Dear mother,
Chas. J. May

Dear Mother,
Friday, 15th July 1889.

Having a few leisure moments I will devote them to a pen & ink chat with you, & the rest of the "Toronto area & home", for as all roads are better all, have kind of a share in all. When I feel the need I have you again & hope you will write enough to pay for the week you "skipped". I hope that winter when you will ever miss writing because you are tired of writing are don't want the trouble of it, but when you have reasonable expenses I have nothing to say, no fault to find.
It is extremely warm today & has been for the last few days. In Since you tell's father, the justice would thank you much for advice for any one to be with, it is so hard, that the was advised to have it done to you, kind of much, don't it?

Dear ~~me~~ it is so hard this afternoon, I hardly think much more with.

I intended to write to Father & Helen last night, but I am so very weary, will write if I don't write more good long letters soon, I shall be much as kind, happy to give to large to write to each from as we are staying, "G. H. Chas" to write on that week, they "hush" to write, I must write to each to each and now you are content with anything

I thought to write it with much love will tell her no this. The reason of July 31, yesterday. A man from Ohio came up to go, & he brought the letter to me. After some, it was, I was content with it. I reached London the 1st, I think it was the 1st, I think it was the 1st, I think it was
