

IOWA

W P A SAFETY DEPARTMENT

The boss who requires men to work in a ditch beyond a depth of five feet without shoring timber, knows little of the laws of gravitation or is just plain dumb.

The men who act the fool with explosives seem to know nothing of the quick passage over the River Jordan and the slow return.

In a race with a Railroad train for the crossing, you may win many times - but only lose once.

The truck driver who thinks that beer and gas is a harmless mixture, sooner or later finds himself all wet.

The man who cannot sense danger should carry a rabbit foot in his pocket.

Some W.P.A. workers take a short ride on the running board, with no thought of the long journey that may follow.

Men with good common horse sense, generally live to a ripe old age.

Men who really think they are smart - should at least be careful.

One Hundred Dollars worth of lumber in a sewer ditch will often save Three Thousand Dollars in Compensation.

A worker rode a truck with legs hanging out. Now he rides with his peg leg inside. His job was swinging a shovel - now it's waving a red flag.

J. D. Smith,
State Safety Consultant.

8/25/36.