*The true end of education is to unfold and direct aright our whole nature. Its office is to call forth power of every kind — power of thought, affection, will and outward action; power to observe, to reason, to judge, to contrive; power to adopt good ends firmly and to pursue them efficiently; power to govern ourselves and to influence others; power to gain and to spread happiness. Reading is but an instrument; education is to teach its best use. The intellect was created, not to receive passively a few words, facts, dates, but to be active in the acquisition of truth.
Accordingly, education should labor to inspire a profound love of truth and to teach the processes of investigation.*

—W. E. CHANNING

The direction in which education starts a man will determine his future life. — PLATO

Only the refined and delicate pleasures that come from research and education can build up barriers between different ranks.

The roots of education are bitter. But the fruit is sweet. — ARISTOTLE

Education gives what we do not have at birth but what we need at maturity. — ROUSSEAU

Every man must, therefore, educate himself. His books and his teachers are but his helps; the work is his. — DANIEL WEBSTER

Learning without thought is labor lost; thought without learning is perilous. — CONFUCIUS

Architecture, sculpture, painting, music, and poetry may truly be called the efflorescence of civilized life.

We come to college not alone to learn to earn a living, but to learn to live a life.

Our purpose (in education) is to cultivate in the largest possible number of our future citizens an appreciation of both the responsibilities and the benefits which come to them because they are Americans and free. — JAMES BRYANT CONANT

Those who mold the mind have wrought not for time, but for eternity. They are entitled not only to adequate rewards for their service, but to the veneration and honor of a grateful people.

Seeking an education at Iowa State, a new class takes its place in the friendly, complex world of college

A LITTLE WEARY from the heat and exhaustion of climbing stairs, two freshman coeds pause for a rest on the last lap of "operation big move."

OPENING OF THE MODERN NEW college book store in the south wing of Memorial Union helped relieve congestion as hundreds of students scoured the shelves searching for textbooks.

The heat of a late summer still penetrated the campus as Iowa State came to life again around the activity of nearly 10,000 eager students. A change in the college calendar brought many students back in August to prepare for Rush Week and Freshman Days. Settled upperclassmen returned to familiar territory, while hundreds of excited freshmen anticipated with mixed emotions the unknown experience of college. With a maximum of activity proportioned into a minimum of time, freshmen moved steadily through a maze of meetings, instructions and tests. Registration, the stiffness of new textbooks, the first instructor pointing out "the objectives of this course . . ." formed initial impressions. The newness wore off as freshmen became integrated into the habits and activities of college life. Frosty air tinged the campus with brilliant color. Finals came. Thanksgiving vacation. The first steps in a new year were history.

losely-knit campus community

Iowa State's student community is made more diverse and interesting through the large percentage of married and foreign students who form a major portion of the college population. Over one-fifth of Iowa State's 9,000 students fall into the married student classification. Established in temporary apartment homes throughout the city or in the housing units of Pammel Court, married students approach the task of getting an education with serious determination. Involved with their monthly budgets, baby formulas, tricycles and part-time jobs, students in the married population seek a quiet place to study and enough time to enjoy their families in their eager quest for a degree from Iowa State. The 260 foreign students on campus lend a cosmopolitan atmosphere to the college. Representing 60 countries, mostly Latin America and the Far East, many of these students study here to prepare themselves for teaching when they return home. About 75 per cent are doing graduate work, mainly in engineering and agriculture. Tying in with the foreign student program is Cosmopolitan Club which provides an opportunity for the men and women from various countries to become better acquainted with each other and with American students.

TYPICAL OF A LARGE NUMBER of Iowa State students, Lyle Bull finds a part-time job a necessity to help provide income for his family and money for college expenses. In addition to his 21 credit hours of class, Lyle has two jobs at the horticulture greenhouse.

HOMES OF MARRIED STUDENTS are scattered in apartments and houses throughout town, as is the Bull's, or concentrated in Pammel Court, a married student housing development north of the college in which almost half of Iowa State's married students live.

Homecoming . . . sunny days, touch of fall spark fans;
spirited triumph march, bonfire, pep rally begin events

A warm, sunny, autumn day marked by the arrival of thousands of alumni and visitors brought Homecoming to Iowa State the weekend of Oct. 10. The full slate of activities began Friday evening with a general migration of students and alums to the college Armory for the annual Pep Barbeque, this year based on a "Picnic" theme. Highlighting entertainment at the barbeque was the presentation of Iowa State's 1958 Homecoming queen, Marcie Christian, and her attendants, Marilyn Burnap and Marysue Kritzman. Members of Singers serenaded the lovely royalty as the coronation took place. Immediately following the barbeque the spirited Triumph March began. Hundreds of students mingled with parade entries on the torchlight march from Beardshear Hall to the WRA parking lot. Enthusiasm reached its peak at the Pep Rally where a traditional bonfire was lighted from torches carried in the cross-campus march.

REMEMBERING THE DAYS WHEN . . . Iowa State alumni relax and visit with classmates and friends at the informal coffee hour in the State Gymnasium following the football game.

Saturday afternoon arrived, mild and sunny, with football fans anticipating the most important contest of the season — Iowa State's Homecoming game with the Kansas Jayhawks. Hopes for "no classes on Monday" faded slowly as the Jayhawks lived up to the prediction of being a "dangerous foe." In the final minute the Cyclones pushed to the four-yard line, failed to score and fell to defeat 7-0. Alumni found their opportunity to relax with friends at a coffee hour in the State Gymnasium following the game. The music of Stan Kenton at Saturday night's Homecoming dance helped revive spirits. Use of abstract free forms in red, black and white created a modernistic mood to follow the theme of the dance, "Fantasia." More than 1,400 couples enjoyed festivities at the dance in the Combined Ballrooms and new Sun Room of Memorial Union.

CHEERED ON by members of the band and student body, Gale Gibson, 1958 Cyclone captain, leads the squad through a paper "H" and onto the field for warm-up exercises before the Homecoming contest.

THE DESPAIR OF THE LAST MINUTES of the game is reflected on the faces of spectators Hank Vogelmann, glancing apprehensively at the clock, and Ralph Berlin, mustering his last ounce of energy in support of the team's efforts to score a touchdown.

Multi-colored lights and foreign travel posters provided an international flavor for Cy's "Union Holiday" following the Homecoming style show Friday night. "A Parade of Quartets" entertained at intermission activities. Climax of the evening came with presentation of trophies to Delta Sigma Phi fraternity, Chi Omega sorority, East Linden Hall and Stevenson House for their winning house displays. "Cy's Favorite Alums," introduced for the first time at the Pep Barbeque, were special guests throughout the Homecoming weekend. Chosen for their outstanding contributions to Iowa State athletics, the two alums honored this year were W. L. Hoak of Des Moines and J. D. Armstrong of Ames. Drawing the activities of Homecoming weekend to a close was a special hour-long carillon concert by Prof. Ira Schroeder on Saturday evening.

WITHIN A WEEK the main artery of campus traffic, the walk from Curtiss Hall to Beardshear Hall is as familiar to the freshman as the senior. As fall fades to winter and winter melts to spring, another class is graduated and the process begins again.

Pace quickens, time grows short as studies, activities clamor for attention

More than 9,800 students greeted fall quarter two weeks earlier this year when Iowa State opened its doors for classes Sept. 10. Bright-colored sweaters and skirts dotted the campus and brand new saddle shoes shuffled through the crackling leaves to classes as students attempted to keep their minds on their books during the warm autumn days. The excitement of football, Homecoming and fall parties found its place in a frenzied schedule of events. Overnight the quarter swept by. Finals came before Thanksgiving vacation. Grade slips in hand, students sought a chance to begin again. Thousands of pair of feet learned new short cuts across well-worn paths as students started a new quarter. The campus was crystallized into a sparkling white fairyland. Winter arrived.

SKILLFULLY CREATING the dramatic mood for one of the numbers from Barjche, Lynda Scott and Roberta Beecher interpret the music of "African Drum Beats," for this Modern Dance Club production.

GIVING AND RECEIVING at the same time, curiosity seekers pay the price and welcome the opportunity to "Tak-a-Pek" at what Kappa Alpha Thetas and Sigma Phi Epsilons have to offer in their booth at the Campus Chest "Blast."

SLYLY FLIRTING with some New York "sophisticates," the small town girls make their impression on the suave easterners. Action is from East Linden Hall's Varieties skit which captured the sweepstakes trophy.

Traditional events brighten campus with Christmas spirit

WITH A SOFT MIST falling around them, members of Iowa State Singers and President James Hilton open the holiday season at the traditional Christmas Tree Lighting ceremony on the steps of Beardshear Hall.

Campus activity reached a high tempo winter quarter. A series of traditional events enhanced the spirit of the Christmas holidays and a myriad of student productions provided entertainment during the quarter. The thrill of the yearly Christmas Tree Lighting ceremony never grows old. Accompanied by Singers, President Hilton threw the switch setting the giant Christmas tree ablaze with light. For the third year the Music Department,

Iowa State College Theatre and Modern Dance Club combined talents to present the story of the Nativity at the inspirational Christmas Festival of Music.

Social activities as the Christmas Ball followed the holiday theme. Couples danced to the music of Richard Maltby amid decorations of giant snowflakes.

Varieties commanded the spotlight for special winter quarter events. Four performances were presented with East Linden Hall named sweepstakes winner for a skit depicting a small town girl's adjustment to life in New York City. Campus Chest incorporated "The Blast" into activities of the week.

Auctions, sales and booths at "The Blast" helped net over $5,500 for community, national and international service organizations. Modern Dance Club added its talents to the splurge of winter quarter activities with Barjche. Between classes and special interests, students sandwiched in attendance at News

Forum, Books and Coffee, the plays and cultural events which came to campus. Days passed quickly as the gloom of winter melted into the warmth of spring.

BOMB BEAUTY JUDGE Richard Maltby finds the problem of selecting yearbook queens multiplied eight-fold when he's faced with choosing four queens from the eight lovely finalists. The final selection tea was given at the Theta Xi house.

AFTER PERSONAL interviews with the candidates, Maltby and Lois Murker, Bomb Beauty selection chairman, look over pictures of the eight finalists.

The Bomb proudly presents Iowa State's beauties of 1959

The 1959 Bomb is proud to present this year's Bomb Beauties—four women selected from hundreds, interviewed by a panel of judges and finally named by Richard Maltby as the 1959 beauties. For the first time in several years the four beauties were chosen after personal interviews with the final judge. Representing more than personal beauty, the women pictured on these pages possess also the charm, poise and grace which adds depth to their beauty. The campus beauties of this year now become candidates for Veishea Queen of Queens.

HIS FINAL DECISION reached, Maltby presented the beauties during intermission of the Christmas Ball.

Student drama, guest artists add cultural touch

OPENING THE concert series for the year was Cesare Valetti, tenor, who presented a concert at the State Gymnasium on Oct. 26.

UNDERSTUDYS in the cast of "The Diary of Anne Frank" study their roles as the troupe prepares for its performance.

Interspersed among the daily activities of students and faculty was a selected composite of programs designed to serve the cultural interests of the campus community. From the classical presentations of guest tenor Cesare Valetti, to the rollicking comedy of "Stalag 17," audiences were treated to a variety of outstanding works by guest artists and student talent. The concert season opened fall quarter with Cesare Valetti performing as guest artist. Early in November Fred Waring and his popular Pennsylvanians presented a light-hearted program entitled "Hi-Fi Holiday." Personable Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra appeared winter quarter followed by a series of attractions spring quarter incorporated as "Focus 1959." In the area of drama, audiences viewed student productions of "I Remember Mama," "Stalag 17" and "Ghosts." A cooperative effort of several interested groups brought the traveling troupe of "The Diary of Anne Frank" to Ames early fall quarter.

RICH VOICES blended into light harmonies delighted a full-house audience at the fall concert presented by Fred Waring and the Pennsylvanians.

*Significant convocations,

to interest in student government*

WHILE MEMBERS OF SINGERS conclude the processional hymn, Chuck Oldham, representative of Student Religious Council, stands ready to welcome students to the opening convocation of Religion-in-Life Week.

The bustle of campus life settled on a more thoughtful note during Religion-In-Life Week winter quarter. This year's guest at a series of discussions devoted to religion and philosophy was The Reverend Joseph W. Mathews, who led discussion groups and spoke at three all-college convocations during his stay. The question "Where Are You?" provided the theme for this special week. Women took over major student positions on campus during Women's Day, a second annual winter quarter event. Plans made behind closed doors concerning the future of campus politics were points of discussion at the second all-college nominating convention. Student delegations presented enthusiastic demonstrations for the candidates they supported before groups combined forces to select nominees for student body president and vice-president. Spring quarter the campus was bombarded with posters, handbills and spirited campaigners trying to get their names to the voting public before ballots were cast March 11.

JOHN SAATHOFF watches a demonstration in support of his candidacy for student body president before giving his comments at the all-college nominating convention. Teamed with Jim Balloun, Saathoff was elected vice-president of the student body.

BESIEGED with a barrage of campaign literature, Jack Jackley and Howard Kennedy attempt to sort out the maze before casting their ballots.

LATE INTO THE NIGHT workers tabulated the 3,417 ballots cast in an all-college election which was generally devoid of major issues.

Veishea . . . displays Iowa State in centennial year of progress and growth

Veishea is Iowa State College on display. In 1958 this function of Veishea carried a special significance by depicting the history and progress of Iowa State during its centennial year. Climaxing months of planning and preparation, the student-managed production made its gala opening May 15. Thousands of sightseers wandered over the campus seeking a look at the educational opportunities of Iowa State while enjoying the colorful spectacle of Veishea activity. With the throng of visitors came a trail of souvenir programs, pop bottles and balloons—all trademarks of the three-day celebration.

SEEMINGLY AWED by the parade spectacle, young Nicki Facto clings reassuringly to her father.

*Excitement, applause fill weekend
as honoraries tap new members,
SOV presents musical, 'Starways'*

Launching the hectic round of weekend events, Iowa State's most outstanding students were honored at the traditional Mortar Board and Cardinal Key tapping. Excitement tinged the air as robed members of the two highest campus honoraries circled the assembled crowd to locate future members. Intermittent squeals of surprise burst spontaneously from the onlookers as each student was "emphatically" informed of his or her selection into the ranks of the honoraries, and a welcoming applause greeted each new member as he was escorted through the archway of the Campanile.

One highlight during the Veishea weekend was the largest annual musical production staged at Iowa State, Stars Over Veishea. The usual "football game enthusiasm" of Clyde Williams Field was replaced by the songs and dances and dialogue of cast members whose performances received hearty approval from full-house audiences both nights of the show.

Based on the centennial theme, this year's program, "Starways," compared a typical student of 1958 with one who might have attended Iowa State 100 years ago. Although a cast of almost 500 appeared in the performance, the efforts of more than 1,000 willing students were needed to make SOV possible.

TRADITION HOLDS NO MERCY as Lt. Col. Harold A. Dye is emphatically informed of his selection as an honorary member of Cardinal Key by Chuck Manatt.

MEMBERS of the set construction crew find their function involves much detail work to make sure nothing will go wrong during the Stars Over Veishea performance.

A THRILLING MOMENT FOR ALL — with her attendants looking on, lovely Darlene Mote is crowned 1958 Veishea Queen of Queens at Veisheathon ceremonies opening the weekend festivities. Crowning Darlene is Virginia Stuck Dorn, last year's Veishea queen.

Veisheathon, the official opening event of Veishea set the pace for the celebration's emphasis on Iowa State's centennial. Guest speaker Ronald Reagan gave further meaning to the Veisheathon theme, "Veishea Visions," in discussing the importance of keeping our vision on America's future. With the coronation ceremony, the awarding of scholarships to three outstanding high school students and the selection of Frank Powell as Athlete of the Year, Veishea was underway.

"People are so friendly . . . they like to know your name . . ."

"The weather? As always a little damp for Veishea . . ."

"But lovely queens take care of any other gloom . . ."

"And a colorful parade makes everything look rosy."

SQUEEZING PAST THE COMPETITION, Kappa Alpha Thetas pack power behind their paddles to glide across the finish line with the fastest time and win the women's division of the canoe races. Stange House won the men's trophy.

The ability to wield a pledge paddle was a certain advantage in Veishea's annual canoe races, where participants propelled themselves around Lake LaVerne by means of the under-sized paddles. The real challenge of the affair narrowed down to just trying to remain upright — which to the delight of onlookers was never accomplished by all. Visitors interested in competition and display of skilled horsemanship found entertainment in the Veishea Horse Show. The show offered an opportunity for owners from several surrounding states to compete for cash prizes. Rounding out a variety of activities were the series of educational open houses. Iowa State Players presented "Ladies of the Jury." For "Veishea Vodvil" four skits made up the program based on a theme of "County Fair."

SIGMA PHI EPSILON captured the fantasy of Disneyland in its colorful three-section float complete with enchanting castle and Dumbo merry-go-round. The spectacular entry won the parade sweepstakes.

Progress over the last 100 years was depicted in the Veishea parade, "Echoes of the Century." Thousands of spectators lined the parade route to view a total of 77 floats, each planned around a significant event which occurred between 1858 and 1958. Although spirits weren't dampened by the ominous rain clouds which dripped a constant mist, many students appeared a little dulled from lack of sleep. A drenching rain on Friday night meant an all-night effort to finish floats by the 6 a.m. deadline. Ample payment for the long hours of painting and weaving crepe paper through chicken wire came as the finished products met with applause and exclamations from the appreciative audience. Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity won the sweepstakes trophy with first place awards going to Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, Lange House, Freeman Hall and Beta-Epsilon Ward.

NO PARKING SIGNS made little impression on thousands of students and visitors who squeezed into every inch of curb space to find a better view.

"With Honor to the Past, With Vision for the Future." This theme of Iowa State's centennial year was incorporated into the divisional open houses. A review of progress made over the past century as well as a look at job opportunities after graduation were the ideas developed in the student-planned open houses. Career Day was designed to show the academic and social life of Iowa State to high school students. A variety of tours through the open houses gave students an inside view of laboratories and classrooms. Three high school students received Veishea scholarships of $400, $200 and $100. Richard Maltby and his orchestra set the mood for this year's Veishea Dance, "Rhythm Reminisce." Planned around the theme of an old-fashioned album from the Gay Nineties to the Roaring Twenties, the dance climaxed the annual festive weekend of Veishea, a tradition which has become a symbol of the creative ability and management of ISC students.

SNOW CHANGED TO RAIN as breezes warmed the campus. The chilly gloom sends students heading to the Commons for some Union coffee and counting every step to the next class.

Spring's mellow mood engulfs thought, activity

All of a sudden one morning it was spring. With little fanfare the last traces of muddy snow disappeared and the campus awakened to the welcome warmth of glowing sunlight, soft breezes and budding trees. Green lawns appeared in place of snow drifts and a never-ending supply of puddles sprang up where sheets of ice once played tricks on 20,000 hurrying feet. But winter did not sneak away so quietly this year. In a final show of strength she dumped mountains of snow on the campus as classes began for spring quarter. Thoughts of her furor soon faded to the background as spring fever caught students gazing from their books or attempting to glean some knowledge from the printed page in leisurely study sessions under the spreading trees on central campus. Further signs of the season reassured anxious students that spring had arrived. Lancelot and Elaine returned to reign at Lake LaVerne; Veishea passed in the breadth of a weekend; attention focused on sunbathing, picnics and sports. Plans for senior activities loomed as 1,500 seniors in the class of 1959 prepared for the final moment—graduation.

ATTEMPTING TO ACHIEVE a note of reaction from the Sig Ep mascot Thor, art students show him their pictures of a well-known campus landmark, the Campanile. Undecided about the relative merit of the various impressions, Thor could only offer, "No Comment."

Iowa State salutes the fine arts with a concentrated program emphasizing music, drama, art

Emphasis on the fine arts dominated the performances and exhibitions presented at Iowa State spring quarter. Planned as "Focus 1959," the fine arts program was a concentrated effort to bring outstanding attractions in drama, music and the arts to the campus. Two blasts of unseasonably wintry weather played havoc with the list of tightly scheduled events. After several postponements, the plans were carried out in their entirety except for the final evening performance by the National Ballet of Canada. Sandwiched between March 4-15 were 13 events open to students, faculty members and persons in the Ames area. The schedule included the Robert Shaw Chorale, artist Dwight Kirsch, theater personality Ronald Hammond, the Kinnert Dance Group, a chamber music concert, an exhibition of postwar architecture in Iowa, "Mark Twain Tonight," and the "Don Quixote" film.

Focus 1959' . . . a successful introduction for the establishment of a tradition

Early visions of a program such as "Focus 1959," were conceived by the Veishea Central Committee of 1958 which desired to incorporate a fine arts festival with Veishea. Plans did not materialize for the festival last spring, but the idea remained alive until Provost James Jensen appointed a faculty committee to plan a program for this year. Two students were also on the committee. "Focus 1959" was the initial attempt to arouse greater awareness of the excellent work in fine arts in the Ames area. Plans are being made for the 1960 program.

COMBINING the excellent qualities of music for chorus and orchestra, the Robert Shaw Chorale and Orchestra appeared in a concert of versatility and beauty.

Graduation . . . the end and the beginning in a short walk for a diploma

IN THE PRESENCE of family and friends, seniors wait with anticipation for the awarding of diplomas and the walk across the stage to receive the cherished degree — symbolizing the end of college years.

Now there is nothing left to do but wait. School days, classes, assignments, pop quizzes, grueling finals are a memory for 1,500 seniors proud to have reached a major goal in life — graduation from college. Iowa State's 87th class marked the time before commencement with traditional activities including the cap and gown ceremony, senior prom and president's reception. Then early Saturday morning senior class members marched with dignity in black caps and gowns to their seats in the Armory. In impressive opening ceremonies ROTC men in full dress uniform were sworn in and received their commissions signed by President Eisenhower. Division by division, name by name, each graduate received his or her diploma while family and friends looked on and reflected with pride this moment of achievement.

A HEARTY HANDSHAKE for a remarkable achievement. Pres. James Hilton congratulates a June graduate as the student receives his degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

FINALLY AT THE END of college days, seniors line up on the athletic field before the academic procession.

Iowa State's educational opportunities contribute a significant challenge to creative growth and development of intellectual curiosity

PRESIDENT JAMES H. HILTON views the campus from the steps of his office, Beardshear Hall.

With vision for the future, president, regents plan progressive developments

The top executive position at Iowa State College is one which requires a respect for the college's heritage, a concern for present educational needs and a vision of high goals for the future. These, and a sincere interest in student activities, have brought President James Hilton close to the students of Iowa State. Completing his sixth year as president of the school, Dr. Hilton has helped to expand Iowa State beyond the dreams of its founders and past leaders. This year the college began its second century as Iowa's only land-grant school with a period of rapid expansion; and President Hilton speaks enthusiastically of plans for Iowa State's continued growth in the years to come.

PRESIDENT HILTON examines a scale model of the 10-year building and expansion plan for Iowa State. A six million dollar appropriation from the legislature will provide money to begin an addition to the library and a new classroom building.

HEARTILY ENJOYING a remark of Ronald Reagan's, President Hilton finds pleasure in the Veisheathon ceremonies.

Administration . . . wise leaders assist president in directing diverse program of an outstanding college of higher education

PROVOST JAMES H. JENSEN acts in the capacity of vice-president of Iowa State. His responsibilities include coordinating academic functions and acting in the president's capacity in Dr. Hilton's absence.

IN A PERIOD of rapid physical expansion of the college, Business Manager Boyne H. Platt holds a position of importance as controller of the purse strings of Iowa State.

DIRECTING the administration of the admission and registration procedures, Registrar Arthur M. Gowan concerns himself with the impending problems of increased enrollment. He also works with curriculum, commencement and orientation committees.

STUDENT PROBLEMS in residence groups, student organizations and with college regulations are directed to Director of Student Affairs Millard R. Kratochvil, whose job demands working closely with students in all phases of campus life.

Directing the functions of college as large as Iowa State is an enormous task which requires the full-time service and dedication of many individuals. To that end these four men, occupying the highest positions in the administration of Iowa State College, direct their work.

This year has seen rapid progress of the college building program with the opening of the new wing of the Home Economics Building, the addition to the Electrical Engineering Building which will be occupied by an electronic computer, the "Cyclone," and work on one hundred new housing units for married students. Gifts and grants to the college along with financial aid approved by the state legislature will help further the school's building program. Much consideration also has been given to an extended program for liberalizing the curricula. Effective July, 1959, the five major divisions will be known as colleges. In April the Board of Regents approved changing the name of the college to Iowa State University, a move which needs legislative approval to become final.

BY USE of the George Bouyoucos analysis procedure, students in a freshman agronomy class are able to determine the percentage of sand, silt and clay in a variety of soil samples.

Agriculture . . . advanced scientific knowledge, research in agricultural adjustment contribute to division's national recognition

ACTUAL OBSERVATION of conditions on a field trip study helps students see more clearly various textures of soil.

The Agriculture Division at Iowa State continues to lead the nation in undergraduate enrollment. Fall quarter 1,894 students were enrolled in various phases of the curricula, seeking knowledge about agriculture and the vast quantity of related fields. Major opportunities for study in agriculture are ag business, animal husbandry, dairy industry, farm operation, forestry, horticulture, industrial education, poultry husbandry, and foreign trade and service. Newest additions to the division's curricula include a major in fish and wildlife management, entomology, plant pathology and food technology. The advanced program of study for outstanding students starting their sophomore year has continued to attract attention both here and in other states. With more than 40 per cent of the nation's labor force employed in agriculture or related fields, the Iowa State graduate faces a future with unlimited opportunities.

DEAN FLOYD ANDRE directs policies in the Agriculture Division, where changing emphasis on values has lead to detailed research in a significant program for agricultural adjustment.

PROF. WILLARD ANDERSON demonstrates the proper technique in the tempering of a cold chisel. The class is one concerned with hot and cold metal working in agricultural engineering.

One phase of work in the Agriculture Division which has received nationwide attention is the Center for Agricultural Adjustment. Established to coordinate and concentrate research, extension and teaching activities, the center seeks to aid in overcoming continuing agricultural problems.

A major goal of the center is to provide information to help farm families achieve incomes on a par with those in other industries and occupations. Some of the other problem areas under study are basic causes of the farm problem; social adjustments brought about by changes in agriculture; improvement of human nutrition; research in physical, biological and chemical fields to develop new crops and products which are not in excess supply and which have promising demand prospects under economic growth.

CONSTANTLY SEEKING new ways of utilizing wood and other products, students in forestry classes measure the strength of wood in order to determine its usefulness and economic value.

OVERHEAD PROJECTORS provide an opportunity for extended use of important visual aids in a class on swine nutrition. Instructor is Duane C. Acker, head of the Farm Operation Department who was selected as the outstanding instructor in the Agriculture Division by student vote.

Home Economics . . . respected for contributions in progressing field, division offers technical training in liberalized curricula

The Home Economics Division, an early leader in the field and today the largest department of its kind, continues to grow and produce new trends of thought in the many phases of home economics. With keen understanding and guidance, Dean Helen LeBaron heads the division in which approximately 1,400 young women have selected courses of study which will lead them to positions as textile designers, teachers, homemakers, nutritionists, dieticians, home economics journalists, applied artists, and many other careers in child development, household equipment and institution management. Because there is such a variety of opportunity in work related to home economics, Dean LeBaron and her staff have felt that individual goals and interests are valuable to develop in an educational program. For this reason an Honors Program was initiated in the Home Economics Division this year. It is a flexible plan providing an opportunity for students with high academic ability to pursue a course of study highly individualized in nature. Usually there is some provision for independent study or for experience in research. A central Honors Committee, consisting of the dean and two other faculty members, reviews through interview and application the candidate's statement of purpose and the proposed program designed to meet her individual objectives. Students must express a serious intent, meet the scholastic requirements and present a plan of study to be accepted. The words, "Honors Program Student," are printed on the diploma of each student graduating under this program.

ANDREA BROWN, senior in applied art, is the first student to receive a diploma as a graduate of the Honors Program. Concentrating her efforts this year in her major field of interest, Andrea has done special problems in advertising art.

DEAN HELEN LEBARON heads the largest home economics school in the country, a division which has seen many changes this year in the liberalization of the core curriculum and establishment of an advanced honors program.

Because home economics is a dynamic field, the curricula of the division is under constant scrutiny in order to keep abreast of the needs of changing times. During fall quarter the division's faculty members voted to approve several suggested changes in the core curriculum. The number of required credits in the core has been reduced to permit the students greater flexibility in choosing electives. Several of the previously required courses have become optional, although many are still necessary for certain major fields in the division. In providing more liberal core requirements 10 to 12 hours in mathematics, literature, modern languages and/or philosophy have been added. These changes were investigated and recommended by the division's Curriculum Committee, headed by Dr. Mary S. Lyle. Last fall, home economics classes moved into the beautiful new south wing of MacKay Hall, which was under construction since the fall of 1956 until its completion in the summer of 1958. The modern structure was built with $950,000 approved by the state legislature, and houses the Textiles and Clothing, Household Equipment, and Education departments along with a large lecture hall, study lounges and general classrooms.

STUDENTS in beginning household equipment test the standardization of a variety of measuring utensils. Work through the quarter introduces problems in use of various types of equipment and appliances.

ABILITY TO WORK with young people is an important requisite for teaching. To receive practical experience in her field, Barb Rank, right, along with other home economics education majors spends six weeks on the job as a student teacher, here instructing a clothing class.

NANCY JONES, textiles and clothing major, works on a project for her class in draping. Courses in the department stress all elements of the field from basic construction to advanced techniques.

STRAIGHT LINES of the modern facade of MacKay Hall emphasize the structure of the $950,000 addition which houses three departments and offers fine facilities and excellent equipment.

1st row: Forker (physical education), Liston (home management), Eppright (food and nutrition), Warning (textiles and clothing). 2nd row: Pattison (education), Garfield (applied art), Hawkes (child development), Beveridge (household equipment), Augustine (institution management).

Veterinary Medicine . . . pioneer in teaching, leader in research, division demands professional attitude and standards

WORKING with small animals in an immunology class, vet med students practice techniques of vaccination as part of their clinical training.

Included in Iowa State's Veterinary Medicine Division are the departments on anatomy, hygiene, medicine and surgery, obstetrics and radiology, pathology, and physiology and pharmacology. The division was begun in 1879 and is the oldest school of veterinary medicine in the country. Opportunities for learning offered the student in the division are outstanding. Along with the six regular educational departments, the division operates the Veterinary Medical Research Institute and the Iowa Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratory. Because Iowa State College is located in rich livestock country, students have a rare opportunity to observe animal industry, and a quantity of cases are brought in to both the division's hospital and ambulatory clinics for treatment. The Veterinary Quadrangle on the campus includes most of the veterinary buildings and houses many of the students in the division. Entrance into the veterinary school, headed by Dr. I. A. Merchant, requires at least two years of prescribed pre-professional college work. The professional curriculum extends over a four-year period.

DEAN I. A. MERCHANT heads Iowa State's Veterinary Medicine Division where significant research through the use of new facilities contributes vital information to this professional field.

CONCENTRATING on their intricate work, two seniors in a medicine and surgery class perform a laparotomy on a clinical patient as oxygen is administered.

IN THE RADIOLOGY laboratory senior Durwood Davis prepares a Hereford bull for X-ray treatment for cancer of the eyes. Each eye received four treatments at 120 roentgens a minute.

ENUMERATING the blood cells of various species, freshman students in physiology class intently study the characteristics of the various cells which they must be able to recognize in different species.

Presently under construction at the college is the new Ames Federal Animal Disease Eradication Laboratory. The building is located two miles east of Ames and is expected to be completed in November of 1960. Director of the new laboratory will be Dr. William A. Hagen, who is widely known for his work in microbiology. Personnel will number approximately 400, many of whom will be enrolled as graduate students at the college. Meanwhile, the staff of the Interim Laboratory on the campus is conducting research in various areas. Head pathologist in charge of the Diagnostic Laboratory is Dr. Matthew J. Eggert. Dr. Wayne Yoder, veterinarian in charge of the laboratory's microbiology unit, has been working this year on a project in tuberculosis eradication. Dr. Edward A. Corbrey, who is head of the serology unit, is taking graduate work at the college in veterinary hygiene. Another staff member, Dr. Walter T. Vaught, is doing graduate study in veterinary pathology. When the new laboratory is completed it will furnish many veterinary medicine students with part-time and summer employment and will give them valuable experience as they complete their college training. The Veterinary Medicine Division will profit greatly by the proximity of the large research facilities.

WORK IN THE ANATOMY LAB is intricate and detailed, providing one of the many courses in background training needed for a degree in Iowa State's professional Veterinary Medicine Division.

1st row: Emmerson (obstetrics and radiology), Ramsey (pathology), Kingery (medicine and surgery), Morse (assistant director of veterinary medical research institute). 2nd row: Getty (anatomy), Swenson (physiology and pharmacology), Johnson (clinic), Bennett (diagnostic laboratory), Packer (hygiene).

DISPLAYS AND MODEL PROJECTS aid mechanical engineering students to understand construction of complicated machinery.

ASSUMING THE DUTIES of Dean of the Engineering Division, Dr. George Town steps into a job of guiding the administration of the division in training experts to serve the nation in industry and research.

TESTING the stalling characteristics of a high speed air foil, a class in aeronautical engineering learns the principles behind use of a wind tunnel which has a speed up to 120 miles per hour.

The Iowa State College Engineering Division has a new dean this year who took over his duties in March. Heading the division is Dr. George Town, one of the outstanding engineering educators of the country, who has served on the Iowa State faculty since 1949. Acting Dean M. S. Coover relinquished to Dr. Town the tremendous task of providing the nation's leading industries with technically trained engineering experts. The division, which began with only four departments, now has eleven major areas in which Bachelor of Science degrees may be earned. In addition, the division serves the nation through the Engineering Experiment Station and an Engineering Extension Service. Departmental majors include civil, mechanical, electrical, mining, ceramic, chemical, agricultural, architectural, aeronautical, industrial engineering and architecture. Another department under the division is that of Theoretical and Applied Mechanics. Major goal of engineering education is to develop a type of thinking in students that is objective and analytical. Through their thorough technical and scientific training engineers will continue to find their role a substantial one in experimentation and development of new products and processes for a progressive future.

CIVIL ENGINEERS drain asphalt from a tank in the modern road building lab which is furnished with exact replicas of field equipment scaled to fit the lab. Through use of this equipment students are able to simulate field conditions.

FIFTH-YEAR ARCHITECTS discuss the aspects of a model church built in conjunction with the thesis requirement for all students graduating in this curriculum.

Engineering students are fortunate to have available facilities with which to advance beyond the usual basic training. At the Engineering Experiment Station a student may observe and participate in major research projects needed to foster and develop the industries of the state. The college's new high speed digital computer which was constructed at the station was moved and installed in a special addition to the Electrical Engineering Building. Another area of particular interest to the engineer is the Iowa State College Institute for Atomic Research. Purpose of the institute is to develop the peacetime uses of atomic energy and the by-products from it. Another result of Iowa State's outstanding record in atomic research was the establishment of the Ames Laboratory of the Atomic Energy Commission. Thorough observation of these laboratories by approximately 3,000 engineering students may help them become aware of the vital part which is their to play in the development of our country.

APPLYING THE INFORMATION received from textbooks and class discussions, two electrical engineers in a servo mechanism laboratory set up the automatic control systems and verify the theoretical aspects of the mechanisms.

Science . . . diversified curricula emphasizes humanities, sciences in training skilled graduates while providing liberal background subjects

STUDENTS IN A HUMAN PHYSIOLOGY lab watch the recording of the latent period and the contraction and relaxation periods of a frog muscle that has been treated with electric shock.

DEAN RICHARD S. BEAR, head of the Division of Science, completed his third year with the college as director of the diversified curricula of the division.

With a growing demand for scientists in industry, and particularly in research, the enrollment in the Science Division of Iowa State increases each year. The division enrolls students interested in communications and social sciences as well as those areas of study which are generally considered sciences in the strictest sense. The term "science" may mean many things to many individuals. If one considers that to all people it implies a methodical way to progress, the very motto of Iowa State College, "Science with Practice," takes on a new significance which makes it the key to all education and to life.

PAUL DI BONO takes notes on a pigeon's behavior in a psychology lab experiment which shows the bird's ability to discriminate between colors. The pigeon is rewarded with food if he pecks when the correct light is on.

CHARTS AND GRAPHS help estimate the probable degree and direction of business change. Dr. Ralph Novak points out business trends to his students in forecasting, a course in the industrial administration curriculum.

Effective July, 1959, the name of the Science Division officially will be changed to the College of Sciences and Humanities. The new name is highly appropriate since the division includes a wide range of majors which may be classified in these areas. The division, headed by Dean Richard S. Bear, includes students with interests in the technical and scientific curricula as well as studies in philosophy and more liberal arts. With increasing interest in the division, the English and Speech Department has added seven courses to be incorporated in next fall's program of study. The diversified curricula offers each student an opportunity to develop according to his interests in making the best use of his talents to meet the nation's demand for well-trained college graduates.

OBSERVING THE LIFE CYCLE of the planarian gives students in a general science laboratory the background for studying the higher and more complicated forms of life.

IOWA STATE STUDENTS find value in electing many courses in the social sciences. Here Prof. E. W. Peterson lectures to a class in History 490, a course designed to show the significance of current affairs and the implications of history on recent events. Peterson was selected outstanding instructor in the Science Division.

A concern for investigation of a specific academic problem may create a desire in an undergraduate student to become a candidate for the Master of Science degree. A broad scholastic interest induces a smaller number of students to become candidates for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. Increasing emphasis on the importance of an advanced education in scientific fields has caused rapid expansion of the Iowa State College Graduate School. As a technical institution Iowa State is a leader in the awarding of advanced degrees from its Graduate College. Headed by Dean R. M. Hixon, the graduate school at the beginning of this academic year had an enrollment of 1,248. Almost 600 new students are admitted each year. Latest additions to the Graduate College have been the professional degrees of Master of Engineering, Master of Landscape Architecture, and Master of Vocational Education. These degrees have been established to meet society's demand for advanced study oriented around vocational objectives. With advanced education as the keynote to the vision of a brighter tomorrow, the graduate students of Iowa State will take their place as leaders in an age of scientific accomplishment.

PAUL TAIGANIDES, right, a student from Veroia, Greece, teaches an Ag Engineering class principles of surveying. As many students, Paul works as a graduate assistant while completing his work for a Master of Science degree.

TRANSFERRING A BACTERIA culture into a test medium, Bill LaGrange works out a portion of the research which will lead him to a Ph.D. in dairy bacteriology.

LEONARD DRUDING, chemistry graduate student and assistant at the Ames Laboratory, crystallizes potassium nitrate for use in kinetic studies.

ONE OF THE FINAL HURDLES to an advanced degree is completion of the comprehensive oral exams. Robert Bethea, chemical engineering graduate student, explains his research findings and answers complicated questions for his examining board.

PREPARING CAMERAS AND EQUIPMENT, Dr. Percy Carr and associates stand guard on the top of the Electrical Engineering Building waiting to photograph space satellites as they pass over Ames. Research . . . investigation, discovery to provide better living for the future

YEARS OF RESEARCH work in animal nutrition led Dr. Wise Burroughs to the discovery that feeding the chemical hormone stilbestrol, would induce astounding weight gains in cattle. For this significant contribution, Dr. Burroughs received the John Scott Award this year.

DR. PILAR GARCIA performs an exacting test involving gases for a problem in her research work on human nutrition.

Continually striving to discover and understand the unknown, the researcher works unobtrusively to improve the world about him. Through the program of research at Iowa State, horizons of knowledge have been broadened in many scientific fields. The animal nutrition laboratories of the Home Economics Division lead to the discovery of significant information applicable to human nutrition. A high speed digital computer, "Cyclone," to be used for calculations in research, was moved to its permanent home in the Electrical Engineering Building. An aid to engineering research as well as to instruction in the new field of nuclear engineering is a nuclear reactor, under construction in one of the college's chemical engineering buildings. A group of faculty members and students directed by Dr. Percy Carr, head of the Physics Department, made significant contributions to a report on the trails of the Russian satellites. The observation and photographic data gathered by the group is being used to aid in scientific computation of the exact paths of the artificial moons. These are few among many research projects at Iowa State destined to help change present aspects of life in the home, community and world.

Governing Bodies

Cardinal Guild

Legislative activities of this year's student governing body, Cardinal Guild, topped all previous records for governing groups at Iowa State. One major accomplishment of the group was the establishment of an experimental honor system which went into effect winter quarter in a cross section of classes in each division of the college. Guild is composed of cabinet members, who are selected by interview, and student senators who are elected in the spring all-college elections. Tom Phelps, student body president, headed the cabinet which is the administrative branch of Guild. Cabinet did research and then passed its ideas on to senate for action. When senate passed a resolution, the cabinet organized the machinery to put the resolution into effect. The senate members of Guild met once a week to develop further ideas presented to them by cabinet or to originate legislation. Gene Havens, vice-president of the student body, presided over senate throughout the year.

Pammel Court Council

Pammel Court Student Council was organized in 1948 to serve as a student governing body of Pammel Court and to advise the Department of Residence of the needs of the 1,000 married students living in Pammel Court. The council strives to improve social and recreational activities for students living in the area. Under the sponsorship of the council some recreation such as free dances, tournaments and athletic teams are provided for the young married couples living in Pammel Court. This year the group planned and carried out a program for insect control and also had a furniture exchange for foreign students. They painted the walls and tiled the floor of the recreation hall and continued to publish the Pammel News. The 10 councilmen are elected from even numbered zones in the spring and odd numbered zones in the fall in order to stagger new membership. Standing committees on the council are concerned with streets and housing, playground activities and the recreation hall.

"NOW WHAT can Santa bring you for Christmas?" Children at the Pammel Court Christmas party were delighted by a visit from Santa Claus.

Agricultural Council

Harvest Ball, an all-college dance held during fall quarter, was one of the big projects of Agricultural Council. Nancy Monson reigned as queen with Jan Hansen and Sally Beck as her attendants. Agricultural Council is the divisional student council composed of two members from each department. To serve on the council, students must be of sophomore classification and members of a departmental club. Purpose of the organization is to act as a link between the students and faculty in the Agriculture Division and to sponsor agricultural events. Other projects of the group during the year included the Agricultural Freshman Reception in the fall and the All-Ag Banquet in November. Roger Kleese served as president this year with Larry Fox, vice-president; Jay Van Wert, secretary; and John Field, treasurer. Dr. F. P. Gardner was faculty adviser.

AGRICULTURAL STUDENTS selected Nancy Monson to reign as queen of the Harvest Ball. Performing the honors at the coronation is Dean Floyd Andre, head of the division.

Engineering Council

Engineering Council was organized to represent the students in the Engineering Division and to promote cooperation between the students and the administration. This year the council had 24 members who were elected by the engineering departmental clubs. The council promotes two large college functions during the year. Fall quarter the group sponsored the Engineers Carnival, and before Christmas vacation they sponsored the Christmas Ball jointly with Science Council. This fall members of the council planned an Engineering Reception during Freshman Days. The council members are also in charge of the Engineering Open House for Veishea. The group helps to unite the students of the division and integrates all the engineering functions. Norman Buck served as president this year with Bob Harris, vice-president; John Cronk, secretary; and Vernon Meisinger, treasurer. Prof. David VanHorn advised the group.

A Home Economics Week planned by Home Ec Council fall quarter helped to familiarize women enrolled in the division with the functions of the eight departmental clubs. Home Economics Council is composed of the presidents and vice-presidents of the departmental clubs. Carol Auringer served as president of the council this year. She also acted as national president of the college club section of the American Home Economics Association. The council serves as the student governing body for departmental clubs. Projects of the council in addition to the Home Ec Week included the Home Economics Banquet, where Mrs. Helen Halbert was guest speaker and awards were given to outstanding students in the division. The group sponsored the United Nations Tea to welcome international students to Iowa State. Another project was "Keys to Your Kitchen," a program designed for homemakers of the community presenting new methods used in food preparation. For "Dames Daze" entertainment the council sponsored "Japanese Encore."

3rd row: Sann, Burgoin, Ashlock, Langerak, Thorne, Judge, Gibson, Campbell, Scheline, Roth, Haywood.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS working on the Christmas Ball check over the program of events for the evening. The ball is sponsored annually by Science and Engineering Councils.

Science Council

Science Council serves as a liaison between students in the Science Division and the administration of the division. The group works to promote student activities in the Science Division. The 12 members of the council are selected in the all-college election, a portion being elected each year. This year Science Council sponsored the Freshman Days orientation program for the Science Division. The group also helped to select the co-chairmen of Veishea. Together with Engineering Council, the group sponsored the Christmas Ball held in Great Hall, Memorial Union, the weekend before vacation. Richard Maltby played for this annual dance at which the 1959 Bomb Beauties were introduced. The council also works to coordinate departmental activities and clubs. Officers of Science Council included Dick Mead, president; Nancy Betz, vice-president; and Dody Emery, secretary-treasurer. Dr. Ellis Hicks serves as faculty adviser for the group.

Veterinary Medicine Council

IOWA VETERINARIAN editor Carl Graham, reports on the progress of the coming issue of the magazine at a meeting of the student chapter of AVMA.

Veterinary Medicine Council is composed of representatives of the Iowa State Chapter of the American Veterinary Medical Association.

Members of the council are the AVMA officers, a representative from each of the four classes and the two representatives to Cardinal Guild from the Vet Med Division. Vet Med Council meets before every AVMA meeting in order to prepare an agenda for the AVMA business meeting. For their programs, members of AVMA hear guest speakers, usually men who are veterinarians or employed in related fields. Just before Christmas the group sponsored a party for wives and children of members. Santa Claus was present to add to the festivities. At the winter smoker awards and scholarships were presented to outstanding AVMA members. Other activities of the group included a fall banquet, a luncheon at Homecoming for alumni, a spring picnic and a spring dance.

FIRST IN LINE for the telephones, coeds waste no time in arranging some dates for "Dames Daze." The turnabout event is one project of Joint Social Council.

Joint Social Council is composed of the social chairmen from each of the 105 residences. Members meet once a month to contribute ideas for interesting and successful exchanges. Through personal contact among the social chairmen and by helping the chairmen to work out their programs in this area, Joint Social Council helps to improve the social activities at Iowa State. Two major improvements in the program took place last year when Joint Social Council and Cardinal Guild worked together and obtained two hours of late cut per quarter for freshman women. Also all women may use their late cuts at their own discretion now. Each year Joint Social Council sponsors "Dames Daze," a weekend in which the 3-1 ratio turns in favor of the men. Women ask men for dates and pay the expenses throughout the three-day weekend. Trophies are presented at the end of the week to the sorority and the dormitory having the highest number of dates per member.

Social Bureau

A LEADING LADY and her understudy in the cast of "The Dairy of Anne Frank" look over their part backstage. This was one of the attractions presented by Social Bureau.

Many of the unique social events which reach students of Iowa State are the result of work and investigation of the student Social Bureau. The bureau provides and supervises social events for general all-college participation as well as taking charge of smaller groups for special events including trips to KRNT in Des Moines. Fall quarter Social Bureau, working with the Lecture Series, brought the traveling troupe of the "Diary of Anne Frank" to Ames for a performance in the Ames High School Auditorium. The group sponsored the presentation of the Israeli Dancers and also planned trips for students to Des Moines for productions of "Auntie Mame" and "Romanoff and Juliet" at the KRNT Theater. In conjunction with the Music Department, Social Bureau sponsored the Pops Concert by the Iowa State Concert Band during winter quarter. Russell Curry spoke on etiquette spring quarter. Kay Backhaus served as president of Social Bureau this year. Other officers included Bob Montgomery, vice-president; Beth Brom, secretary; and Barbara Haywood, treasurer. Mrs. Vida Secor Benson is the group's faculty adviser.

The whirl of campus social activities centered around Memorial Union are the responsibility of Student Union Board. Yearly events sponsored by the board include winter quarter Varieties, Books and Cokes, Books and Coffee and the Jazz Concert series. Appearing as headliners at the jazz series this year were Ted Heath and the Four Freshmen. Social activities for students interested in developing some special skill were provided in the Union Board program through bridge and dance classes. At the beginning of each quarter Union Board sponsors the registration dance. One of the main winter quarter programs is News Forum, a review and digest of the week's news. In all the union-sponsored events Union Board members help to set the policy for student activities and plan functions which will use the Union facilities in the best interest of the maximum number of students.

Honoraries

Mortar Board

DELIGHTED SPECTATORS watch as Marilyn Werner congratulates Marcia Wilsie after placing the gold-tassled mortar board on her head designating Marcia new Mortar Board president.

A week before Veishea, members of Mortar Board serenade women's residences to announce that one or more of the junior members of the residence has been selected for membership in the highest women's honorary at Iowa State. On the day of tapping, the black-robed members of the honorary suddenly clap the mortar boards on the heads of new members, amid squeals of surprise and delight. Mortar Board members are selected on the basis of outstanding scholarship, leadership and service. Last fall in the darkness of dorm court, these senior women led the Freshman Induction Service. From one candle held by Marcia Wilsie, Mortar Board president, the flame spread to hundreds of candles held by freshman women. The flame symbolized the challenge of college opportunities. During winter quarter Mortar Board sponsored Women's Day when Iowa State coeds took over all government and service positions on campus. Carol Auringer was elected Women's Day president this year.

Cardinal Key

New members of Cardinal Key, Iowa State's highest honorary for men, are announced at tapping ceremonies at Veishea. Those selected are notified by sudden hard slaps on the back from members. New pledges are junior or senior men who are selected on the basis of scholarship, leadership, character and service to the school. During winter quarter lists of all possible candidates are sent to faculty members, campus leaders and ministers for recommendations. On the basis of these replies active members select the students to be tapped. Following their pledging new members wear the big red key, symbol of the honorary, until the initiation banquet. Each year Cardinal Key sponsors the Leadership Day Banquet for outstanding men on campus and also a men's leadership convocation. Rev. Bob Richards was speaker at the convocation. This year Cardinal Key sponsored a Key Reception during Homecoming.

Alpha Zeta

Agricultural Scholastic and Service Honorary

Alpha Zeta, agricultural scholastic and service honorary for upperclassmen, recognizes outstanding agricultural students. A national fraternity, Alpha Zeta was organized on the Iowa State campus in 1905. Members are chosen on the basis of their service to the division and to the college. In September Ken Krause was a delegate to the national conclave in Lexington, Ky., which meets every two years to conduct national business and formulate new policy. At the conclave the historian's book of the Iowa State chapter placed second in national competition with 55 other chapters. In January members of Alpha Zeta set aside four days for their second Voice of Experience program. D. Howard Doane of the Doane Agricultural Service was guest speaker for the event which included seminars and discussions on present-day agricultural problems. The year's program for Alpha Zeta closed with the annual spring banquet where new members were initiated.

D. HOWARD DOANE discusses the outlook and future of agriculture with several students following the student-faculty panel meeting of the Voice of Experience program.

Order of the Chessmen

Men's Residence Association Honorary

The Order of Chessmen is an honorary composed of outstanding members of the Men's Residence Association who are active in the MRA and campus activities. Members must have at least a 2.1 all-college average and must have lived in the MRA for six quarters. They also must have fulfilled requirements of service and leadership. The Chessmen sponsor the Madge Young Scholarship, a $100 award given to a member of the MRA for outstanding service to the residence group. The scholarship is in memory Mrs. Madge Young, a former residence adviser of the association. Another project of the group is the sale of MRA pins. During spring quarter the Chessmen prepared a Veishea display. Ray Anderegg led the group this year as president with Ron Swift, vice-president; Dick Sackett, secretary-treasurer; and Dwight Jasmann, historian.

DEE ROBBINS, Dr. E. W. Peterson and Nancy Betz discuss some of the purposes of Lamos as described in the honorary's publication.

Lamos is an honorary in the Science Division that recognizes both men and women students in this division of the college. The society is a local organization which was started at Iowa State in 1955. To be selected for membership, students must be juniors or seniors. They are chosen on the basis of scholarship, character, leadership and service. Between four and seven juniors and the same number of seniors are named to the group. Cardboard replicas of the Lamos pin are worn by new members around their necks immediately after pledging to signify membership. Bruce Thatcher served as a president of Lamos this year with Dick Sackett, vice-president; and Nancy Betz, secretary-treasurer. Prof. E. W. Peterson was the group's faculty adviser.

Phi Eta Sigma

Freshman Scholastic Honorary

A scholarship trophy is presented by Phi Eta Sigma, national freshman men's scholastic honorary, to the residence which shows the greatest increase in grade point over the previous quarter. Dodds House won the trophy for fall quarter. Phi Eta Sigma, organized in 1947, works to encourage and reward high scholastic attainment among the men of the freshman class. To be eligible for membership, a freshman must have a first quarter grade point of 3.5 or above or an all-college grade point of 3.5 or above at the end of either the first two or three quarters. Active members of the honorary planned a smoker winter quarter for prospective members. The 80 actives received their certificates of membership at this time. Officers included David Voltmer, president; Edward Morrison, vice-president; Kenneth Kruempel, secretary; and Eugene Cramer, treasurer.

Sophomore Independent Service Honorary

COMPLETE WITH FEATHERS and tomahawks, pledges of the honorary serenade on the steps of Beardshear Hall as part of their pledge week duties.

Champaign, Ill., was the destination of Tomahawk members in December when they attended their club's national convention. Tomahawk is an honorary for sophomore independents who are prominent in campus activities. Purposes of the group are to give recognition to sophomores outstanding in activities, to interest freshmen in student organizations and activities, to provide leadership training for its members, to serve as a coordinating body for activities in the interest of independent students and to promote spirit and loyalty among all students at Iowa State. Tomahawk, a service group, provides babysitters for residents of Pammel Court. Members also offered information to Veishea visitors from an information teepee. Tomahawk welcomed college alumni at Homecoming time by providing decorations for the alum dinner.

Divisional Organizations

Agricultural Education Club

Senior members of the Agricultural Education Club enjoyed a trip to the national FFA convention in Kansas City, Missouri. Members of this organization are students in agricultural education or students qualifying to teach vocational agriculture. Purposes of the group are to promote personality and leadership improvement, to improve professional interests and to acquaint members with problems of the teaching profession. Activities for the 190 members of the club included the Agricultural Education Club banquet and a display at the Veishea open houses. Jerry Arnold served as president with Larry Genzen, vice-president; Kenneth Nielsen, secretary; and Larry Statler, treasurer. Clarence E. Bundy was the group's faculty adviser.

American Institute of Chemical Engineers

Members of the Institute of Chemical Engineers spent several of their meetings with guest speakers from industries who talked on the relation of chemical engineering to technical and current affairs. Members of the institute must be majoring in chemical engineering. Purpose of this group is to stimulate interest in the profession. The program of the institute acquaints the undergraduates with their fellow students and professors and introduces them to the opportunities in the fields of chemical engineering. In the spring the group held its annual banquet. The evening was highlighted by a skit presented by faculty members in which they gave impressions of their students. Returning the compliment, members of the organization put on a skit portraying the faculty. Paul Willhite headed the Iowa State chapter of the national organization.

American Institute of Electrical Engineers and Institute of Radio Engineers

STUDENT MEMBERS of AIEE and IRE work on construction of an electrically-controlled robot in the Electrical Engineering Building as a project for Veishea open house.

Engineers Carnival was one of the activities in which members of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the Institute of Radio Engineers participated during fall quarter. All electrical engineering students are eligible to become members of this professional group which strives to spread knowledge of the theory and practice of all phases of electrical engineering and other allied fields and to further the professional development of the student. The group also works to acquaint electrical engineering students with industry and to present to the students a picture of the applications of technical training to industry. Last spring the members of this group enjoyed the AIEE-IRE banquet and the electrical engineering picnic. They also worked on the EE open house for 1958 Veishea and helped stock the AIEE-IRE workshop. Jerry Aukland served as president first term and Kenneth Rubsam, second term. William L. MEN WITH PROFESSIONAL GOALS and interests in Veterinary Medicine make the Veterinary Quadrangle their second home. Classrooms and laboratories for student instruction are concentrated in the four wings of the building.

American Veterinary Medical Association

A luncheon for alumni during Homecoming weekend was one of the activities of the American Veterinary Medical Association. The group was organized to promote better relationships among students. The Iowa State student chapter of the AVMA, organized in 1884, draws its members from regularly enrolled undergraduate students in the Division of Veterinary Medicine and selects honorary members from the faculty and alumni. At their monthly meeting the 260 members receive an opportunity to gain professional knowledge through informative programs. A Christmas party was given for members of the association. This year the association also sponsored the Pre Vet Club. Bill Speer served as president with Ray Abel, vice-president; Dick Marshall, secretary; Ed Mather, treasurer; and Bill Dubbert, critic. Dr. W. S. Monlux served as faculty adviser.

Business Students Association

COMMITTEE MEMBERS for the Industrial Administration Banquet put their heads together for a bright idea for the annual dinner, highlight of the year for the business students.

Members of the Business Students Association were happy last spring to hear that the Industrial Administration display for Veishea open houses won second place in the Science Division. Formed in 1955, the Business Students Association, Industrial Administration Departmental Club, strives to promote a closer affiliation between industry and the business students. During winter quarter, the annual Industrial Administration Banquet was given by club members. Speakers at meetings throughout the year were from all phases of industry. Officers of the group included Richard Senneff, president; Meredith Dessel, vice-president; Jo Ann Schramper, secretary; and Don Spartz, treasurer.

Industrial Education Club

TWO MEMBERS of Industrial Education Club work on a special project in industrial education shops.

Members of the Industrial Education Club obtained firsthand knowledge about the operation of American industry by taking field trips to industrial plants. They visited the Alcoa Company in Davenport, and observed manual training classes at Davenport High School during winter quarter. Club members also visited the Case Tractor Company and the arsenal in Moline, Illinois. Proceeds from the annual Industrial Education Banquet held in April go toward a scholarship fund, which is the only departmental scholarship fund on campus. Scholarships are awarded to outstanding industrial education students. In past years half of the club's members have found positions in industry, and half have gone on to teaching jobs.

Farm Operation Club

ASSOCIATE DEAN of Agriculture, Louis Thompson, left, receives the plaque denoting him honorary member of the year of Farm Op Club. Club president Perry Petersen presents the citation.

Couples danced to the music of The Moderns at "Autumn Serenade," sponsored by the Farm Operation Club and held at the state 4-H camp in Boone in October. The club is open to all students interested or enrolled in the farm operation curriculum. Farm Op Club tries to provide its members with a means of participation in extracurricular activities. It also helps to develop fellowship and leadership and to build and maintain a satisfactory enrollment in the farm op curriculum. In February the annual club banquet was given at Collegiate Presbyterian Church. Other highlights of the year included a display for Veishea open houses, a concession stand at Veishea, a mixer and a picnic. Perry Petersen served as president with James Antoine, vice-president; Malcolm Bishop, secretary; and John Edmonds, treasurer. Dr. Duane Acker is adviser for the group which was organized in 1950.

Petersen (pres.), Lawrence, Belknap, Dreyer, Antoine (v.p.), Nyswonger, Crouch, J. Burrack.

Forestry Club

Forestry Club started the year with a fall campfire honoring new freshmen. Just before Christmas foresters sold Christmas trees to raise money for club projects. Winter quarter brought the annual Foresters' Game Banquet, at which a different type of game meat is served each year, and also the "Hoedown," a square dance. During Veishea the club put on its special attraction, "Paul Bunyan Day," where foresters tried their hands at log-bucking and log-splitting contests. Members of the club competed with forestry teams from other schools at the annual Midwest Foresters' Conclave. Students enrolled in the forestry curriculum spend at least one summer working at a forestry summer camp. Last summer the 10-week session was in New Mexico. The year ended for the club members with a spring campfire honoring graduating seniors.

A GROUP of interested spectators watches four hearty foresters in the log-bucking contest, one of the favorites at "Paul Bunyan Day."

OUTDOOR CLASSROOMS add interest and atmosphere to the learning situation at summer camp in the forest area of New Mexico.

"HARRIET HOMEMAKER," drawn by Bea Burke, is the nucleus around which Home Economics Recruitment Committee develops plans for telling the story of home economics at Iowa State to high school students.

All home economics students are eligible to be members of Home Economics Club. Eight departmental clubs meet regularly to provide an opportunity for students to participate in special interest groups including child development, food and nutrition, education, textiles and clothing, household equipment, applied art, institution management and general home economics. Field trips, demonstrations, guest speakers, student panels and parties were among the activities of the departmental clubs. Home Economics Club helps students to recognize that they are members of a professional organization, develops leadership and integrates the activities of the departmental clubs.

Science Women's Club

OFFICERS of Science Women's Club gather around Nancy Betz to discuss qualifications for the scholarship which the club offers.

Science Women's Club was organized in 1928 to unite the women in the Science Division for educational and social purposes and to present speakers of interest. Members of the club must be enrolled in the Science Division or in pre vet. Women taking engineering or home economics and related science may also become members. Each year the club gives a $100 scholarship to a woman enrolled in any division. The award is given on a scholastic basis and is presented during spring quarter. During final week members of the club brighten the atmosphere by selling sandwiches in the women's dorms. Nancy Betz served as president. Other officers included Ann Thornburg, vice-president; Melissa Praytor, secretary; and Cheryl Vander Waal, treasurer. Dr. Delma Harding was faculty adviser of the group this year.

Communications

IOWA STATE'S STUDENT JOURNALISTS are a group of individual personalities obtaining valuable professional experience by working with their specialized tools on the production of a multitude of campus publications.

PROGRESS IN COMMUNICATION through the medium of television makes possible the rapid transmission of audio and visual material simultaneously. Here Television Workshop students in Studio Alpha simulate an advertisement on closed circuit TV. Television students produce two weekend programs telecast through the facilities of WOI.

The Iowa State student with interests in writing, radio or television, receives many opportunities to work on one of the several student organizations in the general field of communications. Through practical training, students gain valuable experience and develop a professional attitude in their college work. Extracurricular activities in the communications' field include the divisional magazines, radio and television work, the Bomb, Sketch and the Iowa State Daily. Work in these areas develops a sense of responsibility to the readers, listeners and viewers which these communications serve. Students also learn the necessity of close cooperation and the organization of work and time. Sufficient reward for the many extra hours of time required is the sense of pride and accomplishment in seeing the finished product. Also remembered are the good times and comradeship developed through working closely with persons having allied interests.

PROBLEMS AND TECHNICALITIES of radio communication must be handled in a different way when there is no accompanying picture. Students in Radio Workshop work these matters out through practice in producing and broadcasting programs.

THE ANTICS of "Little Man on Campus" are enjoyed by one of the 10,000 persons who read the student paper, the Iowa State Daily, regularly.

Bomb

The 1959 Bomb, a record of students, events and activities of the past year, became a reality through the efforts and cooperation of many persons. From August through April not a moment was wasted to meet production schedules and pressing deadlines. Writers polished off reams of copy, while photographers scurried around campus picturing every conceivable spot and activity. As the school year progressed the book began to take shape. Copy was edited, pictures selected—and hundreds rejected—proofs were checked and dummies went press, gradually but steadily. Main concerns of the business staff were subscriptions, distribution, contracts for group pictures and keeping the editorial staff in line with the budget. The Bomb Publication Board, composed of one representative from each division, supervised the work on the $42,000 production. Staff members hope you will feel they have developed a Bomb which tells a significant story of Iowa State at the beginning of its second century as a leader in education.

IN CONSTANT TOUCH with all phases of production was Editor Bonnie Rollins, whose hours spent working and planning in her "cubbyhole" ended when nearly three million pages were bound into 5,600 copies of the 1959 Bomb.

BEGGING FOR ASSIGNMENTS, photographers cluster around their "boss" Carole Kocon, whose job as photo editor meant incessant hours of phone calls and planning to arrange the 850 pictures used in the book.

KEEPING A WATCHFUL EYE on the production dates, Jack O'Keefe, managing editor, checks to see if the engraving deadlines are running as scheduled to meet printing and distribution dates.

DOUBTFUL whether they will be able to finish their assignments before the Bomb is due at press are photographers Porath, Oster, Arendts, Vanderbur and Pataky.

Bomb staff members represented a variety of different curricula and interests. Their knowledge of campus events and organizations and skill in capturing these through writing and photography made possible a lively, interesting view of campus life and coverage in this Bomb. As you evaluate this book in your own terms, you will enjoy some features and criticize others. Students responsible for the production hope you will find the Bomb a meaningful representation of Iowa State College events, activities and significant contributions during 1959.

Iowa State Daily

ONE OF IOWA STATE'S big news stories of the year—fire. Five destructive fires did thousands of dollars worth of damage to college facilities and experimental animals.

TENSION MOUNTS as Chuck Klop, right, objects to the publication of controversial information following the fourth spectacular fire, a blaze which leveled an unused sheep barn. A raging blizzard and high winds engulfed staff members at the scene to cover the story.

GUIDING THE DECISIONS on editorial policy and content of the paper is Bob Bartley, editor fall and winter quarters.

ASSOCIATE EDITOR Tom Emmerson assists a reporter in the techniques of handling a story. Tom handled the editor's duties during spring quarter.

The office of the Iowa State Daily, located at the west end of the Press Building, is a scene of almost constant activity. Throughout the day reporters type frantically, the phone rings constantly, students run in and out taking copy to the back shop and bringing back galleys to be proofread.

Published Tuesday through Saturday, the Daily is the most widely-circulated campus publication, managed, written and edited by student journalists, under the direction of the Daily Publication Board. Deadline time adds tension as editors hurry to get the important news of the day in print. With the last of the page proofs corrected the Daily is ready for press, and all who contributed to its production rest in the knowledge that the campus population awaits each issue for the news of the day and interpretation of campus events.

STRIVING TO MAKE the Iowa State Daily the best in campus coverage, Margery Molden, managing editor, assigns stories to the reporters and supervises the work of other news room personnel.

SOCIETY EDITOR Myra Scholten finds life at the Daily office isn't so bad after all. Copy on her pages claims high readership as students conscientiously check the "rings and pins" column.

WHEN A CYCLONE ATHLETIC TEAM is performing, sports editor Gene Dubois is on deck to record the play by play account of the contest and keep his readers up to date on latest sports events.

Reporting tasks are assigned to sophomores in journalism who cover the campus on special beats. Students in typography class work "on the rim" editing copy and writing headlines. Decisions on page makeup and issue content rest with each day's issue editor. Working behind the scenes are the students selling advertising, bulk of the financial support for the paper. Ad men labor long over creative displays for their campustown and Ames accounts in order to provide an important contact between merchants and students.

FINDING PLEASURE in having a few moments to read the Daily are fall quarter staff members Cecil Hunt, business manager; Jan Furman, "sass" editor; and Don Smith, photographer.

WORKING LATE, reporter Bill Wilson jots off a story to make the deadline, while proofreader Paula Bort corrects typographical errors on the galley proofs.

AROUND THE RIM copy readers and headline writers take directions from the night issue editor, Edith Lillie, as the minutes tick off to the impending deadline.

"WHY, THIS IS the hottest story the Daily has had in years. Now, let me get all that information straight," says reporter Ellen Molleston as she scribbles notes.

"IT CAN'T BE my writing, must be the story that doesn't let my creative genius shine through," ponders reporter Jack Dallas trying to smooth out his masterpiece.

JUST WHAT does this mean, questions editor Margy Molden as she prepares to cut the added color and get to pertinent facts.

KEEPING CLOSE CHECK on financial matters of the Daily is business manager John Heiser's worry. Income must balance expenditures to keep the paper in a sound financial situation.

THE DIFFERENCE between a 4-page and a 16-page issue rests with advertising manager Jim Roberts and his salesmen whose work provides a daily contact between Ames merchants and students and adds financial support for the Daily.

THE STEADY RUMBLE of the lumbering press signals the final deadline as student journalists put another issue of the Iowa State Daily "to bed."

IOWA AGRICULTURIST EDITOR Pat Krauss displays some of the new four-color process covers which the magazine used for the first time this year.

Iowa Agriculturist

This year marked the 57th continuous year of publication for the Iowa Agriculturist. One of the greatest achievements of the divisional magazine has been winning the "general excellence" award six times the last eight years in competition with all other college agricultural magazines. The Agriculturist has steadily matured until today it is one of the highly respected student agricultural publications in the country. In its infancy the Agriculturist was two magazines in one because two pages were set aside each month for stories of interest to future homemakers. Today the magazine is a separate organization and is the student publication of the Agricultural Division. This year the entire format of the magazine was changed from the cover to the design of type used for printed matter. To further improve the appearance, a new, inexpensive four-color engraving process, developed at Iowa State, gave the publication opportunities to use several four-color covers.

Ames Forester

The Ames Forester is an annual publication edited by forestry majors with an interest in journalism. The magazine promotes interests and relations between alumni and the department. Prominent men in the field of forestry and related sciences write many of the feature articles on both technical and nontechnical subjects for each issue. The Ames Forester is the only departmental annual at Iowa State and is a yearbook of graduating seniors and a technical journal combined.

Iowa State Scientist

Write! Edit! Publish! These words summarize the work of the Iowa State Scientist staff. The Scientist is a magazine for students in the Science Division. Writing and editing is done by a staff of students interested in combining journalism with the science curriculum. The Scientist includes articles on research findings, recent scientific developments and application of science to other fields. Other campus items of interest are included in addition to the scientific articles.

Iowa Engineer

The Iowa Engineer, a local magazine organized in 1894, publishes articles concerning the latest developments in the field of engineering and other less technical subjects of general interest to faculty, students and alumni of Iowa State. Also included in the Engineer are a joke page, interviews with engineering professors and information about alumni. The magazine provides an opportunity for interested engineering students to gain experience in engineering journalism. All editing and advertising work is the responsibility of engineering students desiring extracurricular work in journalism or business management. During fall quarter members of the local staff attended the convention of the Engineering College Magazines Associated in Boulder, Colorado. Paul Willhite edited the magazine this year, and Jerry Ocker was business manager. E. H. Ohlsen was faculty adviser.

Iowa Homemaker

From the women's point of view, the Iowa Homemaker represents the interests and work of students and faculty members in the Home Economics Division. The 30 student members of the staff spend their time selling advertising, writing articles, creating layouts and taking pictures — all elements which are combined in the eight monthly issues of the Iowa Homemaker published throughout the school year. Staff members are selected following a series of workshops winter quarter at which the editorial and business phases of the magazine's production are explained.

THE FINAL WORD on all matters pertaining to Homemaker publication rests with Jo Will, editor, Jeanne Burket, business manager and Martha Elder, publisher.

Iowa State College Veterinarian

The Iowa State College Veterinarian is the official publication of the Iowa State Student Chapter of the American Veterinary Medical Association. Written and published by students in the Veterinary Medicine Division, the journal is printed three times a year and is distributed near the end of each quarter. Forty to 50 students help write the 72-page publication which is sent to 44 states and 20 foreign countries. The journal has a circulation of about 1,500. The magazine tries to stimulate interest in the field of veterinary medicine outside of academic endeavors. It promotes a closer relationship between the division and alumni and tries to provide a medium through which students may express themselves. A steak fry is held each spring for those students who have worked on the Veterinarian during the year.

Green Gander

Most popular item on campus at Halloween, Christmas, Valentines Day and Veishea is the Green Gander, campus humor magazine published four times yearly. Contents of the Gander include short stories, cartoons, jokes and photographs of Gander girls. The magazine is a publication and project of members of Sigma Delta Chi and Theta Sigma Phi, professional journalism fraternities.

Sketch

Sketch, Iowa State's literary magazine, endeavors to create increased student interest in good contemporary writing. Published quarterly, the magazine includes original poetry and prose written entirely by students. Sketch provides an opportunity for students to have their creative writing published and recognized. The Sketch Publication Board is composed of 11 members including two faculty advisers, Dr. Pearl Hogrefe and Dr. Robert Orlovich, professors in the English and Speech Department. The board offers further encouragement for interest in literature by sponsoring Books and Cokes and Books and Coffee sessions. In an informal, relaxed atmosphere book reviews are presented by either students or faculty members. Candid views of the individual reader may be expressed at the reviews.

DIRECTOR of a workshop program, "The Word," Mike Twedt explains a difficult point of interpretation to members of the cast before the broadcast.

Members of Radio Workshop receive practical experience in radio training through production of live radio shows. Students take part in actual broadcasts, giving announcements, acting, writing and producing programs. The 10 members work in cooperation with station WOI to present programs for both children and adults. During the year the group produced three half-hour shows, usually fantasies or humorous programs. To add realism to the programs, Radio Workshop purchased a set of records and has many manual sound effects.

Music and Drama

PRISONERS IN THE German concentration camp listen intently to reports on developments in the outside world as given by the tiny shortwave box so carefully protected and hidden by the men. Action is from "Stalag 17."

Iowa State Players

MRS. ALVIG, left, takes a penetrating look at her maid in a scene from Henrik Ibsen's "Ghosts," one of the first realistic dramas, famous for its discerning view into the lives of five characters.

THE ANTICS OF UNCLE CHRIS, when he came to visit the Hanson family, delighted audiences as the theater season opened with the warm comedy, "I Remember Mama."

At a college in which no major curricular work is offered in the field of dramatics, the Iowa State College Theatre serves as an extra-curricular outlet for students with interest and abilities in the many phases of theater production. Iowa State Players is a campus organization which presents one theatrical production each quarter. The group presented the popular comedy "I Remember Mama" during fall quarter. The play depicted family life in San Francisco in 1910 as told by the eldest daughter. "Stalag 17," presented during winter quarter, concerned life in a German prison camp during World War II. Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew" was presented at Veishea. Frank Brandt is head of the Iowa State College Theatre. Directors are Harry Ausprich and Burt Drexler. Ed Lynch is technical director of all productions. The plays are presented in MacKay Auditorium, Curtiss Auditorium and in Laboratory Theatre. This spring the Applied Art Department completely redecorated the main room of the Laboratory Theatre building assisted by members of Players.

TENSE ACTION characterized the Laboratory Theatre production of "O'Neill and the Sea," three one-act plays giving a moving portrayal of the influences of the sea on the lives of various characters.

The fine arts program, "Focus 1959," brought to campus outstanding features in drama and cultural arts. Ronald Hammond spoke on "Theater in England and America" as part of the program. His appearance was sponsored by Players as was the presentation of the film, "Don Quixote," which was also a part of "Focus 1959" week. Iowa State Players helped to sponsor the presentation of "The Diary of Anne Frank" last fall. In April the Players aided in the presentation of the annual Beaux Arts Ball. Also parts of Iowa State College Theater are Lab Theatre, Children's Theatre and Theatre 324. Last fall Lab Theatre presented three one-act plays by Eugene O'Neill with a similar theme. Title of the program was "O'Neill and the Sea." Ibsen's "Ghosts" was presented during winter quarter. Two one-act plays by Ionesco entitled "The Lesson" and "The Bald Soprano" were given by Lab Theatre during spring quarter. Theatre 324, an outgrowth of a course in play production presented two student-directed one-act plays during spring quarter.

Sounds of vocal harmony coming from Morrill Hall mean a practice of Iowa State Singers is in session. The Singers make many appearances during the year under the direction of Prof. Robert McCowen. Between halves of the Iowa State-Oklahoma football game the group sang under the direction of Fred Waring. Singers performed at Club 2000 and the Pops Concert with the band. At the Christmas Festival of Music the group presented selected choruses from Handel's "Messiah" and also sang Roy Ringwald's "The Christmas Crib." Singers' winter concert included numbers ranging from 17th century Handel to selections from a contemporary folk opera. Between winter and spring quarters Singers toured northwest Iowa presenting concerts in Fort Dodge, Storm Lake, Webster City and several other towns.

Symphony Orchestra

Persons with an interest in symphonic music may find an outlet for their interests and talents through participation in the Iowa State Symphony Orchestra. Members of the group are college students, faculty members and residents of Ames and surrounding towns. Under the direction of Dr. Alvin R. Edgar, the group presents a concert each quarter. Prof. Lucien Stark, pianist, was soloist at the fall concert at which soprano Caroline Stark and the Varsity Four presented selections from Meredith Willson's hit show, "The Music Man." Concert organist Richard Ellsasser played both classical and popular numbers at the orchestra's winter concert. The orchestra performed at the Christmas Festival of Music where it played the "Christmas Festival Overture" and also accompanied the Iowa State Singers on selected choruses of Handel's "Messiah." The annual tour took orchestra members to five cities in northern Iowa and southern Minnesota. This spring orchestra combined with Iowa State Singers in presenting a delightful informal Pops Concert in the Armory.

Concert Band

A SPECIALTY NUMBER, the trumpet trio composed of Greg Farnsworth, Fred Steele and Dick Turpin, entertains students at Marshalltown High School with its rendition of "Three Jacks."

Iowa State's Concert Band presents music ranging from classical overtures to contemporary selections still in manuscript form. Under the direction of Prof. Frank Piersol, the band participates in many musical events during the year. The band's first performance was at Club 2000, a Union Board function, in October. The band gave two performances of its popular Pops Concert in December. A portion of the band and the Iowa State Singers performed under the direction of Fred Waring between halves of the Iowa State-Oklahoma football game. Band members also participated in the Christmas Festival of Music and the Religion-in-Life Week convocation. Part of the band appeared on WOI-TV in connection with the series "This is Iowa State." Clarinetist Robert Lowry was soloist at the winter concert in February. Mr. Lowry is director of bands at Morningside College in Sioux City. Between winter and spring quarters the band took its annual three-day spring tour, playing nine concerts in towns northeast of Ames. Members stayed overnight in the homes of Hampton and Oelwein residents.

ON THE LINE members of the brass section await their cue to begin their final number, the floating ISC.

Wearing bright red uniforms, the 100 members of the Iowa State College Marching Band began the afternoon's activities at all home football games this year. Drum major Bob Bragonier led the group with four majorettes assisting him. The band presented a pre-game show, including a flag ceremony, and a half-time show. Prof. Frank Piersol, director of the band, plans all the shows himself. Detailed charts showing the position of each member are made of all formations. Three rehearsals a week are necessary to perfect the entertaining performances.

Religious

IOWA STATE STUDENTS are faithful in their attendance and participation in worship services and fellowship groups at the many churches near campus.

Student Religious Council

"Where Are You?" was the theme of winter quarter Religion-In-Life Week sponsored by Student Religious Council. The week began with All-Out-to-Church Sunday. The Rev. Joseph W. Mathews, of the Christian Faith and Life Community at the University of Texas, was main speaker at three convocations during the week. Subjects of his speeches were "The Despair of Where," "The Courage of Where" and "The Freedom of Where." Reverend Mathews discussed the personal meaning of faith as applied to the twentieth century. His talks also concerned the difference that faith makes in the lives of people as related to their goals, vocations and relationships with others. Chapel services were given by students each morning during the week in South Ballroom, Memorial Union. Daily discussion themes included brotherhood, dedication, personal integrity, service and the highway of God. Discussions with seminary students at campus residences provided increased opportunity for student participation in the week's activities. Eleanor Sundberg served as chairman of Religion-In-Life Week.

THE REV. JOSEPH W. MATHEWS emphasizes a point during his first speech, "The Despair of Where."

OPENING THE ALL-COLLEGE convocation in the Armory, members of Iowa State Singers present a group of religious selections.

Student Religious Council was organized in the spring of 1955 through the combination of the Interfaith Council and the Religion-In-Life Week Central Committee. Charles Lindahl served as president this year, with Eleanor Sundberg, vice-president; Helen Throckmorton, secretary; and Virginia Clawson, treasurer. Other members of the council included nine committee chairmen and representatives from each of the 21 religious organizations on campus. This group plans and coordinates all college religious activities and works toward closer understanding of each member group. The Religion-In-Life fall convocation was also sponsored by the group with The Rev. Liston B. Pope, Dean of the Yale Divinity School, as featured speaker.

Roger Williams Club

A Halloween party with Frisbie Fellowship that included a pumpkin carving contest, provided an evening of enjoyment for members of Roger Williams Fellowship. Affiliated with the American Baptist Movement, the group, an American Baptist Student Group, was organized in 1917 to provide an opportunity for growth and study of Christian beliefs and commitments. The Fellowship sent delegates to the United Nations Seminar in Washington, D. C., at the end of winter quarter. The group also participated in the Iowa Baptist Student Movement retreat during the spring. Lee Christensen served as president of the group. Other officers included Rosalee McLean, first vice-president; Ellis Giddens, second vice-president; Mary Endter, secretary; and Paul Sanders, treasurer. The Rev. Franklin Murdock is the adviser of the group.

EMPHASIS is on social activities as members of Roger Williams Club gather at the church for Sunday supper.

GROUP SINGING sets the tone for the remainder of the club's evening program, centered on worship and discussion.

Lutheran Student Association

Study, fellowship, service and worship as man's response to God's deed serve as the purposes of the Lutheran Student Association, organized in 1922. Activities of the 300 member group this year included buffet suppers and programs each Sunday, retreats each quarter, hayrides and seasonal parties held throughout the year. Members of the group publish a Lutheran Student Association newspaper, "The Key," once a month. A smorgasbord supper is an annual affair. The graduate group holds seminars on science and theology. The student center is open all day, and the Lutheran Student Association meets every Sunday for those interested. Weekday activities include choir, "lift groups," noncredit courses, Bible study and committee study projects. Pastor John Schultz and Karen Nelson, counselor, serve as advisers for the group.

Gamma Delta

DOING A BIT OF VOCALIZING at one of the Gamma Delta Sunday night meetings is their popular quartet of Bob Wunderlich, Karl Voelkel, Dick Geliow and Larry Genzen.

One hundred dollars was given by Gamma Delta, the International Association of Lutheran Students, to the international project for missionary work in Nagercoal and Rio De Janeiro, Brazil. The 150 members of Theta chapter also worked to provide draperies for the student lounge. Other activities included a "Freezer Party," presentation of the film, "Martin Luther," and senior recognition night. Members of Gamma Delta must be students at Iowa State and communicant members of a Lutheran church of the Synodical Conference. Purposes are to study the Bible, to train students for service to God and their fellow men and to increase fellowship among Lutheran students. The student center is open at all times for relaxation and study. Television, ping-pong, cards, hi-fi, radio and piano are available. Coffee hour discussions on topics of interest to Christianity are held in the student lounge on Tuesday afternoons.

Newman Club

A retreat each quarter, several mixers, a semiformal dance, a hayride and other seasonal parties were among this year's activities of Newman Club. Any Catholic student at Iowa State is eligible to be a member, and meetings of the 750 members are held Sunday nights at the Catholic Student Center. Purpose of the group is to further the religious, educational and social growth of its members. A special project of the club during the past year has been the support of a Hungarian student. Newman Club sponsored daily coffee hours at the student center, evening religious classes and breakfast after two masses each Sunday. Officers included Janet Purdy, president; Roman Schoenherr, vice-president; Pat Solomon, recording secretary; Jane Judge, corresponding secretary; and George Kriz, treasurer. The Iowa State group, organized in 1911, is a member of the National Newman Club Federation.

CHAPLAINS for the Newman Club are Father James Supple, seated, and Fathers Roger Sullivan and David Voels.

Wesley Foundation

A trip to Chicago highlighted the year for some of the members of Wesley Foundation. During Thanksgiving vacation the group visited skid row missions, the slum districts, investigated various problem areas of Chicago and talked with officials about the city's problems. Members of Wesley Foundation are students expressing a Methodist preference. The organization provides a "church away from home" for the student. It seeks to educate him in the church's history, in the meaning of Christianity, what Methodism stands for and the church's problems and opportunities. After Christmas the group sponsored a semiformal dance called "Crystal Fantasy." In February members of Wesley presented "No Exit," a play by Jean-Paul Sartre, a contemporary French playwright who is an existentialist. Other activities included Bible study groups, short term worship-study study groups and preparation for marriage classes.

WHEN THE OFFICIAL PROGRAM for the evening is finished, members of Wesley end the meeting with an informal gathering in the modern church parlors.

Westminster Fellowship

The annual pancake supper, held at Collegiate Presbyterian Church, was one of the highlights of the year for Westminster Fellowship. The group meets every Sunday evening for dinner and a program. Members share in Christian fellowship while giving service to the campus and to the community. The fall retreat was at the 4-H camp in Boone in October. Westminster Fellowship also plans and presents a weekly program for the mentally retarded patients at Woodward State Hospital. Each year the group sponsors a student who is selected by the Westminster membership to spend his junior year abroad in Lebanon. Through these and other activities, Westminster Fellowship endeavors to be a worshipping, a searching, a serving and a witnessing community. The Rev. William H. Henderson serves as the adviser of the group.

During the year the YMCA members directed their energy toward the development of leadership qualities, a varied social life, and contributions to the community and to the world. Guided by Jack Brouillette, president, this group took an active part in campus life. The Iowa State YMCA is a fellowship of students and faculty members "who by study, worship, and service are seeking to understand Christ, and in His spirit, to serve their fellow men on campus, in the nation and throughout the world." The YMCA sponsors the annual Freshman Y Camp in the fall and maintains the Lynn Fuhrer Lodge for retreats and meetings. Throughout the year, the members were busy participating in the international student parties, faculty forums, the Washington-United Nations Seminar and fireside discussions. The YMCA's largest project is the All-College Freshman Mixer sponsored jointly with the YWCA in the fall. Through its many programs, the YMCA offers companionship, leadership and guidance in college life to all Iowa State men.

YWCA

YWCA provides the women of Iowa State an opportunity to participate in its many programs, to have fun, to share wisdom and ideas and to learn about the Christian faith. The Y has a varied program for the development of the spiritual, social and intellectual life of individual members. This includes "All-Y" programs every other week with small discussion groups meeting on the alternate weeks. Freshman women meet in separate groups which enables them to become acquainted with the YWCA and its program. Fall quarter the Y sponsored a calendar book sale, and during winter quarter the freshman members were busy making popcorn balls. Money received from these sales is used for scholarships to a summer conference at Lake Geneva, Wisconsin. Members of the Y also sponsor a Camp Fire Girls program for Wilson School in Ames, a baby-sitting service and other projects directed toward the entire community. A student, whether freshman or senior, enjoys the companionship and help in college life that the YWCA offers.

INTO THE HANDS of booking agent Mark Van Slyke fell the task of negotiating and completing arrangements for all major band attractions which appeared on campus.

PERSONABLE TED HEATH and his band presented a light and varied jazz program as one of the attractions for the Jazz Concert series.

Orchestra Service

Orchestra Service, a central agency of Cardinal Guild, was organized in 1927 as a nonprofit concern to book top bands for all-college and residence functions. This booking service is also extended to other organizations on campus to arrange bands and combos for individual functions. During the past year famous name bands of Richard Maltby, Stan Kenton, Les Elgart, and Ted Heath appeared on campus. The Four Freshmen delighted audiences with a concert in Great Hall, Memorial Union, during winter quarter.

WINTER QUARTER'S concert spotlighted the Four Freshmen who made their third appearance on campus as headliners in the Jazz Concert programs.

Iowa State Debaters

PRESIDENT Norm Halvorson discusses a point with other members of Debaters as he presides at a weekly meeting.

On-campus debate activities and off-campus tournaments occupied the time of members of the Iowa State Debaters during the school year. Around 50 persons were active in the group this year with membership open to any student interested in all phases of debating. The group is organized to provide training and experience for students whose interests range in the areas of speech work, from debate to poetry. Activities in the various areas of speech may be done individually or in discussion groups. Last year the Debaters sponsored a debate for Religion-in-Life Week and presented a Lincoln-Douglas debate during Veishea. The Debaters traveled to the University of Omaha, Kansas State Teachers College, University of Iowa, University of Illinois, University of Texas, University of Nebraska, Marquette University and the University of Dubuque for tournaments.

Arnold Air Society

PREPARING FOR THEIR ANNUAL flight inspection trip, Arnold Air Society men pack gear and equipment before taking off for Denver, Colorado.

The 35 members of Arnold Air Society, advanced AFROTC students, were selected for membership on the basis of their scholarship, leadership ability, and interest in the AFROTC and USAF. The group, organized in 1950, is designated to promote air age education and establish a closer relationship among AFROTC cadets. Formerly considered a national professional organization on campus, AAS became a four-year organization this fall. A steak fry to welcome new members into AAS was given following initiation ceremonies in the fall.

In December Iowa State's O'Neill Chapter was host to a five-state area conclave. Arnold Air Societies from Nebraska, Kansas, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa attended. Features of the three-day meeting were a banquet and a speech by a member of the Strategic Air Command. AAS makes an award in the spring to the outstanding AFROTC sophomore. Other projects of the group are a Veishea concessions stand and an all-Air Force drill team.

Order of the Sextant

Boot weeks during fall and spring quarters serve the purpose of initiating new members into Order of the Sextant, a naval honorary. Part of the unique initiation activities consist of pledges taking coeds on rowboat excursions across Lake LaVerne. Pledges also serenade the women's residence halls and sororities during Boot Week. At the initiation ceremony fall quarter, guest speaker Capt. William Drane told about many interesting experiences of his naval career. Requirements for membership in Sextant include that all students must be in good standing in the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps Unit at Iowa State. Members must have a minimum naval aptitude mark of 3.25 and be in the first, second or third class of NROTC. Joni Rutherford reigned as queen of this year's "Navy Ball," held in Des Moines. The Order of the Sextant was organized to further the interest and prestige of the United States naval activities at Iowa State.

Scabbard and Blade

The "Military Ball," presented during spring quarter, highlighted activities of Scabbard and Blade during the past year. Organized in 1905, Scabbard and Blade elects men in the top one-fourth of the advanced military classes for membership. Purpose of the honorary is to raise the standards of military education and bring a closer relationship among the departments. Scabbard and Blade also works to encourage the essential qualities of efficient officers and promote friendship among cadet officers. Awards were presented by Scabbard and Blade to the best-drilled Reserve Officers Training Corps units. The group had a membership of approximately 60 men. Officers included Mike Steffenson, president; Lee Jones, vice-president; Cecil Jacobs, secretary; and Al Miller, treasurer. Commander W. K. Berkley served as faculty adviser.

Pershing Rifles

Members of Pershing Rifles have charge of the flag-raising ceremony at athletic events. The group is a national basic Reserve Officers Training Corps honor society. Purpose of the group is to further excellence in basic ROTC drill. Pledges, who must have an all-college grade point of 2.0, are selected by the active members. This year the group totaled 15 actives and 50 pledges. The Iowa State unit of the national organization was activated in 1949. Members attended a regimental drill meet at Milwaukee, Wis., last spring. A crack drill squad was organized during winter quarter. The group also sponsored concessions stands at basketball games. This year the Pershing Rifles was under the leadership of Bernard Romig, commander. Lee Jones served as executive officer. Advisers included Capt. W. W. Miller, Capt. J. N. Pfliger and Sgt. A. G. Holmes.

Advanced Artillery Cadets

The Society of Advanced Artillery Cadets is a local group organized in order that students may have an opportunity to learn more about the military service and artillery, in addition to the information that is received in classroom instruction. To become a member of this professional organization, a student must be enrolled in the artillery branch of the advanced military program. The members met the first Tuesday of every month at 7:30 p.m. in the Electrical Engineering Auditorium. Larry Fox guided the activities of the SAAC and presided over the group of approximately 65 members this year. Dave Emmert was vice-president with George Jarrard as treasurer. Maj. William H. Brands served as faculty adviser for the society this year. The cadets provided and decorated their own room for the "Military Ball" given during spring quarter.

Military Department

Looking around the campus in the early afternoon, a visitor to Iowa State might think that the United States Army had taken over.

The men wearing the Army uniforms are members of the Army Reserve Officers Training Corps. Pictured on these two pages are senior men who are in advanced AROTC. They are all in their fourth year of AROTC training. The Morrill Act specifies that military training be included as part of the curriculum at land-grant institutions such as Iowa State. Members of the AROTC may join either the Signal Corps, Engineers or Artillery. Men in all three branches have attended summer camp. Members of the artillery branch went to Fort Sill, Okla., while Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., was the destination of the Engineers. Signal Corps cadets attended camp at Fort Gordon, Georgia.

Fraternities

Governing the fraternity system at Iowa State is the Interfraternity Council, a group representing each of the 31 houses on campus. In its capacity as coordinator of fraternity activities, IFC sponsors programs and activities for the mutual benefit and pleasure of all members of the Greek system. Administrative, legislative and judicial branches of IFC handle specific areas of activity for the fraternity group, organize rush week procedure, plan public relations and promote activities and service projects for the fraternity system. Special programs which IFC supports include a Christmas party for Ames children, Greek Week and the Iowa State Star. A new lithograph machine was purchased this year to facilitate printing of the Star, a bi-weekly publication containing news of interest to members of fraternities and sororities. Interfraternity Council sponsors scholarships for Iowa high school students. These awards are given each fall to students selected on the basis of academic achievement and participation in activities.

MUTUAL PROBLEMS OF IFC and Panhel are aired at a joint meeting of the two groups led by Jim Covey, IFC president.

IFC Council

Pledge members of the fraternity system are represented at the Interfraternity Pledge Council which seeks to promote cooperation among pledge classes and encourage development of leadership in new members of the fraternity system. Main project of the year for the fraternity pledges is the IFPC dance. This year the group planned a gay Mardis Gras party early spring quarter. Candidates for pledge princess were selected from sorority pledge classes, with one coed chosen to reign over the dance. IFPC began a new policy of awarding a traveling scholarship trophy to the pledge class which showed the most improvement in grades each quarter. Representatives to pledge council were elected for two quarters instead of their usual one quarter of service. For the third year all members of the fraternity systems participated in a special nominating convention to select new officers for IFC. The convention proceeded according to general rules with nominations, speeches and presentation of platforms. Elections followed in the fraternity houses on the Monday after the convention.

OFFICERS OF IFPC work on new policies concerning the traveling scholarship trophy which the pledge council awarded for the first time this year.

Greeks plan special week, entertain at children's Christmas party

Under the joint sponsorship of IFC and Panhel, Greek Week was presented fall quarter. Kickoff event was a picnic for 2,000 fraternity and sorority members, followed by tapping of 24 students and four faculty members for Gamma Gamma. Informal activities filled the remainder of the weekend. The combined efforts of men and women of the Greek system meant an exciting afternoon for 1,100 Ames grade school youngsters who were guests at the fraternity houses for the annual Christmas party.

SORORITY AND FRATERNITY members danced to the music of local combos at informal open houses Friday night of Greek Week.

SATURDAY'S OLYMPICS provided thrills and spills in a series of obstacle races and a hula-hoop contest.

WEARING THEIR CROWNS of Greek nobility, Karen Johnson and Ron Baukol reigned over Greek Week activities.

RUSH WEEK PROVIDES popular outdoor interest for fraternity men who move their rakes and chairs from spot to spot to survey the new freshmen.

Acacia

TAKING FIVE, three Acacians pause in front of the house bulletin board to discuss coming social events.

An atmosphere of ancient Egypt, from decorations to the combo music, greeted guests at Acacia's fall costume party, "Night on the Nile." Traditional hayrides and informal firesides filled out the fall social calendar. Scholarship and activities form a basic part of the Acacia men. In the area of academic achievement, house actives placed second while the pledges were on top in the scholarship ratings of the fraternity system. Balancing these achievements with extracurricular interests, the Acaians possessed the highest activity rating of any campus residence winter quarter. House intramural teams were active throughout the year, playing in Class A basketball and softball competition. Both teams went down to defeat in the semifinal games. Acacians marked their fiftieth year on campus with Founders' Day, March 20.

GETTING IN SHAPE for intramural contests, a doubles team practices in the basement recreation room.

Spring social events centered around the house formal and the "Street Beat" party. The former was a formal dance held at the Nevada Country Club. With the Pi Phis and AGRs the Acacians enjoyed their hobo costume party, "Street Beat." Fall quarter's big event was Dads Weekend. Parents arrived at the fraternity house, attended Saturday's football game, and enjoyed informal get-togethers before the Dads took over the house for the night.

ADELANTES HAVE NO problems when the TV set quits working. Their own "experts" have it fixed in no time.

Men of Adelante noted the fifty-first anniversary of the fraternity with a Founders' Day celebration at Memorial Union. The event was highlighted by a banquet attended by many of the chapter's alumni. Winter quarter Adelantes and their dates enjoyed the gala "Mardi Gras" party. The event attracted a variety of partyhoppers who came to join the fun. Highlight of the dances given during the year was the spring formal. Couples danced to the music of Mark Van Slyke and applauded the Lady of Adelante, selected from house pinmates. Rounding out the social calendar were a series of exchanges with the sororities and women's dorms. Hayrides in the fall and numerous picnics in the spring meant pleasant times at house functions and exchanges as well.

INTERRUPTING A BRIDGE game, energetic Troy snoops around the table looking for a snack.

During the weeks of winter quarter a fireside was planned after every weekend home basketball game. Parents were honored at a special weekend in the fall. With their sons, Mothers and Dads added vocal support to help send the football team to victory. A hearty dinner at the fraternity house followed the game. Adelantes were active during winter intramural competition. The house basketball team was a contender in the Class A semifinals.

Alpha Chi Rho

QUICKEST AND EASIEST way to solve problems of sparkling up the room is to sweep the dust and paper under the nearest rug.

Members of Alpha Chi Rho greeted the new school year with several improvements in their house. A complete set of new drapes was hung at all the windows on the first floor and in the dining room. The additions inside were equalled on the outside of the house with landscaping and new shrubs. Against a backdrop depicting the New York City skyline, the Crows entertained their dates at the annual spring formal in April. Dancing in the ballroom of the Ames Hotel followed a special banquet. Theme of the party was "Manhattan Melodies." Early fall quarter the pledges bravely challenged the actives to a game of touch football at Brookside Park. Although each team fought valiantly, the experience of the actives proved to be the turning point in the contest.

PLENTY OF BACKSEAT drivers have free advice for these Crows trying to concentrate on the bidding in a challenging bridge game.

Exchanges, parties and firesides were an important part of the Crows' social life. For their "Obnoxious" party, the Crows donned the oldest and most faded work clothes they could find. Imaginations ran wild in an attempt to create the weirdest costume of the evening. The winter quarter pajama party featured prizes for the couple with the best costume. At one special fireside, Crows and their dates came bundled up in scarves and mittens and plenty of warm clothes for an old-fashioned hayrack ride.

Ranch gear, lots of straw and pounds of fresh barbequed beef caught the fancy of couples attending the AGR "Farmer's Ball" spring quarter. A treasured memento from the party was the picture of each couple sitting in a horse-drawn buggy. More sophisticated of the house social events was the lovely "Pink Rose Formal." With dozens of pink roses and AGR sweetheart Jan Hall as reigning queen, the evening provided a memorable occasion. Turning their attention to intramurals, the fraternity men banged their way past all other competition in the class to win the Class C basketball championship. The house team provided plenty of competition in softball before winding up as runner-up in the Class B race. Purchase of a new piano for the living room meant the opportunity to convert the old piano for use in the house recreation room.

THE UNUSUAL CHARM of the tinny rinky-tink piano attracts plenty of ARGs for a session of informal singing.

HOME WAS NEVER like this, these two ARGs discover as they attempt to apply their scientific knowledge to the principle of getting weekly wash done.

For their Veishea float AGRs used bright crepe paper to depict a traditional setting for the "First State Fair." The fraternity men carried their activities into the summer months with a picnic at the Isaac Walton League Park in July. Additional interests in college activities are important to many of the AGRs who participate on college judging teams, agricultural council and departmental clubs.

Alpha Sigma Phi

THE SOUND of high fidelity adds a fine note to artistic recordings these Alpha Sigs discover as they listen to their new hi-fi set.

Alpha Sigs began the school year with a whirl into the roaring twenties at their costume party, "Dillinger's Dive." Decorations were in tune with life of the period, including the Alpha Sig version of a speak-easy, gambling casino and typical dance hall. To reciprocate for the enjoyable fall party, the pledges treated actives and their dates to an elaborate "Mardi Gras" party during winter quarter. The "Black and White Formal," an annual event, was part of the house spring social festivities. Alpha Sigs and their dates remained consistent with the black and white color scheme, from decorations to the color of corsages. Active in intramurals, the Alpha Sigs captured the Class D basketball title.

DILIGENT WORKERS, these Alpha Sigs spent many hours painting the large backdrop for their Homecoming display.

They were runners-up in Class B and placed second in Class A softball. Prime among Alpha Sig pastimes were dancing, listening, or studying to the new hi-fi system. The system was also a popular asset for many exchanges and parties. Serious activities occupied the time of many Alpha Sigs who were members of honoraries, including Tau Beta Pi, Eta Kappa Nu, Phi Eta Sigma and Phi Kappa Phi.

Celebrating the golden anniversary year of their founding on the campus of Iowa State College, the Alpha Tau Omegas invited house alums to enjoy the festivities of Homecoming weekend with them. The reunion included a banquet and dance in Des Moines. Guest speaker for the occasion was the national president of the fraternity. Alpha Tau Omega was founded as a national fraternity in 1865 for the purpose of helping to reunite the North and the South following the Civil War.

The chapter house took on wintry decoration for a "Bavarian Holiday," the ATO winter formal. A quaint turnstile separating the living and dining rooms added to the atmosphere of an evening in the "old country." Around the world for another party, ATOs and their dates, bare foot and saronged, danced to the rhythmic beat of calypso music.

Couples danced under a grass roof and drank punch from hollowed-out pineapples, a tradition at this annual occasion.

ATO's GATHER AROUND the piano for a few moments of informal singing before the call to dinner.

FOND OF MUSIC, ATO men spend much time listening to hi-fi selections from their vast record library.

Athletic honors which ATOs received during the year included second place in Class A softball and Class B and D football titles. The rich chorus of men's voices added extra quality to the spring Sinfonia Sing. For their performance the house was awarded the second place trophy. The living room of the chapter house received new furniture, a painting, and indirect lighting during the year.

Beta Sigma Psi

"LET'S SEE, that mailman couldn't have forgotten me again today," think these four Beta Sigs as they search the house mail supply.

Originality was the goal—and one could hardly say it was not achieved—as the Beta Sigs presented their "Mad Visits the Paris Sewers" party this year. The evening of fun was attended by Beta Sigs and their dates attired in a wide and wild variety of costumes. The house recreation room boasts a new ping-pong table this year. The room was redecorated and new curtains at the windows were made by the pinmates of house members. Sports brought Beta Sig men several honors, a volleyball intramurals Class D first place, a second place in Class A bowling, and first place in the 157-pound wrestling class. Iowa State Beta Sigs attending national convention at Kansas State last April, received two awards for the chapter, the attendance award and the award for displaying the outstanding chapter scrapbook.

CATCHING THE NEWS on the run, Jerry Johanson scans the Daily and grabs a bite of breakfast before dashing off to a 7:30 class.

Spring quarter's "Gold Rose Formal" climaxed the Beta Sig social calendar. The evening of dinner and dancing took place in Marshalltown, during which Carla Knoll was chosen Beta Sig Sweetheart. A large roulette wheel, optimistically predicting, "We'll Roll to Victory," was the basis for the house Homecoming display. The wheel was "fixed" so only Iowa State could win the game.

Music rates as a top interest and activity for the men of the Beta house. Well-known for their singing talents, Betas plan an annual goal of having at least one serenade for each women's residence. For the third straight year the Beta entry in Sinfonia competition placed among the three highest ranking houses. Hi-fi music cheered the Beta workers on as they labored through the wee hours of the morning on the finishing touches for their Veishea float and Homecoming display. For Veishea the Betas chose to depict a long past American tradition—the horse-drawn trolley, complete with two large Percherons for locomotion. "Get the Point" was the title of the house Homecoming display which featured a buccaneer holding a Kansas Jayhawk at sword's point.

PRELIMINARY PLANS are an important step in Homecoming display construction believe George and Dick as they check a scale model of the design.

SATURDAY NIGHT get-togethers offer an opportunity for a favorite Beta pastime—group singing around the house piano.

Newly pledged sorority women are initiated to pledge life each fall with the Beta breakfast. Each pledge class is invited for an informal buffet breakfast followed by group singing. The "Beta Barbeque" has become a big event of fall quarter activities. Betas and dates feast on a dinner of steaming hot roast pig and wind up the evening with a dance. Pledges planned a party based on the theme "Playboy." They decorated rooms of the house to show the Orient, the Gay 90's and France.

Delta Chi

ALREADY PLANNING for a winning Veishea float, these Delta Chis have marked a spot for their 1959 parade trophy.

The fabulous Ziegfield Follies of the 1920's came to life once more on the Delta Chi Veishea float. For their display of craftsmanship, beauty in design and appropriateness of theme, the men received second place trophy in the fraternity division. "Club 405" party brought an opportunity to change the atmosphere and decor of the house to that of an exclusive penthouse. The party was planned by the actives as a "thank you" to the pledges for the semiformal "Pirate Party." Approximately seven house exchanges each quarter and several semiformal parties and firesides helped fill the social life of the Delta Chis. Parents of the Delta Chis were special guests at the house during Parents Weekend on campus. Mothers and Dads were invited for Sunday dinner and an informal get-together.

A HOT CUP OF COFFEE is always available in the Delta Chi house kitchen which is open for snacks every hour of the day and night.

At the alumni banquet on Homecoming weekend, the outstanding freshman pledge was recognized and presented with an award. Unique among the special attractions at the Delta Chi house is the kitchen which stays open 24 hours a day. Between-meal snacks, sandwiches, desserts, milk and coffee are always on hand to help tide the fraternity men over after a hard intramural game or through a long stretch of studying. Delta Chis recognized with pride the selection of Gene Havens as president of Cardinal Key.

Delta Sigs, noted for their outstanding floats and displays, received the top trophy for their Homecoming display, "KU Ain't Got a Hare of a Chance." It was the second time in two years that the fraternity was awarded this honor, and last spring marked the sixth consecutive year Delta Sigma Phi has placed in the judging of Veishea floats. The active alum group of Delta Sig considerably revised the housing situation of the local chapter this year.

During the summer, the entire upstairs of the chapter house was remodeled with built-in wardrobes. The alums purchased a house on Knapp Street which is presently being used as the Delta Sig annex. Delta Sigs will long remember the horseback riding exchange they enjoyed with the Kappas at the crack of dawn one Saturday morning. The Delta Sigs changed their house decor to a New Orleans setting for the annual "Apache Dance" in November. As winter quarter got under way, the men held their annual "Sailors Ball." Male attire for the occasion was sailor suits, while dates came dressed as girls from every port.

Climax of the spring social events was the formal dance, "The Carnation Ball," named after the fraternity flower. The Delta Sig Dream Girl was crowned during the dance.

Delta Tau Delta

THE CHRISTMAS holiday is celebrated with a feast at the house for Delt alumni and their families.

Members of the Iowa State chapter of Delta Tau Delta participated in the fraternity's national centennial celebration at a Founders' Day banquet in conjunction with the Iowa University chapter and the Des Moines alumni group. At the same time the Delts noted their establishment as the first fraternity at Iowa State.

Winning the fraternity division third place trophy for their Homecoming display was exciting news for the Delts. Their decoration pictured the Kansas football team being packed into a sardine can. In conjunction with IFC, the Delts entertained at a children's Christmas party to close out activities of the fall months. The "Orchid Formal" in Des Moines opened the winter social season for house members. In keeping with over 50 years of tradition, the Delts once again presented their "Lucky Pierre" party. Couples came attired in typical French costumes.

SPOTLIGHTS SHINED through the damp, chilly night as the Delts labored to complete their Veishea float.

Setting and music further carried through the French influence. With almost all house members participating in intramural activities, the Delts won Class A bowling second place and the Class D softball title. Four Gamma Pi alumni were honored by Iowa State last year when they were presented with centennial citations recognizing persons who had made a unique contribution to the stature of Iowa State during the 100 years since the college's founding in 1858.

Intramural activity claimed top interest for the Delta Upsilon house this year as the house teams triumphantly nabbed first and second place in winter quarter volleyball, first in bowling and second in Class A basketball. Spring tennis singles championship was won for the DUs by John Kjerland. Members of Delta Upsilon were hosts for the provincial conclave during the year. The meeting brought DU men from Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska and Manitoba, Canada, to the campus. One of the most "international" aspects of living at the Delta Upsilon house is getting to know Pim de Pagter, a student from the Netherlands. Pim makes his home with the DUs while studying industrial administration at Iowa State.

THE HOUSE CHRISTMAS party and exchange of "unusual" gifts added light-hearted spirit to the season.

IN A HUDDLE about strategy for a coed volleyball game, DUs and Chi Os plan tactics to defeat their opponents.

Parents, allowed at initiation because of its non-secrecy, enjoyed seeing their sons become active members of Delta Upsilon spring quarter. Moms and Dads were also entertained at a house dinner after the Parents Day football game last fall. In February, DUs and dates danced at the Boone Country Club amid a "contemporary" baffle of translucent plastic rectangles, colored straws and modernistic satellites which served as decorations. When warm spring weather arrived, the DUs took their dates on a migration party to the YMCA camp.

FarmHouse

A HEARTY BREAKFAST helps revitalize FarmHouse men after a late evening study session.

The Iowa State chapter of FarmHouse was noted as the fraternity's outstanding chapter in the country at the national conclave. About one-fourth of the house members were on hand for presentation ceremonies at Purdue University, Oct. 1. The award which the house received was a traveling trophy given on the basis of chapter scholarship, leadership and social activity. Academic requirements for FarmHouse membership are high, a factor responsible for the consistency with which the fraternity is the all-campus scholarship leader. For the twelfth consecutive year FarmHouse men captured the residence scholarship trophy. Spring quarter they led all other residences with a 3.009 house average. Honoring the admission of Alaska as the 49th state, FarmHouse men titled their "Farmer's Frolic," as "Seward's Frolic."

NO ONE ESCAPES the inevitable "pleasure" of a showering party as Red Brannen finds out.

Decorations pointed out some of the features of Alaska — especially the FarmHouse man's idea of such places as the "Pink Garter Saloon," the "Klondike Trading Post," and an igloo with the caption, "Don't Melt the Ice." Plans are on the drawing board for a new ranch-style house for the fraternity which will cover two lots. Progress is being made on the building program; and with alumni and active support, the house will be completed by 1967. During winter quarter FarmHouse men treated relatives of Ames alumni and sisters of the active members at a special dinner party.

Kappa Sigs celebrated their local and national founding Dec. 10 with a banquet at the fraternity house. During the program scholarship awards, established by the alumni group, were presented by Dr. Ray Hannum.

The awards were given to the active and pledge highest in scholarship, the active showing the greatest scholastic improvement and the outstanding member in both the junior and senior class. Western costume was the style for the annual fall dance, "Kappa Sig Bar-Nothing," held at the Larry Jo Ranch. Dates took over the Kappa Sig house that night with the men joining them in the morning for breakfast. In February Kappa Sig events included the "Black and White Formal." Men and their dates dressed in these colors following the theme of the dance.

SCRUTINIZING THE efficiency of two of the pledges, actives laughingly check dusting operations on the piano and array of trophies.

CLEANING THE BIRDS bagged on a hunting expedition, these Kappa Sigs work hard in anticipation of the feast ahead.

Fraternity members and dates also enjoyed a "Shipwreck Party," for which the chapter house was decorated as a South Sea island with fish nets, palm trees and life rafts. On Homecoming weekend the lawn of the house displayed a rocket ship aimed for outer space—the Kappa Sigs' conception of "The Jayhawks Are Out of It." House members demonstrated their athletic ability in intramurals to claim the Class A title in basketball. During Christmas vacation the chapter received new furniture for the dining room and a new trophy case.

AMATEUR CHEFS ENJOY concocting their own menu and "home cooking" food on the cook's night out.

Charlie Brown and other Peanuts' characters congregated on the lawn of the Lambda Chi Alpha house at Homecoming time to see Linus and his "Deadliest Blanket in the West." Bringing to mind the winter flu siege of last year, the Lambda Chis' Veishea float featured an enormous flu bug with the question, "Flu Get You?" At Christmastime, the Lambda Chis initiated a Christmas Door Decorating contest among Greek residences on campus. Winner of the event was the Alpha Delta Pi house. The dining room of the Lambda Chi chapter house has been refinished recently. Additional equipment in the house includes a home freezer and an adding machine, helpful in keeping financial matters in order.

PREPARING FOR THE FALL hunting season Lambda Chis put the final polish on their guns and gear.

Spring is the time for an annual party popular with the men of Lambda Chi, the "White Rose Formal." Lambda Chis and their dates observed the event with a dance at the Nevada Country Club. During the evening Nancy Sherwood was crowned "Crescent Girl." As an affiliate of the national fraternity with the largest number of local chapters, Alpha Tau Zeta chapter of Lambda Chi proudly celebrates its founding on the campus of Iowa State College each year in March.

Phi Delt men became football coaches for sorority members when practice began fall quarter for the yearly football classic, the Phi Delta Theta Powder Bowl. After the elimination games, the victors, Kappa Alpha Theta, were entertained at a dinner and an exchange. Social life for men of Phi Delta Theta was active and varied, including everything from the annual fall barbeque to a chop suey dinner exchange. Phi Delt and their dates enjoyed dinner before dancing to music of a jazz combo at the house "Spring Formal" in Des Moines. The annual "Bowery Party," sponsored by the pledges, turned the thoughts of guests to the story of Huckleberry Finn. Decorations for the party included a "showboat" and a "secret cave." A large addition to the house was completed in stages this year.

JON SPELMAN points out some of the interesting aspects of the mosaic design at the new entrance to the remodeled Phi Delt house.

STRIKING AN "HARMONIOUS" note, members of the Phi Delt pep band lead halftime entertainment at the Powder Bowl game.

The spacious new area made living room for 26 more men and included a living room, dining room, recreation room with fireplace and libraries on two floors. Fall quarter the Phi Delt were hosts for a reunion of 91 alums from the class of 1948. The local chapter was the fourth ranking Phi Delta Theta chapter in the country in the ratings for the Harvard Trophy, an award presented each year to the nation's outstanding chapter of the fraternity.

Fijis and their dates dressed in brightly colored sarongs, grass skirts, and wild, flowered sport shirts for the "Grass Skirt Party" spring quarter. Guests gained entrance to the house through a little grass shack in front of the door. Inside the house was decorated with tropical scenery and a 15-foot waterfall. Traditional favors of orchid leis were given to the dates. Decorated bones served as invitations, and entertainment consisted of dinner and dancing. Climax of the evening was the coronation of the "Fiji Grass Skirt Girl." During fall quarter, the Phi Gams joined the Thetas in their annual brother-sister fraternity celebration of the "Kite-Owl Howl." Fall also meant football games, and to show their loyalty, 25 Fijis and their dates participated in the Missouri migration game.

KEEPING A FRATERNITY house supplied with food is an enormous task find these Fijis as they help bring in one small load of items.

PARTY COMING UP? What to plan for favors poses a problem for Jim Ficke and John Shields as they inspect a novel possibility.

Highlighting fall quarter was the "Fiji Rose Formal," at the Sheldon Munn Hotel in Ames. Roses were given as favors, and during the evening Joan Herchenroder was chosen "Fiji Rose Girl." Last April, Alpha Iota chapter celebrated its golden anniversary of the annual Norris Dinner. Ninety graduates returned, among whom were many members of the "Noil Avrots," the local fraternity from which the Iowa State Phi Gams had their beginning.

A popular event with the Phi Kaps is their annual "Fisheaters' Brawl." Held this year on Oct. 31, the party theme was planned to incorporate the spirit of Halloween. Phi Kaps and their dates enjoyed a french fried shrimp dinner before an evening of dancing amid scenes of witches and goblins. Turning from one sea adventure to another, Phi Kaps presented their "Pirates' Ball," a costume party for which the entire house was decorated as a pirate's ship. Windows were changed to portholes, and walls became bulkheads. The merry pirates danced to the music of a combo group. Another major event on the Phi Kap social calendar was the spring formal, "Ophelia Overture," which took place at the Hotel Holst in Boone. Fraternity members enjoyed occasional dinner and dance exchanges with women's residences throughout the year.

PLEDGES TRY A new approach on a frothy piece of lemon chiffon pie. Such fun sessions provide variety for the usual eating pattern.

PHI KAPS ENJOY music at all times of the day. Long playing records and the depth of hi-fi recordings increase the pleasure of listening.

Homecoming brought alums back for a visit at the chapter house. The event provided a time for renewing friendships and an opportunity for alums to become better acquainted with the new members of the house. Many Phi Kaps undertook the task of remodeling their rooms this year. The remodeling job included refinished floors, and newly repainted ceilings and walls. One of the rooms features beds that fold into the walls, and several of the study rooms have modern indirect lighting.

"WONDER HOW THEY expect me to concentrate on these intellectual pursuits with so much commotion over the latest magazines."

Phi Psi athletes stacked up the top number of points in intramural competition to capture the sweepstakes trophy last spring. During the quarter they took top honors in the outdoor track meet, and fall found the Phi Psis with a championship in the all-college football tournament. Phi Psis demonstrated their athletic abilities not only on the intramural level, but in leisure time games of catch or basketball on their own backyard court. Appropriately, "Sportsman" was the theme of the annual fall house party. Couples danced to music provided by a combo group. Each winter the men of Phi Kappa Psi join with the members of Phi Gamma Delta to present the "Jeff Hop," celebrating the founding of the fraternities at Jefferson College.

FOUR HANDS, one thin quarter and an automatic washer make easy work out of the weekly task of washing your whole wardrobe.

In the spring the chapter house was pervaded with a French atmosphere, and guests appeared in costume as the Phi Psis presented their annual "Moulin Rouge" party. Phi Psis are noted for their entertaining Varieties skits of recent years, and this winter was no exception as they pooled their talents and ideas to present a take-off on "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof." Last fall the men honored returning alums at a dinner and party in Boone following the Iowa State-Kansas Homecoming game.

In a dreamy springtime setting, Phi Taus and dates enjoyed the annual house formal, "Phi Tau Fantasy." Couples dined at Thompson Plaza in Des Moines before the dance at Waveland Country Club in Des Moines. Special highlight of the evening was the coronation of Charlotte Sorenson as Phi Tau Dream Girl. "We'll Stop 'em Cold" was the motto used by the Phi Taus in constructing their Homecoming display. A large ice cube with a Kansas Jayhawk frozen in the middle illustrated the theme of the decoration. Last spring the Phi Taus celebrated their thirtieth year on the Iowa State campus. Alums and guests were invited to a celebration dinner at the house during Veishea. The house at 218 Welch Avenue received an addition and repairs this year.

INDUSTRIOUS STUDENTS Bob Eyerly and Kent Kruse burn some midnight oil to finish a term project on time.

"WISH I KNEW where to hang everything," ponders Herb Hoover as he finds his closet is filled too quickly.

New features included a stove for the kitchen, partial rewiring of the house and repairs on the boiler. At Christmas the brothers enjoyed a fireside party "at home." Later in the winter they presented the "She Kappa Tau Party," at which dates were formally initiated into the sisterhood of "She Kappa Tau." The initiation was followed by an evening of dancing and games. In intramurals the Phi Tau bowling team walked off with a first place title in Class B.

PI K As AND DATES at the "Jock Jamboree" sit out a dance to admire the autograph hounds which were favors at the party.

Pi Kappa Alpha celebrated the fraternity's founding with a banquet at Hotel Savery in Des Moines at which the national president spoke. Represented at the meeting were Pi K A chapters from Iowa State, Drake, Iowa University, Missouri University, and Omaha University. Pi K As and their dates danced at the Ames Country Club on the evening of the "Dream Girl Formal," the annual spring dance. Carol Handorf was chosen Dream Girl and presented with a loving cup and a dozen red roses to mark the occasion. During the same weekend, men and their guests enjoyed a Sunday afternoon picnic at the Ledges in Boone. "Jock Jamboree," the informal fall party, was based on an athletic theme, and guests came in sporty attire.

SETTLING DOWN with a hot cup of coffee, two Pi K As prepare to listen to their own short wave radio.

Another traditional costume event was the annual "Hawaiian Party" which took place in February. Dancing to the music of the Rhythm Knights, Pi K As and guests enjoyed the visits of many partyhoppers during the evening. A tea honoring all sorority pledge classes was given by the fraternity men in October, followed in November by a tea for sorority actives. Last fall the Pi K As constructed an enormous whale with two feet protruding from its mouth, representing the slogan "We Can't Swallow Defeat," for their Homecoming display.

An old saying received a new twist when the Pi Kappa Phis created their Homecoming decoration on the theme, "A Bird in the Hand is Worth Two in the Bush."

Social activities claimed a great amount of interest at the Pi Kapp house with the "Rose Ball" highlighting the year's events. A steak fry the evening before the formal dance helped set the mood for the weekend festivities. Dancing was in the Cloud Room of the Des Moines Municipal Airport on Saturday evening.

The coronation of Kaye Curran as reigning Rose Ball Queen climaxed festivities of the evening. Fall quarter plans were off to a fast start with two hayrides scheduled. Pi Kapps and their dates journeyed to Larry Jo's Ranch in Boone for one of the rides.

Winter quarter the chapter house was decorated to resemble a formal garden — an enchanting spot for February's "Snow Ball" dance. Redecorating rooms of the house was a big item for the Pi Kapps.

PLANNING DECORATIONS for their winter fireside, Pi Kapps and pin-mates decide what color crepe paper streamers will look best.

DEVOTING EXTRA TIME to studies isn't so difficult in the bright re-decorated living room at the Pi Kappa Phi house.

The chapter living room received a new look with a set of modern furniture. Contemporary design in the draperies and lighting fixtures added final polish. Long hours were spent spring quarter constructing the house Veishea float. In perfect large-scale replica, house members based the design for their float on the famous symbol of RCA Victor, the dog and the phonograph.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon

A DREAM ON ITS WAY to fulfillment is the new house library. Books were donated by the fraternity's national organization to start the venture.

SAEs greeted the new year with an extensive series of interior improvements in their home at 140 Lynn. From housemother's quarters to luxurious new library, rooms were re-decorated. Wall-to-wall carpeting in the living room, new draperies, furniture and hi-fi set were outstanding features of the remodeling program.

Through original book donations from the national fraternity, the Sig Alphas were able to realize the beginning of a functional library for the house. Furniture for this room was a gift of the Minerva Club, composed of Sig Alpha mothers and wives. Expert float builders, the Sig Alphas' Veishea entry, "Neither Rain Nor Sleet Nor Snow," took first place honors in the parade. The house won second for its gigantic Homecoming display and captured a top award in 1959 Varieties with its melodramatic presentation of "A Colonel's Dilemma."

WORK, WORK, WORK... all we do is work around here, polishing plaques and trophies and even actives' shoes. Wait 'til next year vow these two Sig Alpha pledges.

Sig Alpha pledges piled up the highest number of points at Greek Week Olympics to win the traveling trophy for the event. Believing in a relaxing type of spring party, Sig Alphas treated their dates to a lazy afternoon of floating down the Des Moines River at the "River Raft Party." A treasure hunt and barbeque were all part of the activities. Fraternity members practiced the art of "apple polishing" at their annual "Apple Polishers' Ball." Invitations to the faculty were in the form of a blue book.

Sigma Chis distinguished themselves in intramural participation by winning four trophies and the all-college tennis championship. Last winter quarter the house received first place trophy for most points per man; spring quarter, second place; and all year, third place, along with a third place trophy for total points accumulated. Coeds coming to the Sigma Chi house for dinner exchanges were greeted in a bright and unusual way at each party. Sigs enlarged their exchange concept by planning each one with a theme, special decorations and appropriate dress. Kappa Deltas found a cheery fire going in preparation for the "Chuck Wagon" exchange. With the tune of their famous sweetheart song providing background, Sigs named Peggy Elwood Sweetheart of Sigma Chi at the spring formal.

HOUSEMOTHER, Mrs. Leah Williams, always has a pot of coffee on hand when members of the house stop to relax for a minute.

READY TO GO in an important intramural basketball contest against the Sig Eps, the Sigma Chi first team plans its final strategy.

Preceding the dance at the Hotel Savery, Sigs and their guests attended the formal dinner at the Des Moines Club. Fall quarter Sigs and their dates participated in the "Miami Triad" with members of Beta Theta Pi and Phi Delta Theta, commemorating the founding of the three fraternities at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. New carpeting and drapes helped brighten the study rooms and wall-to-wall carpeting was put on the living room floor.

Sigma Nu

FINDING THEMSELVES in the thick of a muddy situation, two Thetas look for a fast escape from the after effects of their tug-of-war battle.

Loud cheers and hearty support greeted sorority teams participating in the "athletic" contest of the year, the Sigma Nu Relays. Climaxing the warm afternoon of burlap bounce, egg yagg and whipped cream races, was the trying tug-of-war contest, fought over a large mud pit in the front of the house. Gov. Herschel Lovelless was on hand to award the Gamma Phi Betas the first place trophy. Sigma Nus were justly proud of their colorful Veishea float, "The Driving of the Golden Spike." Featured on the 97-foot display were exact scale models of the two locomotives which took part in the historic coast-to-coast linking of the continent through the railroads. Highlighting the social program were the "White Rose Formal," the "Sodbuster's Ball" and the "Paddy Murphy Party."

SIGMA NUS ENJOY many hours of relaxed entertainment listening to the hi-fi set which members of the house built last year.

For the latter, a winter quarter party, dates were picked up in a "funeral procession" led by two hearses and transported to the fraternity house. Karen Speas was crowned White Rose Queen at the Sigma Nu spring dance. Music for the affair, held at the Sheldon Munn Hotel, was provided by the Jerry Vajgrt combo. The Sigma Nus brought home many honors in intramural competition by winning Class A softball, Class B basketball, Class C fall bowling and qualifying as runners-up in the golf tournament.

More than 2,000 man hours of work and two and one-half months of planning paid the top dividend for Sigma Phi Epsilon which won the coveted Veishea parade sweepstakes trophy. Their artistic trip to Disneyland pictured a fairyland castle with towers and drawbridge and flying Dumbo merry-go-round. In another field of endeavor, the fraternity men received second place trophy for total points in all-college intramurals. Parties, carols and the festive spirit of Christmas were in the air long before the holiday season at the Sig Ep house. The traditional Thanksgiving feast was moved to the first weekend of winter quarter.

EVERYBODY GOT into the act when Sig Eps and dates decorated the tree at the house Christmas party.

THIRTY-SIX AT ONE sitting! House members gathered around their oversized dining room table for the traditional holiday feast.

The men gathered around the enormous dining room table laden with holiday foods and managed to consume more than 125 pounds of turkey before the evening was over. Christmas greetings were spread across the campus by Sig Eps who spent the weekend before vacation in their annual custom of serenading the women's residences. Accompanist for the "choir" was their talented housemother, Mrs. Carl McKone, playing the hand organ. Yearly events on the Sig Ep social calendar include the Queen of Hearts Ball and the Saddle-and-Gun Club party during fall quarter.

Sigma Pi

Sigma Pi entered the fun of Homecoming activities by competing in opening festivities of the Triumph March. Their entry, "Captain Kid Got His Treasure. Now Let's Get Ours!" won the second place trophy. Biggest treasure of the year for the Sigma Pis was their pledge class which paneled the basement entry way to the house and redecorated the recreation room. Firesides and informal parties were popular weekend activities in the bright, "new" rec room. For their spring "Orchid Ball," Sigma Pis, dates and guests traveled to the Lincoln Lodge in Boone where a formal banquet was served. Dancing to the music of the Ambassadors followed at the chapter house. The Emeralds, Sig Pi quartet, provided intermission entertainment as Terry Wisnieski was crowned Orchid Queen.

TWO SATURDAY NIGHT COOKS brew some tempting concoctions which might disappear soon if the "audience" has its way.

GETTING A PERFECT TREE to fit the confines of the living room is often a difficult task, these Sig Pis find.

Sigma Pis and dates felt a little glued to the saddle after their picnic and horseback riding session in the early fall. The day's strenuous activity ended on a note of relaxation with a dance, refreshments and a skit given by the house pledges. To celebrate Valentines Day, Sig Pis planned a costume party with each couple dressing to represent a song title. Chaperones selected the outstanding and most imaginative outfits and presented the winning couple with a prize. Exchanges and parties with women's residences filled out the house social calendar.

An outstanding performance by the men of Tau Kappa Epsilon in Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia earned the sweepstakes trophy for the fraternity. Musical numbers presented by the group included "The Creation" and "Blow, Gabriel, Blow." Earlier in the year, the Tekes added a first place Varieties trophy to their collection with their winning skit, "Adam and Eve." Most lively addition to the house was a furry, fun-loving mascot, Benny III, a St. Bernard puppy. Social highlights of the year ranged from a frivolous "brawl" to the sedate and lovely spring formal. Gayest party of the year was the "Barroom Brawl," a costume affair incorporating a haunted house theme. The Tekes celebrated the Christmas season with a dinner dance just before the holidays.

"I KNOW YOU LIKE ME but..." winces Whitey Vorhies as Benny III, new St. Bernard mascot, extends an overpowering greeting.

BEGINNING PREPARATION for the spring Sinfonia Sing, Mark Van Slyke leads a group of Tekes in an informal sing following dinner.

House members entertained their dates at the fraternity's spring formal at the Boone Country Club. Yearly on Founders' Day house members plan their "Teke Night Around the World" banquet. Guests at the Jan. 10 dinner included the national president and vice-president of the fraternity. Spring quarter Tekes present five honors awards to different members of the house who have shown excellence in one special phase of house activity.

Theta Chi

Theta Chis played host to the regional conclave of the fraternity this spring when representatives from nine other colleges visited Iowa State. Keynoting the meeting was an address by one of the national officers. Group discussions during the weekend provided an opportunity for Theta Chis from this region to meet members of other chapters and to discuss topics of mutual interest. Emphasis in house programs during the year was on speakers and discussion groups. Wednesday nights prominent campus personalities or Ames' citizens were guests for dinner followed by informal meetings. Among the speakers were Father James Supple who discussed spiritual values and Director of Student Affairs, Millard Kratochvil who told of the work of his office.

POLISHING UP their jazz presentations, the Theta Chi combo puts forth full effort in a practice session in the recreation room.

STUDYING OR RELAXING, every problem has an easier solution when thinking is accompanied with soothing hi-fi music.

Social events included the spectacular "Carnation Cotillion," spring formal held at the Boone Country Club. Fall quarter Theta Chi men turned their attention to Homecoming work, constructing a victory castle with a Jayhawk unsuccessfully attempting to invade the castle, home of ISC's "Cy." In intramural activity, Theta Chi's bowling team added the Class A award to the house trophy case. The team placed first in competition during spring quarter.

Theta Delts paid tribute to a famous Iowan, Meredith Willson, with their Veishea float, "The Music Man." Action on the float depicted Willson's song, "76 Trombones," a popular favorite in this musical show. In a previous creative display of talent, house members produced "The Secret Life of John Sylvester" for the winter Varieties program. The humorous skit was a winner and received first place trophy during one of the weekly performances. Winter quarter the Theta Delts planned a fireside to help brighten the gloomy weather. The house "moved South" using a New Orleans theme for the party. The recreation room was converted into a casino and a French night club with a mural of the Mississippi riverside providing background.

A DOUBLES PING-PONG contest is the perfect outlet for excess energy at the end of a hectic day.

HEROES OF THE old West draw an attentive audience to the TV set at the Theta Delt house.

The house formal took the social spotlight spring quarter with lovely Judy Snyder, fiancée of one of the members, reigning as queen. Fraternity members also held their spring outing at the YMCA camp early in May. Theta Delts took advantage of the warm weather to enjoy a "Treasure Hunt Picnic" and a hayride during fall quarter. The cooling breezes in early November brought an indoor fireside for fraternity men and their dates. Athletically-inclined members helped the house win the Class B ping-pong championship and Class A runner-up spot in bowling.

Theta Xi

Alumni of Theta Xi gathered at the fraternity house April 4 to help celebrate the golden anniversary of establishment of the chapter at Iowa State. A program denoting Theta Xi's fiftieth year was a significant landmark in the chapter's events. Pancakes by the thousands came "hot off the griddle" at the popular Theta Xi Pancake Supper. The fraternity men entertained women from all residence groups at the dinner. Proceeds from the project were designated for the Lutheran Children's Home. Winter quarter the chapter house was transformed into a bowery with traditional swinging doors, a bar, and a "little casino" for the annual costume party, the "Bowery Brawl." Near the end of the quarter the pledges sponsored the "Short Shorts" party featuring an indoor picnic.

A POLISHED ASSEMBLY line crew prepared hundreds of plates of pancakes for the Pancake Supper.

PLENTY OF MAN HOURS and lots of midnight oil were needed to complete the Theta Xi's Homecoming display.

The Ledges became a musical park one Sunday afternoon in the spring with the Theta Xi combo and rinky-tink piano providing music for picnickers. Social activity fall quarter took the form of a formal party based on a holiday theme. All sorority social chairmen were welcomed to the Theta Xi house one Wednesday evening for an informal dinner and evening of entertainment. Theta Xi's "co-starred" with the Tri Deltas in the serenade scene of Stars over Veishea last spring.

The women's intramural trophy became a permanent possession of the Alpha Delta Pi house last spring after the women had captured first place honors in intramural competition for the past three years. Active participants in all the sports, the ADPis placed first in volleyball, swimming and table tennis singles during fall quarter and badminton singles during the winter program. A pledge-active retreat at the Boone Y Camp started the new school year for the ADPis last fall. The weekend activities provided an opportunity for fun and meditation and a chance to make new friendships. Fall quarter's "Hobo Party" featured dancing at the Ames Country Club preceded by a tasty hot dog feast and an exciting hunt for some hidden treasure.

Swimming, baseball, hamburgers and a dance on the tennis court added an extra touch of gaiety to the ADPi spring "Outdoor Party" at the Boone Y Camp. May poles and violet corsages decorated the tables at the May Founders' Day luncheon given in Memorial Union. Members of the Iowa State chapter were hostesses to coeds from other Iowa chapters at this commemoration of the founding of the sorority.

Alpha Gamma Delta

An old trunk room in the Alpha Gam house became a more useful part of the house this year when it was converted into a "concentration" study room. The addition of tile floor, painted ceiling, fluorescent lighting, new tables and chairs makes the room an excellent study spot. Alpha Gam pledges pitched in with great spirit on a washing cars, selling cookies, laundering sweaters project to earn money for a hi-fi set which they presented to the house during Veishea. The house actives matched their football skill against the other sororities in the annual Phi Delta Theta Powder Bowl. Bruised but happy, the Alpha Gams' prowess brought their team a second place in last fall's competition. Alpha Gams had an equally complete social calendar filled with firesides and parties.

PLEASED TO SEE some letters in their mailboxes, Alpha Gams hurry to this favorite spot the moment they come home.

SALLY BELLAMY ADDS a bit of expert advice in helping Carole Boughton select the right accessory for the big party.

A fireside at the chapter house accented the winter theme, with the house decorated like a ski lodge. "Santa Claus" read a poem about each date as he sat on Santa's knee to receive his gift. The house spring formal, "Alpha Gam Cotillion," was given at the Boone Country Club. Atmosphere was inspired by decorations based on a Southern theme. At Christmastime, instead of giving gifts to their pledge moms and daughters, the Alpha Gams used their money to buy clothing, equipment and medicine for a young boy ill with cerebral palsy.

Cave man costumes made from gunny sacks and wild-looking wigs, topped the list of imaginative costumes at the Veishea canoe races and brought the costume trophy to the Chi O house. Adding to their trophy collection, the Chi Os won a second place in Varieties with "My Square Lady," a satire on Iowa State campus life. Carnations and evergreens and a white Christmas tree decorated in blue, created a festive background for "Carnation Christmas," the winter formal. As traditional as the Christmas dance is the annual Thanksgiving dinner. Other social events included the "Pirates Prowl." Costumed guests entered the house through a tunnel and were taken to a fortune teller who predicted the future for the couples.

EXCITING MOMENTS of the Miss America pageant are relived by Jo MacDonald as she tells her sorority sisters all about the contest.

TOO MANY CLOTHES and not enough room in the suitcase present perplexing problems for last minute packers.

Excitement reigned at the Chi O house when the coeds learned of Jo MacDonald's success in the Miss America Pageant. Representing the state as Miss Iowa, Jo scored as first runner-up for the coveted beauty title. The modern influence became a part of the traditionally Georgian Chi Omega house this year. Redecoration of the television room provided the only modern decor in the contemporary house. Chi Omegas held their state Founders' Day at Drake University with the sorority's national vice-president as guest speaker.

Delta Delta Delta

SONG LEADER Lynda Scott sets the tempo during a weekly song practice at the Tri Delta house.

A happy-go-lucky song and dance skit won the second place award for the Tri Deltas in Veishea Vodvil. The act, originally presented during Varieties, created musical impressions of the major holidays of the year. Tri Delta musical talent was displayed at SOV when the entire sorority sang in the serenade scene. The Panhellenic scholarship trophy is an award displayed with pride at the house. Presented yearly, the trophy denotes top rank among sororites for scholastic achievement. Fraternity men on campus delighted to a Tri Delta serenade given at pinmates' houses fall quarter. The Tri Delta social calendar was filled with exchanges, house parties, and on the more serious side, a spring house retreat at the Boone 4-H camp. Halloween night, Tri Deltas and their dates enjoyed a fireside planned by the actives.

HOW ABOUT a midnight snack? This quartet investigates the contents of the refrigerator to select a suitable treat.

Pumpkins with candles light the way from the outside sunken garden to the recreation room. On the Monday before Thanksgiving, Tri Deltas annually celebrate Founders' Day with a special dinner and program. Alumnae joined members of the active chapter in recalling the founding of the fraternity.

JIM BLEASDELL and Carolyn Trout look over the Christmas gifts under the tree at the DZ winter formal.

Delta Zetas were special Santa helpers this year as they made and stuffed animals to be given to underprivileged children. When all the toys, constructed during the summer, were assembled the house looked much like Santa's workshop. A redecorated house, from repainted living room and reupholstered furniture, to bright bedspreads for the dormitory, provided a fine "new" house for the DZs. The modern trend was completed with a set of contemporary design stainless steel and a set of silver flatware. Words of the "DZ Man" inspired the theme for the fall semiformal party. In a traditional setting Delta Zetas and their dates celebrated Christmas with a dinner and formal dance. The annual "Pasquelle's Party" meant an Italian dinner served in the Italian "restaurant" at the DZ house. Invitations were red and white checkered napkins.

WELCOMING A GROUP of rushees to the Delta Zeta house, actives greet them with a serenade.

Musical talent brought the house third place recognition in the spring Sor-Dor sing. A large Uncle Sam, symbolizing "American Expansion," provided the theme for the Delta Zetas' Veishea float which received the second place trophy for sororities. In May DZs treated alums to a special tea and program. Daughters of the alums were special guests. Tables were turned at Christmastime with alums serving home-made cookies and refreshments to members of the active chapter.

Gamma Phi Beta

AN OPPORTUNITY for informal discussions and airing of opinion is an important aspect of sorority living.

Melodic sounds coming from the Gamma Phi house spring quarter were all a part of the several practice sessions leading to the Sor-Dor sing and a second place trophy for the house. Most pleasantly surprised were the actives when the pledges presented a hi-fi set to the house last spring. Additional improvements which helped beautify the house this year included a remodeled kitchen with new refrigerator and lots of storage space. Fall quarter Gamma Phis serenaded fraternity houses in which they had pinmates. Each pinmate was presented with a jack-o-lantern personalized with the initials of his fraternity. Founders' Day, Homecoming weekend, and Fathers Day all found the Gamma Phis making plans to entertain friends.

THE WIND APPEARS to be playing tricks on these Gamma Phis—stealing their leaves faster than they can rake.

Alums were guests on Founders' Day. An open house Homecoming weekend honored alums and friends in town for "the big game." On Fathers Weekend, fathers took over the house and received a special serenade from their daughters. After-hours parties, pinnings, engagements, spreads with the pledges, and pledge activities will long be remembered and chuckled over, for the Gamma Phis have their own special photographer who records all these important events.

Thetas captured top honors during 1958 Veishea by placing first in the sorority division of the Veishea parade and winning the women's canoe race trophy. The house parade entry, "A Winning Float of '22 Now Being Reviewed for You," was designed to resemble a home economics float of the first year of Veishea. Thetas reigned as the Veishea Queen of Queens and her two attendants. Activities and studies mixed well as Thetas found themselves top scholars on campus during fall quarter with a 2.91 grade point average. A musical narrative skit, "Wouldn't It Be Elegant," clinched the Varieties sweepstakes trophy for 1958. The house skit, "Sophomore Slump," won a first place trophy in 1959 Varieties. Spring quarter means Mothers Weekend, a special time for house members when mothers take over the house and are entertained by their daughters.

WHETHER WAITING for the mail to come or talking on the phone, the "personalized" Theta kitchenette is a popular spot to gather.

JODY RISER tries a crepe paper skirt as Marilyn Burnap inspects the fit. The original costumes were for the Theta-Sig Ep "Blast" booth.

Fall quarter it was the Dads turn to be guests of their daughters for a weekend. Work and enthusiasm on the part of the pledge class resulted in the building of an outdoor fireplace last spring.

The backyard site has been a spot for many cookouts, picnics and exchanges. Personalizing the interior of the house, the Thetas "remodeled" their tiny kitchenette and reserved one wall for house members and friends to "autograph." Moments of both fun and serious thought were part of a special retreat actives and new pledges enjoyed fall quarter.

Kappa Delta

KAPPA DELTAS find a most pleasant way to enjoy leisure time is talking to their housemother, Mrs. Bert Weber.

Hearty Kappa Delta pledges found themselves in a variety of unusual situations at the spring Sigma Nu Relays. In high style they managed to overcome the difficulties of the egg yagg and the tug-of-war contests to place first in the annual relays. Another first trophy went to the KDs for the most dates per coed on the weekend of "Dames Daze." Kappa Deltas and their dates gathered for the fall fireside, "Beatnik Blues," based on a Greenwich Village theme. Couples spent the evening finger painting, and listening to classical, jazz and rock-and-roll music. Large cardboard horses decorated the Sheldon Munn Hotel to carry out the winter formal theme, "KD Carousel." The evening included dinner at the Fjord followed by the dance at the hotel. In November, Dads of the KDs were invited to take over the house for a weekend. Their daughters escorted them to the football game.

WITH THE RUSH of school days Velma Schetgen and Lee Wittman spend a Friday night on a study date at the KD house.

In the evening the group attended Fred Waring's "Hi-Fi Holiday." An important event of the year was Founders' Day celebrated at a smorgasbord furnished by the house alums. Campus activities claimed a number of KDs who participated in Omicron Nu, Phi U and SAI. Well-known for her fire-baton twirling act is Beve Leech who won first place in Veishea Vodvil between acts skits. KDs have worked on securing further improvements in their house. New redwood furniture was added to the terrace study room furniture was refinished.

The Kappas were pleasantly surprised last fall when they returned from summer vacation to a sparkling redecorated house. Unique feature of the interior decorating was the entrance hall papered with a fleur-de-lis print custom designed for Kappa houses. The newly-decorated lounge was the scene of several firesides, the Founders' Day dessert and a party on Parents Weekend honoring Mothers and Dads. Winter quarter Kappas turned their energies to the production of a Varieties skit, "That Certain Appeal." Their song and dance comedy won a spot in Veishea Vodvil where its popular success meant the first place trophy for the house. Active members of the chapter noted with pride the achievements of their pledge class which was first in scholarship fall quarter among all pledge groups. The Kappas filled their social calendar with many parties and exchanges.

ALL READY TO GO, Kappas and their dates head for a Saturday night of enjoying the movies or lingering over a cup of coffee in the Commons.

CAUGHT UNDER THE mistletoe, but this Sig Alph doesn't seem to mind as he is besieged with affection from some of his neighbors down the street.

Fall quarter couples attended the "Barefoot Farmer's" party. Special treat at this fireside was a large steak fry in the back yard. With the Pi Phis, the Kappas planned and presented the "Monmouth Duo," a formal winter dance celebrating the founding of the two sororities at Monmouth College in Illinois. Also winter quarter the Kappas honored their Dads at a weekend filled with activities. Preceding the Missouri basketball game, Dads and daughters enjoyed dinner at the Fjord.

Pi Beta Phi

DINNER AT THE Pi Phi house is an informal meal full of bubbling conversation about the most important events of the day.

The fine blending of women's voices in a series of spirituals and folk songs brought the Sor-Dor sweepstakes trophy to the Pi Phi house for the third time in as many years. For their numbers house members, directed by Beth Brom, presented "Stately Stands Our Alma Mater," "Go From My Window," "Oh, Won't you Sit Down" and a Hungarian folk song. Turning from singing to service projects, the Pi Phis and the Delta Sigs treated a group of young boys from a children's home to a college football game. On the social side of house activities the Pi Phis entertained their dates at an early winter fireside at the house. The atmosphere was informal and couples spent the evening trimming Christmas trees, singing carols and enjoying the pre-holiday leisure activities.

PI PHIS AND DATES seem to approve of the leisurely atmosphere at the winter dance and fireside planned just before the Christmas holidays.

Pi Phis noted the founding of their sorority at the "Monmouth Duo," a winter formal given in conjunction with Kappa Kappa Gamma. House pledges distinguished themselves by winning the pledge scholarship award last spring. Pi Phis put their heads together with the Tekes to come up with an original idea for "The Blast," main attraction at Campus Chest. With the Tekes they sponsored the "Moulin Rouge" booth, selling dances for 10 cents a piece with the money going toward the Campus Chest goal of $8,500.

An early fall fireside enjoyed by the Sigma Kappas and their dates featured an exciting treasure hunt before the evening of dancing and entertainment at the house. Later in the quarter the sophomores planned the traditional Halloween party. Winter quarter Sigma Kappas concentrated on their house philanthropy project. Every week during winter and spring quarters members of the house traveled to the Lutheran Children's Home where they helped guide and instruct the young people in various phases of poise and etiquette. Taking time out from their interesting work, the Sigma Kappas planned events to celebrate the holiday season. At the pledge Christmas party couples spent the evening decorating the floor-to-ceiling 18-foot Christmas tree. Spring quarter Sigma Kappas from around Iowa celebrated the sorority's State Day.

"IT REALLY IS long distance," says Ginnie Humburg, as she shares the excitement of her call with some of the sisters.

WITH THE THRILL of the ceremonies over, excited new pledges are welcomed to the house by several Sigma Kappa actives

Alums in the area and mothers of the active members came to Ames for the day. Lillian Budd, author of "April Snow" was the speaker at the special luncheon at Solar Inn. Additional spring activities included the house formal at Indian Creek Country Club in Nevada. A theme of "April" provided the basis for decorations at the party. Sigma Kappa coeds found time to participate in a variety of campus activities and special honors such as Sigma Alpha Iota and Omicron Nu.

Panhellenic Councils

Panhellenic Council, working with its adviser, Mrs. Vida Secor Benson, serves as an aid and guild for the 11 sororities on the campus. The group annually gives a banquet for all Iowa State sorority members and publishes a rush handbook. With Interfraternity Council, Panhel jointly plans and sponsors the Greek Week activities each fall quarter. Representing the sorority pledges is Junior Panhel which works to promote closer relationships among pledge classes of the different houses. Chocolate hours during winter quarter help carry out this purpose.

Women's Residence Association

CONCERNED with policies and programs for the WRA, Jo Osenbaugh, president, directs the work of the executive council.

Dormitory policies and activities of the women's residences making up the WRA, are the primary concern of the Executive Board of the Women's Residence Association. Under the direction of president Jo Osenbaugh, the board of 24 members acts as general governing body for independent women. To keep in touch with activities in the individual dorms, the exec board has its various chairmen in the areas of publicity, activities, social and scholarship. These chairmen work with their counterparts in the individual dorms to improve relations among the women of the residences in the four areas of emphasis.

The board keeps its interests represented in other areas through a KMRI representative, a Pep Council and Social Bureau representative and two Cardinal Guild representatives. At Christmastime the women's dorms all had special parties, sang carols and trimmed festive Christmas trees. The WRA formal, an annual event, is also a project sponsored under the leadership of the board. Theme of this year's dance was "Fairylend in Frost."

Birch Hall

"MUDBLACK and the Seven Off-Beats" contribute to the pleasure of the audience at Varieties. The skit won a second place trophy.

Birch Hall coeds grew in dorm fellowship by working together to win a second place trophy for their Homecoming decoration consisting of a blue hawk, a bass fiddle and Cy. The theme was "Fiddle-de-dee, Winner Will be ISC." Winter quarter the dorm again placed second, this time in Varieties, with its skit "Mudblack and the Seven Off-beats," a take-off on the Snow White story. Big social event of the year was the spring formal, given in the recreation room of Oak Hall. The theme, "April Love," was carried out by decorating the room as a garden and painting a mural including a lake and swans. Music for the dance was provided by the Continentals, and dorm members furnished intermission entertainment. In spring athletic activity Birch won the women's softball tournament by defeating East Linden in the finals, 10-3. To improve scholarship, Birch and Lange House in Friley Hall had a contest which ran for the entire year. Birch took top scholastic honors and won the trophy. At Veishea ceremonies Mortar Board tapped the dormitory president, Francene Winslow.

Elm Hall

The 143 residents of Elm Hall spent a busy year studying, working on extracurricular activities, planning dorm functions, and in general, having fun. Dorm members and housemother, Mrs. John McLay, entertained for other housemothers and their escorts early in October. On the nineteenth of the same month the Elm Hall coeds presented a special tea to honor Fathers and Mothers on Parents' Day. In November a brunch breakfast was planned. Residents of the dorm celebrated Christmas with an all-dorm tree decorating party. Traditional event of the Christmas holiday season is the "White Breakfast" on the Sunday before vacation. All dorm members wear white and walk to the dining room together, carrying candles and singing carols. Many sore fingers resulted from pounding nails to build the dorm Homecoming display. A large wash tub surrounded by soap boxes depicted Iowa State students "Bubbling over with Victory." A favorite pastime with the dorm members this year was a relaxing get-together around the piano for a song fest before dinner.

FINDING A CHALLENGING activity for Saturday night poses no problem for these Elm Hall coeds and dates who bring out the checker board for a quick game.

Freeman Hall

IN AN ATTEMPT to duplicate their 1958 success, Freeman singers begin practice early for the spring presentation of Sor-Dor.

With enthusiasm and hard work the women of Freeman Hall coordinated talent and ability to win the top awards in Sor-Dor and the Veishea parade. In the former event the coeds received the first place trophy for their presentation of "One God" and "I See the Moon;" while in the Veishea parade the dorm float, representing the "Sinking of the Titanic," also received a first place rating. Freeman Hall had its old dining room converted to a rec room this year, providing a convenient place to entertain guests and dates. In addition to entertaining others, Freemanites got to know their dorm mates well through the many corridor parties held during the year. Each corridor decorated its rooms and provided enough refreshments to invite the rest of the dorm to a "spread." In November the women of the dorm honored Mrs. Eda Boshart, their new housemother, at a tea in the combined parlors. When spring finally arrived, Freemanites and their dates took time away from school work to have a picnic and softball game at Brookside Park.

East Linden Hall

East Linden celebrated its first birthday in September by placing first in the WRA division of Homecoming decorations. The winning display consisted of a gold needle and a thread running through a football with the caption, "Let's Sew 'Em Up." Athletically-minded East Linden women placed second in the 1957-58 women's intramurals and also received a second place rating in Sor-Dor music competition last spring. Warm spring weather brought an opportunity to use the spacious Linden terrace for the first time when East and West Linden combined to present a dance with the theme, "Song of the South." The terrace was attractively decorated with pink and red flowers woven on a trellis which stood behind the band. Residents of East Linden took part in many campus activities. Nancy Monson, representing the dorm, was selected to reign over the Harvest Ball. Two Mortar Board members, the WRA and WAA presidents also resided in East Linden.

West Linden Hall

The women of two-year-old West Linden are still enjoying the newness of their dorm. The landscaping has been completed, and the enormous recreation room shared with East Linden is now furnished with many new contemporary chairs, a hi-fi set and a television set. Ping-pong, records, popcorn poppers and games are available at all times, and women often entertain their dates in the dorm's rec room. In May the women of East and West Linden joined to present their annual spring dance on the terrace of the dorm. Couples danced under the stars to the music of the Ambassadors. Early in December the women of West Linden and their dates enjoyed an informal evening singing carols and decorating the Christmas tree. Later they joined other dorm party groups to sing carols in dorm court. A source of interest and enjoyment to the women in the dorm this year has been the music of a home organ owned by Mrs. Maurine Vendelboe, dorm housemother.

Oak Hall

DECORATING THE OAK HALL Christmas tree provides moments of fun for this couple as they add an artistic touch with a bit of tinsel.

Oak Hall's Veishea float, "Common's Cats of '29," captured second place trophy in the WRA division. The unusual float depicted the Union Commons, including a hall tree with raccoon coat to complete the atmosphere. The mysterious influence of the Orient set the mood for "Oriental Springtime," a spring quarter dance. Colored lights, lanterns, and a large chalk mural carried out the theme. Also in the spring, an informal going-away party for the seniors was given after hours in the recreation room. The seniors entertained with short skits depicting events recalled from their college years. Several get-acquainted parties, dorm mixers and open houses filled time after hours for the women in Oak Hall. Each floor selected a theme for its open house, decorated the rooms and chose special refreshments to fit the theme of the occasion. Laughter and bubbling conversation at the informal parties helped the coeds become acquainted with their neighbors in the dorm.

Roberts Hall

Passing Roberts Hall any night before dinner, one is likely to be greeted by the sound of music in the air. A favorite pastime of the dorm women is an informal sing nightly around the piano in the parlors. The fall quarter social calendar listed a series of events diversified enough to please all. Ten exchanges spelled fun and variety in a range from football games, to dances to picnics, to a watermelon bust. Within the dorm fall quarter began with a get-acquainted party, "Knights of the Round Table." Skits helped introduce the advisers and members of dorm council to the freshman women. An intradorm open house kept residents scurrying to plan room decorations and refreshments for the event. Roberts Hall women take special pride in the several dorm members who have been honored by selection to campus professional and honorary groups.

ADDING THE FINISHING touches to their Homecoming decoration, Roberts women survey their creation in the final stages of construction.

Welch Hall

WELCH COEDS pause for a few minutes of reflective thought at the dorm ember program in Welch's American Room.

Welch Hall is the proud possessor of the traveling scholarship trophy presented to the freshman dorm with highest excellence in academic achievement. Ability to combine scholarship with other interests resulted in first place for the Welch representatives in Varieties Flashes. Welch women tied for second place in the dorm division of Sor-Dor sing, and won another second place in the basketball intramurals. Chat 'n Nibble sessions with students from other countries who live in the dorm have been an inspirational insight on world affairs. Exciting exchanges with men's residences included trips to the football games, picnics and a watermelon bust. In February the coeds extended friendly smiles and greetings to family and friends returning for the "Valentine Tea." The clanging fire gong in late October was a false alarm but a startling means of inviting freshmen to the dorm Halloween party given by the advisers.

Men's Residence Association

Organized to coordinate the various programs of men's residence groups, the Men's Residence Association is now composed of 40 houses in Friley-Hughes, Westgate, and new Helser Hall. The MRA functions almost as a small community, having its own executive council, governing body, and its own counseling group composed of the head residents of the various houses. Extensive campaigning and election of officers each January gives the men practical experience in politics. The residence association's newspaper, "The Reflector," which carries all MRA news, offers additional direction for individual interests. Radio station KMRI is operated by men of the MRA from studios in Friley Hall with broadcasts heard in all the men's and many of the women's dormitories. Order of the Chessmen, a service honorary, functions to recognize outstanding men in the MRA. Its membership consists of no more than one per cent of the men in the dormitories. MRA joins with the Women's Residence Association in sponsoring the annual All-Dorm Mixer in the fall.

WORKING OUT PLANS for some of the many responsibilities which must be shouldered by MRA officers are Dean Shupe, Ron Swift and John Saathoff.

Executive Council

PRESIDENT DEAN SHUPE presides at a meeting of Main Cabinet. Representatives from all houses of the MRA participate in cabinet which strives to orient improvements and initiate programs for the men of the houses.

Main Cabinet

Exec Council, cabinet work to initiate improvements, wise policies for 2,000 men

The governing body of the MRA is divided into three main branches which are somewhat comparable to the branches of our national government. The MRA's Main Cabinet serves essentially as the organization's legislative branch. The cabinet is made up of one official representative from each of the system's 40 houses, either the house president or vice-president. Some of the cabinet's responsibilities are to set up and approve the MRA's enormous budget and to hear recommendations and pass resolutions for changes and improvements in the system. Executive Council is composed of 10 members elected during winter quarter by the MRA to serve for one year. Each member holds a specific position, such as intramurals chairman, external vice-president, or MRA secretary, in which he functions individually; but as a group they initiate new ideas and policies for the MRA.

The council, headed by MRA president, Dean Shupe, is the administrative branch of the system and acts in a supervisory capacity.

CABINET MEETINGS PROVIDE an opportunity for the development of needed legislation.

Radio KMRI completes tenth year

Owned and operated by the MRA, radio station KMRI completed its tenth year of broadcasting. Gary Putnam and Ron Samson headed the station's supervisory board of controls this year, directing interested students in gaining experience as announcers and disc jockeys for the station's programs. The KMRI studio, located on the first floor of Friley Hall, transmits on a frequency of 880 kilocycles and is on the air weekdays from 2 p.m. until midnight. On weekend evenings the broadcast continues until 2 a.m. Programming includes musical request shows, news broadcasts and public service programs including broadcast of the MRA and all-college nominating conventions.

THE RADIO STATION maintains its own extensive record library from which to draw for its many daily programs.

PUTTING FORTH MAXIMUM EFFORT, Ken Dunlavy hoists a table plus Ron Isaacson and K. C. Wong in a practice stunt at weightlifters club.

Weightlifters compete in area meets

The first competitive weightlifting team was organized this year as a function of the fast-growing MRA Weightlifters Club. Over 200 members of the club work out in the weight gymnasium which is furnished with $1,000 worth of equipment. Club members concentrate on two phases of weight exercises, body-building and weight-lifting. The former is designed to increase weight, develop body symmetry and muscle definition, while the latter helps increase the amount of weight possible to lift over the head in the required manner. Any club member is eligible for the competitive team but must lift a minimum grade point of 3.5 in the three official olympic lifts: the press, the snatch and the clean and jerk. A 3.0 is equivalent to lifting an average of one's own body weight over his head on each of these three lifts. The weightlifters team represented by Ron Isaacson, 123; K. C. Wong, 132; James McGinnis, 165; Larry Statler, 181; Kenneth Dunlavy, 198; and Pete Setzer, heavyweight, has competed in two regional meets. Trophies are awarded at the end of the year to the outstanding member of the club and to the member showing the most physical improvement.

MRA CAMERA CLUB members sharpen up their technique on a rather photogenic model who posed at one of the club's model shoots, a quarterly feature of Camera Club.

Camera Club

To qualify for membership in the Camera Club, one must be a member of the MRA and show an interest in photography. The club serves to encourage greater interest in photography and to provide facilities so members may continue to broaden their experience with photography. Programs of the club included model shoots and demonstrations of the basic fundamentals of photography for new members; guest speakers were occasionally invited to present more technical aspects of the subject. The club holds a banquet each year and sponsors a print contest during Veishea which is open to all campus photographers.

Toastmasters Club

"There is no such thing as a perfect public speech," might well be the motto of members of Toastmasters Club as they strive for improvement in the art of public speaking. At the group's weekly meetings one member presides as toastmaster, two or three others give prepared speeches, and another suggests topics of current interest for impromptu talks. At each meeting a traveling trophy is awarded for the most effective speech. At the end of the year a permanent trophy is presented to the man who has received the traveling trophy the greatest number of times.

TOASTMASTERS CLUB—1st row: Fox, Swift (v.p.), Dant (pres.), Buchheit, Cavanah (adviser). 2nd row: Howard, Lindsey, Berggren, Barry, Greenley.

Bennett House

JIM BOCKHAUS GRINS at the plight of Pat Campbell whose playful friends moved him, desk and all, into a quieter quarters for study.

Bennett House is truly considered a top flight house by its residents who trudge daily to their rooms on the fifth floor of Friley Hall. Building up such endurance aided the athletic cause of the house. Bennett teams placed first in Class C of the dormitory and all-college basketball intramurals. Bennett also captured third place in the dorm division of Class A softball last spring. Winter quarter Bennett House men, in conjunction with Godfrey House, turned Ames Country Club into a Las Vegas gambling casino for a "Golden Nugget Party." Two residents of the house acted as casino gamblers at the party. Residents of Bennett sponsored a house picnic in the spring at Soper's Mill, and another during Freshman Days at Brookside Park. Bennett men and their dates took a hay-ride fall quarter, followed by a party in the Friley Terrace Room. A house dinner was given winter quarter with Ben Gallegos, a former resident of Bennett and a student from Guatemala, as the speaker.

Beyer House

Beyer House, the second largest house in the MRA, took first place in the MRA's parliamentary procedure competition. In the sports field Beyer received a first in the 167-pound class in wrestling and took second place in MRA swimming competition. Recent additions to the house included a 24-inch television set and a piano for the den. The house owns a toboggan which is often the center of winter party fun. Socially, the men of Beyer kept busy by holding exchanges throughout the year. These included dinner, dance and miniature golf parties. Last spring, at the house dinner, the guest speaker was Abe Hassoon, a foreign student from Bagdad, Iraq. Faculty members from every department of the college were honored at the dinner. "Bessie Bardot," Beyer's Homecoming display, consisted of an orange cow kicking the Kansas University Jayhawk over the barnyard fence. Although the decoration did not win one of the prizes for the MRA displays, the house fellowship developed from working on the project was a reward in itself.

TWO BEYER MEN straighten out some of the house files and records in preparation for a new quarter.

TAKING A BREATHER from an afternoon of studies, Caine men meet in the Friley Hall Dining Room for a snack and a few moments of socializing.

Caine House

"Roaring Twenties" was the theme for the Caine House Veishea float spring quarter. The replica of an old-time bar and dance hall, complete with ragtime piano music, attracted much attention. Two coeds from Welch Hall completed the scene with their Charleston dance. Caine men enjoyed a full schedule of exchanges including a hayride, float building exchange, tobogganing party and dance exchanges. Many Caine men found particular pleasure in outdoor activities. Spending an evening around a campfire or a day out hunting were favorite pastimes for them. High scholarship is a goal for the men of the house. Last year they placed first academically in the MRA one quarter and second for another. In spring they received the Phi Eta Sigma traveling trophy for greatest scholastic improvement from winter to spring quarter. Also in spring the Caine softball team won the MRA championship in the Class A intramural division.

Cessna House

Cessna men took honors this year in both athletic competition and academic standings. Scholarship winter quarter was high enough for a third place in the MRA standings. In intramural competition the Cessna bowling team won the pro league title. To keep in the swing with Homecoming displays, Cessna men featured an analytical balance with a figure of Cyclone football coach Clay Stapleton outweighing a Kansas University man. Both fall quarter and spring quarter members of the house planned an annual picnic. Purpose of the fall event was to help freshmen and old members of Cessna become acquainted. A softball game was main feature of the picnic. Spring quarter the picnic had a purely light aspect. House members entertained themselves with a game of water polo and amused a few seniors by dunking them in the river. On the more serious side, house members planned a dinner each quarter to honor graduating seniors.

RORSCHACH had nothing on this bearded Cessna gentleman who has worked out his own ink blot test.

TWO CHAMBERLAIN MEN, left, find giving to Campus Chest is a worthwhile project when money is exchanged for a snack at the food sales booth.

Chamberlain House

"Mayflower Affair," Chamberlain's annual house party, brought fall quarter to a pleasant end. Intermission entertainment included a Charleston dance number and a skit by the house comedian. Decorations at the Ames Country Club, scene of the party, followed a Thanksgiving theme. The Oscar Hall Band provided the music. To keep trim and in shape, the men participated in MRA intramurals. The house football team wound up in a tie for first place in the Class A football tournament, since the championship game was called off because of bad weather. Lots of enthusiasm helped the house win the spring Class B volleyball championship. To provide a social program, men of Chamberlain enjoyed exchanges with several women's residences, including a dinner exchange with Oak Hall. This year the men also selected the design for their special house guard to be worn with their MRA pins.

Converse House

Spring quarter's Converse House dinner with guest speaker Lt. Col. Harold Dye was a highlight of house activities. Dye showed slides of Korea and spoke of his experiences as a member of the United Nations' armistice team during the Korean Conflict. When fall quarter arrived house members began thinking of Homecoming. Theme of the house display, "Clay, Let's Stapl'em," featured a big stapler with a model of Coach Stapleton on top stapling together the seat of a Kansas football player's pants. During Freshman Days, Converse had an exchange with Birch Hall at Brookside Park. The evening activities began with a cookout and concluded with group singing around a campfire. Converse men also enjoyed a dinner held in one of Friley's private dining rooms. To celebrate the season of hearts and flowers, Converse men and their dates enjoyed a dance on Feb. 13 in the Helser Conference Room. In addition to an active social life, Converse jumped from thirteenth place in MRA scholarship to fifth.

ENTERTAINING A HOMECOMING queen finalist is a charming assignment for Tom Sentman, right, Converse social chairman who joins the conversation with Nancy Froeberg at the MRA tea for the six final contestants.

WHEN FRED LARK brings out his guitar, the occasion is one which quickly gives rise to a gathering of house members to sing or just enjoy the music.

Dodds House

Dodds House men consider the highlight of the year their earning of the Phi Eta Sigma scholarship trophy. The annual award is given by Phi Eta Sigma, freshman men's scholastic honorary, to the residence on campus which shows the greatest improvement in grades during each quarter.

Residents of the house were also hosts to a visiting seminary student during Religion-in-Life Week. Time spent with the student provided Dodds men with the opportunity to take part in a number of inspirational and thought-provoking discussions. Enthusiastic participation in the MRA intramural program and in Veishea, gave house members a feeling of a job well done. House teams placed near the top in every phase of intramural competition. Exchanges and parties were greatly enjoyed by the Dodds men. This year the house had toboggan, picnic and float building exchanges with various women's residences on campus.

Fairchild House

Fairchild House continued its record of active participation in intramural sports by winning the MRA Class A volleyball championship. Other intramural sports played by Fairchild men were bowling, football, softball, basketball and track. Social life of the house was busy and varied. Opening the school year, Fairchild presented a Freshman Days picnic. The annual winter dance was given in February in the Westgate Lounge. Decorated with a "bar" and "etchings," the lounge carried out the theme of "Bachelor's Apartment." Every quarter the men of Fairchild have a "Final Fling" on the Saturday night before finals. To add to the social calendar for the year, Fairchild sponsored a hayride last spring. Complete with a two-horse team, moonlight, singing and a wiener roast, the event provided an enjoyable time for the men and their dates.

"O.K., FELLOWS. Let's get organized," urges house president Jim Green as he presides at a general house meeting.

TRAINING HIS PET angelfish takes time and patience finds Jim Gardner who diligently spends time teaching his pet several tricks.

Franklin House

Franklin men gave the audience at the Veishea parade "A Gander at the Gander," for their house float entry. The float pictured a large oddly-shaped man on his stomach looking at an issue of the Green Gander from several years ago. For Homecoming the house displayed a 51-foot sign extending across the northwest rooms of Friley Hall reading, "Welcome to Franklin House."

The exchange program for Franklin House this year included a dance party with the women of Barton Hall and a miniature golf exchange with the Tri Deltas. In May the house sponsored an "ice cream" social. Men of Franklin enjoy a house dinner each quarter followed by a program featuring a guest speaker or a panel discussion. Franklin men are active in intramural athletics, participating in track and wrestling. Fall quarter house members concentrated on scholarship to achieve second place in the MRA.

Godfrey House

Scholarship, athletics, activities and social life formed a foundation of interests for the "well-rounded" men of Godfrey House. Turning their attention to academic pursuits, the men worked through the year to hold down second place in the MRA scholastic standings by the end of spring quarter. First place trophies in both bowling and volleyball helped Godfrey men capture the third spot in MRA intramural competition. The volleyball team continued its winning ways in the Class B all-college play-offs as it captured first place. Members of the house used the "Playboy" theme for their annual party. Music was provided by the band and vocalist of Morrie Powers. Godfrey House staged a "Grunt and Groan" wrestling arena for the Campus Chest "Blast." Sore muscles and bruises constituted the general physical condition of house members the following day. Talents of individual Godfrey men were noticed around the campus as the house provided masters of ceremonies for five major events winter quarter.

WORKING EARNESTLY to finish their decoration for Homecoming, Godfrey men pitch in on the final touches for their giant house sign.

Harriman House

Harriman House went all out to support intramurals by entering teams in all fields of competition. Net results paid off with a winner in the fall free throw contest and a second place in Class A volleyball. Harriman has been the home of several outstanding scholars who have been an influence on the scholarship of the whole house. In the field of academic work the men of Harriman acquired the highest grade point in the MRA and ranked sixth among all men's residences. Dance exchanges are a favorite social activity for the men of Harriman. The house enjoyed one party with the nurses of Broadlawn Hospital in the spring. The annual house picnic was at Brookside Park this year. Fall also brought an indoor party game exchange with the women of Tau Gamma Ward. House dinners are quarterly affairs in Harriman. Another interesting pastime in the house is keeping a daily tab on the stock market. Many former Harriman men have served as head residents in other MRA houses during this year including Mark Kemper, Dave Paulson, Eric Linse, Frank Baker, Ken Rubsam, Chuck Hening and Chuck Shirley.

MEMBERS OF HARRIMAN HOUSE "transact huge business deals" daily on their bulletin board as they keep tabs on the changes in the stock market.

JOHN KAISERLIK and Harry Schumacher work on plans for model sports cars. The two hope to organize a sports car club, the "Go Carts," soon.

Kimball House

The bowling team of Kimball House rolled several exacting games against intramural competition to receive first place honors in Class D. Social life for Kimball men consisted of many exchanges, highlighted by a watermelon bust with Welch Hall at Brookside Park during Freshman Days. Kimball men and their dates enjoyed a hayride late in September at the Circle S Riding Ranch near Ames. The winter house party took place in one of the TV rooms of Kimball. Theme of the party was "Christmas in Pine," with the decorations planned to represent a clearing in a pine forest during the winter. Another winter event was the Kimball House "Western Party" at the Ames Country Club. On hand for entertainment was Perry Bolin, a local vocalist. On Halloween the men and dates enjoyed a semiformal "Halloween Party" in the MRA TV Room. Lots of work and fun went into the Homecoming display, "Jayhawks Taste Good Like Beaten Birds Should."

WHILE PARTNERS CONCENTRATE on bridge strategy, Lynn Opsal concerns himself with a special pickled herring treat.

Knapp House

Knapp social life took on a new look with the appointment of Marvin Elliott and Jerry Sullivan as social co-chairmen of the house. Various social activities included dancing, dinner and a horseback riding exchange. Other house activities enjoyed by Knapp men were a steak fry, the construction of a Homecoming display, and of the Veishea Float which was titled "The Last Bare Knuckle Championship Fight." Two Knapp men rode on the float demonstrating the action of this last great fight. The float was termed a success despite the fact it was put together between midnight and 6 a.m. on the morning of the parade. Knapp House wasn't "napping" when it came to intramurals this year. Men of the house finished first in the MRA swimming meet, winning 7 out of 9 events. The team was led to victory by Gary Zitzlsperger and Frank Schulte.

Lange House

Dance, football, miniature golf, watermelon and dessert exchanges sparked Lange House social life this year. The house party was based on a western theme. Men and their dates dressed in western attire and danced in the Friley-Hughes Recreation Room which was decorated like a frontier saloon. Special project for the year undertaken by the Lange men was the purchase of a large trophy case for the house den. A sizeable start on filling the case began when Lange House won first place in the MRA Veishea competition. Bob Blair, the freshman float chairman, brought this honor to the house with a first prize winning float depicting the four fields of study offered at ISC when the college first opened. The theme was, "Proud We Are." In MRA intramural competition men of Lange topped the list for the most total points and the most points per man. For the past three quarters the house bowling team has brought home a new trophy, and many other Lange teams have finished in the Class A group.

Lincoln House

THE LATEST in new model sports cars gains the undivided attention of these Lincoln men.

Lincoln House men were busy this year with a variety of social activities and a record of participation in campus events. Among the house exchanges were a watermelon party with the women of Welch Hall held at Inis Grove Park, a football date with pledges of Sigma Kappa, and a dance exchange with Birch Hall coeds. Winter quarter Lincoln men and their dates enjoyed an evening of tobogganing followed by an informal dance in Roberts Hall Recreation Room. Lincoln men take pride in the number of awards and trophies the house has received. Carrying out the theme of "Peace Through Science," Lincoln men placed second in the MRA division of the Veishea float competition. Lincoln was represented in the Homecoming Triumph March by its combo, which played a series of jazz pieces during the parade. Other honors included second place in Class A intramural basketball, fourth in spring quarter MRA gradepoint standings and second place in activity points in the MRA.

Lindstrom House

A new trophy case constructed as a house project last spring is the pride of Lindstrom. The bowling team has won several trophies this year to help fill the case. In the spring Lindstrom men and their dates enjoyed a picnic at the Ledges. Even rain beforehand did not ruin the fun of a softball game followed by a steak fry and dancing to hi-fi music in the shelter house. Familiar faces were a rare occurrence in Lindstrom at the beginning of this year. All but seven of the men were new to the house, but with the help of a wiener roast and softball game during Freshman Days the men soon became acquainted. Fall also brought a work exchange with the women of Freeman Hall. Another big addition to the house was a project undertaken by Lindstrom men to enclose the house den with glass.

PAUSING FOR A MOMENT beneath the new house trophy case, two Lindstrom men glance at the fascinating features of their favorite magazine.

Meeker House

"Club Speakeasy" was the provocative theme of the Meeker House winter party. Checkered table cloths, candles in bottles and a peek hole in the door brought back memories of the Prohibition Era. In the spring the Meeker men and their dates spent a day at Pine Lake boating and swimming. An evening steak fry and dancing climaxed a wonderful party. Bob Ausenhus, Meeker's Head Resident, won the Delta Sigma Rho all-college speech contest, which brought a large traveling trophy to the house. Meeker's singing men formed a quartet which was active in both Varieties and the spring quartet contest. In athletics Meeker took home many intramural trophies during the year, with the house bowling team winning the Class A championship over a field of 42 teams. Don Hultman's committee provided amusement for Homecoming spectators with a house display of Iowa State's Cy towering over many little "Cyclone-swept" Jayhawks.

Niles House

An X-ray machine containing an atom, and an atomic mushroom cloud dramatically illustrated the timely question asked in the Niles House Veishea float, "Atoms for Peace or Pieces?" At Homecoming time, "Cy Rings Up A Victory," was portrayed on the Niles House lawn by the figure of Cy stepping on a lever which shot a Kansas Jayhawk up in the air to ring a bell. During fall Freshman Days Niles combined with other Friley houses for two exchanges, one with Freeman Hall and the other with Birch. The men also held a fall picnic for the freshmen to better acquaint them with other men in the house. Niles men, in both individual and team competition, were active in a variety of intramural sports including football, softball, basketball, volleyball, ping-pong, and swimming. House "actors" added entertainment to Varieties with a skit portraying an audience in a motion picture theater, aptly demonstrating that the "show" isn't always on the screen.

1st row: Nicholson, Keen, Baird, Rhoads, O. Thompson, Briggs, Schmiedel. 2nd row: DeWolf (pres.), Roberts, Robinson, Bernard, Katuin, Hansen, Neal. 3rd row: Gooch, Kabela, Larson, J. Noble House

"A Page Out Of History," was the title of the Noble House Veishea parade entry last spring. Interest centered around a large "I" which served as the base of the float. Above this base was a book showing a page with an illustration of Iowa State's famous building, "Old Main." Theme of the Noble Homecoming display was "Cy Cans Kansas." The display showed Iowa State's Cy stuffing the Kansas Jayhawk into a large can bearing the label, "Canned Jayhawk." Among the athletic triumphs Noble House claimed was the Class B baseball championship won during spring quarter. Last spring, also, the men obtained special house guards for their MRA pins. Design for the guard was planned by Wayne Whitmarsh. The men of Noble planned a house dinner in the fall shortly before the time of state elections. Speaker for the occasion was Dr. Elbert Smith of the History and Government Department who talked on various political platforms of the past years.

Pearson House

Pearson House initiated an alumni scholarship winter quarter designated to be awarded to the man in the house who showed the most interest and enthusiasm in house activities. Events and activities of the house were numerous, ranging from athletics to float building. Pearson men participated in intramurals, placing third in the top bowling league and in the top softball division. The house held its annual winter "Roman Orgy" in the Friley TV Lounge. Decorations made the room resemble a Roman patio complete with fountain. Spring and fall house parties included a picnic at the Ledges and a hayride, mingled with numerous football, picnic, dinner, hayride and toboggan exchanges. Freshmen were introduced to the house at a steak fry and watermelon bust planned especially for these men and their dates. Pearson men gave many hours to the construction of their Veishea entry, "The Monitor and the Merrimac." The lavish three-unit float was animated and equipped with a special sound track.

Spinney House

ENGROSSED IN THE ESCAPADES of "Maverick," Spinney men watch the exciting TV series in front of their private television set.

The men of Spinney House ranked eighth in scholarship in the MRA last spring, marking the second consecutive year the house has maintained a position in the upper third of the MRA scholastic rankings. Intramural competition found the Spinney men strong contenders in the winter quarter swimming race. The house team finished second. Enthusiasm and teamwork were coordinated by Spinney men who emerged victorious in the Class B softball championship last spring. House members worked hard on their Veishea float which featured a scale model of the USS Forrestal aircraft carrier with planes lining the deck ready for take-off. Fall's Homecoming decoration carried the theme, "Molding a Victory with Clay." The Spinney house dinner was an event of spring quarter. Featured on the program were members of the Kappa Alpha Theta quartet followed by impromptu speeches given by various members of the house.

Three strong-armed freshmen from Stange House paddled their way to a victorious finish in the Veishea canoe races last spring. Dressed in costumes typical of the Lewis and Clark expedition, the three swept across the final finish line in a time of 2:59. Social activities of the house centered around the party highlight of the year held winter quarter. At that time the men of Stange, Godfrey and Bennett houses enjoyed a night of "gambling"—in fun—at their party at the Ames Country Club. Men of the three houses combined efforts to create the atmosphere of a Nevada gambling casino which was aptly called "The Golden Nugget." Various card games, an intermission program and refreshments provided varied entertainment for the evening. Other activities enjoyed by the men of Stange this year were work on the Homecoming display, a series of exchanges including a dinner party with East Linden and a watermelon bust with Elm Hall at Brookside Park.

WELCH HALL COEDS are the recipients of fine hospitality at a dinner exchange with the men of Stange in a private dining room in Friley-Hughes Hall.

Stanton House

Off to a quick start in "house life" were 20 Stanton freshmen who were treated to a house party during Freshman Day activities by the upperclassmen of the house. A hearty workout in a fast game of baseball was followed by a picnic of hot dogs and lots of watermelon. Stanton men were "bowling up a storm" before the year was far underway as they captured first place in the MRA Class C competition. Not all their time was spent with sports; Stanton men also studied hard to earn a fifth place in the MRA scholarship standings. Early in the spring, Stanton men joined forces with the men of Godfrey to hold a combined house dinner. Lt. Col. Harold Dye, who was the evening's guest of honor, spoke to the group about his experiences in Korea. Barton Hall, a women's residence hall, joined Stanton for a dance exchange during spring quarter. An hour was spent in the Trophy Tavern, dancing to popular songs played on the jukebox.

TWO SPECTATORS watch Cy clobber the Kansas Jayhawk on the head. The display, "Now is the Hour," was the winning Homecoming entry in the MRA.

Stevenson House

Stevenson House captured an array of awards ranging from Homecoming to Sinfonia to intramurals. The house Homecoming display, "Now is the Hour," was shaped like a cuckoo clock with a Cyclone pounding the head of a Kansas Jayhawk. The display was first prize winner in the MRA, as was the Stevenson singing group entered in the independent division of Sinfonia. The men presented arrangements of "Kentucky Babe" and "Aura Lee" as their winning entries. The house golf team added the MRA golf tournament title to house trophies last spring. Highlighting the social activities for Stevenson men was an "African Costume Ball" in the MRA TV Lounge winter quarter. Decorations, entertainment and refreshments carried an African flavor, and small stuffed monkeys were given as favors. Stevenson house took special pride in the MRA president, external vice-president and activities chairman of the MRA executive council, all of whom were members in the house.

HIGHLIGHTING THE FALL social season was the "November Nocturne," a dressy dance given in Great Hall, Memorial Union.

THE CAFETERIA LINE which serves more than 1,500 men at each meal, becomes a natural routine in the day's activities for residents of MRA houses.

Carpenter House

Carpenter House men brought home many honors this year including a sixth place rank among MRA houses for scholastic achievement and a second place in the intramural Class B basketball tournament. The house Veishea float depicted the progress of the past three decades with a symbolic airplane of World War I vintage and a rocket ship representing present day scientific development. Basis of the float was the theme "From Rags to Riches." Winter quarter Carpenter House combined forces with two other houses to present the successful "Carlowood Capers," a house party destined to become an annual affair. Spring brought the house dinner at which the Iowa State centennial film was shown. Carpenter men have completed work on the special design for the house crest, adding an individual mark to the house. In memory of Mr. Halstead M. Carpenter, for whom the house is named, Mrs. Carpenter presented the men of the house with a set of encyclopedias.

"HMMM! The more I think about it those fellows were wrong. There just isn't anything like a snap course around this school."

Foster House

LYMAN WALKER, designer of the new Foster House crest, gets some practical advice on appropriate lettering for the crest which hangs in the house den.

Frequent informal and impromptu parties were a fun part of the house activities for Foster men. The get-togethers, designed to help the men become better acquainted, featured seasonal sports as softball and volleyball, and plenty of good food. Impromptu Sunday night picnics also helped the men know each other better and strengthened the feeling of house unity. Men of Foster lead a varied social life with their exchanges, an open house, dance parties and a watermelon bust. The Fosterites gave their party, "Night at Harold's Club" with two other houses at the Sheldon Munn Hotel. The men also sponsored an ice cream social. This year Foster House designed a special crest to be placed in the den window. The crest was also used on stationery heads and for car window decals. Foster House men, dressed in Roman costume for the Triumph March, won second place in the event for their entry of a chariot drawn by Drake and Arizona, victims of Iowa State's grid team in earlier games of the season.

Fulmer House

Fulmer men used an enlargement of their crest in conjunction with a picture of Dr. Ellis Fulmer to form a unique biographical plaque telling about the man for whom the house was named. The plaque hangs on the wall of the house den. Men of Fulmer enjoyed several exchanges, among them a Tau Gamma football exchange for the Drake game, a Halloween hayride with Elm Hall, and a dance exchange with the women of Freeman Hall. On Oct. 5 a group of men from the house went to Ledges State Park for an afternoon of football followed by a wiener roast. Fulmer has held a number of house dinners with guest speakers discussing subjects varying from etiquette to the operation of electronic computers. In the spring Fulmer men planned a house dance, "Santa Catalina," at the Sheldon Munn Hotel. Music was provided by the band of Darrell Dickens of Cedar Rapids. The atmosphere was tropical, with candle-lit tables, palm trees, slide-projected sea scapes on the walls, and draped fishnets on a velvet background.

Halstead House

Halstead men had the pleasure of playing host at the first MRA tea honoring the Homecoming queen finalists. The six candidates were made honorary Halstead House members during the event which was broadcast over Friley's radio station, KMRI. Another distinctive feature of Halstead is a detailed history of the house which has been recorded since the house had its beginning in Helser Hall. Halstead men have participated in all fields of intramural sports this year, and during the past year won the Class A basketball championship. Dance exchanges have been a favorite pastime with Halstead House members as they enjoyed themselves at exchanges with a group of Des Moines nurses, several dorms, and sorority active and pledge classes. A "stag affair" steak fry was held by Halstead last spring at the Ledges State Park. On a crispy evening in the fall the men and their dates took an evening hayride, and later in the quarter they enjoyed a "Hobo Costume Party."

KEN DUNLAVY, new state YMCA weightlifting champion, shows some of the fellow members of Jones House just how his feat was accomplished.

Jones House

Jones House, although the smallest house in the MRA, has held its own in the whirl of activities. The house social chairman planned a busy year for the men of Jones. A variety of exchanges were on the schedule including an unforgettable watermelon bust with Elm Hall. The party was at Brookside Park during the Freshman Days activity. Members of Jones House celebrated the end of midterm week with a dance exchange. Dates were the pledges of Gamma Phi Beta sorority. Jones men escorted members of Freeman Hall on an exchange to the Colorado football game. The "Jones Boys" sponsored an enjoyable hayride soon after school started. After the ride men and their dates feasted on picnic fare at a dinner picnic at Brookside Park. The evening ended with a fireside party. Other activities of the year included entries for football, volleyball, bowling, track, swimming and softball in the MRA intramural competition.

ONE WASHING MACHINE appears to be in line for quite a workout from two Livingston men bogged down with a heavy week's wash.

Livingston House

Livingston House, located in new Helser Hall, is well on its way to becoming an integral part of the MRA. In only its second year of existence, the house has planned many activities and placed high in intramural activity. During spring quarter Livingston dedicated a plaque in memory of Arnold Livingston, the person for whom the house was named. The plaque will be permanently affixed to the wall in the house den. Freshmen in Livingston became acquainted during a Freshman Days picnic at Inis Grove Park. A football game and watermelon feed filled the agenda. During the year the house placed high in both softball and bowling intramural competition and participated in volleyball and basketball. Livingston held its house dinner in the Friley Hall Dining Room. Guests of honor included the residence house mother and Dr. J. C. Schilleter, director of residence, who spoke on the functions of his department.

1st row: Heidman (head resident), Baker, Carter, Frank, Gard, Coffman, R. Green, Meltzer, Ferguson.

Louden House

One of the important events of the past 100 years, World War I, was depicted on the Loudon House float in the Veishea centennial parade. The scene showed a battlefield following the conflict. Theme of the float was "Our First Time Over." Turning from the serious to the more frivolous aspects of house decorations, the Loudon men teamed up on their Homecoming decoration, "Cyclone Teamwork Makes Jayhawk Stew." The display showed a Jayhawk kept on a treadmill by three Cardinals carrying favorite "weapons" representing different divisions of study at Iowa State. One evening in October Loudon men and their dates enjoyed a hayride. Afterwards the group had hot chocolate and coffee in the Friley tearoom and were entertained by the banjo music of Bill Spence. In athletics Loudon men played hard to capture second place in MRA spring intramurals and second place in Class A dorm football.

AN AFTER-DINNER congregation heads for the Loudon House den to find some entertainment in front of the television set or reading the sports page of the evening paper.

THERE MUST BE A WAY to accomplish two things at once, muses Ed Meyer, as he tries to get ready for classes and finish the assignment for his 8 o'clock at the same time.

Merrill House

No house seemed capable of matching the onslaught of the Merrill House bowling team attack led by John Mossberg last spring.

As a result, the Merrill men are now the proud owners of a first place bowling trophy. Residents of Merrill are particularly proud because the house is one of the "only-two-years-old" residences of the MRA. It didn't take long to join in the fun of working on Veishea, as the men constructed for their parade float an enormous figure of the comic character, Mr. Magoo, shown making a new discovery in atomic energy. In order to become acquainted with the new members and more united as a house, the men of Merrill held a picnic at the beginning of fall quarter. An abundance of watermelon and hot dogs helped the men have a rollicking good time. Even some drops of rain during the picnic failed to dampen the group's spirit.

Norman House

Working into the wee hours of the night, Norman men managed to complete their house Veishea float in time for the Saturday parade. The float symbolized the work which had been done to date in the area of atomic research. Special emphasis was placed on accomplishments at the Ames Laboratory during World War II. At Homecoming Normanites used their ingenuity to construct an animated display showing a Cyclone football player turning a Jayhawk on a spit over a fire. The slogan was, "We'll Have Our Jaybirds Well Done." Members of the house designed a special crest last year which was used as the basic decoration on house stationery this year. Socially the men of Norman planned exchanges and other parties within the house. A hayride followed by informal dancing and refreshments was given in October. Spring quarter the house honored graduating seniors. Dick Burns spoke and showed slides from Turkey after the dinner.

Richey House

Richey House was one of several MRA residences to design a special house guard to be worn with the MRA pin. The guard is in the form of the letter "R." Members of the house posted an impressive record in MRA intramural competition during the year. The golf team placed second in the intramural golf tournament. Winter quarter the bowling team tied for second place in the pro league. Before Easter vacation Richey House presented its spring formal at the Sheldon Munn Hotel. In keeping with the season, little stuffed bunnies were given as favors. The Starliters quartet presented entertainment. Richey men also enjoyed several impromptu picnics at the Ledges during the year. Spring quarter members of the house and Welch Hall coeds had a housecleaning exchange with the girls doing the cleaning, ironing and polishing of shoes. Richey men "kid-napped" the Kappa pledges last spring for an evening of dancing in the Trophy Tavern.

RICHEY HOUSE MEN check the house bulletin board for the latest information on intramural activity and pending social events.

A TENSE MOMENT approaches as Stalker men watch Larry Sheker line up a bank shot during an after-hours pool game.

Stalker House

Hard work and long sleepless nights were rewarding to the men of Stalker House when their Veishea float placed third in the MRA division. Featuring a gold bust of scientist George Washington Carver, the float paid honor to Carver as "ICS's Greatest Alumnus."

Last year Stalker House placed ninth in scholarship in the MRA and was the MRA indoor and outdoor track champion. The men also competed in volleyball, basketball, bowling and football intramurals. Stalker's parliamentary procedure team tied for top honors in the Men's Residence Association's Parliamentary Procedure Contest, thus helping to uphold their house motto, "On Top with Stalker." Dr. J. C. Schilleter, director of residence, and Tom Phelps, student body president, were guest speakers for the Stalker House dinners in the spring and fall respectively. Dances, picnics, and frequent exchanges rounded out the years' activities.

WOODROW MEN turn a potential bull session into a study hour to brush up on the quarter's work before final exam week begins.

Woodrow House

All Woodrow House members, headed by Dean Cochran and Ron Nelson, assimilated ideas and combined hours of manual labor to produce their Veishea float, a detailed scale model of the Wright Brothers' first airplane. A bit different type of talent was required to produce the Woodrow entry in the Homecoming Triumph March. Eight strong men carried a football player sitting on a throne on their shoulders.

Across the throne was written, "The All-Powerful;" and making way for this mighty procession were a small combo playing "When the Saints Go Marching In," and eight "revivalists" who circulated in the crowd. Dramatic talents were pooled for the production of a satirical skit about the various character types found on the Iowa State campus. "Carlowood Capers," the annual winter party given by Carpenter, Loudon and Woodrow houses, was held in the Helser Hall Conference Room, with Jerry Asp and his combo providing the music.

Baker House

The houses of Westgate, including Baker, planned an informal dance fall quarter in the Westgate Lounge. Decorations for the dance revolved around the theme, "The House of Blue Lights." Music was provided by the College Jazz Quartet. Determined to see an Iowa State Homecoming victory, Baker men based the theme of their house display on the slogan, "Let's Drop KU." In their decoration they tried literally to accomplish this as they showed a large hand sticking out of a fourth floor window in Westgate. The hand held a KU football player suspended in the air and kicking frantically. Spring quarter Baker House had a picnic at Brookside Park. Football, baseball, basketball and horseshoes helped the men work up an appetite for the picnic which followed. Baker men placed tenth in MRA intramurals, and one house member was selected for Phi Eta Sigma, freshman men's scholastic honorary.

Boyd House

Boyd House boasts among the most active intramural participation of any MRA house with over 70 per cent of the house members competing in some phase of the intramural program. Last year Boyd was undefeated in football and was in Class A in basketball, bowling and softball. This year Boyd had two football teams, two bowling teams, a volleyball team, two ping-pong entries and a basketball team. House members predicted success for Iowa State with their Homecoming display, "Clean Sweep for Cyclones." The decoration, covered entirely with paper napkins, consisted of an oversized broom sweeping away a large Kansas Jayhawk. Boyd was one of the four houses sponsoring the "Westgate Dance." A Western atmosphere prevailed in the house lounge which was decorated for the party. Fall quarter Boyd men had an interhouse football game with the "varsity" playing the freshmen. The experienced upperclassmen walked away from their competition with a 38-0 victory.

Erbes, Rock, Formanek, Case, Schmidt, Wood (head resident), Clark, Burgess.

Griffith House

Griffith House cooperated in sponsoring several dances this year with the other houses in Westgate Hall. The beautiful Westgate Lounge was often the scene of these parties with various campus combos providing music. Griffith planned exchanges with the coeds of Welch Hall quite often during the year, usually for an evening at the movies, a dance, work exchange or tobogganning when the weather was right. The house held its annual picnic last spring, and this fall the men and their dates went on a hayride. Griffith plans one dinner each quarter with a variety of interesting speakers incorporated into the programs. The Griffith House volleyball team was "champ" last year. This year enough interest was generated to make up two house volleyball teams and one bowling team. The house is also active in basketball competition. Griffith men completed the design for a special house guard for their MRA pins this year.

Sage House

During a busy fall quarter the men of Sage House were actively engaged in many areas of athletics and extracurricular interests. In September men of Sage invited Mrs. Margaret Lange, social director of Memorial Union, to a dinner at the house. Part of her contribution to the success of the party was an informal discussion on social curiosity, manners and dating. Many dances, picnics, a watermelon bust and exchanges were planned throughout the year. Westgate Hall is noted for the unique house parties it sponsors on Saturday afternoons. Women of the WRA are invited to the informal afternoon of dancing and leisurely recreation. Refreshments are served to climax the day. In the sports department Sage House won the Class D softball championship for which the house received a handsome trophy. The men also participated in bowling, softball and football intramurals. They advanced to the semifinals of Class A basketball.

SIX TERRACE BULBS and a multitude of light from the men's study rooms illuminate giant Friley-Hughes Hall on a snowy evening in early winter. One of the largest men's residence in the world, Friley-Hughes has five floors, 637 student rooms and houses nearly 1,420 students.

Alumni Hall

ALUMNI HALL'S "Melody Masters," in the spotlight at Veishea Vodvil, offer some of the close harmony renditions for which they have become so well-known.

The "Melody Masters," Alumni Hall quartet, captured the first place trophy in last spring's Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia contest. The Alumni Hall chorus placed second in the independent division. Alumni Hall's variety skit, "Curtain Time," was chosen for Veishea Vodvil with the hall's quartet singing for the between acts program. Informal parties during the year included a hayride followed by dancing in the "Devil's Den," the basement of the hall which was decorated in keeping with the theme. Another party used "3-D" decorations to create atmosphere. A spurting fountain was the main accent for the garden decorations used at the hall's winter formal given in the Sun Room of Memorial Union. In May the men gave a private banquet honoring the graduating seniors. Speaker was Lee Kline, of radio station WHO in Des Moines, a former resident of Alumni Hall. Alumni Hall's athletes spirited the football team to the runner-up position in all-college competition this year.

Ward System

Independent students living in off-campus housing areas near the college, have a unique central residence organization in the form of the Ward System. The Ward System, one of many college groups belonging to the National Independent Student Association, has established a three-fold purpose to help strengthen unity among its widely scattered membership. In accomplishing these purposes, the Ward System provides a means of participation in extracurricular activities for men and women not housed in organized living groups, develops fellowship among and promotes unification of these men and women, and aids members in social and personal development. Early in fall quarter the Ward System had its annual WRA-Ward Round Up, a series of informal dances. Ward System also planned and held a leadership workshop to show members the opportunities and techniques of leadership in activities.

Season's Record — 4 wins and 6 losses

PRECARIOUSLY BALANCED, Cyclone Don Webb attempts to make a quick decision and out sprint an oncoming tackler.

Coach Clay Stapleton's first season with the Cyclones began at fall practice with his forecast: "We are too inexperienced to be a good team, . . . but we will not be a bad one." The sophomore-laden squad which, by season's end, had dwindled to barely 30 in number, displayed the predicted inexperience but also showed all of the defensive spirit and spunk for which a coach could hope. Finishing with four wins and six losses, the Cyclones' victories over nonconference foes Drake, South Dakota, Arizona and San Jose State did not help their Big Eight record, which ended up 0-6 for the season. Yet the Cyclones displayed some of the strongest defensive strength against their conference foes as home town fans had seen in years. Coach Stapleton's men were edged out of a Homecoming victory 7-0, before 15,000 fans, but later in the season held highly-favored Oklahoma to a three-touchdown, 20-0 score. Boasting the best pass defense in the nation, the Cyclones allowed their opponents to complete only 41 of 109 passes during the season for an average of 39 yards per game. Ranked among the top 10 ball carriers in the nation was junior Dwight Nichols, who took the ball 220 times for a Cyclone record total of 815 yards. Nichols was named to the all-conference team at the season's end. Bob Harden, senior, and Chuck Lamson, sophomore, were also big yard-gainers with 406 and 262 yards respectively. But defensive power and outstanding team spirit did not help the Cyclones score touchdowns against more powerful conference rivals. Final season tallies listed Iowa State in the cellar position of the Big Eight, a disparaging note after sparkling victories in nonconference play. Playing their first year under Coach Stapleton and their second with the single-wing offense, the Cyclone football team continued to improve steadily despite a lack of depth and numerous injuries. Knowledge gained from this year's encounters strengthens predictions that past experience will provide strong background for the Cyclones to develop into a greater offensive challenge to conference foes.

WATCHING FROM THE SIDELINES, Gale Gibbs stands ready to enter the action on the field. Gibbs, a senior and team captain, played last season with the Cyclones.

Iowa State 33, Drake 0

Before an opening-day crowd of 15,000, Coach Clay Stapleton's Cyclones smashed Drake hopes of victory by displaying single-wing power and rolling over the Bulldogs, 33-0. The Cyclones scored once in the second quarter, twice in the third and fourth quarters. Bob Harden led the scoring barrage with three of the five touchdowns; Tom Watkins and Ron Pohl added the other two. In their victorious efforts against their traditional rival, the Cyclones regained possession of the victory bell taken in 1957 by the Bulldogs. The early season win sparked players and fans to prospects for an improved record in Coach Stapleton's first year.

AN INJURED LEFT ANKLE gets careful attention from trainers and team manager who carry end Leo Marshall to the bench for a rest.

WITH A FLYING TACKLE a Cyclone defense man trips up the Kansas ball carrier. Ground gains by the Jayhawks were hard to stop, as Kansas nicked the Cyclones 7-0 in the Homecoming game.

A CLUTCH PLAY for Homecoming fans and eager photographers began when the Cyclones sent their leading ground gainer, Moe Nichols, up the center in a last-minute drive from deep in Iowa State territory which carried the Cyclones to the Kansas four-yard line.

Iowa State 14, Arizona 0

The Cyclones won their second straight game by posting a two-touchdown win against scoreless Arizona at Tuscon. ISC scored in the first and second quarters against the Skyline Conference team in sensational touchdowns by Webb and Harden. The Cyclones were deep in Arizona territory five times in the second half but were unable to put the ball across the goal line.

Iowa State 6, Nebraska 7

A bitter pill to swallow was the opening conference game of the season which Coach Stapleton's men dropped to last season's cellar dwellers, Nebraska. Although the Cyclones threatened in the first half by driving to the one, fifteen, and twenty-yard lines of the Cornhuskers, the Iowa State team scored only in the third quarter when Bob Harden plunged over for the goal. The Cornhuskers, capitalizing on a Cyclone error, rolled back in the final quarter to match the Cyclones' goal and score the winning conversion.

Iowa State 0, Kansas 7

Listed as a 13-point favorite at the game's opening, the Cyclones disappointed a sellout Homecoming crowd by failing to threaten against a fired-up Kansas team until the final minutes of the game. Iowa State put the ball on the Kansas four-yard line late in the closing minutes as a result of excellent plays by Nichols and Lamson. But the Cyclones were unable to move the ball across the goal in four downs; the coaching staff summed up the Homecoming game as "a very bad day."

HE'S LOOSE—and the Cyclone bench becomes a group of excited, shouting men urging teammates on the field to "get tough."

ATTEMPTING TO SNEAK past the Missouri defense, ball carrier Nichols appears headed for a quick tumble. The Cyclones succumbed to Missouri's attack, 14-6.

Iowa State 0, Colorado 20

Colorado's Buffaloes, termed the best in the Rockies, accumulated a total of 350 yards rushing to defeat the Cyclones before the Parents Day crowd in Ames. Playing outstanding defensive football, the Cyclones held off strong Buff attacks. But late in the last period, the Buffs rebounded with defensive strength to stave off a threatened score by the Cyclones and hold Iowa State on the eighty-yard line.

Iowa State 6, Missouri 14

More than 500 Iowa State students migrated to Columbia to watch the Cyclones tangle with the University of Missouri Tigers. The Cyclones failed to succeed in a two-point conversion attempt after a first-half touchdown, leaving the score at half time 7-6. Stingy Cyclone players held Missouri to that score until the last half of the fourth quarter when the Tigers capitalized on a Cyclone fumble and tallied another six points. Coach Dan Devine of Missouri called the game "a maximum effort by both teams."

FLEET TAILBACK PETE GOESER gallops down the sidelines, piling up yardage as quickly as possible, before the throng of forceful tacklers has an opportunity to catch him.

Iowa State 53, South Dakota 0

The favored Cyclones, looking for a victory to offset their four-game losing streak, found their opportunity in a home game against South Dakota. During the contest Iowa State's team showed offensive spark in racking up a total of 569 yards against its North Central Conference opponents. Although outweighed by the Coyotes, Coach Stapleton's players put on one of the best scoring shows in years before the Family Day-Band Day crowd of 12,000. Holding the Coyotes scoreless, as the Cyclones have since their first win over South Dakota in 1889, Coach Stapleton emptied the bench to show fans fierce Cyclone blocking and a strong aerial attack. The Cyclones posted their third win of the season, keeping the opponents scoreless in all three victories over nonconference foes.

Iowa State 0, Oklahoma 20

The Oklahoma Sooners, ranked sixth nationally by sportswriters, invaded Ames with confidence only to be shocked and amazed at the outstanding Cyclone defense which greeted them. The thinly-manned Cyclones put up what can be termed by any Iowa State football fan as the greatest effort in recent years. Led by Dwight Nichols' full 60-minute participation, the Cyclones held the Sooners to three touchdowns and displayed courage, stamina, and determination in the game. Oklahoma Coach Bud Wilkinson called the Cyclones, "A very well-coached and fine football team."

Iowa State 6, Kansas State 14

Before a Kansas State crowd of only 7,000, the Wildcats fashioned two ground marches to test the slim Cyclone blocking power. But the Cyclones, although allowing the Kansas State gridders two scores and a total of 277 yards of rushing, rebounded late in the third quarter with a 34-yard sideline gallop by Dwight Nichols that saved Iowa State from a shutout. Twice again during the game Cyclone passes brought the team within striking distance of touchdowns, but a stubborn Kansas State defense prevented the Cyclones from achieving victory.

Iowa State 9, San Jose State 6

Coach Clay Stapleton's players wrote the final chapter to their season by taking control in the second half, coming from behind and defeating the San Jose Spartans, 9-6. Bob Harden, playing the last game of his collegiate career, led the attack by totaling 70 yards in an early third quarter drive. Cliff Rick's conversion gave the Cyclones a one-point lead. The Iowa State fury exploded before the California crowd of 11,000; and a Spartan fumble in Iowa State's end zone, recovered by the Cyclones, added another two points to the Cyclone score. Moe Nichols and Bob Harden accounted for 145 and 118 yards respectively, which the Cyclones gained on the ground while reducing the passing average per game for the Spartans from 183 to 64 yards.

COACH CLAY STAPLETON, in his first year at Iowa State, saw an inexperienced team put up tremendous defensive battles, but falter in offensive drives.

AND GOING IN FOR THE CYCLONES... But wait! A new rule, enforcing a two-substitutions-per-quarter-per-man rule, required players to "sign in" with officials before entering the game.

SIX HANDS are better than two as three Iowa State tacklers grab for a speedy Oklahoma Sooner. The Cyclone defense held the Big Eight champs to 20 points while Iowa State was scoreless.

Basketball . . . irregularity in conference play drops cagers to seventh place

Bill Strannigan's hot-and-cold basketball team found its erratic offensive and defensive play the major troublemaker in a season of rugged competition. The cagers ended their least satisfying year in Coach Strannigan's 5-year career at Iowa State. Rated second in the Big Eight at the beginning of the season by Sports Illustrated magazine, the Cyclones lost by decisive margins and dropped several nip-and-tuck contests to wind up in seventh position in the conference. The 9-16 mark for 1959 more than reversed last year's 15-9 record, as the Cyclones tumbled decisively from the second-place tie they held a year ago.

Home crowds, which dwindled as the season drew to a close, saw some exciting moments as the cagers scored impressive victories over South Dakota State and powerful Minnesota. Even the three-point loss to highly-ranked Kansas State, following a disastrous road trip, impressed fans as the Iowa State team showed the sparkle of former years. Led by 5-10 Ron Baukol, who reminded many fans of Iowa State's all-American Gary Thompson, the Cyclones dumped Nebraska, Oklahoma State and Missouri as well as Minnesota and South Dakota before home crowds.

But the Cyclones' road trip record of one win and nine losses showed the lack of effectiveness in slow-down ball tactics and "pressing" defense which the Cyclones employed. Lack of rebounding power from team members other than Henry Whitney, gave the foes frequent advantages. And an irregular scoring attack hindered offensive play.

High scorers for the season were John Krocheski, who was fifth in Cyclone history with 349, and Ron Baukol with 287. The two, named to the all-Big Eight third team, were followed closely by Larry Fie with a 280 total. Both Baukol and Krocheski more than doubled their total points scored from last year's marks. Sophomores Nick Bruno and Henry Whitney showed promise for next year. Bruno's superb floor action and Whitney's glue-tipped fingers snagging rebounds helped lead Cyclone offense.

With shooting percentages dipping to low 31-32 per cent for many games, poor free throw averages, and scoreless droughts lasting up to eight minutes at a time, Iowa State was outplayed on visiting floors and during home losses. But second-half rallies — one in which Baukol scored 10 points in 9½ minutes — and spasmodically hot offensive play led the Cyclones to their 9 lone victories.

Season's Record — 9 wins, 16 losses

SPRINGING to face the basketball net, Henry Whitney easily taps the ball in to add another score for Iowa State.

HIS LARGE HAND ON THE BALL, Cyclone Henry Whitney sweeps the rebound from the reaching hands of a Missouri player during a home game won by Iowa State 61-53.

THE BALL GOES UP, and another game begins that will excite and thrill more than 6,000 fans.

DRESSED AS "COEDS," Varsity "I" Club members look at the action on the floor with serious intent between their comic skits publicizing the "I" Carnival.

Iowa State 63, South Dakota State 56

Iowa State won the season's opener by easing away from South Dakota in the final four minutes of the game. Larry Fie's 20 points took high honors for the Cyclones, but cool 30 per cent shooting caused Coach Bill Strannigan to say, "We're a better shooting team than that."

Iowa State 81, Minnesota 75

In a double-overtime contest, the Cyclones racked up victory No. 2 with Ron Baukol reminding fans of all-American Gary Thompson as he dumped baskets for 22 points. John Krocheski and Larry Fie followed with 19 points apiece.

Iowa State 62, USC 71

John Krocheski's 26 points and a furious second half weren't enough to stop the determined Southern Cal team, as the Trojans handed the Cyclones their first defeat of the young season. The Trojans pulled away from a narrow 57-59 second-half gap to win.

Iowa State 53, UCLA 65

UCLA rounded out the Cyclones' California tour with a second defeat as free throws told the story in a close game. Both teams scored 20 field goals, but the Cyclones' 13-for-25 average on free throws, plus last minute fouls, clinched the game for the Uclans.

Iowa State 46, Illinois 68

The Cyclones swallowed their third defeat in four days as the battle-weary cagers ended a disastrous road trip. Illinois' 16-1 lead in the first minutes of the game easily bettered the Cyclones who hit one goal after the first 10 minutes of playing time and after missing 18 shots.

"OUT OF MY WAY," says the Oklahoma State man as he attempts to move around the outstretched arms of his Iowa State guard, John Krocheski.

Iowa State 79, Colorado State 55

The Cyclones got off to a quick 16-5 lead over Colorado State in the second game of a two-night doubleheader in Des Moines. Strong rebounding by Krocheski, Bergman and Davis, plus an early scoring lead clinched the game for the Cyclones.

Iowa State 56, Oklahoma City 63

With a 48-48 tie at the end of the regulation playing time, Oklahoma City continued its "slow-down" tactics and took advantage of the Cyclones' eagerness to get at the ball by calmly making 11 free throws in the overtime period to defeat Iowa State.

Iowa State 56, Kansas State 59

Iowa State started the conference schedule with a bang by scaring nationally-ranked Kansas State, 56-59. Down by 13 points early in the second half, the Cyclones took advantage of a 10-minute scoring flurry to rush back to a 46-45 lead. Despite the fact that all five Iowa State starters ended the game with double figures in the scoring column, the Wildcats managed to squeak out a close victory.

Iowa State 43, Oklahoma 56

Cold Cyclone shooters took $51\frac{1}{2}$ minutes and made nine scoring attempts before Larry Fie could manage to hit the evening's first basket for Iowa State. With 27 per cent shooting and a stifling man-to-man defense, the Cyclones dropped their second game to the Sooners, who worked easily around the Iowa State team and shot a respectable 38 per cent.

Iowa State 48, Kansas 69

Kansas claimed its third straight conference victory and handed Iowa State its third straight loss in the season's first meeting. Behind only three points as the first half ended, the Jayhawks romped during the second period to hand Bill Strannigan his only home loss to Kansas in 5 years.

Iowa State 49, Nebraska 52

The Cyclones attempted to end their slump with a shakeup of the starting five for the Nebraska game. Shooting at a 39 per cent clip, the Cyclones led 18-10 midway through the first period, but finally lost the game in the last two minutes on missed free throws.

Iowa State 64, Colorado 73

A tight defense, which gave Iowa State a 35-31 lead at the half, was also the key to the Cyclones' downfall, as Davis and Bergman fouled out and Krochkeski picked up four fouls early in the game. In the second half, Iowa State failed to score until eight minutes had ticked by—and then the Buffs' lead was too strong to overcome.

A CATALOG OF EMOTIONS written on the faces of fans. A player's shout, a cheerleader's scream, a small girl's perplexity and a coach's dissatisfaction—all combine to create the mood of basketball.

Iowa State 55, Kansas State 78

Stubborn Cyclones were still within a point of third-ranked K-State after five minutes of the second half had passed. But then the Wildcats exploded and demonstrated why they were among the nation's top teams. Bob Boozer, all-American, led the Kansas State team to victory as he matched John Krocheski's 21 points for the evening.

VIOLENT ACTION during Ron Baukol's layup brings arms, legs and a referee's whistle into play. The next move awaits the referee's decision whether the Iowa State or Kansas player was guilty of the foul.

Iowa State 48, Oklahoma State 47

The Cyclones broke a six-game losing streak in conference play as 6-11 Terry Roberts poured in 14 points to bolster Krocheski's 22-point tally and defeat Oklahoma State. Despite the Cowboys' 59 per cent first half shooting average and a cool second half for Iowa State, the Cyclones held the lead through the final buzzer.

Iowa State 61, Missouri 53

Iowa State claimed its second conference victory by handing the Missouri Tigers their eleventh straight loss. The 1959 Missouri squad, owners of the longest losing streak in the school's history, found no sympathy at Ames as Krocheski, with 27 points, Whitney and Baukol led the team to victory.

Iowa State 57, Drake 58

The Bulldogs finally edged Iowa State as Drake's Tealer dumped in a last-second shot to erase Iowa State's one-point lead. The Cyclones muffed four free throw tries in the last 70 seconds of the game, and even Henry Whitney's outstanding rebounding couldn't keep the ball from Drake hands.

Iowa State 50, Oklahoma 65

The Sooners handed Iowa State its 13th defeat, the third at the hands of Oklahoma. A 17-minute scoring drought in the first half allowed Oklahoma to establish a 10-point lead. In the final minutes the Sooners sank 10 straight free throws to clinch the victory.

A LOOSE BALL means trouble — and John Krocheski finds himself in the middle of the conflict as he tumbles to the floor while teammate Ron Baukol fights for the ball.

IN ALMOST UNBEARABLE SUSPENSE, cheerleader Sally Peterson awaits the resulting action on the floor that may mean the difference between winning or losing.

A SCRAMBLE AND COLLISION may momentarily knock the wind out of a player, proving that basketball, despite the referee's whistles, can be a rough game.

AHEAD BY ONE POINT with only seconds to go and Oklahoma State in possession of the ball, Cyclones John Krocheski, Larry Fie and Ron Baukol take caution to prevent a foul which might lose the game for ISC.

SETTING HIS SIGHTS on the basketball net, Ron Baukol lines up a free throw.

EXECUTING a graceful pirouette, John Krocheski peeks over the shoulder of his Oklahoma opponent to discover where the basketball has gone.

Iowa State 54, Oklahoma State 59

A combination of slow-down tactics and torrid shooting in the second half spelled defeat for Iowa State at the hands of Oklahoma State. The Cyclones owned a 32-29 lead at the half, but the Aggies soon overcame the deficit. The battle was never really decided until the last seconds of play.

Iowa State 63, Colorado 75

The Buffaloes rolled over Iowa State in a one-sided game as John Krocheski, still suffering from one ankle sprained at Oklahoma, sprained the other. Lead by Baukol, with 13 points, and Fie, with 11 points, the Cyclones failed to overcome a nine-point deficit.

Iowa State 59, Nebraska 56

Five Cyclone starters played the entire game without relief as Iowa State won its third loop victory of the season, despite the absence of leading scorer Krocheski. Outstanding rebounding and scoring of Terry Roberts, aided by Fie, Bergman, and Davis, saw the Cyclones shooting at a 43 per cent clip, as they fought to avoid the Big Eight cellar position.

Iowa State 67, Kansas 62

The Cyclones, still shying away from the Big Eight basement, upset the Jayhawks with balanced scoring and clutch free-throw accuracy in Iowa State's first victory at KU's Allen Fieldhouse. Five Cyclones totaled scores in double figures, with Baukol leading the clan.

Missouri 68, Iowa State 67

Last place Missouri triumphed over Iowa State in a hard-fought battle which established the Cyclones in seventh place in the Big Eight Conference. With the score tied four times in the second half, and leading scorer Krocheski pulling the Cyclones within one point twice, the Cyclones' determination was not enough to keep Missouri from edging to a victory in the season's final game.

IN HIS FINAL SEASON at Iowa State, Coach Bill Strannigan's team won only nine games. Strannigan announced his resignation after the season to take Wyoming's head coaching vacancy. A week later freshman coach Glendon Anderson was appointed as Strannigan's successor.

THE JOY OF VICTORY — heightened by a narrow one-point margin — is felt as the final buzzer declares the Oklahoma State contest history.

Wrestling . . . outstanding record, two national champs spark season

NATIONAL COLLEGIATE CHAMPION RON GRAY matches muscle against Wyoming opponent Jerry Frude, whom he defeated in this match 11-3. Gray met Frude once again—in the NCAA finals—and again defeated him, 9-3.

The most outstanding record in Iowa State athletics during the 1958-59 season was compiled by Coach Harold Nichols' wrestling team. Led throughout the season by two-time NCAA 147-pound champion Ron Gray, the Cyclone matmen compiled an impressive 11-3 season's record and took second place in both the Big Eight Conference and NCAA wrestling meets.

The Cyclones had two Big Eight champs in Gray and 177-pounder Ron Meleney. Gray defeated his NCAA crown successfully at Iowa City while the Cyclones' other 1958 national champ, Les Anderson, lost his to Paul Aubrey of Oklahoma in a hard-fought 3-2 match. Larry Hayes, 137-pounder for the Cyclones, picked off the NCAA crown in his weight class in the 1959 meet by downing Shelby Wilson of Oklahoma State, 10-3 in the national finals. The Cyclone wrestlers lost only to Northern Illinois, Oklahoma and Oklahoma State during the regular season while downing Mankato State, Syracuse, Cornell University, Cornell College, Colgate, Wyoming, Colorado, Nebraska, Kansas State, Colorado State College and Big Ten Champion Minnesota. Iowa State's 17-9 defeat of the Minnesota Gophers was the high point of the season. Cyclone captain Ron Gray was voted the "Outstanding Wrestler" in the 1959 NCAA meet. Gray, who concluded his college career with a 9-3 win over Wyoming's Jerry Frude in the NCAA finals at 147 pounds, compiled an impressive 17-0-1 record for his senior year. The Eagle Grove athlete won 53, lost only two and tied one in his Iowa State career. He won the Big Eight Conference championship three times, the national crown twice and finished second in the nation in his sophomore year.

...the opponent attempts an escape. But unable to wrench from Hayes' grip...

...he ends up in the "down" position, with Hays clearly at the advantage again. Hayes won and later became NCAA champion in the 137 pound class.

Iowa State coach Harold Nichols, wrestling coach of the year in 1958, was named the president of the American Wrestling Coaches and Officials Association at the NCAA tournament in Iowa City. Nichols has compiled an impressive record of 53-10-3 in his six-year career at Iowa State and has guided his teams to a third and two second place finishes in the past three national meets. He has also produced three national champions during his Cyclone coaching career.

BACKSTROKER DAVE EWERT churns into a turn during the Iowa State-Oklahoma swimming meet. Oklahoma was the only conference school to defeat the Cyclone tankers.

Swimming . . . tankers finish second in Big Eight

Coach Jack McGuire's swimmers, with one of the toughest schedules outside of the Big Ten, finished their 1959 season with a 4-4 dual-meet record and a second place in the Big Eight Conference. Although without the help of last year's conference champion diver, Dale Wassmuth, the Cyclones managed to shun threats from Nebraska and Kansas and remain second only to Oklahoma. But the Sooners, fast becoming perennial favorites in Big Eight swimming, still have some distance to go to match the Cyclones' long-standing record of the most conference championships in the swimming competition.

Second Place, Big Eight Conference Meet

Beginning the season by meeting two of the nation's top teams, Michigan State and Michigan, the Cyclones were handed their first two losses by nonconference foes. Victories over the next four competitors, all Big Eight teams, gave the tankers enough spunk to battle Minnesota swimmers to a close 10-point loss. Ace freestyler Jerry Petkus and diver Don Echelberger accounted for Iowa State's only two individual first places against the tanker's next foe, Oklahoma. The freestyle relay team of Ron Begg, John Shearer, Tom Thayer, and Jerry Petkus, who won a disqualification victory over the victorious Sooners in the dual meet, came within a tenth of a second of defeating the same relay team in the final Big Eight championship. Petkus, who took first-place honors in the 100-yard freestyle event with a :53.2 time, anchored the relay team in :51 during the most exciting moment of the championship meet. With 10 returning lettermen and the added strength of such outstanding freshmen as Paul Witherell, who has shattered and tied a number of Big Eight records, the Cyclones will still face their greatest competition from the Sooners. But pressure from other foes who are improving as rapidly as the Cyclones cannot be neglected.

Baseball . . . 8-15 record 'disappointing' after national ranking

SNEAKING IN AHEAD OF THE BALL, an opposing player chalks up another run against Iowa State.

The Cyclones' eight baseball wins against fifteen losses caused Coach Cap Timm to term the season "a little disappointing." The team possessed more physical potential than the records indicated, and some of the season's highlights seemed to offset disappointments. Iowa State defeated Oklahoma State in a crucial game that smothered the Aggies' chances for a first place in the Big Eight. And later the Cyclones defeated Missouri to throw the league into a wide-open race that lasted until the final game of the season. Missouri ended in the second place spot in the loop. Sparking Cyclone action was Doc Brink, third baseman, whose .349 batting average placed him at the top among Cyclone hitters. R. D. Locker, Lee Olmstead, Gary McNertney, and Bob Harden all turned in batting averages over .300 at the season's end. In Iowa State's crucial victory over Oklahoma State, R. D. Locker's, Olmstead's and McNertney's batting led an eight-run splurge in the fifth inning. Behind four runs at the beginning of the fifth, R. D. Locker's double started the scoring streak that ended in Iowa State's 11-8 victory over the Aggies. Doug Borth and R. D. Locker led the hitting department with two apiece in Iowa State's victory over the Missouri Tigers. Borth had a home run for the Cyclones, the only one in the game. R. A. Locker's pitching, which by the season's end was the best among the Cyclones, played an important part in Iowa State's 8-7 win over Missouri.

WITH A MIGHTY SWING a Nebraska player takes a bite out of the ball that never reached the hands of catcher R. D. Locker.

WATCHING HIS CYCLONES in action, Coach Cap Timm's expression reflects the season's 8-15 record, a mark which he termed "a little disappointing."

Cyclone baseball players ended their 1958 season with a 8-15 over-all record and an 8-12 conference record good for sixth place in the Big Eight.

Track ... future looks bright after average season

Cyclone cindermen, under the coaching of Burl Berry, placed in the Texas Relays, the Kansas Relays and the Drake Relays. Times turned in by Cyclone runners were better than any in the previous eight years at Iowa State. Both the two and four-mile relay teams were outstanding and placed with regularity in meets. Captain Phil Delavan brought a string of Cyclone victories in the shot-put event, but the dual meet squad lacked sufficient depth to score consistent victories. Ken Sweeney, 1959 captain, heads a team of returning veterans such as Bob Brandt, Gary Haltmeyer, Ron Sanson and John Darby. Powerful freshman track stars assure a bright future for Iowa State's varsity track team.

BREATHLESS AFTER A LONG RUN, Ken Sweeney is assisted off the track by teammate Ron Sanson.

Promising freshmen such as Harlan Millikin and Dave Rudolph, who turned in a time of 4:21 in the mile run and a 13-foot 6-inch pole vault height respectively, make the future track picture look optimistic. Captain Phil Delavan, in his final season, set a record of 55 feet, one inch in the shot-put event during the Cyclones' 961½-801½ victory over Drake trackmen. The throw bettered by 1½ feet the meet record, and bettered by 3½ inches the school record. Other graduating seniors who participated in their final season included Frank Jolly, Allen Meyer, Dick Marsh and Adrian Magnuson. In the Drake Relays, Delavan placed fourth in the shot-put event. The four-mile team placed fifth, and Ken Sweeney and Bob Brandt finished third and fourth in the quarter-mile hurdles. The two-mile relay team finished fourth. In this meet the Cyclones faced competition that included such names as Bobby Morrow, Dave Sime and Mel Patton, as well as former University of Kansas basketball star Wilt Chamberlain.

Cross-Country . . . harriers rank fifth in nation, edge Kansas in NCAA

Iowa State's cross-country team, coached by Burl Berry, ranked fifth in the nation after the NCAA cross-country meet Nov. 24 at East Lansing, Michigan. The Cyclones trailed Michigan, Western Michigan, Army and Notre Dame and were one position ahead of the Kansas harriers. Coach Berry, pleased with his team's performance, stated that Iowa State was the first cross-country team in 10 years to edge Kansas out of the first position in NCAA competition. Captained by Leo Teghtmeyer, the harriers were second to Kansas only in the Big Eight cross-country meet held earlier in November at Norman, Oklahoma. Runners Darby, Teghtmeyer, Sanson, Millikin, Vanek, and Haltmeyer took individual places in both important meets.

Tennis . . . squad compiles 8-5 record

With Oklahoma and Colorado tying for first place in the Big Eight Tennis Meet, Harry Schmidt's netmen trailed Kansas State, Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska to come in ahead of Missouri only. Although they held the next-to-last position in the Big Eight loop, the netmen turned in an 8-5 win-loss season record. Victories over Kansas, 4-3, and Missouri, 7-0, were described by Coach Schmidt as "most satisfying." Mike Hoffman, after the first matches, won Schmidt's praise as the most valuable player. Dick Sahr, Dan Larsen, Roger Barney and Dick Olson were other good reasons for the eight victories compiled by the Cyclones.

Golf . . . team ends in fourth place

Jack McGuire's golfers turned in a pleasing 5-3 win-loss record as they finished fourth in the Big Eight Conference meet. With Dale Fridley and George Turner in good form, the Cyclones came out of the conference's first round maintaining a second-place position; out of the second round in a third position, but were finally edged out of this spot and landed in fourth place for the final standings. Turner and Fridley were both named among the top 10 players in the tournament. With the addition of the Oklahoma State golfing powers to the newly-formed Big Eight, competition increased proportionately to the Aggies' high national ranking in golf. But the Cyclones bettered last year's results despite the new competition.

During winter quarter Varsity "I" Club sponsored the annual Varsity "I" Carnival following the Iowa State-Missouri basketball game. Held in State Gymnasium, the event featured an all-college sock hop, pie-throwing contest and a "flipping-the-hoop" booth. Jean Steinbrecher was crowned Varsity "I" queen. To become a member of the "I" Club, one must have been awarded a varsity letter for participation in a college sport. The club is organized to create a closer relationship between letter winners in different sports, improve sportsmanship and promote better relations among athletes, the faculty and students. The Varsity "I" Club awards "I" blankets to graduating senior athletes. Wearing the well-known red and gold jackets, Varsity "I" members sold programs at all home football games. The Varsity "I" Club has representatives on athletic council and Pep Council. Other club members in their "I" jackets and sweaters attended all athletic events to support the Cyclone teams. The 70 members also helped sponsor the spring varsity-intersquad football game. Roger Pohlman served as president during the past year with Phil Hill, vice-president; Ken Sweeney, secretary; and Chuck Martin, treasurer, as other officers.

JEAN STEINBRECHER, Varsity "I" queen plants a generous kiss on the cheek of John Krocheski at the "I" Carnival following the Missouri game. Krocheski was high-point man in the game with 27 points.

WHIPPED CREAM COVERED Varsity "I" men stand in line for more punishment when the wicked aim of this coed hits the target.

THE SCRIPT "ISC" has become a traditional closing to card section stunts at the football games. Still in its infancy, the card section was started by Pep Council three years ago.

MIKE STEFFENSON, Pep Council president, presents wrestling champ Frank Powell with the Athlete-of-the-Year award at Veisheathon ceremonies.

Pep Council

A new Pep Council was formed in the spring of 1958 through the merging of 630 Club and the original Pep Council. Purposes of the reorganized group are to direct student body spirit, give incentive to the athletic teams and assist the athletic department in recruiting athletes. The group presents an athlete-of-the-week award and an athlete-of-the-year trophy. Pep Council sponsored the migration to Columbia, Mo., for the Iowa State-Missouri football game. Other activities included pep rallies, a reception for the new football coaches, a dance for the freshman football team, a dinner honoring the track team and a winter sports recognition dinner given in conjunction with Ames' businessmen.

Cheer Squad

Seven enthusiastic members of the cheer squad spent the year generating spirit for the Iowa State athletic teams. In attendance at every home game and many contests away from Ames, the cheerleaders lead support for the Cyclone teams. This year cheers were simplified and shortened in order to make them more effective and easier to learn. The cheer squad practiced three hours a week and also took tumbling lessons so that they could coordinate tumbling with their cheers. Another of the duties of the cheerleaders was decorating the goal posts on Saturday mornings. Barb Laue served as head cheerleader with Louie Thompson taking over the duties for football season and Carol Gorman for basketball season.

WAA Council

Fun, healthy exercise, sports and sportsmanship are the aims of the Women's Athletic Association. WAA sponsors a range of club activities including archery, bowling, camp counselors, dance, hockey, officials, pool and racquets. The council of WAA is composed of the presidents of each club and is the group responsible for coordinating the women's athletic program. Intramural activity among the women's residences is arranged by the Intramural Board which has a representative from each residence.

Women's 'I' Fraternity

Women's "I" Fraternity is a service organization, separate from, but related to the Women's Athletic Association. To become a pledge of the fraternity, a woman must receive an athletic "I" award by earning six credits in the different clubs of the WAA, have maintained a 2.2 all-college average and be approved by club members and faculty. During fall quarter the fraternity sponsors an all-college mixed volleyball tournament. Members usher at the Barjche and Naiads productions winter and spring quarters.

WAA COUNCIL—1st row: Brogan, Kurt (sec.), Laue (v.p.), Jensen (pres.), Larson (treas.). 2nd row: Staver, Ryken, Littell, Hansen, DeGroff, Manchester, Dr. Guiot (adviser).

Men's IM schedule offers 23 activities for 6,000 participants

Boasting one of the most highly organized intramural systems in the nation, Iowa State's program, under the direction of Harry Schmidt, offers 23 different activities to students in all residence groups. More than 6,000 male students participated this year in touch football, golf, handball, outdoor track, tennis, horseshoes, bowling, swimming, table tennis, volleyball, basketball, wrestling, indoor track and softball. In touch football, one of the most hotly-contested races of the intramural year, the Phi Psis ranked as all-college winners with Alumni Hall in the runner-up spot in Class A. Class B, C, and D championships were won by ATO, Sigma Nu, and ATO second team respectively, with the runner-up spots being held by Lincoln House, Beta-Epsilon Ward, and Kimball house in that order. Classes A, B, C, D denote degree of competition determined by a team's win-loss record — Class A being the most difficult for which to qualify. Volleyball Class A winners during the 1958 season were the Phi Psis in fraternities, Griffith House in the dormitory division, and Beta-Epsilon ward in the ward division. With the intense amount of active participation in the Iowa State intramural program, management of the sports could present a major problem. But physical education majors receive practical experience through their participation in the program as scorers, time-keepers, referees and managers, while keeping the program moving in a well-oiled fashion. In addition, intramurals serve as an observation ground for varsity coaches who often spot likely material and enrich the varsity athletic teams.

RUNNING HARD, the ball carrier escapes a would-be tackler to make a sizeable yardage gain in an intramural football contest.

GARY FODERBERG REACHES high for the throw from home plate in an attempt to catch a runner coming into first base.

GRIMACING, Ed Roberts tries to get a take-down on Tom Graham as the two wrestle for the heavyweight championship in the finals of intramurals. Roberts won 3-1.

BOWLING OFFERS exciting intra-mural competition among residences during fall and winter quarters.

OPPOSING PLAYERS participate in a jump ball situation during the finals in Class B basketball.

Intramurals provide varied activity program for women

Swimming, volleyball and table tennis tournaments are sponsored fall quarter as a part of the women's intramural program. Including all women's residences, the program is one of the chief concerns of the Women's Athletic Association. Women participating in intramurals are eligible to become members of the WAA. Gag Ward and Dinny Bartness were the winners of the table tennis doubles tournament with Teek Kurt and Barb Laue placing second. Gag Ward also won the singles tournament, and Donna Schrader was second. Delta Zeta was victorious in the volleyball tournament. During winter quarter basketball and badminton tournaments took the spotlight, and spring quarter the women participated in softball, bowling, golf and tennis. The intramural program is scheduled and organized by members of Intramural Board. Under the direction of Audrey Hansen, the board is made up of a representative from each women's residence. The program is set up under a point system with points being awarded for first, second, third and fourth place positions in the various sports. A sweepstakes trophy is presented to the residence with the most points at the end of the year.

MEMBERS OF OFFICIALS CLUB review a rule about legal procedures in basketball. Club personnel officiate at all intramural sports contests among women's residences.

SARAH WILLEY DRIVES through her guards to attempt to score for East Linden Hall during the final game of women's basketball intramurals which her dorm dropped to the team from Birch Hall.

TEAMWORK LIKE THIS results in a smashing pass over the net, a tough play to return in any volleyball game.

GOOD RELAXATION AND exercise are provided through the popular game of badminton, an intramural activity offered winter quarter.

BARB LAUE CONCENTRATES on her aim as she hits the ball to her opponent during ping-pong singles competition.

Behind the pages of the 1959 Bomb many persons have devoted countless hours of their talent and time in service to this publication and the students of Iowa State. In addition to the excellent staff members whose contributions have made the book a reality, the influence of many others, offering opinions, guidance and confidence, has enriched the quality of your Bomb. As you view this work we hope you will find a record which has captured the essence of your life at Iowa State. For this is a story of you and your education and of your opportunities to acquire knowledge at Iowa State College. It has been a privilege to edit this book, to work with fine, understanding people in its production, and now to present the finished product to you. — Bonnie Rollins
