the walls of the Vet Quadrangle is found in its traditional spot at the top of the front cover.

The 30 staff members under Editor Robert Lapsley combine business and fun at their staff meetings. After the ideas and suggestions have been made by the vet journalists they enjoy a few minutes of relaxation with coffee and doughnuts.

The quarterly publication which goes to all 48 states and some foreign countries provides an excellent experience outside of their professional subjects for the men.

Each year one of the lucky members of the staff of the Veterinarian is chosen to represent Iowa State College at a convention of the National American Veterinary Association. The chosen man always comes back with news from men who are at different veterinary schools and of what they are doing in the veterinary field.

Scientist

The Iowa State Scientist proved itself a versatile magazine featuring articles on everything from glass-blowing to rain-making. Its geographical territory wasn't limited either, as proved by articles on such countries as Africa and Iran.

The Scientist worked in a broad field; its coverage included all 21 departments of the Division of Science.

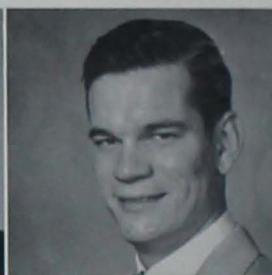

James Eaton, editor, was succeeded by Mattiebelle Stimson, an example of the increasing role of women in science.

The magazine sported a new look as the staff experimented with new layouts and techniques. Better pictures, another goal toward which they worked, added to the improved appearance of the magazine.

The Scientist, founded in 1948, is a relatively new magazine on the Iowa State campus. The magazine is under the supervision of a Publications Board composed of both students and faculty representatives. Its purpose is to bring to its readers news about the science division.

Iowa State Singers and Glee Club

The highlight of the year comes for the members of Iowa State Singers between winter and spring quarters when they go on Singers' Tour. Members of the group, who are chosen by voice try-out, traveled throughout Southeastern Iowa giving concerts which included folk songs and religious numbers. The last stop of the tour is in Des Moines where the group holds an annual banquet with skits given by members.

The Singers, directed by Robert McCowan, also give a concert on campus during winter quarter. At Christmas time the Singers don robes to sing Christmas carols from the steps of Beardshear at the annual tree lighting ceremony. A spring concert with the band by the campanile is the group's final program.

Every year the Concert Band chooses a different section of the Midwest for its March concert. Members agree it's fun — rain or shine.

Iowa State Concert Band

The Iowa State Concert Band members piled their instruments aboard the buses, packed their uniforms and were bound for their annual 6-day concert between winter and spring quarters. The band encountered the usual unpredictable Iowa spring weather. Rain and hail storms caught the tour between towns but the jokes and singing by the students even kept the conductor, Prof. Frank Piersol, in constant laughter.

Work and fun alike were needed for the production of the Pops Concert, the band's annual winter concert.

Membership in the Iowa State Concert Band is based on competitive tryouts, and this year the band can boast of a group of 82 musicians. Officers for the band included President Howard Mueller, Secretary Ardella Frahm and Treasurer Graeme George. The band manager is Maurice Pontius.

Three practices a week keep the students in musical trim for any function they might be called upon to contribute to. Rounding out the year was the annual music banquet where outstanding students are recognized.

The saxophones blare out while the trumpeters take a rest.

Miss Ilza Niemack is concertmistress of the Iowa State Orchestra, which has an annual schedule of concerts covering the state.

Iowa State Orchestra

The violinists, bows ready, watch the director for the next move.

Highly competitive tryouts resulted in an orchestra personnel with top rating. Practices every Tuesday and Thursday nights under the direction of Dr. Alvin R. Edgar insured excellent performances of everything from Beethoven to Debussy at the three quarterly concerts and on tour.

Winter concert featured Miss Margaret Snodgrass as solo pianist. The Octette rounded out the program with some lively selections from "The King and I."

This same concert was given on the winter two-day tour when the orchestra played at Garner, Estherville, Storm Lake, Laurens, Fort Dodge and Eagle Grove. At the last dinner on tour, which was a banquet, different sections of the orchestra presented skits and other entertainment. Memorable events were the election of Dr. Edgar as "The Most Underhanded Bridge Player" and the presentation of a "Spencerian Saga" skit by eight fellows who spent the night in Spencer.

The members had had practice giving skits at the hilarious Christmas party where members themselves provided entertainment.

Iowa State Marching Band

No one left the stands during halftimes of football games this year. Not with the Iowa State College Marching Band, under the direction of Prof. Frank A. Piersol, performing. The high-stepping musicians marched their way through complicated drills concerning everything from a welcome to parents on Parents' Day to the presidential campaign. The band performed at every home game.

Spectators at Veishea got another chance to see the marching band in operation; it played an important part in the excitement and color of the Veishea Parade.

This year's band trip was to the University of Nebraska, where it performed at the Iowa State-Nebraska football game.

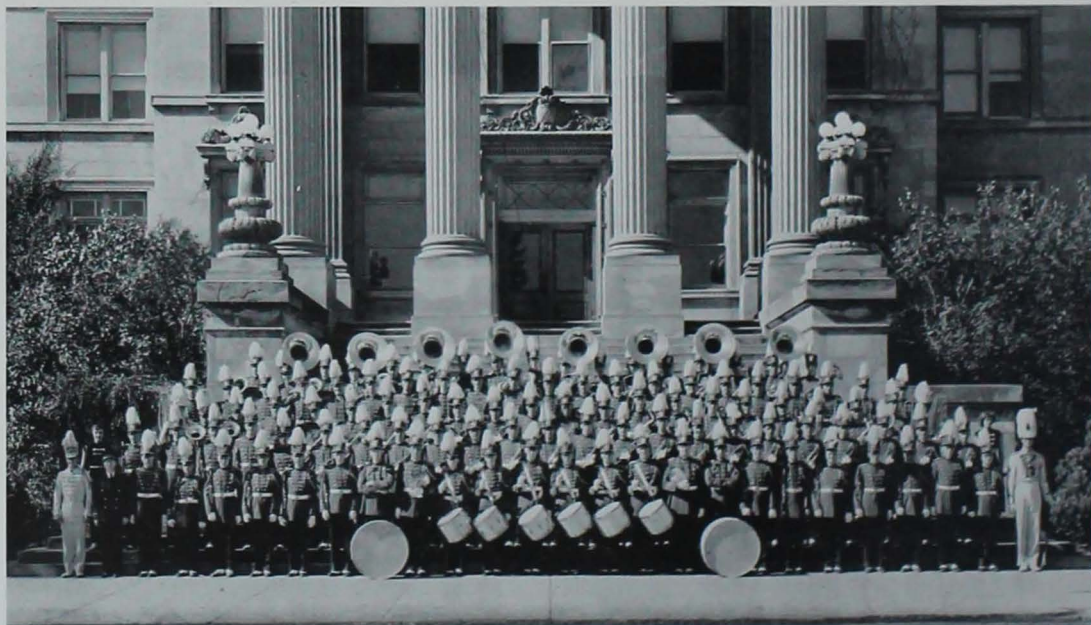

Membership in the 120-piece band is determined through tryouts. Skill in playing an instrument plus ability to march and follow directions are necessary.

Members participated in the "Pops Concert," a huge success with the audience. Some of the members were honored at the spring music honors banquet which is for students who have made outstanding contributions.

The Marching Band brightens up any football game with the navy trousers and red jackets accented by the drum major in white.

Drama and Speech Activities

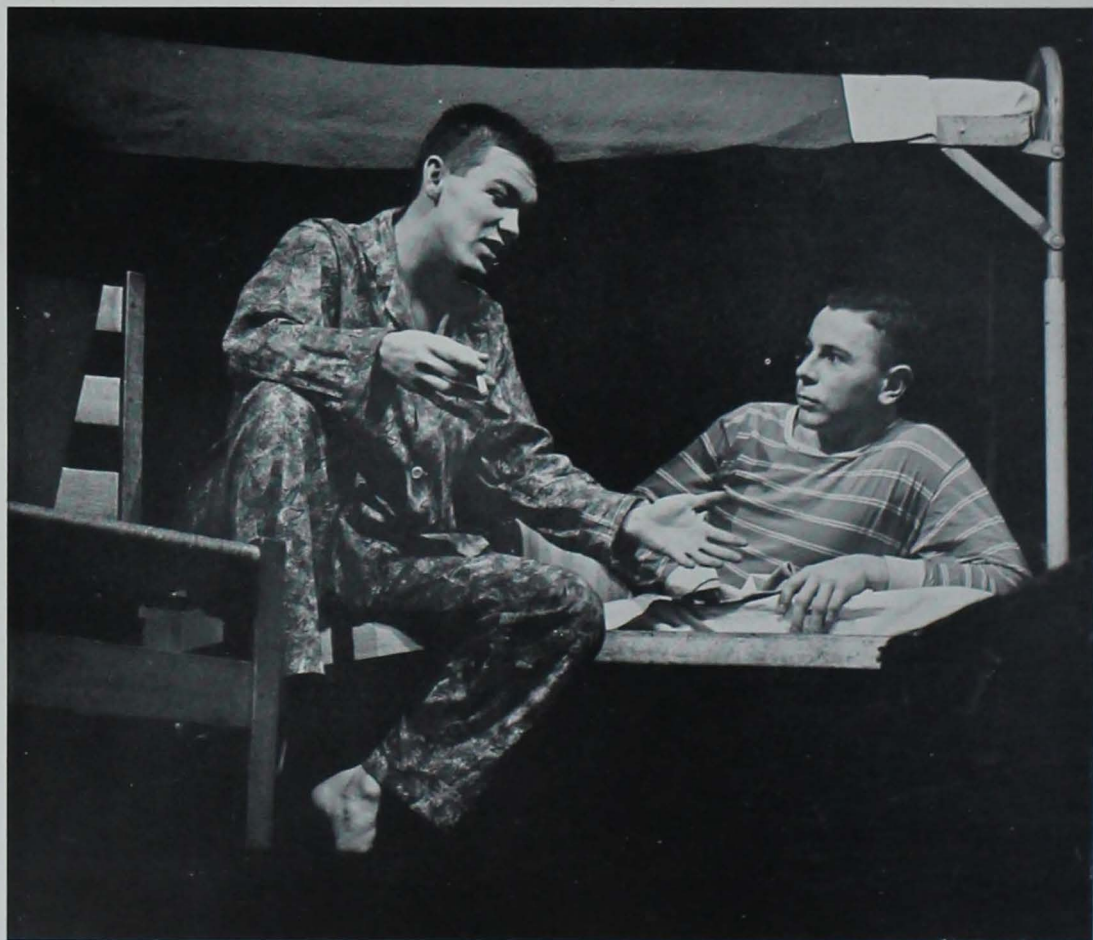

General Dramatics

The Iowa State College Theatre, although existing in a school that does not offer dramatics in the curriculum, capably manages to keep the theatre alive and bring the best in stage shows to the Iowa State campus. The three parts of the theatre, the Iowa State Players, the Film Theatre and the Laboratory Theatre offer a well-rounded program of participation and spectator entertainment to all interested persons.

The Lab Theatre is one of the most interesting parts from the angle of participation. It affords an opportunity for experimentation in make-up, sound, costuming and other aspects of play production. Three plays, all of which are experimental either in form or production, are produced each year. This year "No More Peace" by Ernst Toller was given in the fall and "La Maison de La Rue Chaptal" was given in the winter. The latter was a group of four very short French horror plays, produced for the first time in the United States.

Iowa State Players

The Iowa State Players, now in its thirty-ninth year of existence, is responsible for producing one well established play per quarter. Audiences grew thoughtful at both plays this year, "Death of a Salesman" by Arthur Miller and "Laburnum Grove" by J. B. Priestley. The 45 members of the Players, who are elected, meet every other week in the Green Room. Tradition decrees that every theater contain a Green Room; so in the last few years, the members literally dug into the ground beneath the round theater and made a room. Now furnished and completed, it is a wonderful place for try-outs, meetings and work sessions. Its origin would never be guessed, and members are especially proud that the room is their handiwork.

The Film Theatre presents seven foreign films each quarter. These moderately priced films have proved most interesting to the students. "Mussorgsky," a Russian film, brought the life of one of Russia's foremost composers to the campus. The story of his famous opera, "Boris Godunov," was included in the film.

The only complete film version of Mozart's famed opera, "The Marriage of Figaro," was presented during winter quarter. The comedy plot was brought to the screen blended admirably with Mozart's music by the Berlin State Orchestra. Original German dialogue was explained by English subtitles. Spring quarter gave the students a group of silent film classics, including the famous "The Passion of Joan of Arc." This film, produced in 1928, represents one of the most significant developments of the French film. "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" brought to the campus one of America's greatest actors, John Barrymore.

Iowa State College Debaters

A wide variety of speaking experiences keeps members of the Iowa State Debaters verbally sharp.

Speaking before church groups, education and farm clubs near Ames develops the ability of the members. Radio discussion programs aired the debating talent of the group. The debaters uncovered hidden student talent during the extemporaneous speaking tournament which they sponsored between housing units on and off campus.

The goal the debaters are working towards is an invitation to join Delta Sigma Rho, the national honorary speech fraternity. Five ISC debaters have been judged outstanding speakers and are now members.

The 40 debaters welcome all students to their weekly meetings in the Union. An annual banquet is the scene of debating award presentations. A debating society is an ISC institution and tradition. Such a group has been on our campus since the early years of the college. From this beginning group the present debaters developed.

Radio Workshop

Mike fright? It's gone forever from students in Radio Workshop. Experience in radio work is a keyword for Studio A, WOI, where interested actors, writers and speakers get practical experience.

Fifteen minutes a week is devoted to a children's program produced over the air by members of this organization. Even the most unmechanical of persons learns the jargon and what's behind it while developing technical skills. Besides the children's programs the group, sponsored by the Department of English and Speech, produced adult programs for special occasions. Half-hour drama shows are produced periodically to help the students gain proficiency in all phases of sustaining longer and more difficult dramatic productions. The group sponsored an open-house for Veishea and gave demonstrations of the work it does.

All this sounds like work and no play, but that's not the case at Radio Workshop. Imagine the fun and satisfaction that comes after a show has gone off the air.

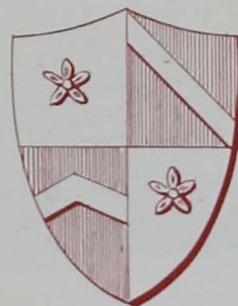

Looks like the sound effects crew would distract the actors.

Cardinal Guild

Supervising the all-college elections proved to be a large task for Cardinal Guild this year. Three elections were held: "Two over par for the course," said President Bob Hoak. The question of allotting part of the activity fee to Sketch, Iowa State's student literary magazine, was put up to the students last spring — and they said yes. This fall Iowa State was in step with the nation and held its own mock election for United States president. The students were right, too, for Eisenhower came out on top. In the same election the students showed their disapproval of Iowa State's changing to the semester system. Add the all-college elections together, and you have proof of a busy year for Cardinal Guild members.

A Homecoming policy has been definitely set for Iowa State, resulting from the efforts of Cardinal Guild. The result is no class meetings Friday afternoon or Monday morning — win or lose — for the Homecoming weekend.

To encourage athletes to come to Iowa State, Guild sent 75 invitations to outstanding high school athletes, asking them to visit the campus for Veishea. The Guild also took part in a flood fund to aid flood-stricken families in Iowa last spring.

Representatives from Cardinal Guild visited five different colleges to discuss the various phases of student government. The conclusion was, "Guild here has comparatively great responsibility." The annual ISC-Drake luncheon here this year carried out its purpose: to promote harmony between the schools.

The Freshman Handbook is another Guild project as is choosing members of Homecoming Central Committee. Cardinal Guild represents the student body on Athletic Council, Executive Committee of the Alumni Association and Ames Chamber of Commerce, these being the representations added this year. Representation is not the ultimate goal. Guild wants better things for Iowa State College students. Those wearing white sweaters with the cardinal "I" are working for you.

Three Athletic Improvement Committee members are collaborating.

Cardinal Guild depends on the work done in committees. The conclusions reached here might be campus policy after the next meeting.

Social Bureau

Members of this year's Social Bureau were kept busy at bi-weekly meetings in the Memorial Union and in between times, too, providing fun and activity for everyone.

In the fall they managed the Barbershop Quartet contest and International Night.

Bridge lessons were made available to students, and during winter quarter Union 410 was presented each week. Good grooming and good manners were some of the topics discussed at these weekly sessions. The meetings were brought to a climax by a fashion show in the spring with Iowa State coeds as models.

Social Bureau was on hand to help various organizations on campus. It sponsored Pep Council and Fencing Club. It made a trip to the International Square Dance Festival in Chicago possible for the Promenaders.

Plans to provide and support activities and to build up participation in those activities included KRNT Theater. Through the Bureau's help with transportation and tickets, students saw their favorite hits in Des Moines.

Student Properties Board

The Purchasing Agent is checking what's in stock. Not bad, huh?

Know where to get a derby and cane for a Varieties skit? How about flood lights or backdrops, they're usually hard to find, too. The Student Properties Board, located in the Memorial Union, solves the problems of many groups each year by making hard-to-find items available for rent.

Membership on the board is determined by a board vote. Associate memberships are available, and these students may be elevated to full membership when they are elected to a board office. The associate members are in charge of renting properties.

The 15 members meet twice a month to keep backdrops and other properties in condition. Purchasing Agent Joan Van Gronigen buys all the new properties necessary to keep the warehouse stores up to date.

The board, directed by Charles Oppedahl, believes in the adage, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." Their meetings are lively, their buying has zest and the office is always buzzing with excitement. The annual spring steak fry tops a year of work with fun.

Student Union Board

The new wing of the Memorial Union is finished! New additions for the students' enjoyment are the billiard room, ping-pong room, modern offices, the Gallery and the lounges. With these new features, the Union has become the center of college life. It's the Student Union Board's job to coordinate all the activities offered by the Union.

The work of the Board begins the day of registration with the quarterly Registration Dance. The other dances held in Great Hall are also sponsored by it. A "Standing Room Only" audience always welcomes Varieties, the skits given by organized houses during winter quarter. Other winter quarter activities in the Union are bridge lessons, and Nite Club on Saturday evenings, which features a "clever" emcee, a dance band, pretty cigarette girls and a floor show.

Reel Reviews is the answer to the problem of low funds. Popular films were shown Friday evenings and after basketball games, admission free. The board of ten members represented students in all Union activities.

Board members seem happy with the new Memorial Union offices.

Joint Social Council

"That's something new, it sure was fun." That was the job of the Joint Social Council this year, to provide new social events on the student calendar. The 84 members, composed of the social chairman from each organized house and headed by Nancy Beardsley, planned two all-college mixers and initiated an all-college pep rally dance exchange.

During one of the council's quarterly dinners, a plan was accepted to have a steering committee plan and present programs on social etiquette for council members to take back to their residences. The council is gaining a reputation on campus for its unusual social events.

Red Cross

The Red Cross Board, working with the Story County Chapter, concentrated on three projects this year.

The board conducted a successful Red Cross Membership drive in the fall and sponsored a visit from the Bloodmobile unit.

The winter quarter project was a First Aid course open to all students. The annual water safety class was sponsored in the spring.

Patients in the Veterans Hospital and children in Blank Memorial Home in Des Moines were entertained several times by board members and student talent provided by the board. Anne Austin directed the group.

Alpha Phi Omega

Ugly men? Iowa State has them every year, chosen by the student body during the popular Ugly Man contest. The 30 members of Alpha Phi Omega sponsor this "most gruesome" contest for the benefit of the "March of Dimes." Stuffed ballot boxes are encouraged in this contest because the candidates, nominated from both dorms and fraternities, who receive the most donations win. Sometimes the prize is a date with a beautiful girl, a thing all men, ugly or otherwise, dream about.

"Be Prepared" is the motto of these ex-Boy Scouts and others interested in scouting. "Prepared" they certainly are — for they support activities on the campus and surrounding area which otherwise might go without backing. Selling tickets for the Veishea and Homecoming dances has been a project carried out for many years. In fact, the members of this national service organization help out any worthwhile group in need of assistance from the stadium to home management houses.

Ed Wisner directed the meetings.

Tomahawk

Tomahawk pledges searched for Melvin and Melvina Humperdink this year. The climax of the search was the placing of two freshmen into activities, perhaps creating future members of Tomahawk. Part of Tomahawk's purpose is to stimulate an interest in activities among freshmen. Outstanding independent sophomores are nominated by a campus organization and are approved by actives of the group. The Iowa State chapter was represented at both of the national meetings, and they shone again when Carl Haehner was named national treasurer of the Tomahawk organization.

Sketch

Sketch is back, better than ever. The magazine, whose purpose is to give incentive for undergraduate writing, went off campus 2 years ago because of lack of funds. The magazine's popularity with the students was proved when they voted in an all-college election to allocate 5 cents from the activity fee toward publication of the magazine. Sketch then resumed its quarterly publication. The staff, led by Editor George Peterson, meets every 2 weeks. Sketch sponsors Books and Cokes weekly in the Oak Room, Memorial Union, fall and spring quarters and Books and Coffee winter quarter.

Cheer Squad

"Iowa State fights!" and does so with strong backing from cheer squad members. These energetic fellows and gals meet several times each week for peppy early morning practices to keep in top shape. Athletic events of all types found cheerleaders on hand to promote pep. Rallies, parades and team send-offs had the cheer squad at the helm. The group planned and presented these events.

The busy group, led by Ruth Anderson and Norm Olson, also worked with Pep Council and the 630 Club to promote interest in ISC athletics. Additions to the group, which now has 12 members, come through spring tryouts.

Pep Council

Football pep rallies were given a new twist by Pep Council this fall. From the rally in front of the Memorial Union, the crowd moved into Great Hall for an hour dance exchange, and many couples danced 'til twelve.

The track team and coaches were entertained by Pep Council at the Breese House near Ankeny. This was the first of a planned annual event of entertaining a different athletic team each year.

Pep Council, with Delmar Diercks as president, sponsored the Nebraska migration, enabling ISC students to see the game at the University in Lincoln.

Women's "I" Fraternity

The girls are lucky that such athletes aren't enrolled in class.

What's that girl doing with a big "I" dangling around her neck? Why, she must be a Women's "I" Fraternity pledge on her way to secure signatures of every active in the honorary. It is all part of her initiation into the group, whose purpose is to recognize skill and participation in recreational sports. She was selected by vote of the active members from a group of "I" winners who were scholastically eligible.

A Friday night in January found the Women's Gymnasium open for the 1953 Women's "I" Spree — swimming, ping-pong, cards, shuffle board and dancing for all coeds and dates. A mixed volleyball tournament was sponsored fall quarter. Each women's residence group was eligible to have a team consisting of four fellows and four girls.

Good times within the group included an overnight cookout, a Christmas party and initiation snacks. The fraternity welcomes its alums to Homecoming with a coffee hour.

This group gives an honor award to the outstanding freshman in women's athletics.

Varsity "I" Club

The opportunity to prove their ability in a variety of sports was offered Varsity "I" Club members at their own "I" Carnival.

The football and basketball throw booths allowed the athletes of Iowa State to shine. Besides the booths, dancing, "professional" wrestling and prizes, a queen was chosen to reign over the carnival. A bean-guessing contest gave everyone a chance for the doorprize.

These athletes must have been in an energetic mood when they planned their swimming party for the middle of winter quarter! With no thought to the temperature outside, the fellows and their dates enjoyed the out-of-season sport. Later the stomping of feet square dancing rocked the Women's Gymnasium and rounded out another successful "I" party.

Parties are a lot of fun, but for this club they serve a dual purpose. All Iowa State lettermen work long and hard to make each event a success. What better way is there for these men to really know each other and become good friends? Monthly meetings are mainly for business but also serve as a good way to meet and to know other Iowa State athletes. The "I" clubroom isn't the only place they met, for a reserved section of seats at games united them once again.

First Row: Waldon, Ruzic, Oscarson, Wids, Maney. Second Row: Willett, Gardell, Taylor, VanFleet. Third Row: Dahms, Burdett, Peterson, Mallas, Platt.

Poor "I" Club pledges struggled to make the paddles worthy of the required 20 signatures of "I" Club members. The climax was reached when the pledges made the large special paddle to give the athlete of the year. The paddle, lettered with his name, is hung on the wall of the "I" clubroom in the Memorial Union for all to see!

To give the participator's view on pep, "I" Club sends representatives to 630 Club and to Pep Council. Two more representatives make up the student membership of athletic council. Each spring, as spring football practice is completed, there is the varsity-alumni football game. This year the varsity won, but you can never tell who'll win next.

Spring is also the time for a picnic for all Iowa

State athletes given by the athletic department. To each senior member of the club an "I" blanket is given at the picnic by the "I" Club for a job well done.

The men in gold sweaters with a red "I" sold programs for each of the football games played at home. Those letter sweaters look real sharp at the games, but you may also see them at the library, because "I" Club men have to study, too.

All of these athletes are busy, not only in athletics, but other campus activities as well. Yet "I" Club successfully carried out its purpose of encouraging all athletes in each sport to meet each other. And can anyone doubt they helped promote good sportsmanship all over campus this year.

A good example of "Mixed Emotions"; some joking, some resting and a few who are interested.

Twisters

The 70 Twisters, led by President Alice Hammond, started the year with a bang by serving 700 people at the Homecoming Pep Barbecue. Shirley Halbach and Janice Rinker, the other officers, kept all the members enthusiastic for the football games, and the student body felt the results.

At the end of fall quarter, pledges and actives held a pom-pom party at which they made 500 yellow and red pom-poms to be used for basketball games. Twisters, whose purpose it is to promote pep and enthusiasm in college activities, especially athletics, meet every other Tuesday.

Yel-Jax

Always food for one more is the motto of Iowa State's yellow-jacketed men at the Homecoming Pep Barbecue. Working with Twisters on this project was one of the many ways the Yel-Jax strive to be of service.

Men who wear the Yel-Jax letters are those who promote school spirit. They serve their college in every way possible, from serving sandwiches to assisting the Veishea Central Committee.

The Yel-Jax, together with the Twisters, attend all football games and supervise the cardinal and gold card section, which is shown as part of the half-time entertainment.

630 Club

"To bring more and better athletics to Iowa State College, to raise the morale and give incentive to our various teams, and to promote interest among the student body in varsity athletics."

These words are taken from the 630 Club constitution and are typical of the attitude of each member.

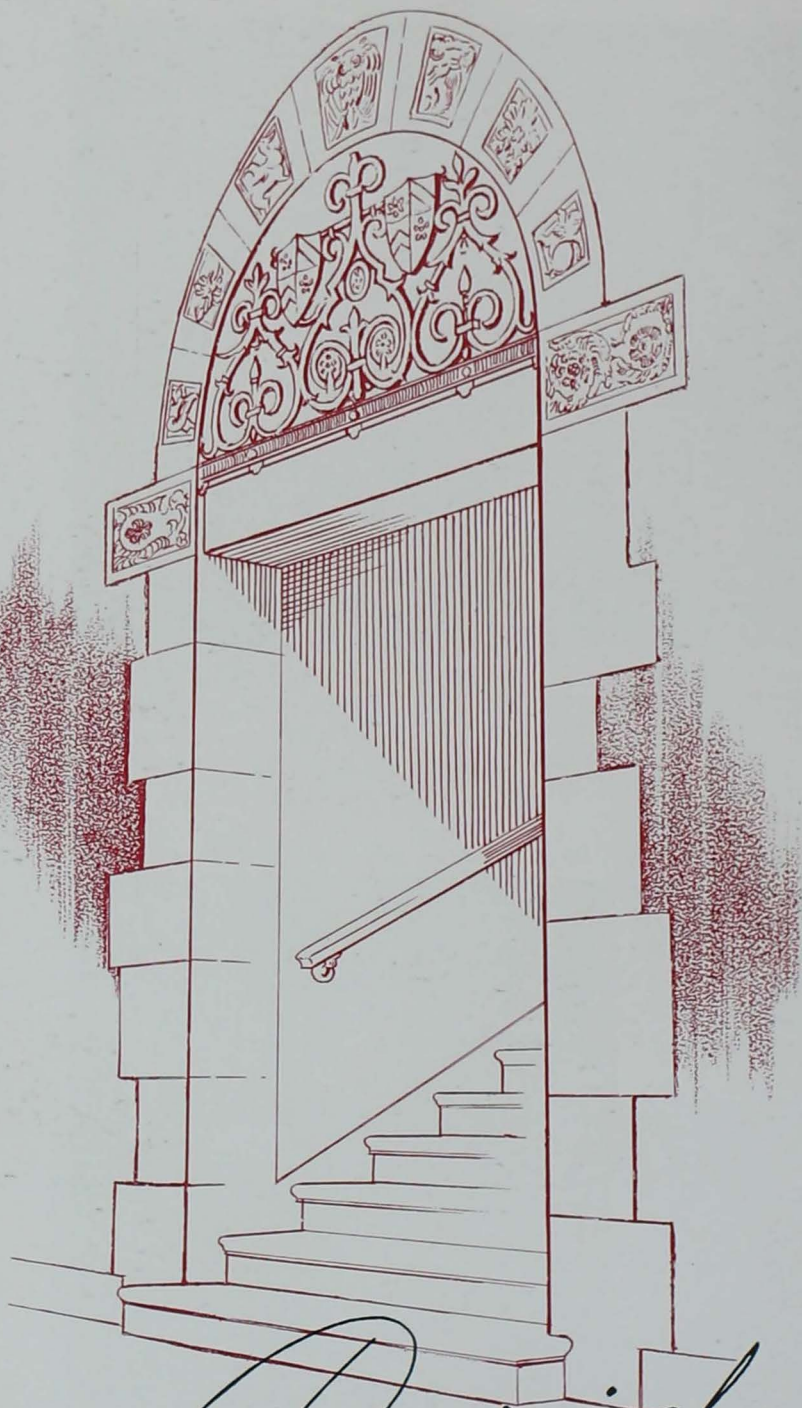

This organization is comprised of 70 members, one representative from each residence, and it is their job to choose the Athlete of the Week during each school week and the Athlete of the Year each spring.

The Varsity Football Athletic Banquet is sponsored by this group and is held each fall in honor of the football team. The 630 Club also works hand in hand with the Ames Junior Chamber of Commerce in the presentation of the banquet.

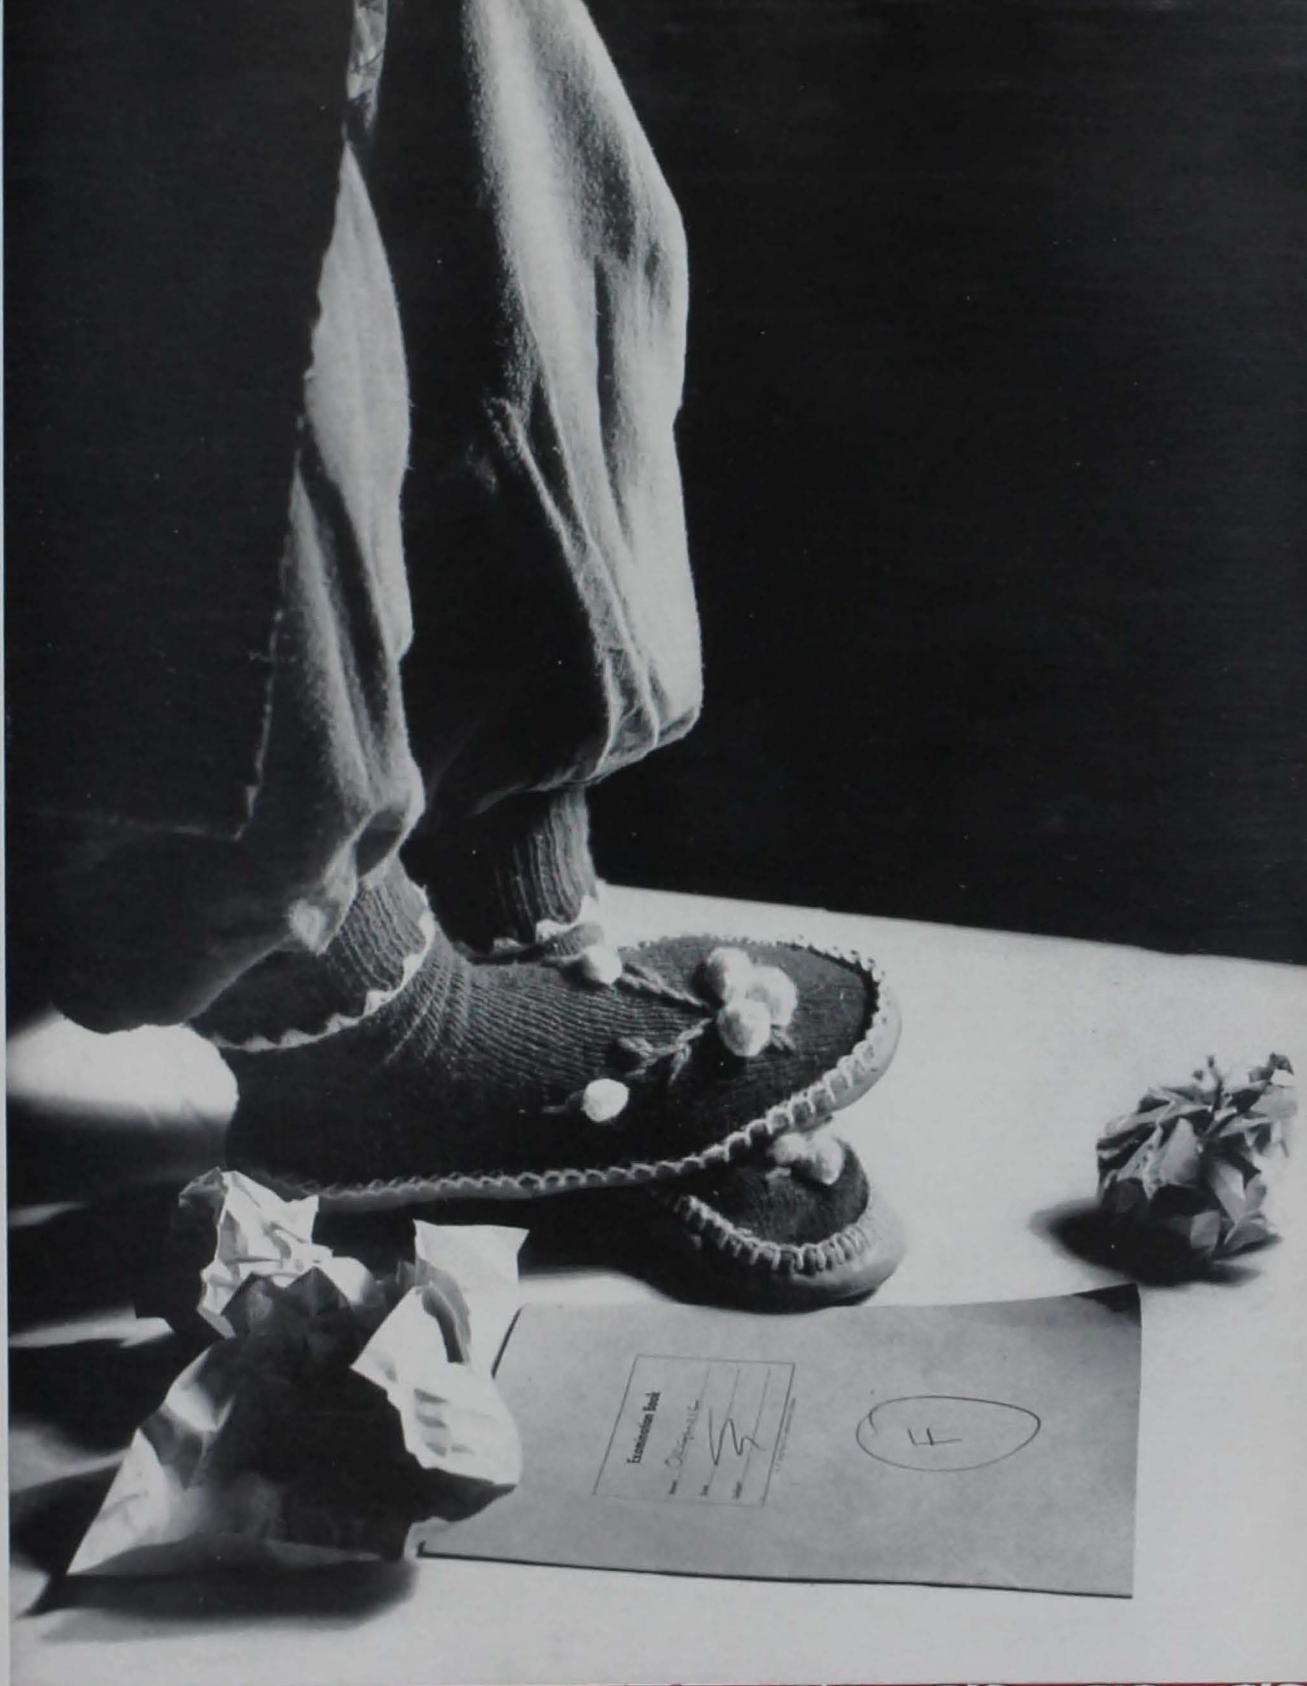

Although it is the youngest organization on campus, having been founded in 1946 after the bad beating the Cyclones took in the Homecoming game, it is one of the main groups working for better athletic spirit.

A 630 Club meeting is in full swing in the Memorial Union.

Panhellenic Council consists of two representatives from each sorority on campus. This organization acts as a governing body for the ISC sororities.

The most important task of Panhel is the regulation and reformation of rushing rules. It is Panhel which takes charge of all sorority rushing, appointing one member from each group to act as guides for the rushees and to handle the invitations and bids.

Panhel Council forms a bridge between administration and sororities, works with Interfraternity Council and develops closer relations among sororities and independent students. Cooperation is the key word for this closely knit organization.

Bi-monthly dinners were given at the sorority houses for the house presidents plus a representative from each sorority. As a special Christmas project, a caroling group comprised of three girls from each house serenaded old folks' homes in the Ames area.

Panhel Council jointly sponsored the Woodward project this year with Interfraternity Council. Sorority and fraternity members provided workers to paint rooms and make curtains at the state hospital for feeble minded children. One project, dubbed Special Service, consisted of organizing muscular activities for patients to help keep them strong and healthy. Variety skits were presented for entertainment and games were played with the patients.

Thirsty? Have some cocoa. Hungry? Pass the cookies. Got some news? Sit down and tell the rest of the sorority pledges about it. These were familiar phrases at the chocolate hours sponsored by the Junior Panhellenic Council. Once a month, on Tuesdays from 4:00 to 5:30, the pledges listened to records, talked and just got acquainted in the various sorority houses.

Junior Panhel meetings were held second and fourth Tuesdays with a representative from each of the 11 pledge classes present. President Shirley Bishop led the discussion of projects, social events, scholastic awards and pledge rules.

This year's service project was a cookie sale given in cooperation with Interfraternity Pledge Council. Enthusiastic sorority and fraternity pledges baked the cookies at the sorority houses on a Saturday afternoon. Proceeds of the sale were given to the polio fund.

The fellows picked up the girls after a football game for the Pledge Panic at the Boone Ledges. Last year's Junior Panhellenic Council and Interfraternity Pledge Council sponsored the picnic of fun and fellowship. An afternoon of mixer games and refreshments ended with the crowning of Pledge Princess Barbara Holmes and Prince James Mau.

On the serious side, the council offered a scholastic cup to the pledge class with the highest grade average.

Alpha Delta Pi

A mystic blue light from the patio of the ADPi house invited all ADPi's and their dates to the Spring formal house dance. The theme, "Trilogy in Blue," reflected three song hits: "Blue Velvet," "Blue Moon," and "Blue Tango."

Cries of "Dibbs on the cold ham," and "Save that cake for me" rang in the kitchen as Moms, Dads and daughters elbowed their way to the ice box when the ADPi's celebrated Parents' Day. The football game and a cozy coffee hour afterwards were part of the fun. After hours, the privileged "pops" were given full charge of the house while mothers and daughters migrated to the Union. A family buffet Sunday noon closed the weekend of companionship between parents and daughters.

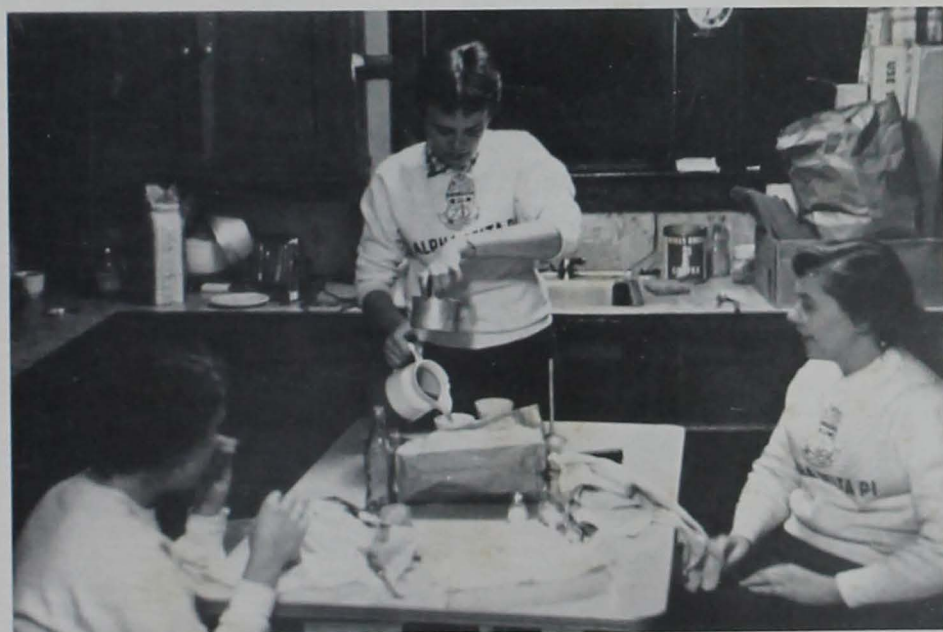

Fun with a purpose is the best kind, say the ADPi girls. Together with members of Beta Theta Pi, they feasted at an authentic Swedish Smorgasbord. The proceeds were donated to the polio fund.

It looks as if these girls would rather listen to records than study.

Alpha Gamma Delta

"Broadway Accents" set the mood for the Alpha Gamma Delta spring formal with the transformation of the Ames Country Club into downtown New York City. "Lullaby of Broadway" record albums made appropriate party favors.

While the "frost was on the pumpkin," the Alpha Gams and their dates rejoiced at "Pumpkin Hollow," a fall hayride and fireside. To add to the confusion, one hayrack had a flat tire out in the country, forcing the couples to double up on other already crowded racks.

Burned or nicely browned, there's nothing like a marshmallow toasted out in the crisp autumn air. The Alpha Gams found their backyard fireplace the perfect place for toasted marshmallow Sunday night get-togethers.

For the second straight year the girls at 2118 Sunset won the Sigma Nu Relays trophy for unsurpassed skill in egg throwing and pie eating.

Chi Omega

Beautiful is the word for Carol Fisher, 1952 Veishea Queen of Queens, and her attendant, Les Knodel, and the Chi O's were proud to call them sisters. But beauty is only one of the Chi O assets. This they proved by winning second place for Homecoming decorations which featured a huge cyclone talking into a telephone receiver and entitled, "Calling C U's Bluff."

Highlight of the social year was the Christmas formal. Pine greens and blue lights decorated the chapter house for a "Colonial Christmas." A Colonial doorway invited the couples to dance to the music of Bob Peterson's band and to admire the Christmas scene decorating one wall. Tom-toms and totem poles set the scene for the fireside the actives gave the pledges fall quarter. Indian headdresses announced the name of each guest and a large canoe was labeled with the name "Chi O Pow Wow."

Delta Delta Delta

"There's no business like show business," chorused the Tri Deltas after their skit, "Ever Since Eve," swept through Varieties and went on to capture the grand prize in Veishea Vodvil. The skit provided an answer to the question, "How do you get a man at Iowa State?" Advice was given on the subject by such authorities as Eve and Cleopatra. The splashy 1952 Veishea Canoe Races added another trophy to the Tri Delt shelf.

On Nov. 2 the girls piled into cars and journeyed to the intramural field. The occasion? The annual Tri Delt-Phi Gam football game. Spurred on by the boundless enthusiasm of cheerleaders and a marching band, the girls romped on to victory. (It was their turn to win.)

Silvery angels welcomed the Tri Deltas and their dates to "Delta Heaven," the winter house formal. Blue lights, a Christmas tree and angel hair gave a festive touch to the Yuletide party.

Delta Zeta

It took four happy DZ's to carry home their 1952 Veishea sweepstakes trophy. This massive 3-foot award was won for the house's float, "Building Leadership" featuring two little girls playing with huge blocks spelling ISC.

There's a well worn path from the house at 2138 Sunset across campus to the Press Building. Fifteen girls helped write, edit, and sell ads for the various college publications. Journalism is not the only DZ interest, however, as the Roman lamp shone brightly in organizations and honoraries all over campus.

Spanish moss and exotic flowers created the mystic atmosphere of a "southern swampland" for the spring formal, Flamingo. The evergreens, glowing candlelight and glistening snowflakes of the Snowflake Fantasy, winter house dance, were fitting finale for a successful year for Delta Zeta.

Decorating the tree is fun, but peeking at the packages is better yet.

Gamma Phi Beta

Highlight of the social season was——. No, the Gamma Phi's won't complete this line, for they are donating money budgeted for their winter formal to the polio fund. The decision was made at Homecoming when the girls decided to cooperate with the decorations contest and sacrifice their dance. Yet a sacrifice means giving up one thing for a more worthwhile goal, so the Gamma Phi's don't regret that blank spot on their social calendar.

Everyone in the funnies came to the Gamma Phi winter quarter party. Couples were dressed as their favorite comic strip characters. Colorful chalk drawings of the comic strip people decorated the walls. Dagwood sandwiches, kickapoo joy juice and Grandma's cookies gave the refreshments a comic strip flavor.

Each girl in the house did her share to win the WAA swimming meet. Twelve girls passed the prelims and went on to win in the finals.

Kappa Alpha Theta

Kappa Alpha Theta kites soared to new heights this year in all phases of campus life. The Theta's won the Panhellenic Scholarship Trophy while their pledges earned the Pledge Scholarship trophy.

Under the leadership of Sue Wieters, the gals with the black and gold banner snatched time from campus activities and classes to build a unique homecoming decoration on their front lawn. With the title "Cyclone Scramble Colorado" it won first place in the sorority decorations contest. First place award for the Veishea sorority float is claimed by the Theta's for their snowy lambs and towering Mary labeled "Lead and They Shall Follow."

Tops on the Thetas' social calendar were the spring formal, "Black and Gold," and the Phi Gam-Theta Christmas party for 18 orphans. The house at 2239 Knapp became "The Copper Penny," a flashy gambling casino, for the winter fireside.

The boy: "It's a bird." First girl: "It's a plane." Second girl: "You're wrong — it's superman!" Third girl: "Gee, what IS it?"

Kappa Delta

The "dog catcher" accompanied each girl as she picked up her date for the KD fall Flea Hop to see that all the "mutts" were promptly put on leash. "Masters and mutts" returned to the KD "Kennel" at 2102 Sunset, complete with paper fleas, for an evening of games and dancing. Dog biscuits were served to the hungry "hounds."

Lest the idea be given that the KD's always treat their dates as dogs, may it be added that the Esquire Formal last spring must have made the dates feel quite manly. Esquire girls decorated the walls and subscriptions to Esquire Magazine were favors.

Santa made an appearance at the annual KD-Lambda Chi Christmas party for the children of the Lutheran Children's Home to top off the afternoon of games. The Kappa Delta president, Marilyn Paxson, was selected as Veishea Co-Chairman, an honor which hasn't been given to a girl for many years.

Kappa Kappa Gamma

A volleyball "fix." A ruined romance. How tragic! But this only took place in the Kappa skit, "Gladiola Girl," a Varieties winner which placed second in Veishea Vodvil. Gay flapper costumes and a libretto told in song wove a plot of a college sports star, his coed sweetheart and a volleyball "fix." The ending? Happy, of course.

The Kappa dates were "rushees" for an evening at an unusual social event. Met at the door by members, the dates were taken through the receiving line. After typical rushing entertainment, the men were "pledged." Dancing and refreshments filled the remaining hours.

Peggy McLaren demonstrated her leadership ability not only as Kappa president, but as president of Mortar Board.

Pi Beta Phi

Pi Beta Phi's goal in intramural sports was one hundred percent participation. They achieved it along with high placings in volleyball, pingpong and badminton to win the prized intramural trophy. These same girls rounded out their schedules with active parts in divisional clubs, publications and honoraries. Homecoming Queen Sue Moore wore the Pi Phi arrow.

The usual social events of firesides, parties, and formals became refreshingly different at the Pi Beta Phi house because of decorations. Their fall record party featured mobiles and modernistic art, painted by one of the actives to resemble the work of Salvador Dali. A carnation tree offered boutonnieres to the escorts at the winter formal "Arrow-Gleams." A glistening sleigh formed a perfect setting for photographs.

Sigma Kappa

The Sigma Kappa's were pulling all the way; in activities, classes, and campus honoraries, including their Veishea float which received honorable mention. The float, entitled, "Pulling for the Future," depicted an old fashioned girl holding on to a four-poster bed while her "Mammy" laced her corset.

The Sigma Kappa pledges defeated the FarmHouse pledges to win a Greek Week Trophy. All is fair in tug of war, the girls found, as they used both hands to pull their way to victory while their opponents were allowed only one hand.

French models and Pogoes reigned at "Goblins Night Out," a Halloween masquerade. Dancing the "bunny hop" and the awarding of prizes for the most unusual costumes highlighted the evening. In the fall the girls gave a tea to welcome their new housemother, Mrs. Walter Hanson.

Interfraternity Council

"Greek Week is one of Interfraternity Council's biggest projects," reports Chairman Gerry Palmer. Co-sponsored with Panhellenic Council, the first Greek Week was held last spring. Fall and winter quarters gave time to evaluate the big week and make plans for 1953.

A convocation at noon brought fraternity and sorority pledges together in South Ballroom, Memorial Union, to hear Dean Helser officially open Greek Week. A banquet in Great Hall, a scholarship tea for sorority pledges and special activities in each house filled the days until the Greek Week Relays closed the event. The wheelbarrow race, paper relay and a tug of war were among the contests pledges competed in to win one of the traveling trophies. A joint sorority and fraternity picnic followed.

Interfraternity Pledge Council

Social events and discussions brought the fraternity pledges together in Interfraternity Pledge Council and they emerged with a lot of "good old fraternity spirit."

Each house elected a pledge representative to the council. At bi-monthly meetings, the group, led by Sidney Cullingham, planned coming events and discussed problems common to the fraternity pledges.

On special occasions, the men met with the Junior Panhel Council to plan sorority-fraternity Greek doings. One event the two groups helped sponsor was the Pledge Panic, which brought new fraternity and sorority pledges together as one group for the first time. Munching on their sack lunches, the pledges watched the crowning of their own Pledge Prince and Princess on a stage constructed from an old farm wagon.

Why should such a gentlemanly gesture rate all that attention?

Acacia

The Eastern Star Home in Boone sparkled after the Acacians gave it a thorough fall housecleaning. Actives and pledges joined ranks to wash windows, clean rugs, rake leaves, trim bushes — all the things that needed to be done to put the Home in ship-shape, ready for another year of service to the lady residents. A dinner with the women completed the day.

"Oriental Fantasy," the spring formal, brought a Chinese Garden to ISC. A jade dragon covered one wall. Black and aqua Chinese fans made quaint favors, and music was provided by a band seated beneath a pagoda roof.

"Strike three!" cried the umpire, and the Acacians were defeated by the Kappa Delta's in the annual softball game. The Pi Phi's joined the Acacians at a caroling party in another traditional exchange.

Adelante

A blue backdrop with a stairway leading to shining stars displayed the theme of the Adelante Spring formal, Stairway to the Stars. Upon entering MacKay Auditorium, couples danced to the music of Roger Loots and his orchestra.

Iowa State's Homecoming, October 18, held dual excitement for the Adelantes. After attending the game, the chapter members and 50 alumni gathered at the Sheldon-Munn Hotel to celebrate the annual Founder's Day. Dean Helser's talk highlighted the banquet.

The only local fraternity on the Iowa State campus, Adelantes have as their motto, "Scholarship, Fellowship and Leadership." In keeping with the first claim of this motto, the boys ranked fourth high in scholarship among the fraternities. A new ornament on the Adelante mantle is the Class C championship softball trophy.

Alpha Chi Rho

A large-scale Alpha Chi Rho pin glittered down from a black back-drop above the dancing couples at the fraternity's annual spring formal, Garnet and White. Corsages of red and white carnations, the fraternity flower, and fluffy, white dogs bearing the Alpha Chi crest were given to each girl by her escort.

Blue jeans and calico were the order of the evening for the Halloween barn dance. Square dancing rocked the rafters of the old country dance hall where the party was held. A hayride and a Christmas party added gaiety to the social calendar.

How much wood does it take to barbecue 80 pounds of beef? The Alpha Chi's can tell you, for they hauled a great load of wood to fill their barbecue pit October 18. Alumni and actives feasted on barbecued beef with all the trimmings and enjoyed the dance that followed.

Alpha Gamma Rho

The AGR's have scored again! Last spring when the college Dairy Judging Team took first place at a Kansas City meet, three AGR's did their share as members of the five-man team. A four-member judging team, three members AGR's, rated sixth in the nation at the Waterloo Dairy Cattle Congress. Three AGR's on the Livestock Team helped ISC place sixth at Chicago.

The AGR's are known for more than their "judging" ability by the Class A Fraternities who watched the AGR Softball Team win the championship by defeating all seven of their tournament opponents.

Many parties given by Alpha Gamma Rho are traditional. Such is the Farmers' Ball. Nearly 300 people enjoyed a barbecue before the dance. The AGR's boast two annual summer affairs: the AGR Alum Reunion and a State Fair Banquet.

Alpha Tau Omega

From bridge to basketball, from dances to dramatics, the ATO's excelled. The same men who won the all-college bridge tournament completed a fruitful intramural year by winning the golf-putting and indoor track competition and making the quarter-finals in basketball.

Their Varieties skit, "The Wizard of Is," rated a berth in Veishea Vodvil.

"Rendezvous in Rio," the spring formal, gave ATO's and their dates a sample of South American gaiety. Palm trees and the rugged skyline of Rio de Janeiro covered the walls in a colorful mural. Various rooms were decorated to resemble nightclubs in the fabulous Rio. Heart-shaped jewel boxes were given as souvenirs to the ATO's dates.

Beta Sigma Psi

Spring quarter the Beta Sigma Psi's and their dates attended the annual Gold Rose Formal at the Sheldon-Munn Hotel. A trellis of gold roses formed the entrance to the ballroom. Attached to the trellis were the favors, lipstick-compact cases, each decorated with a rose. The backdrop behind the bandstand featured one large gold rose encircled with leaves. The rose was centered with the Beta Sig crest.

November 16 the Autumn Dinner Dance was held in Hotel Plaza, Des Moines. Swirling leaves of all colors lent an atmosphere of autumn to the ballroom. Dancing to the Starliters followed the dinner.

With fall comes football and that means time for the Beta Sigs to rack up more awards. This year the Beta Sigma Psi's are champions of Class D all-college football. They also earned the runner-up award in Class C interfraternity football.

First Row: Winfrey, Lipsett, Fudge, Carpenter, Schell, Clark, Peterson, Humphrey, Bride. Second Row: Rooker, Bartley, Garton, Honke, Nichols, Hendrickson, Warfield, Boat, E. Beta Theta Pi

"Come to the Mardi Gras," said the Beta Theta Pi's to their dates for the fireside costume party. Crepe paper streamers, confetti and colorful costumes were combined with the carnival laughter and gaiety at the winter quarter party.

Quaint tables and chairs turned the patio outside the Beta house into a miniature sidewalk cafe for the annual spring formal. Punch was served on the patio beneath the stars.

Some little piggies go to market while some little piggies stay home, according to the nursery rhyme, but a considerable number of those pigs must have found their way to the Beta Bar-b-que. The pork was roasted for members and their dates in the backyard barbecue pit.

Delta Chi

A house of fraternity men is a lot of "sons" to care for, but the Delta Chi's say Mrs. Mary Schwendener has been an understanding housemother for 21 years. The fraternity honored her 21st anniversary with the house at a buffet supper last spring. Many alums returned for the supper and the presentation of a silver plate to the housemother.

"Cafe Rendezvous," the party planned by the pledges, brought a French sidewalk cafe and a wine cellar to the parlors of Delta Chi. Unusual costumes and a skit by the pledges added the final touch of authenticity to the party.

"In the lane snow is glistening," said the words in the song on the radio, causing several Delta Chi's to decide on a toboggan party. Coffee and doughnuts at the house helped to take away that chilly feeling after sliding and bumping down the snowy hills.

First Row: Bennett, Sargent, Ross, Kinsey, Watts, Wenzler, Sunderman, Webb, R. Sirpless. Second Row: Duroe, Popp, G. Delta Sigma Phi

Dates entered the Delta Sig house through a basement window for the French Apache Dance. A dimly-lit French cafe greeted couples as they arrived in Apache costume.

The Carnation Ball is the way Delta Sigma Phi chapters all over the nation honor their fraternity. A dinner and dance at the Ames Country Club preceded the presentation of awards to outstanding men in the chapter.

It was "Welcome Parents" at the Delta Sig house the Sunday following Veishea. A dinner and program entertained the guests and showed them just what fraternity life is like.

Delta Tau Delta

Oui, Oui, Mademoiselle! The Delt "Lucky Pierre" party abounded with that gay French atmosphere. Oui! A sidewalk cafe in the Delt house with streaming fountains, park benches and real trees. The mademoiselles and monsieurs were dressed in gaudy French attire and (ch bien!) they kept the gaming tables busy.

A tree filled with exotic blossoms greeted the guests at the spring Orchid Formal. And each girl reached up and plucked a flower from a tree — an orchid corsage.

A romance between the Queen of Hearts and the Jack of Clubs. It happens in the Delta Tau Delta Varieties skit, "The Royal Flush," not on a Valentine card. The men worked diligently to perfect the tap dancing chorus line and singing which told the story of a romantic mix-up.

Delta Upsilon

At Christmas time the DU's left studies and social activities to give a Christmas party for the Ames underprivileged children. Santa Claus distributed presents. Following games came treats of apples and popcorn. A Christmas story told by the housemother brought wide eyes and glee from the little tots.

Outstanding in sports, eight DU's participated in varsity athletics and the house won the Class B football championship.

FarmHouse

Some of the most "distinguished farmers in this hyar territory," along with their dates, were dropped off at the "Hotel" FarmHouse by FH taxis at the fall fireside, Hayseed Holiday. The setting was complete from registration of guests to brass hat in the Picklewilly Room. Dancing couples paused just long enough to see the floorshow.

Spring quarter brought the "Farmers' Party" barbeque. This mock political convention had its share of mud-slinging, but political rivalries were forgotten as the "delegates" headed home.

FarmHouse men under the leadership of Eldon Weber maintained their high scholarship record and almost copped several additional sports trophies, the volleyball and horseshoe teams placing second in the fraternity intramurals, while the football team reached the semi-finals.

Peterson, Meyer, Damgaard, Herron, Matheson.

Kappa Sigma

Great! It's a date to the Kappa Sigma Bar Nothing Ranch. The Kappa Sigs scored with another big western-style dance, an annual fall party. A few requirements for entrance to the "ranch" were western garb and a rugged climb over the 14-foot corral at the front door. The first floor was reserved for dancing and the basement, decorated to represent an old western town, featured the Kappa Sig gambling casino.

A waterfall cascaded down one wall of the Kappa Sig house for the winter house dance and splashed into a wishing pool filled with carnations. The dance, the annual Black and White, followed the theme of a Spanish castle. Candelabra, stained glass windows and huge shields turned the house into a fifth century palace.

The Barber Pole Cats, the Kappa Sig quartette, sang their way to first place in the men's residence Barbershop Quartette Contest.

Lambda Chi Alpha

Last year was national election year, and the Lambda Chi's were busy with conventions too, though not of a political nature. In May, they were hosts to the Great Plains Conclave. Representations of nine Lambda Chi chapters from six states discussed activities, heard M. D. Helser address the convention and attended a formal dinner dance. Ten members of the local chapter attended the General Assembly of Lambda Chi Alpha at the Waldorf Astoria, New York City.

A covered wagon portraying "Pioneers in Education" won honorable mention in the fraternity Veishea float contest for Lambda Chi.

Always tops on the social calendar is the White Rose dinner dance. Not quite so formal was the third annual watermelon bust during fall quarter. Everyone was invited to hear the Lambda Chi combo and watch the seed spitting contest.

Phi Delta Theta

The Phi Delt Toilet Bowl, all-sorority football tournament sponsored and refereed by the Phi Delts, was a rival to the Rose Bowl game, in laughter, that is. Amid cheering and pep yells, the Kappa's survived the "tough" competition to emerge the victors.

The pledges gave the annual fall "Bowery Party." "Waterfront characters" who attended last fall felt at home, for the house was decorated to carry out the theme.

Each spring the Tri Phi — members of Phi Delt, Phi Gam and Phi Psi — get together for an informal dance. And also about that time of year the Beta's, Sigma Chi's and Phi Delts have a picnic called the Miami Triad.

Phi Gamma Delta

White orchid leis flown from Hawaii were placed around the neck of each girl at the Phi Gam Fiji Island Grass Skirt Dance. The invitations were delivered while members serenaded. Hayracks were the method of transportation to the "island" where the grass-skirted girls and sarong-clad Phi Gams ate dinner and drank punch from coconut shells. The house was decorated to resemble a grass hut. Crowning the Fiji Grass Skirt Girl brought on a volley of shouting and celebration.

Each girl whispered her Christmas wishes into the ear of Santa Claus at the Christmas fireside. A tinsel glittering tree and Christmas paintings portrayed the Yuletide spirit.

A party for 18 orphans at Christmas time was sponsored by Phi Gams and Theta's.

First Row: Degnan, Groff, Mitchell, Baumhover, Halstead, Williams, Seallon, Neuzil, Villinski. Second Row: Bystreck, Ahmann, Klute, Johnson, Helmes (Pres.), Mrs. Williams, Greteman, Stickler, Fitzgerald, McGuire. Third Row: Mottet, Blichmann (V.P.), Frank, Brewer, Seipel, Flynn, McCarty, Bohnenkamp. Fourth Row: Mayrose, Brumbach, G. Phi Kappa

Cheery lamp posts greeted the Phi Kappa's and their dates as they walked down the Street of Dreams and into the Phi Kappa house. Tall trees surrounding a white picket fence and a pathway winding among fluffy clouds was the "dream street" traversed by the couples.

For the annual Pirate's Ball, the house was transformed from a dreamland into a ship of lusty pirates. Cannons and masts were "on deck" while Davy Jones' locker in the basement recreation room was "under the sea." A sawdust floor and palm trees in one room gave the illusion of an island haven. Couples boarded ship attired in appropriate pirate clothing complete with buccaneer boots and cummerbunds.

Campus activities also claimed the interest of the Phi Kap men. They won the Class B Fraternity softball championship and earned a runners-up trophy in Class A Volleyball intramural competition.

Phi Kappa Psi

Three years in a row! That is the record the Phi Psi's set when they won the all-fraternity intramural trophy again this year.

Goal lines and yard markers gave the sidewalk in front of the Phi Psi house that football field look for the Sportsman Dance. After the last home football game, members and their dates returned to the house made festive with crepe paper streamers. The basement became a western bar, with swinging doors for the entrance. The pledges amused the guests with a skit satirizing pledge-active relationships before the bunny-hop and the hucklebuck began to "shake" the house.

Oo la la. Moulin Rouge, the annual Phi Psi French party, comes each spring, changing the basement into a gay Parisian Restaurant. Dancing and entertainment make this party a favorite.

Phi Kappa Tau

Phi Kappa Tau's started a new tradition at their winter formal, Phi Tau Fantasy, with the presentation of a Phi Tau Dream Girl and by serenading her with the fraternity's Dream Girl song. Rose corsages and rose-decorated ballroom carried out the romantic theme.

Two new trophies symbolized Phi Tau's successful sports year. Winners of Class D softball, their Class B team lost the final game.

The brothers enjoyed evening hot chocolate and goodie parties arranged by their housemother, Mrs. Maude Evans. Mothers of members furnished cookies on their sons' birthdays for these snacks.

"Wanted: for loitering in the Union, grand larceny in stealing men's hearts and in general being a menace to the health and well-being of Iowa State men," read the invitation to the Phi Tau Prison Riot. Footprints of guests were recorded and a mock trial was held.

Two brothers wait for the answer to, "Does she have two friends?"

Oo la la! If only we could find a course with textbooks like this.

Fifth Row: Vickrey, Norton, Anderson, Mackland, McCoy.

Pi Kappa Alpha

"Bon voyage" was the call as PiKA's and their dates stepped on deck for their Dream Girl spring formal, and an evening of gaiety "aboard ship" followed. The house was transformed into a ship, complete with deck tables and chairs. Announcement of this year's Dream Girl of PiKA highlighted the evening.

"The Pi Kappa Alpha Wednesday Night Lecture Series is our way of keeping up with the world," say the PiKA's. Talks were made by Wednesday night dinner guests.

First Row: Zobel, Lee, Hill, Townley, Tyner, Menefee, Stinogel, Hanson, Higgins. Second Row: Osborne, Simmons, Christensen, Hancock, Gammell, Mrs. McCannon, Nechanicky, Applegate, Jondle, Bader. Pi Kappa Phi

Decorations entitled, "Watch Our Score Multiply in a Hare Raising Game," won the Pi Kaps second place in the fraternity Homecoming Decorations contest. Mother Rabbit and 17 bunny offspring frolicking across the Pi Kap lawn carried out the theme. One little rabbit was perched on top the corner street sign. The Pi Kaps also claim the first ISC Homecoming King, Gib Stanek.

The Pi Kap's social calendar was filled to overflowing with such entertainment features as the Winter Cruise costume party and the Spring Rose Ball where the Rose of Pi Kappa Phi was crowned.

On your mark, get set, go! Watch those boys gobble that pie, and the Pi Kappa Phi boys "ate" their way to the bronze pie tin trophy at the annual Pi Phi-PiKA-Pi Kappa Phi pie eating contest. Winners were judged by the housemothers, and a picnic followed the contest.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon

Do, Re, Mi, and the Sig Alphas are off to win the Sinfonia Sing, overcoming competition from more than 20 men's residences. The big cup was worth "singing for" say the boys.

Led by their championship basketball and tennis teams, the Sig Alphas earned second place in the all-college intramurals.

One hundred-sixty guests honored "Mom" Penquite, Sig Alpha housemother, at a November tea commemorating her 10 years with the Iowa Gamma chapter.

In the fall came Minerva's Masquerade. A winged Mercury in characteristic pose (he wore roller skates) delivered invitations to the dates. The scrolls he gave described the Greek God and Goddess the couples were to portray.

Sigma Chi

From her blue and gold throne decorated with the Sigma Chi crest the Sweetheart of Sigma Chi reigned over the "Spanish Castle," the winter formal. After a dinner at Hotel Holst in Boone, the Sigma Chi's and their dates danced through the evening to the music of Reggie Schives' Sextette against a background of stained glass windows.

The hayrack creaked to a stop and Sigma Chi members hopped out to call for their dates to the "Mountain Dew" fireside. Dressed as hillbillies, the guests drank "good ole mountain dew" from the Sigma Chi "still" and ate Sigma Chi cornbread. Bales of hay and a real pig in a pen made lively decorations.

Members got into the social "swim" at Neptune's Frolic, a swimming party at the Women's Gym Pool. Water polo, underwater tag and relay races provided fun until the swimmers returned to the house.

Sigma Nu

Hillbilly costumes were the fashion for the annual Sigma Nu Sod-busters' Ball. The Ames Country Club donned mountain style decorations for the event. Pledge-supplied entertainment (and cider and doughnuts) completed a lively party.

The Lumberman's Buzz, Burlap Bounce, Egg Toss and Rooster Ramble were among the zany races on the roster at the annual Sigma Nu Relays. The eleven sororities pitted their skill against one another. The Alpha Gams won for the second straight year. The most popular event (to watch that is) was the Tug of War. The teams were spurred on by the realization that one false move would mean a very real mud bath in the pit across the street from 2132 Sunset.

Snaring top honors in the intramural swimming meet, the Sigma Nu's displayed their athletic ability.

Sigma Phi Epsilon

Sig Eps, Sig Eps — everywhere and into everything! Jerry Jensen was General Co-Chairman of '53 Veishea with four other Sig Eps on Central Committee. Homecoming committees, Varieties, publications, athletics; the Sig Eps have joined their ranks, too.

Sig Eps and music, the two are synonymous. Not content with activity in band, orchestra and chorus, the boys organize their own combo each year. Specializing in Dixieland, the Sig Ep combo played for many campus events including a half-hour concert at the Homecoming Pep Bar-B-Que.

Mrs. McKone and her three "dates" are stepping out on the others.

Tau Kappa Epsilon

How do the Tekes get in shape for fall? By starting the year out right by winning the Sports Triad. Golf putting, ping pong and horse-shoes are the three Triad sports for inter-fraternity competition.

Yukon Capers turned the chapter house into an "Arc-Teke Tavern" with a punch bar, wine cellar, gambling casino and a dance hall. Alaskan murals decorated the walls for the Tekes and their dates who were costumed from Eskimos and polar bears to cakes of ice.

As many as 92 Teke brothers and their dates gathered together to root for the Cyclone football team. And how those ukes were strummed and the cider passed while they waited for the game to begin.

A massive, glittering star before the Teke house welcomed guests to Starlight Inn, the Christmas Dinner Dance. Dates exchanged comical Christmas gifts between dinner and dancing.

Theta Chi

A "Saturday Spree" and the whole day was filled with activity. The fun began for the Theta Chi's and their dates when they walked to Clyde Williams Field, lunch sacks in hand, to watch Iowa State play the University of Kansas. A drive to Brookside Park for a hamburger fry came next. Then, returning to the house, the couples watched television and played bridge while they waited for a hayride to begin. A skit highlighted the party which followed.

The house at 219 Ash looked like the movie set for a "horse opera" for the Circle Bar X party. "Cowboys," "wooden indians," and "molls" were gambling away paper money at the "saloon" when the "posse" arrived, but before long the "vigilantes" were enjoying the fun, too.

Such concentration could mean only

"Now here's the good word, brothers.
We're going to live it up tonight."

First Row: Hill, Kramer, Sealock, Ebner, "Minerva," Ferrier, Meyer. Second Row: Haack, Hammel, Krumery (Pres.), Mrs. Moseley, Sealock, Mark, Kita. Theta Delta Chi

The "Santa Maria" sailed in with a Veishea trophy for Theta Delta Chi in the fraternity float contest. The large-scale replica of the Pilgrim ship was made of red, black and chartreuse crepe paper and the inscription read, "The Leadership."

The most novel party of the year was the Theta Delta Chi fall fireside, Gone to Hell. Crepe paper flames shot up every wall. Even the refreshments, blood red punch and cake with red icing, were "out of this world."

Theta Xi

The leader in the polio donations this fall was Theta Xi. They began the campus drive for the polio fund by donating one hundred dollars instead of using it for homecoming decorations.

On the social front, the high point of the year was the annual Bowery Brawl. The Theta Xi's and their dates spent an evening of fun in a bowery "dive" complete with knotty pine walls, a bar with the traditional long mirror behind it and a shadowy alcove for dancing.

The Theta Xi Flying Club was founded by the flying enthusiasts in the house. A Piper Cub was purchased by splitting the cost equally among all the club members so they enjoyed their favorite sport at a minimum of expense. All free afternoons were spent at the Ames airport chalking up hours toward a pilot's or instructor's license up in the wild blue yonder.

Pammel Court Council

Iowa State's quonset village through the southern underpass.

The gavel raps and Mayor F. L. Blankenburg begins a bi-weekly meeting of the Pammel Court Council. First on the agenda comes a review of progress on the council's four big projects — supervision of the Pammel Court Recreation Hall, playground, garden plots and summer movies.

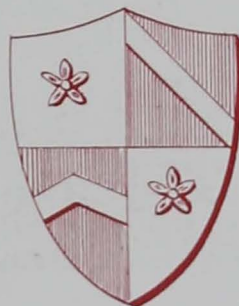

One of the nine councilmen elected semi-annually from each zone reports that the garden plots have been prepared and are ready to be rented to Pammel residents. A review of the Pammel Court Recreation Hall shows that the reading rooms, piano, shuffle board, ping pong tables, and toys for the children serve all Pammel.

Each summer the council approves a schedule of free movies shown weekly to Pammel residents. Supervision of the Pammel Court playground benefits the "small fry" and the parents, too.

Complaints and requests of Pammel residents are handled through the council. Business proceeds like that of a bona fide city council.

Independent Student Association

"Goblins" and "bums" invaded Dormitory Court for the Halloween Hobo Hop sponsored by the Independent Student Association. The streets were filled with ballroom and square dancing. Couples enjoyed bobbing for apples on the lawn outside the dorms. Roberts Hall rec room became a creepy spook house.

The six queen candidates crossed the ballroom at the ISA Sweetheart Ball between a row of couples holding lighted candles and approached the heart-shaped throne. Only two people knew the identity of the queen for voting took place at the dance and the ballots had been counted just a few minutes before. The orchestra played a fanfare and a crown of chrysanthemums was placed on the head of — Harriett Brown.

ISA had an answer to the queries "What to do after a basketball game," and "How to meet some new people," with the bi-weekly parties held in the Oak Hall Recreation Room following basketball games.

This is a national ISA chapter.

The president has a few words to say about the matter at hand.

Dormitory Council

Plans for coordinating the college life of the eight girls' dorms were laid by the 12 members of Dormitory Council.

Mistletoe Magic brought the dormitory girls together for a Christmas formal. Couples danced before a backdrop of a silhouetted boy and girl kissing beneath the mistletoe.

"Step right up for an introduction to activities," was the call at the Activities Carnival sponsored by Dorm Council. Over 30 campus organizations set up displays in South Ballroom, Memorial Union, to tell the girls and independent fellows about opportunities in activities.

White Breakfast is the traditional way to begin the Christmas season in the women's dorms. Dressed in white, each girl eats a special Sunday breakfast. A Christmas worship service follows.

What do you wear at College? What are the dorm rules? What about activities? These questions are discussed in "Cues for Coeds," a pamphlet for freshman girls edited by the council.

Birch Hall

Birch Hall has had its face lifted! A fresh coat of paint has brightened each room and hallway. The floors have been newly carpeted and new drapes adorn the parlor windows.

A rose archway provided the entrance to Rendezvous of Roses, the Birch Hall formal dance. Roses twining around the pillars in the Oak Hall recreation room, where the party was held, carried out the theme. A satiny rose centered on a black velvet backdrop furnished a background for Ron Vogelgesang and his orchestra which set the tempo for dancing. Intermission entertainment followed the party theme.

Each floor of Birch entertained the other three floors once during the year at a series of open houses. The girls paraded from room to room, getting acquainted and munching on candy favors. Each corridor followed a theme, such as Melody Lane or Hawaiian Nights and rooms were decorated appropriately.

"Without a song, the day would never end," chorus Birch Hall girls who are represented in every musical organization on campus.

"You woke me up to ask how to pick up a stitch? Well, here's how."

Elm Hall

Spring housecleaning took place in May as Elm Hall girls polished and scrubbed their rooms in preparation for their spring tea and open house. The dormitory's fifteenth birthday was celebrated so candles gleamed on the table as guests sipped punch to the tune of the "Anniversary Song."

Veishea found Elm Hall residents dressed in everything from bell-bottomed trousers to five yards of cheesecloth in order to perform their trophy-winning Varieties skit at Veishea Vodvil. In winter the dancing harem girls of the "Arabian Nuts" started a new movement and became can-can dancers, as the scene shifted from Arabia to France for the winter quarter Varieties skit, "Boy Scouts in Paris."

An important visitor came in December. Santa Claus — with a suspiciously feminine voice and a Southern accent — dropped in to distribute gifts at a Christmas fireside. Jolly Snowman, made of chicken-wire and paper napkins, played host to the firesiders at the Snowflake Inn and gave guests a sample of Christmas festivities before final week.

President Shirley Rasmussen, a hort major, ruled the Elm Hall "flowers."

Freeman Hall

Girls, girls, girls everywhere. That was the case this year in Freeman Hall where girls lived in the guest room, recreation room and doubled up with three in the two-girl rooms. Freeman, a dorm originally planned for transfer students, helped lighten the heavy load of freshman girls this year by housing 66 of them.

First place winners in the dorm division of the Homecoming decorations in 1951, this year

Freeman girls followed the campus trend of donating decoration money to the polio fund.

At Christmas time all the Freeman residents placed presents under the Christmas tree to be sent to a Des Moines orphanage.

"Present your pawn ticket to claim your date," said the "shopkeeper" at the Freeman Hall winter quarter fireside, The Corner Pawnshop.

Tau Gamma and Barton Hall

It's something new for freshman girls to live in Barton Hall. Primarily a dormitory for foreign and graduate women, the variety of students found a unique experience in living together this year.

Besides the regular representative on dorm council, the freshmen have officers of their own who supervise their activities.

The girls take an active part in intramurals. Badminton, basketball, and volleyball were on the agenda. Socially, the girls find dance and dinner exchanges a lot of fun.

The foreign students told how Christmas was observed in their native countries at the dorm Christmas party. Singing and chatting over refreshments followed.

Monday night get-togethers were on the calendar for members of Tau Gamma, independent town women's club. All women not affiliated with either a sorority or a dormitory may belong. Sometimes the weekly meetings were held in the Memorial Union, sometimes in members' homes.

Lyon Hall

Activity and leadership, fun and friendship characterized Lyon Hall this year. This dorm, one of the smaller ones on campus, achieved a feeling of unity although a conglomeration of freshmen, upperclassmen and transfer students lived there.

The dorm's Variety Skit, a clever tale of "The Worm That Could Not Wiggle" was the first skit produced by the hall in several years.

Girls from Lyon participated in Home Economics and Science divisional clubs. Officers and members of other clubs and honoraries also called Lyon Hall "home."

Fun and friendship came to Lyon — and stayed. Through the corridor open houses and the "Girl for a Day" bulletin board, featuring each pair of roommates sometime during the year, occupants of Lyon Hall became better acquainted.

After the Lyon Hall parlors were festooned with red and white decorations for the Peppermint Prance Christmas fireside the next night, the girls gathered 'round for singing and popcorn balls. Springtime brought the Polka-Dot Party and more fireside fun.

Lyon Hall reserved a room at the Union during the intermission of the Home Economics Ball when a committee entertained the girls and their dates with an old favorite, "Little Nell," and served popcorn and cider refreshments.

The cozy recreation room in the basement was the scene for many informal get-togethers, including the dorm ping pong tournament.

Oak Hall

Take a sincere desire and add an interest in learning. Next, a dash of enthusiasm. Sprinkle with study and mix well, and you have a sure-fire recipe for scholarship, say the Oak Hall residents. Each girl did her share to bring the Women's Dormitory Scholarship Cup to the Oak Hall mantle winter and spring quarters, 1952.

The girls agree, "all study and no play makes Jill a dull girl." So, they took time to entertain their dates at a Christmas fireside. Blue Christmas. Candlelight and pine and a jolly Santa above the fireplace made a background for singing "White Christmas" and listening to the tale of "The Night Before Christmas."

The most hilarious races at Iowa State are the Pajama Relays, a favorite at the Homecoming Pep Bar-B-Que. And the excited Oak Hall girls cheered their team on to a victorious dash across the football field.

"Another piece of candy?" is the question at a five-pound party.

Roberts Hall

It takes a lot of talent to build a winning Veishea float. When the Roberts Hall residents pooled their abilities, talent was the product. The huge purple octopus with pink legs and underside, had blue eyes and held a lovely Roberts Hall bathing beauty securely in each tentacle. The theme, "Grasping Leadership," was significant for the girls were grasping leadership from the minute the idea began until the last crepe paper was stuffed in place.

Leadership and scholarship go hand in hand for Roberts Hall girls. Their studying earned them the scholarship trophy for Freshman Dorms for the second straight year.

It's a homer! And the Roberts Hall team won another softball game to clinch the women's title. The team practiced almost every day. Fraternity and Friley teams gave the girls playing pointers during practice.

Welch Hall

The floors were scrubbed, the furniture polished and the rooms gaily decorated with cupids and hearts for the Welch Hall Open House. The tea and open house centered around the Valentine's Day theme even to the red punch and heart-shaped cookies. Guests made a tour of the dorm on February 15th with the girls as hostesses.

Christmas time was a busy season for Welch Hall. The girls went caroling one evening and throughout the last two weeks before finals they bought and wrapped gifts for an orphanage in Des Moines.

Welch Hall was outstanding in the Dormitory-Sorority Swimming Contest, placing second. This was an unusual feat, since only two girls were on the Welch team, in comparison to the eight or ten women on competing teams. Interest in home economics is shown by Welch Hall girls, two of whom are officers of Home Ec Club.

MRA Main Cabinet

A gigantic task — supervising the activities and functions of the Men's Dorms, but that's the job of the MRA Main Cabinet.

Composed of the presidents of the 20 MRA houses, the seven MRA officers and seven non-voting members, representatives of MRA activities, the cabinet "rolls up its sleeves" each Monday night and gets to work.

Meetings begin by tackling the problems of supervising all expenditures of MRA, an organization with a $6,000 budget.

MRA is a bee-hive of activity with all the buzzing going on about the many clubs and activities sponsored by MRA Main Cabinet. The list runs like this: KMRI, the dormitory radio station; The Reflector, the weekly dorm newspaper; the library; and the four clubs — weight-lifting, camera, toastmasters, glee club, and the shop, supplying various tools and equipment.

It's time out for a chat for MRA Housemothers Frances D. Nichol, Rosemary M. Allen and Madge Young. The topic? Their busy "sons."

MRA Councils and Head Resident Group

A chairman elected by each house represents his group on one of each of the five MRA Councils.

A trophy is awarded to the house with the highest grade point by the Scholarship Council. This group strives toward improvements and enforcements of study conditions.

The "tax collectors" of MRA meet in the Secretary-Treasurer Council.

There is competition sponsored by Intramural Council in almost any sport you can name.

Three elaborate MRA dances are given each year by the Social Council.

"There's a place for every man in MRA and campus activities and we'll help him find it," say the members of Activities Council. Open houses, Homecoming and Veishea decorations are organized by the Council.

Bennett House

Business and pleasure is a fine combination when it works as it did this year for Bennett House members. They won third place in Friley Hall scholarship to top a year of studies plus good times.

A picnic at the Ledges brought the opportunity to give in to that old spring fever and enjoy a lazy day in the country. Dancing and refreshments in the Oak Hall rec room brought the evening to a close.

The Christmas party, Santa's Penthouse Nocturne, combined the ranks of Bennett, Godfrey and Niles Houses. Santa arrived with a bag of candy for each guest. A demonstration of the Bunny Hop proved to be of interest and in the end, everyone joined in the "act."

Every man in Bennett belongs to his divisional club.

Feet on the desk — he must be practicing for an executive position.

Beyer House

Do not worry, never fear, final week will soon be here; and as the midnight light burns low, we sit and study for the 4-point show.

First place in the bowling competition, second place in all-college basketball and a high percentage of participation; these were the activities that won the winter quarter MRA Intramural Trophy for Beyer House.

Beyer capitalized on the weather for its parties. In the spring came a picnic at the Old Mill Site, northeast of Ames. The lazy weather, the picturesque mill and bubbling stream did their share to make the day a memorable one.

Many cold clear nights of winter quarter found Beyer men and their dates coasting down the hills of the Ames Country Club. Cocoa and doughnuts topped off the toboggan parties.

That's a lot of activity for 30 men who compose one of Friley's smallest houses.

Cessna House

Cessna House personifies this year's Veishea theme of progress for it advanced from nineteenth to seventh place in the Men's Residence Association scholarship standings. A leap from eighteenth to fourth place in intramurals standings showed a renewed vigor for athletics as well as study. Its hard fighting teams won the Class B bowling tournament and placed third in football.

Superstitious Cupid visited Cessna House one day in February, Friday the thirteenth. The party carried out the theme of Friday the thirteenth and Valentine's Day with arrow-pierced hearts, four leaf clovers and horseshoes decorating the recreation room.

Calls of "Swing your partner," echoed through Hughes Hall Recreation Room at the Cessna House fall quarter party. "Pikers" were allowed a few ballroom dances.

"C U at the Game" read the Chamberlain Homecoming Decorations which won first place in the Men's Residence Division. A husky Iowa State player was shown tying a bow around the horns of a bewildered buffalo.

Mention sports and you'll see the eyes of Chamberlain men light up. Their fighting teams captured the Class A and Class B volleyball contests last spring, repeating the win in Class C in the fall. The Class B football title and softball award plus a basketball championship were also theirs.

Unsatisfied in their desire for a glamorous housemother, Chamberlain men got together to write a letter to Film Star Marilyn Monroe offering her the honor of becoming honorary housemother. Now comes the exciting wait for an answer.

Converse House

Strikes were nothing unusual when it came to Converse House — bowling strikes that is. Its teams have placed first or second in intramural bowling competition for the last three years.

The party games at Converse Capers, one of the first parties in the new MRA recreation room in Pammel Court, brought lots of laughter. Another social calendar highlight was the spring picnic at Soper's Mill.

The three grad students and the two college instructors proved a good influence on the freshmen and transfer students who comprised most of Converse House. The help classes they supervised were well-attended and greatly appreciated.

Dodds House

Quiet "working" hours at the desk are whiled away with solitaire.

Members of Dodds House assumed an active part in campus activities as athletes, socialites, and musicians.

The musicians were busy working in Band, Singers and Glee Club. The Dodds Choraliers spent a musical Christmas season caroling at many residence houses.

The athletes showed their skill by capturing the Class C softball championship. To place fourth in the all-college Veishea Canoe Races required a great team of "splashers."

Men from "Dodds Country" did their share as engineers, disk jockeys and announcers to keep KMRI transmitting.

Fairchild House

Arthur Murray had better watch his step, for Fairchild House is producing some keen rivals. Two of the boys and several girls from Lyon Hall gave dance instruction in some of the more popular steps for American and Latin American dance music. Fox trot, waltz, rhumba, tango, samba, and various "swing" steps were taught. The men were thus prepared to "swing their partners" at the numerous firesides and dance exchanges.

Spring brought picnic weather, and fellows of Fairchild House took advantage of it. They were off to the Ledges for their Spring Quarter picnic. Of course, food was the main attraction, but softball and hiking were runners-up in popularity.

The "Bunny Hop" and a comedy skit provided the fun at the Fairchild and Harriman House joint Halloween party.

Franklin House

The men of Franklin House were dorm champions in dual swimming this year. But swimming wasn't their only sport. Besides placing fourth in indoor track, they reached the semifinals in football, volleyball and softball. Their hard-fighting teams gave many an opponent a rough battle.

One sight common this year in Franklin House was two silent men bending over a black and red board, glaring menacingly at each other. What was this all about? Why, it was the Franklin House chess tournament in progress.

On the social front, variety was the word. Biggest event of the year was the annual Hughes Hall Christmas party. Added to this were the house dinner, football exchanges with the girls' dorms, and the annual house picnic.

Godfrey House

Godfrey House won distinction for its all-out participation in intramural sports when it was awarded the 1952 MRA Intramurals trophy. The Friley Houses compete in numerous sports and points are totaled for games won and number of men participating.

Winning prizes for floats is becoming a habit. The float, "Leadership Makes Scents," led Godfrey House to second place in the men's residence groups in the '52 Veishea parade. Three crepe paper skunks in increasing sizes followed one another across the float. The house placed third among the men's residences for its Homecoming display.

Memorable stag affairs were the house banquet, The Chowdown, and the quarterly ice cream social. The house picnic at the Boone Ledges and a Christmas fireside were date doings.

"Yes sir. That's right sir." Another peaceful evening at the desk.

Harriman House

Music hath charms, they say, and for Harriman House there is music all year round when its members include a singing guitarist and a trio utilizing the combined talents of two ukeleles and a harmonica. These men provide entertainment for parties or play for their own amusement.

Everybody likes a party, and Harriman men are no exception. A wiener roast at the Ledges with dancing in the pavilion afterwards helped ward off spring fever.

In November, Harriman and Fairchild Houses joined forces and gave a dance in the MRA Rec room. Musical entertainment and a skit preceded angel food cake and cocoa.

An MRA intramural record worth mentioning reads like this: second place in Class A basketball, first place in basketball free throws, and first place in ping pong.

Kimball House

Kimball House upheld its reputation as one of the leading contenders in the MRA intramural program by claiming the Class A bowling and Class C football trophies and the Class A volleyball championship.

Forty members of the house participated in intramurals spring, fall and winter quarters.

On the social side, Kimball House and Converse House collaborated in a joint party last fall. Members and their dates were served refreshments after an informal evening of dancing and cards.

Two-thirds of the house was composed of freshmen who learned about MRA and college life together and "hashed over" college activities in late evening bull sessions.

"You pass to my opening bid of two spades? Partner, you can't . . ."

Knapp House

Knapp House men weren't caught napping during the watermelon season. Fall quarter, the fellows entertained their dates at a Watermelon Bust. The couples trekked to Brookside Park for an afternoon of sports. Thirsty participants in the contests of volleyball, softball and field hockey welcomed the watermelon feast following the games.

With the elements in their favor, the Knapp House fellows and their girls gathered for a fall hayride. Under the light of a full harvest moon, the hayracks cruised the outskirts of Ames. The group sang all the old favorites accompanied by the music of two guitars. To complete the evening, a party was held in Oak Hall rec room where the couples danced and drank cocoa.

Winter quarter, a Knapp House party made use of the new MRA tobaggons.

Lincoln House

Brotherhood Week lasts all year at Lincoln House. This year United States students had the unique experience of living with representatives from Hawaii, England, and South America. A year of working together, sharing ideas and all around fun gave friendly international relationships.

Now you see it, now you don't could have been the slogan of the Lincoln House magician who entertained at the Lincoln-Pearson Valentine Party. Mysterious rope stunts, card tricks and disappearing eggs puzzled the guests. Red streamers and paper hearts decorated the Pammel Court Nursery for the party, given February 14.

Lincoln House members claim a varsity football player and the champion of the spring golf tournament. They "ran" to the top to win the Class A track meet.

Meeker House

A toast, cries Meeker to another successful year. Located in the sunny south of the new wing, Meeker house answered the sound of pep yells and diesel trucks from dogtown corners with the energetic shouts of bridge and pinochle players in the spacious lounge. Annually, Meeker is one of the top three houses in the MRA, grade-point-wise. Meeker also copped its share of athletic honors and boasted members in 14 honoraries and divisional clubs.

The always sociable Meeker men were in their prime at the social functions, with fine turnouts to the MRA parties: Nocturne, Aprifantasy, and dinner and dance exchanges.

Governing Meeker with an able hand the last year was genial Rollie Wehner, who proudly announced Meeker's one-hundred per cent turnout for the MRA election.

Niles House

A Yuletide motif decorated the MRA Recreation Building for the gala Christmas party sponsored by Niles and Bennett Houses. A false ceiling in green and red decorated the dancing room. A huge Christmas tree lighted the party room. Refreshments were served in an anteroom festooned with evergreen boughs and candles shaped like miniature fir trees. Tricks performed by a magician entertained the couples during intermission.

Athletics were important to the residents this year. With basketball, football and ping-pong leading the list, Niles placed runner-up in the men's dormitory football tourney.

Members of Niles House and their dates climbed on hayracks for an old-fashioned hayride in October. Following the ride, couples returned to Hughes Hall Recreation Room for square dancing and doughnuts and cocoa.

Noble House

Three cowboys reminisce about the good old days riding the range.

"If Noble House raises $25 for the campus polio drive, we'll spend the night in jail," declared two Noble House men. The fellows joined in the fun and the collection grew by dimes and dollars. Bewildered policemen wondered what this generation was coming to as the two Noble men "turned themselves in."

"Don't Hide Your Head, Get Ahead," stated Noble's float entry in the Men's Residence Division of the '52 Veishea Parade to win the first place trophy. Two mammoth black and yellow ostriches were used to carry out the theme. One buried his head in the "sand" while the other stood by, book in hand, wearing a huge Mortar Board pin and Cardinal Key. This marked the first float award won by any house under the MRA system.

Pearson House

Whether athletics or social events is the topic, Pearson House is near the top. During winter quarter, the Pearsonites took second place in the Class A MRA basketball tournament, and achieved even higher honors by capturing first place in the Amateur Bowling League. During spring quarter, Pearson House men won first place in tennis singles, took second in doubles and walked away with second place in Class A MRA softball.

Besides MRA parties and exchanges, Pearson House had three big house parties. Fall quarter came with crisp autumn weather which Pearsonites enjoyed with a hayrack ride followed by a dance.

A stage show, caroling, and dancing were combined for the Christmas party. Red heart-shaped boxes of candy were favors at the Lincoln-Pearson House Valentine party.

The fate of the world has been decided in moments of meditation.

Spinney House

A cross-section of students from Hawaii, Indonesia, Syria, Ecuador, Texas and various parts of the United States live as one family in Spinney House, actively participating in all campus activities and dormitory functions.

Spinney House has emphasized scholarship with great success and has placed near the top for the past three quarters in dormitory scholarship rivalry. During intramurals, Spinney members turned in a second place in the Class A bowling.

A picnic lunch, a rousing game of softball, hikes through wooded hills and wading in the creek — all you could ask of a pleasant day at the Boone Ledges at the spring picnic. Basketball exchanges with the girls' dorms helped chalk up many evenings of fun.

Stange House

One last Stange House get-together was in order before beginning the long summer rest from studying. The boys were off to the Ledges for an afternoon and evening of hiking, eating and just plain relaxing.

Fall came, and before adjusting to another year of study and activities, a house get-acquainted dinner was held. The boys of Stange House and their guests spent a pleasant evening renewing last year's acquaintances and associating new names and faces.

Aside from Homecoming activities, the boys found fall the ideal time for making new acquaintances with the opposite sex. Stange House men enjoyed the Oak Hall exchange.

Stange House takes an active part in campus activities. Campus honoraries claim various members, and thirty men are active participants in dorm intramurals.

Stanton House

"There's gotta be some mail, there's gotta be some mail today!!"

What'll it be? A round of pinochle or maybe a game of cribbage or how about a few hands of bridge? If interested, just stop in at Stanton House. At almost any hour of the day or night you'll find a group of card "sharks" engaged in their favorite occupation, for card sessions are one of the trademarks of Stanton.

Another of the activities popular with Stanton men this year was the intramural sports program. Stanton's bowlers came through in great style to win the Class C championship. The volleyball team advanced to the finals before losing out, to cop a runners-up award. Teams also participated in basketball and football.

On the social front, the high point of the year was a dance given jointly by Stanton, Stange, and Kimball Houses.

Alumni Hall

If you think you're enough of an expert to paddle a canoe along with Alumni Hall, you might have another thought coming. The hall placed first in the men's Residence Division of that hilarious event, the Veishea Canoe Races.

In all-college intramurals, the Class A softball first place trophy plus the runner-up award in Class A football went to Alumni Hall. It also claims the MRA Class B volleyball prize.

What's a more appropriate theme for a spring party than Spring Picnic? Couples danced before a backdrop painted to resemble a green field covered with colorful flowers spelling the party name. Miniature "I" Blankets were favors.

Ward System

Like a well-indexed encyclopedia, the Ward System provides its members with answers to problems and suggestions for activities and leisure-time entertainment. It surpasses the best encyclopedia for it gives opportunities for cooperative work, athletic participation, and a sense of belonging to the non-fraternity men living off campus.

The Ward System consists of nine wards, a total of 650 men who are living in private homes and boarding houses off campus.

The many councils in the system are made up of representatives from each ward. The Executive Council unites ward representatives to direct business. The Program Council plans programs varying from sports films to a panel of girls discussing the dating situation at ISC for mass meetings and the programs of the individual bi-weekly ward meetings. The Publicity Council publishes the Ward News. A "headline story" was the second place award won by the Ward Singers in Sinfonia. The Intramural Council awarded the traveling trophy to Nu Ward.

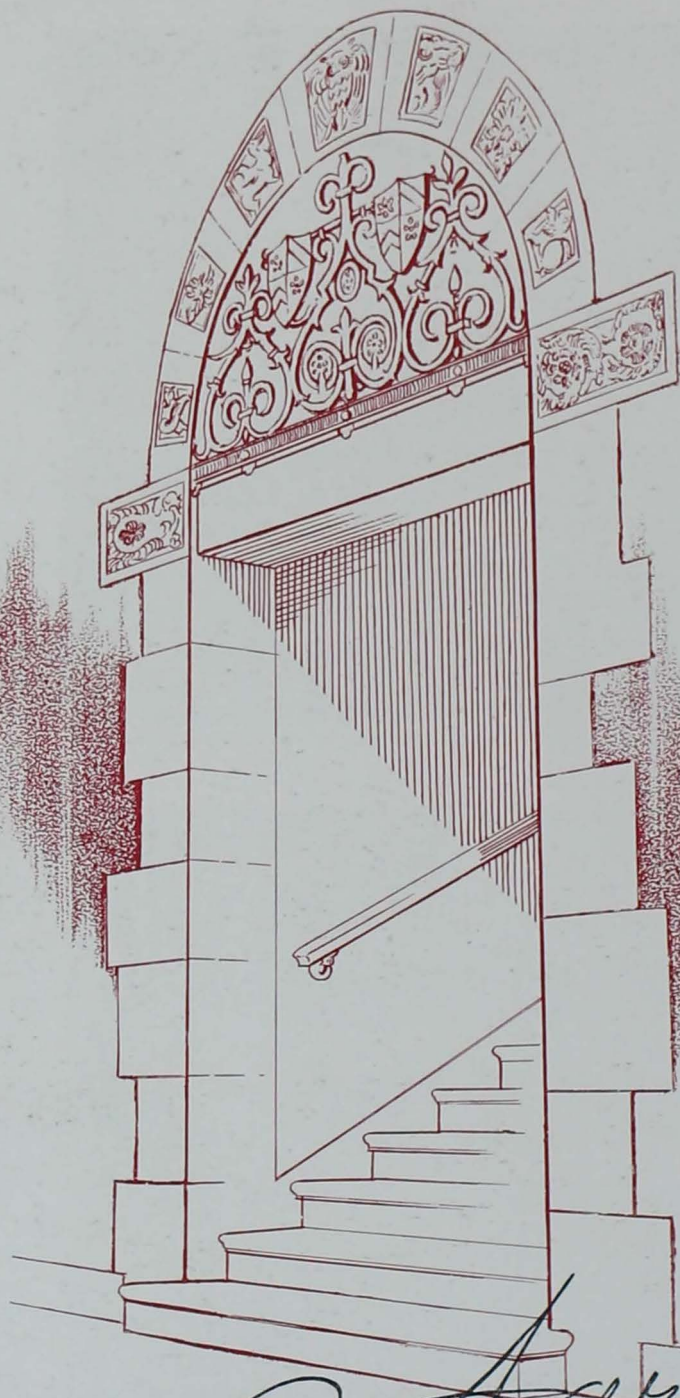

The Ward Roundup gave the men an opportunity to visit the women's dormitories for an evening of dancing, games and refreshments. The exchange was organized by the Social Council, sponsors of the afternoon and evening dance classes. "Spirit of Leadership," the Veishea float, received honorable mention.

Agricultural Council

Agricultural Council had Great Hall, Memorial Union, bursting at the seams fall quarter with the crowd in attendance at the All-Ag banquet to hear Louis Bromfield, Pulitzer prize winning author, speak on the "Revolution in Agriculture."

Bromfield, recognized as one of the foremost authorities on soil management, gave the audience pointers on conservation picked up in experiments conducted at his Mansfield, Ohio, farm.

Also spotlighted at the banquet was the Agricultural Convocation at which plans were made for the awarding of a traveling trophy to the most outstanding club in the division. The award will be made for the first time at the '53 banquet.

Ag Council sparked the planning of the division's annual Harvest Ball. Music for the blue jeans-plaid shirt affair was by Don Hoy and Orchestra. Donna Schuster reigned over the dance as queen, having been crowned by Dean Floyd Andre. Ann Corrough and Pat Sproul were attendants.

Ag Council has been planning toward the time its new meeting room will be ready for use in Curtiss Hall, where remodeling has been going on since the Department of Agronomy moved to its new building.

Engineering Council

Contest for the Most Frustrated Engineer on Campus helped prove that engineers can and will do almost anything . . . anything unusual that is. Mort Schierhorn was dubbed "Most Frustrated" at the Engineers' Carnival fall quarter. Under the supervision of Engineering Council, sponsors of the contest and carnival event, the nooks and crannies of Memorial Union's Great Hall lent themselves to a true carnival atmosphere, complete from kissing booths to sawdust underfoot.

Marilyn Jensen was the engineers' choice as their "lady" at the annual Engineers' Ball, Seventh Heaven. Bob Hoak was named St. Patrick. Two dance bands played "fast" and "slow" music for the engineers and their dates. Pledges officially entered the Order of St. Patrick during intermission with the kissing of the Blarney Stone.

Council members were hosts at the freshman reception in the fall, a gesture of welcome to introduce new members to the division and its activities.

The use of teacher evaluation sheets at the end of each quarter has been promoted by the council to give the division an insight into the engineering students' opinion of the different teaching methods employed by faculty members.

Home Economics Council

Soft lights, perfume and music created the mood for Femme Fatale, the annual Home Economics Ball, sponsored by Home Economics Council. Dr. Helen R. LeBaron, who had just taken over her duties as dean of the division, was introduced at intermission.

Dr. P. Mabel Nelson, retiring dean of the division, and Dr. Paulena Nickell, former associate dean and head of the Department of Home Management who has accepted a position at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo., were honored at the annual Home Economics Day. Dean LeBaron gave the address. The council was assisted in planning the event by Omicron Nu and Phi Upsilon Omicron.

Sally Schermer and Betty Bowen represented Iowa State at the American Home Economics Association's convention in Chicago.

With the help of Omicron Nu, Phi Upsilon Omicron and Delta Phi Delta, the council bought new furniture for the student activities room in Home Economics Hall where home ec students gather for studying and relaxation.

The council acts as the coordinating body for the ten departmental clubs of the division, with the president and vice-president of each club represented on the council.

Science Council

Everything from dissecting a frog to splitting an atom . . . that's what is in store for Division of Science majors. As a bewildered freshman soon finds out, the science division is almost four-dimensional . . . frogs to atoms, theme writing to the study of rocks. The Science Council has succeeded in erasing some of the confusion surrounding majors and minors by setting up a counseling system. Science upperclassmen take time off from class to give advice in helping new students untangle their ambitions from whims.

At the annual Wintermezzo dance sponsored by the council, honorary keys were presented to the six outstanding seniors and the outstanding professor in the division. Held winter quarter, the dance boasted two bands, an innovation in dancing matching the dancers' mood with music of either a fast or slow tempo.

The Iowa State Scientist is published by the council. This newcomer to the family of campus publications relates news of scientific developments to the students.

Veterinary Medicine Council

"The verdict is guilty," and another case is closed on a violation of the honor code. The reviewing body is Veterinary Council which has the power to expell a student of veterinary medicine from the division for violation of the strict honor code.

The honor system requires each student to be on his honor not to give or receive help during an examination, not to purposely miss class the day an examination is given, nor to do anything that may be considered unethical in the field of veterinary medicine.

A verdict of guilty doesn't always mean the student will be expelled for the council may recommend that a student be allowed to stay in school on probation, warning the guilty one not to repeat the violation. Cases are sometimes dropped for lack of evidence. Veterinary Medicine is the only division on campus operating on the honor system.

Other duties of the council include carrying out provisions of the constitution and acting as an advisory group to the Jr. AVMA which sponsors the annual all-college dance, the Medicine Ball.

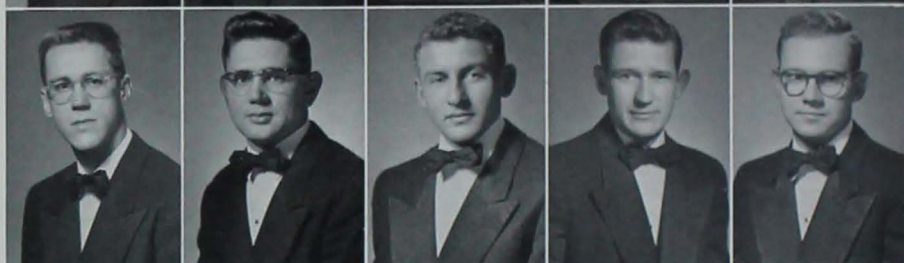

The executive council is composed of a representative from each of the four classes in addition to the president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer and the critic of the Junior Chapter of AVMA.

Editor's Acknowledgment

I do not feel that the Bomb would be complete without this short appendage recognizing some of the people that have worked so hard to make this sixtieth Bomb possible.

Within the editorial office I would first like to extend thanks to ALICE THOMAS, the managing editor. Her biggest job was keeping me in line with oft repeated remark, "Simmer down — boss." Copy editor was VIRGINIA NEWMAN who not only did a fine job with copy but also acted as the wise old sage for we "yung-uns." CAROLYN DOWNING, the residence editor, had the extreme distinction of being the quietest person of the staff. During winter quarter JEAN GOUL spent most of her time dashing back and forth between the Homemaker and the Bomb. I don't know how she did for the Homemaker but she did a fine job for us. Hoarding Roget's Pocket Thesaurus was BOB GARTON, our sports editor. He never convinced anybody that he knew what the words meant that he was using but I guess there is something to being a literary nonconformist. Between changing baby's diapers at home management and going to school, NANCY BEARDSLEY was able to produce a features section.

Slicing off good thumbs with razor blades was our engraving editor, TED MARSTON. Ted claimed that he was not "cut out" to be an engraving editor. The fear of all photographers was BOB LEWIS. His voice was not in proportion to his size but we did not care because he delivered the goods. (Editor's note: He made quite a bit of love over the telephone also.) CARLOS KINGSLEY, our Spanish student and head photographer, never ceased to dumbfound the staff with replies in Spanish. We soon got wise to him when "Va usted con migo al centro," became a stock expression.

Cute but efficient was office manager PAULINE LANE. We saw lots of VIRGINIA STAHNKE during fall quarter when she was doping up the layouts. Holding important but not too glamorous jobs were JODY MAKEEVER, senior section and JAN MELLINGER, index. No end of concern was caused by our procrastinating art editor, JACK DARROW. He responded promptly, however, when we threatened to get him a date.

Most of my conferences with DAVE WILLIAMS, our business manager, digressed into lengthy monologues (by DAVE of course) concerning the assets of married life. DAVE MIQUELON, the assistant business manager never ceased being a soft touch for cigarettes when we had smoked all of ours. Commanding the respect of all was JEAN MILLER. She was the girl that gave us our checks every month. ROG SMITH did a bang up job for us on sales in the fall as did CHUCK NELSON, the Bomb publicity man. ANGELA BRYANT always seemed to be the one that had to ferret for pencils with the erasures when the editorial office went scrounging.

Representing our engraving company, Jahn and Ollier, was GORDON BRIGHTMAN. I would like to extend many thanks for his many contributions in the planning of the book.

Bouquets to ANDY WALTERS of S. K. Smith for giving us the type of cover that we wanted.
