"A Yearbook Is an Awful Lot of Trouble"

On the First Day the staff created the SENIOR'S BOOK. They said, "This is good."

On the Second Day they created the BOOK OF GREEKS and were pleased with their efforts.

The Third Day they saw the greeks lonely so created the BOOK OF RESIDENCES. They smiled to themselves.

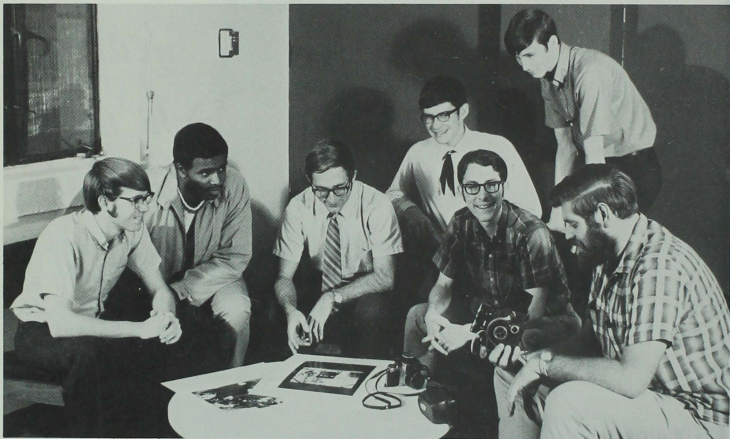

The Fourth Day they took an arm and a leg and created the BOOK OF SPORTS. Then they breathed color into it and it came to life.

On the Fifth Day they felt a need for achievement and said, "Let the BOOK OF ORGANIZATIONS be born." And it came to pass.

On the Sixth Day they created fire and thunder and excitement and, outdoing themselves, created the BOOK OF YEAR. They put color and sound into it and it also came to life. And the staff said, "Ah, that is good!"

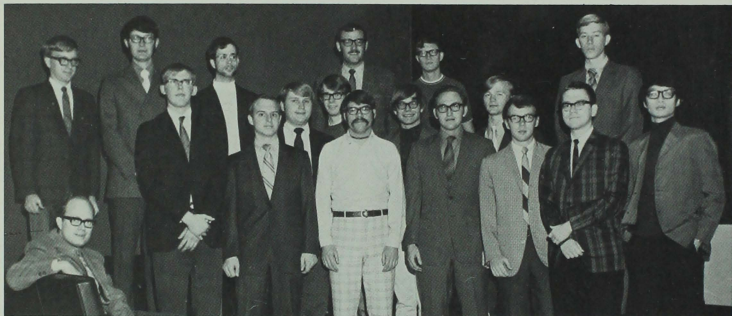

On the Seventh Day the staff rested and looked down upon their work and smiled. Greatness had come from their hands.

In any profession—engineering, physics, teaching—a student must possess the ability to analyze and argue a number of problems. The ability to advocate or oppose an issue in a clear and forceful manner should be sought by everyone, regardless of his profession. It is the purpose of the Iowa State Debaters to develop this ability.

Debaters each year attend thirty to thirty-five intercollegiate debate tournaments on college campuses throughout the United States. Tournaments regularly attended by Iowa State include Michigan State University, Dartmouth College, Texas Christian University, and Wayne State University.
