A Dole or Work Relief?

The problem of the small town business man, the farmer forced off of his farm, or the younger people, who have had no place to go, is not a problem to be solved from Washington, or in the State colleges and universities.

It is a problem that you, as a citizen of Iowa, must consider very seriously.

In most Iowa counties, there are men and women, bread-winners for their families, who are willing and able to work but who cannot find work.

What do you think should be done about them?

Should they be on a dole, receiving food and rent and doing nothing?

Or, should they be allowed to work on useful, worthwhile projects sponsored and asked for by the communities in which they live?

Unemployment and economic turmoil of the last five years originated grave problems which you must solve. Representative government demands that you decide they shall be solved.

Politics, as such, should have no part in your decision. If the Iowa your fathers discovered is to endure, you must take an active interest in this State's most serious problem of the moment.

Neither Washington, Des Moines, or any other place, can determine how best to utilize our unemployed fellow Iowans as well as you who live in your own county and know conditions so intimately.

COUNTIES, CITIES, TOWNS AND TOWNSHIPS ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR WORK RELIEF PROJECTS—IT IS YOUR RESPONSIBILITY!

See Them for Yourself

Sixteen Hundred Work Projects

Re-employ 30,000 Iowans

In Iowa during less than a year of Works Progress Administration, three hundred projects have been completed and thirteen hundred are nearing completion.

More than 2,800 miles of farm-to-market roads have been drained, graded and surfaced with rock or gravel.

Approximately 200 miles of sewers in towns and cities have relieved a situation about which the State Department of Health has long been complaining.

More than 50 miles of water mains have laid in Iowa towns and cities to take care of communities long suffering from inadequate water facilities.

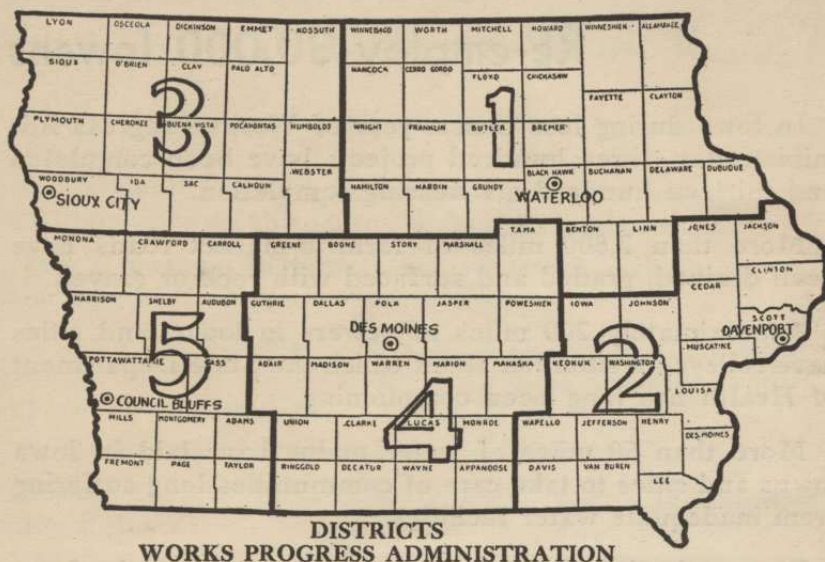

Forty school buildings have been renovated in Iowa by erstwhile unemployed Iowans. Airports and swimming pools have been constructed by WPA project workers. More than 100 state and city parks have been improved.

DO YOU KNOW that all WPA projects are asked for and sponsored by the county, town, or city, in which you live? Do you realize that it is to your greatest interest to have a voice in determining what projects should be sponsored by your community? You should be vitally interested in helping decide what projects shall be built in your place of residence.

Of every 1,000 Iowans employed by WPA, there are 380 working on farm-to-market roads and rock quarries; 90 at work in the State, county and city parks; 70 working on flood control and water conservation; 90 on sewers and watermains; 120 on sewing and clerical projects; 60 repairing and reconstructing public buildings; 70 at work on miscellaneous projects.
